H. Buehman, photographer, informs the public that he has located himself in Independence for a few days, and is ready to furnish those desiring his services with all of the best styles of pictures. He has many views of the different ruins in the lower part of the county, which can be purchased at low figures.

Ice.

Col. Putney, of the Headquarters saloon, has made arrangements for procuring a steady supply of ice from the mountains, with which he will temper cooling drinks during the heated term. As the Colonel has no idea of enjoying good things to the exclusion of other folks he will dispose of it in quantities to suit.

Resumes Management.

Wm. G. Squires to-day resumes charge of the Inyo House, which is just now enjoying a big run. Charley Parsons, the retiring landlord, proposes to supply this market with fruit, from his orchard over in Tuolumne.

Cerro Gordo.

A strike is reported in McDonough's mine, situated on the Belmont side of the mountains. All the furnaces are in operation, producing more bullion than the transportation contracts call for—300 tons per month.

Deserted.

Three soldiers of the command at Camp Independence deserted a night or two ago, taking to the tall mountains. A detachment is out after them, but their capture is problematical.

School House.

John Alexander has been awarded a contract for building a school house at Lone Pine, 36 by 40 in size. It is to cost $1,195, and be a complete and substantial affair.

High

The waters of the river are very high, from the melting snow. Rafting is rendered dangerous and fording impossible.

Meeting.

Members of Independence Engine Co. No. 1 will not forget the fact that a meeting of the company is called for next Monday evening.

Lida Valley Items.

Samuel Halsey and Mr. Manser, from Lida Valley, paid us a visit on Wednesday last, from whom we obtained the following items concerning that bullion-producing region: The mines, so far as known at present, are comprised in a district seven miles long by about one half mile wide—the Lida Belle and Brown's Hope being situated at the extreme ends. Within this belt 60 men are now engaged in working 12 ledges, all of which are yielding ore of the richest description. The Lida Belle, owned by Messrs. Halsey & Ayers, is down a depth of 55 feet. The vein consists of two stratas, the larger being 14 inches in width, nearly 2 feet apart at the surface, but at the present depth there is but 4 inches of waste separating them. Four tons of this ore, recently worked at the Deep Spring mill, assayed $724 16 per ton, and the lot netted the owners $1,938 10, after deducting $80 per ton for packing and reduction, with 20 per cent. loss. Specimens with which we are favored show no quartz whatever but solid chloride, closely resembling ore from the celebrated Eberhardt, and assaying $9,000 per ton. Choice pieces have produced the enormous assay of $12,762 per ton. The Brown's Hope, lately purchased by Messrs Hiskey & Walker, has a shaft of 45 feet, showing a widening vein of 14 inches of exceedingly rich ore. The Simon Pure, owned by Mr. Manser, is prospected a depth of only 10 feet; shows a ledge 10 inches wide, from which a small lot of ore worked $1,103 in silver and $100 in gold per ton. The Lida Hill, belonging to Brown and Hiskey & Walker, shows a ledge 4 feet wide, 10 inches being of the highest grade; has been sunk upon 15 feet. Len Martin's claim—the Sewana—produced rock which worked $1,100 per ton. Other locations are mentioned as doing equally well, and all of them seem to be entirely lacking in the usual concomitant of low grade ore. A town site has been laid out at Scott's Springs, near the center of the mineral belt, but mills will probably be erected at both ends, making, of course, two settlements. There is a good natural road to Deep Spring, but still the ore is transported by pack trains, at a cost of $30 per ton However, this expense will of course be obviated when the Deep Spring mill, doubly increased in capacity, is removed to the mines, which will be done during the present season. Although Columbus has heretofore been the general supply-point for the district, our citizens should take care to see that the roads leading from here there are used to the advantage of this valley, making it the base of supplies for that section.

Church Matters.

The quarterly meeting began here last Saturday pursuant to notice. On Sunday Elder Nims preached two interesting sermons to a larger number of hearers than usual for this place. He started for his home at Austin the following day. The annual Conference is to meet soon at Carson, we believe, and it is quite probable the Elder will be assigned a new field. This will be a source of regret to his many friends here, and perhaps to the Elder himself, as he expresses himself much pleased with the appearance of our valley, and has a high opinion of its future material, if not its spiritual, prospects. Rev. Mr. Orne will probably be retained on his present circuit. He has succeeded in building a good parsonage without incurring any debt, and hopes in due time to be equally as successful in regard to a church building.

Fencing.

John Broder is having a section of land lying just east of town enclosed for pasturage. The fence is of 1¼ inch boards and cedar posts. After much difficulty, some swearing and any quantity of "wetness" W. A. Greenly and Jim Rose have just succeeded in getting these posts rafted down the river from a point opposite Big Pine. Though the river is high it is impossible to get a raft down without taking it to pieces at two or three points where the big shake-up shook the bottom very near the surface, and spread the waters to a great width. Unless something is done to improve the navigation of Owens river the song of its "Jolly Raftsman" will be heard no more.

Fightists.

The Summer season of pugilistic amusements may be said to be fairly opened, the exhibitions attracting good audiences during the past week. The entertainment opened with a one-sided set-to between Alphabetical Connelly, Bill Joclyn and a shovel, which was followed by a lively skirmish between Gardner and Alexander, as the parties interested. B. L Brown and Warren Matthews took the star roles in the afterpiece, the interlude being occupied by several hefty pounding matches among the aborigines, the whole forming a highly enjoyable performance.

Climate Changing.

Earthquakes, or more likely, the evaporation of such an immense amount of water by exposure in irrigating ditches, seems to be effecting a change in this hitherto extremely dry climate. Rains have become unusually frequent this Spring, quite a sprinkle having fallen at different times since yesterday morning, and causing a decided coolness in the weather.

School.

Mr. Hardy's private school, which begun last Monday, is progressing finely. The attendance is somewhat larger than was anticipated, but there is room for a number of other pupils yet. Parents ought not to neglect this opportunity to place their children in a good school.

Started Up.

The Eclipse mill is now under way, with very good prospects for successful reduction of their ore.

Fire in Cerro Gordo—Destruction of Beaudry's Furnace.

On Wednesday last, the 30th ultimo, the building surrounding the galmadore of the Cerro Gordo Smelting Works was totally destroyed by fire, for the second time. We are not apprised of the manner in which the flames originated, and unable to make any supposition, as the main building, at least, was roofed with iron and every precaution taken to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe. A large amount of wood was also burned, the total loss being estimated at $4,000. The building and wood were insured in the London, Liverpool & Globe and in the Northern Assurance Co., both of London, for $750 in each. But the greatest loss will be occasioned by the necessary stoppage of the works during the time required to rebuild. Advices also state that Mr. Beaudry, the proprietor, is seriously ill, which announcement will awaken the profoundest sympathy among his very numerous friends throughout the county.

Shooting.

At Cerro Gordo, on the evening of the 27th ultimo, a couple of Chinamen named respectively Lee Tu Pang and See Kee, got into active hostilities over the possession of a moon eyed daughter of the sun, resulting in the severe wounding and probable death of one of them. It appears that Pang owned the woman, who left him and went to the protection of Kee, renouncing her former master. Pang, in an effort to recover his prize, goes after Kee with a pistol, which he discharged once and received in return a shot in the leg above the knee, sustaining a bad, compound fracture. Other Chinamen refused to allow amputation, and the probabilities are that his death will result. See Kee was arrested and examined before Justice Fox and discharged, on evidence substantially as stated.

Deep Spring.

Frank Dillon and J. S. Brown have been over to Deep Spring Valley. Among other news, L. R. Wick is reported to be a regular rustler of a merchant—inasmuch as he has a certain box upon which he reposes, in easy reach of his various articles of merchandise, from which he disposes of everything without the trouble of getting up. However, Wickscy is doing first rate. Earnest inquiries were made concerning the young man from Independence who was so determined upon establishing a store at the Springs with such an immense stock of goods. The Assessor and his companero were very naturally mistaken for highwaymen by a guard escorting over bullion from the mill, which little error resulted in a mortal scare to both parties.

Bullion Shipments.

May 9th there were shipped from Hiskey & Walker's mill 5 bars of bullion, weighing 2,130 ounces, valued at $2,400. Also, May 23, 9 bars, weighing 3,173 ounces, of the value of $3,700. A note from the mill men says: "Prospects are flattering for Lida and surrounding districts; every few days some lucky man gets rich by 'striking it.' We worked a small lot of ore from Tule Canyon for Messrs. Scott & Black, worth $230 per ton; good ore, but hardly up to Lida.".

Plans Wanted.

By reference to the amended advertisement calling for proposals for the building of a Court House and county bridges, it will be seen that plans for a Court House are wanted, which will be received up to the 8th instant.

Swansea.

A note from Superintendent Van Arsdale, of the Owens Lake Silver Lead Co. contains the following: "The furnace has been running steadily for some time, making generally about 120 bar per day."

Little Lake House.

This property will shortly be taken in charge by Mr. Thompson, of Havilah, who proposes making it a first class station.

Takes the Dispatches.

Some substantial facts in the Alabama claims correspondence will be found in our telegraphic columns to day.—Tulare Times.

From the foregoing and several other similar items, we observe that The Times now "takes" the dispatches and produces "original leaded editorials" as promptly as a regular newspaper—which speaks well for its enterprise, were it not so suggestive of defective editorial supervision. And the editor goes his pile on Lindley Murray, while his paper is the ne plus ultra of perfection (?) in typography.

Stocks.

Mining stocks are looking up again in San Francisco, and the bulls are hopeful. Sharon is buying again, having given up the idea of "busting out" Jones and Hayward. We hear nothing new in regard to the Yellow Jacket fire.

—John Pease, a wicked man at Winchendon, went a fishing on Sunday, got capsized, and narrowly escaped drowning. Moral—John's brother, returning from church the same day, was thrown from his buggy and had his neck broken.

FOR SALE.

I HAVE SIX YOKE OF WORK CATTLE, TWO Heavy Wagons and a lot of Blacksmith Tools, which I will trade for young stock, or sell cheap for cash, or on time at a low rate of interest, with approved security. Apply to the undersigned, at his shop at Big Pine.

VARIETIES.

—The Prince of Wales is relapsing into "fast" habits. He rode a steeple-chase in Rome.

—A Wisconsin school-mistress was removed lately for "catching a young man up by the legs and jerking him around with great force, striking the left temple against a bench or some other obstacle and bruising it severely."

—A man out West undertook to play with a lion at the menagerie, the other day. He says he finds it mighty hard to write with his left hand, but that he misses his eye more than anything else. His nose was always a trouble to him.

—"O, sir," said a woman pleading for her husband, who was before the police Judge for beating her with a poker, "he wasn't always that way. There was a happy time when he only struck me with his fist."

—The number of inhabitants to a house is as follows in the following cities: London, 8; Berlin, 32; Paris, 35; St. Petersburg, 52; Vienna, 55. The mortality keeps pace with these numbers, being lowest in London and highest in Vienna.

—"If it's a paper man ye are, yez can just lave me house at wanst, for it's divil a of bit rest I've had since I lost me poor cow, all on account of them spalpeens, the rayporters. May the divil fly way wid thim! Be aff wid ye, I say. —Mrs. O'Leary, Chicago.

—Newspapers in the South which support the Cincinnati nominations are felicitating themselves on the fact Mr. Greeley is more than half a Southerner; that is, his better half is a native of North Carolina—Miss Cheney—to whom he was married in 1836.

—The British Government are about to call in the silver fourpenny pieces now in circulation, so as to avoid the confusion which now arises from having two silver coins of similar appearance, the threepenny pieces being of nearly the same size.

—Bad sewerage, wherever it exists, has a good deal to answer for. It is a novelty, however, to read of an "elderly female," Matilda Jones by name, who being charged in one of the London Police Courts with being "drunk and incapable," so that she was obliged to be carried to the station on a stretcher, declared to the justice that her condition arose from her being "chemicalized from a sewer."

Prescribing for Infants.

The following sensible hints on this subject are from a lecture by Prof. J. O'Reilly, published in The American Practitioner for April, 1872:

There are two points in the general medication of children to which I wish especially to call your attention. One is the subject of thirst, the other is the interval at which medicines should be given.

In quite a number of infantile diseases the stomach is very capricious, and to keep it quiet is one of our greatest troubles. This difficulty is often caused by the attendant not understanding the difference between hunger and thirst. The sick child is fretful, and cries and pulls at its mothers breast; and she, willing to do anything that soothes it, permits it to nurse. It sucks, and in a few moments rejects the milk; but cries again, and the mother again yields it the breast only to have the stomach again reject its contents, and thus the fight goes on until the infant is exhausted. The doctor gives medicine to quiet the irritable stomach, and the mother counteracts its effect by over feeding. What I wish to express is the fact that the child is not hungry; it does not want the breast, but is thirsty and wants a drink. In health the breast is food and drink, but in disease the craving is that of thirst, and the stomach which rejects the milk because it is unable to digest it, would be calmed by a cool beverage. In other words, were water given to the child in place of the breast, the stomach would be relieved, and in many cases the child saved. This difference between thirst and hunger is a point well worth noting.

Medicine should be given to infants in small but often repeated doses. The interval should only be half as long as that for the adult. The reason for this is that the digestive organs of the infant act much more rapidly than those of the adult, and medicine to have its effect must be supplied in accordance with its entrance into and dissappearance from the system.

Earthquake on the Colorado.

The Sentinel, of Arizona City, has the following account of a recent earthquake at that place:

On Thursday, May 2, at about 5:45 P. M., two shocks of an earthquake were felt at this place. The vibrations, which were accompanied by a sound similar to that of distant thunder, were from the northwest to the southeast, and were of from one to two seconds' duration, with an interval of about two seconds. The first shock was very light, but distinct. The second shock, which is said to be the heaviest ever felt here, was so severe as to cause the inhabitants to seek refuge in the streets. The only damage, so far as we can ascertain, is in a room in the rear of Mr. Pulfer's saloon, on Main street, where the two corners to the south were badly cracked, the crevice being not less than half an inch in width, and extending from top to bottom. The counter in the saloon was thrown from its position nearly an inch. The store of Nissen & Co., corner of Gila and Second streets, was also damaged to the extent of a crack in the wall, on the south side also, of about an eighth of an inch.

THE NEW MINING LAW.

An Act to Promote the Development of the Mining Resources of the United States.

[APPROVED MAY 11, 1872.]

SECTION 1. That all valuable mineral deposits in lands belonging to the United States, both surveyed and unsurveyed, are hereby declared to be free and open to exploration and purchase, and the lands in which they are found to occupation and purchase by the citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such, under regulations prescribed by law, and according to the local customs or rules of miners, in the several mining districts, so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with the laws of the United states.

SEC. 2. That mining claims upon veins or lodes of quartz or other rock in place, bearing gold, silver, cinnabar, lead, tin, copper or other valuable deposits, heretofore located, shall be governed as to length along the vein or lode by the customs, regulations and laws in force at the date of their location. A mining claim located after the passage of this act, whether located by one or more persons, may equal, but shall not exceed, fifteen hundred feet in length along the vein or lode; but no location of a mining claim shall be made until the discovery of the vein or lode within the limits of the claim located. No claim shall extend more than three hundred feet on each side of the middle of the vein at the surface, nor shall any claim be limited by any mining regulation to less than twenty-five feet on each side of the middle of the vein at the surface, except where adverse rights existing at the passage of this Act shall render such limitation necessary. The end lines of each claim shall be parallel to each other.

SEC. 3. That the locators of all mining locations heretofore made, or which shall hereafter be made, on any mineral vein, lode or ledge, situated on the public domain, their heirs and assigns, where no adverse claim exists at the passage of this act, so long as they comply with the laws of the United States, State, Territorial and local regulations not in conflict with said laws of the United States governing their possessory title, shall have the exclusive right of possession and enjoyment of all the surface included within the lines of their locations, and of all veins, lodes and ledges throughout their entire depth, the top or apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extended downward vertically, although such veins, lodes or ledges may so far depart from a perpendicular in their course downward as to extend outside the vertical side lines of said surface locations; Provided, that their right of possession to such outside parts of said veins or ledges shall be confined to such portions thereof as lie between vertical planes drawn downward as aforesaid, through the end lines of their locations, so continued in their own direction that such planes will intersect such exterior parts of said veins or ledges; And provided further, that nothing in in this section shall authorize the locator or possessor of a vein or lode which extends in its downward course beyond the vertical lines of his claim to enter upon the surface of a claim owned or possessed by another.

SEC. 4. That when a tunnel is run for the development of a vein or lode or for the discovery of mines, the owners of such tunnel shall have the right of possession of all veins or lodes within three thousand feet from the face of such tunnel on the line thereof, not previously known to exist, discovered in such tunnel, to the same extent as if discovered from the surface; and locations on the line of such tunnel of veins or lodes not appearing on the surface made by other parties after the commencement of the tunnel, and while the same is being prosecuted with reasonable diligence, shall be invalid; but failure to prosecute the work on the tunnel for six months shall be considered as an abandonment of the right to all undiscovered veins on the line of said tunnel.

SEC. 5. That the miners of each mining district may make rules and regulations not in conflict with the laws of the United States, or with the laws of the State or Territory in which the district is situated, governing the location, manner of recording, amount of work necessary to hold possession of a mining claim, subject to the following requirements: The location must be distinctly marked on the ground, so that its boundaries can be readily traced. All records of mining claims hereafter made shall contain the name or names of the locators, the date of the location, and such a description of the claim or claims located by reference to some natural object or permanent monument as will identify the claim. On each claim located after the passage of this Act, and until a patent shall have been issued therefor, not less than one hundred dollars' worth of labor shall be performed or improvements made during each year. On all claims located prior to the passage of this Act, ten dollars' worth of labor shall be performed or improvements made for each one hundred feet in length along the vein until a patent shall have been issued therefor; but where such claims are held in common, such expenditure may be made upon any one claim; and upon a failure to comply with these conditions, the claim or mine upon which such failure occurred shall be open to re-location in the same manner as if no location of the same had ever been made; provided, that the original locators, their heirs, assigns, or legal representatives have not resumed work upon the claim after such failure and before such location. Upon the failure of any one of several co-owners to contribute his proportion of the expenditures required by this Act the co-owners who have performed the labor or made the improvements may, at the expiration of the year, give such delinquent co-owner personal notice in writing, or notice by publication in the newspaper published nearest the claim, for at least once a week for ninety days, and if at the expiration of ninety days after such notice in writing or by publication, such delinquent should fail or refuse to contribute his proportion to comply with this Act, his interest in the claim shall become the property of his co-owners who have made the required expenditure.

SEC. 6. That a patent for any land claimed and located for valuable deposits may be obtained in the following manner: Any person, association, or corporation authorized to locate a claim under this Act, having claimed and located a piece of land for such purposes, who has, or have, complied with the terms of this Act, may file in the proper land office an application for a patent, under oath, showing such compliance, together with a plat and field notes of the claim or claims in common, made by or under the direction of the United States Surveyor General, showing accurately the boundaries of the claim or claims, which shall be distinctly marked by monuments on the ground, and shall post a copy of such plat, together with a notice of such application for a patent, in a conspicuous place on the land embraced in such plat previous to the filing of the application for a patent, and shall file an affidavit of at least two persons that such notice has been duly posted as aforesaid, and shall file a copy of said notice in such Land Office, and shall thereupon be entitled to a patent for said land, in the manner following: The Register of the Land Office, upon the filing of such application, plat, field-notes, notices, and affidavits, shall publish a notice that such application has been made, for a period of sixty days, in a newspaper to be by him designated as published nearest to said claim; and he shall also post such notice in his office for the same period. The claimant at the time of filing this application, or at any time thereafter, within the sixty days of publication, shall file with the Register a certificate of the United States Surveyor-General that $500 worth of labor has been expended or improvements made upon the claim by himself or grantors; that the plat is correct, with such further description by such reference to natural objects or permanent monuments as shall identify the claim, and furnish an accurate description, to be incorporated in the patent. At the expiration of the sixty days of publication, the claimant shall file his affidavit, showing that the plat and notice have been posted in a conspicuous place on the claim during said period of publication. If no adverse claim shall have been filed with the Register and Receiver of the proper Land Office at the expiration of the sixty days of publication, it shall be assumed that the applicant is entitled to the patent, upon the payment to the proper officer of five dollars per acre, and that no adverse claim exists; and thereafter no objection from third parties to the issuance of a patent shall be heard, except it be shown that the applicant has failed to comply with this Act.

SEC. 7. That where an adverse claim shall be filed during the period of publication, it shall be upon oath of the person or persons making the same, and shall show the nature, boundaries and extent of such adverse claim, and all proceedings, except the publication of notice and making and filing of affidavit thereof, shall be stayed until the controversy shall have been settled or decided by a court of competent jurisdiction, or the adverse claim waived. It shall be the duty of the adverse claimant, within thirty days after filing his claim, to commence proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction, to determine the question of the right of possession, and prosecute the same with reasonable diligence to final judgment; and a failure to do so shall be a waiver of his adverse claim. After such judgment shall have been rendered, the party entitled to the possession of the claim, or any portion thereof, may, without giving further notice, file a certified copy of the judgment-roll with the Register of the Land Office, together with the certificate of the Surveyor General that the requisite amount of labor has been expended, or improvements made thereon, and the description required in other cases, and shall pay to the Receiver five dollars per acre for his claim, together with the proper fees, whereupon the whole proceedings and the judgment-roll shall be certified by the Register to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and a patent shall issue thereon for the claim, or such portion thereof, as the applicant shall appear, from the decision of the court, to rightfully possess. If it shall appear from the decision of the court that several parties are entitled to separate and different portions of the claim, each party may pay for his portion of the claim, with the proper fees, and file the certificate and description by the Surveyor General, whereupon the Register shall certify the proceedings and judgment-roll to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, as in the preceding case, and patents shall issue to the several parties according to their respective rights. Proof of citizenship under this Act, or the Acts of July 26, 1866, and July 9, 1870, in the case of an individual, may consist of his own affidavit thereof, and in case of an association of persons unincorporated, of the affidavit of their authorized agent, made on his own knowledge or upon information and belief, and in case of a corporation organized under the laws of the United States, or any State or Territory of the United States, by the filing of a certified copy of their charter or certificate of incorporation; and nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the alienation of the title conveyed by a patent for a mining claim to any person whatever.

SEC. 8. That the description of vein or lode claims, upon surveyed lands shall designate the location of the claim with reference to the lines of the public surveys, but need not conform therewith; but where a patent shall be issued as aforesaid for claims upon unsurveyed lands, the Surveyor General, in extending the surveys, shall adjust the same to the boundaries of such patented claims, according to the plat or description hereof, but so as in no case to interfere with or change the location of any such patented claim.

SEC. 9. That sections one, two, three, four and six of an act entitled "An Act granting the right of way to ditch and canal owners over the public lands, and for other purposes," approved July 26, 1866, are hereby repealed, but such repeal shall not affect existing rights. Applications for patents for mining claims now pending may be prosecuted to a final decision in the General Land Office; but in such cases where adverse rights are not affected thereby, patents may issue in pursuance of the provisions of this Act; and all patents for mining claims heretofore issued under the act of July 26, 1866, shall convey all the rights and privileges conferred by this Act where no adverse rights exist at the time of the passage of this Act.

SEC. 10. That the act entitled "An Act to amend an act granting the right of way to ditch and canal owners over the public lands, and for other purposes," approved July 9, 1870, shall be and remain in full force, except as to the proceedings to obtain a patent, which shall be similar to the proceedings prescribed by sections six and seven of this Act for obtaining patents to vein or lode claims; but where said placer claims shall be upon surveyed lands, and conform to legal subdivisions, no further survey or plat shall be required. And all placer mining claims hereafter located shall conform as near as practicable with the United States system of public land surveys and the rectangular subdivisions of such surveys, and no such location shall include more than twenty acres for each individual claimant; but where placer claims cannot be conformed to legal subdivisions, surveys and plats shall be made as on unsurveyed lands; Provided, that proceedings now pending may be prosecuted to their final determination under existing laws; but the provisions of this Act, when not in connict with existing laws, shall apply to such cases; Provided also, that where by the segregation of mineral lands in any legal subdivision a quantity of agricultural land less than forty acres remains said fractional portion of agricultural land may be entered by any party qualified by law for homestead or pre-emption purposes.

SEC. 11. That where the same person, association or corporation is in possession of a placer claim, and also a vein or lode included within the boundaries thereof, application shall be made for a patent for the placer claim, with the statement that it includes such vein or lode, and in such case (subject to the provisions of this Act and the Act entitled "An Act to amend an Act granting the right of way to ditch and canal owners over the public lands, and for other purposes," approved July 9, 1870) a patent shall issue for the placer claim, including such vein or lode, upon the payment of five dollars per acre for such vein or lode claim, and twenty-five feet of surface on each side thereof. The remainder of the placer claim, or any placer claim not embracing any vein or lode claim, shall be paid for at the rate of two dollars and fifty cents per acre, together with all costs of proceedings; and where a vein or lode, such as is described in the second section of this Act, is known to exist within the boundaries of a placer claim, an application for a patent for such placer claim which does not include an application for the vein or lode claim shall be construed as a conclusive declaration that the claimant of the placer claim has no right of possession of the vein or lode claim; but where the existence of a vein or lode in a placer claim is not known, a patent for the placer claim shall convey all valuable mineral and other deposits within the boundaries thereof.

SEC. 12. That the Surveyor-General of the United States may appoint in each land district containing mineral lands as many competent surveyors as shall apply for appointment to survey mining claims. The expenses of the survey of vein or lode claims, and the survey and subdivision of placer claims into smaller quantities than one hundred and sixty acres, together with the cost of publication of notices, shall be paid by the applicants, and they shall be at liberty to obtain the same at the most reasonable rates, and they shall also be at liberty to employ any United States Deputy Surveyor to make the survey. The Commissioner of the General Land Office shall also have power to establish the maximum charges for surveys and publication of notices under this Act; and, in case of excessive charges for publication, he may designate any newspaper published in a land district where mines are situated for the publication of mining notices in such district, and fix the rates to be charged by such paper; and, to the end that the Commissioner may be fully informed on the subject, each applicant shall file with the Register a sworn statement of all charges and fees paid by said applicant for publication and surveys, together with all fees and money paid the Register and Receiver of the Land Office, which statement shall be transmitted, with the other papers in the case, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The fees of the Register and Receiver shall be five dollars each for filing and acting upon each application for patent or adverse claim filed, and they shall be allowed the amount fixed by law for reducing testimony to writing, when done in the Land Office, such fees and allowances to be paid by the respective parties; and no other fees shall be charged by them in such cases. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to enlarge or affect the rights of either party in regard to any property in controversy at the time of the passage of this Act, or of the act entitled "An Act granting the right of way to ditch and canal owners over the public lands, and for other purposes," approved July 26, 1866, nor shall this Act affect any right acquired under said act; and nothing in this Act shall be construed to repeal, impair, or in any way affect the provisions of the act entitled "An Act granting to A. Sutro the right of way and other privileges to aid in the construction of a draining and exploring tunnel to the Comstock lode, in the State of Nevada," approved July 25, 1866.

SEC. 13. That all affidavits required to be made under this Act, or the Act of which it is amendatory, may be verified before any officer authorized to administer oaths within the land district where the claims may be situated, and all testimony and proofs may be taken before any such officer, and when duly certified by the officer taking the same, shall have the same force and effect as if taken before the Register and Receiver of the Land Office. In cases of contest as to the mineral or agricultural character of land, the testimony and proofs may be taken as herein provided on personal notice of at least ten days to the opposing party; or if said party cannot be found, then by publication of at least once a week for thirty days in a newspaper, to be designated by the Register of the Land Office as published nearest to the location of such land; and the Register shall require proof that such notice has been given.

SEC. 14. That where two or more veins intersect or cross each other, priority of title shall govern, and such prior location shall be entitled to all ore or mineral contained within the space of intersection; Provided, however, that the subsequent location shall have the right of way through said space of intersection for the purpose of the convenient working of the said mine; and provided also, that where two or more veins unite, the oldest or prior location shall take the vein below the point of union, including all the space of intersection.

SEC. 15 That where non-mineral land not contiguous to the vein or lode is used or occupied by the proprietor of such vein or lode for mining or milling purposes, such non-adjacent surface ground may be embraced and included in an application for a patent for such vein or lode, and the same may be patented therewith, subject to the same preliminary requirements as to survey and notice as are applicable under this Act to veins or lodes; Provided, that no location hereafter made of such non-adjacent land shall exceed five acres, and payment for the same must be made at the same rate as fixed by this Act for the superficies of the lode. The owner of a quartz mill or reduction works, not owning a mine in connection therewith, may also receive a patent for his mill site, as provided in this section.

SEC. 16. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed; Provided, that nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to impair, in any way, rights or interests in mining property acquired under existing laws.

The New Mining Law.

We last week devoted considerable space to publishing the law concerning our agricultural interest, and this week we do the same thing in regard to the more important mining interest. Prospectors and mine owners generally will do well to preserve a copy of this law for their own guidance. It is plain in its provisions, and shows that it is gotten up in a thorough understanding of the subject. It seems to us to cover every necessary condition in settling conflicting titles to mines that can be provided for in a general law. Among other good features that which limits the length of a claim on a ledge whether taken by an individual or a company, to 1,500 feet is to be commended. It also simplifies and greatly lessens the expense of obtaining a patent, the only permanent title, to a mine.

Why They "Hang On."

A Lone Pine correspondent of The Bulletin says:

Commerce languishes painfully, and as a consequence, money is not over freely circulated. That people remain here at all, in view of the continuous agitation of the earth, can be referred to no other cause than that, with true reckless obstinacy, they have determined to hang on for the sake of spiteing Independence—the county seat—between which and this place there exists an irrepressible jealousy and rivalry of interests.

People there will enjoy many a good shake up yet before they get "their money back on that lay out," if that is the best reason they have for staying there. "Why do you allow your wife to hit you that way?" "Oh, it seems to do her some good, and don't do me a particle of harm."

Pacific Slope Convention.

The Women Suffragists have called a convention to meet in San Francisco June 18. "Sufferers" of both sexes, favorable to the cause, are requested to attend, no matter whether elected as delegates or self appointed. As a delegate from this county we would designate the man who, the other day, thanked a kind Providence that his wife was not a good cook, as, had she been, he knows he would soon have died of surfeit. By encouraging the strong-minded movement good cooks will become scarce, and according to the above reasoning everybody's days will be long in the land.

Newspaper Changes.

Fred. Elliott, junior member of the firm of Geo. W. Cassidy & Co., proprietors and publishers of The Eureka Sentinel, has sold out his interest to Cassidy, who will hereafter continue the publication as sole proprietor. The Sentinel has done much for that section of country, and we hope it may receive a most liberal support. W. B. Taylor has become editor and proprietor of The Elko Independent, and as he is an unyielding Republican, we presume that paper will no longer sail under Democratic colors.

Pneumatic Dispatch Tube.

An item of $15,000 has been inserted in the House Appropriation bill providing for the construction of a pneumatic dispatch tube for conveying messages and printed matter from the Capitol to the Government Printing Office. According to the proposed plan, the messages will be placed in hollow spheres, which, by compressed air, are to be driven through the tube with little friction and great velocity.

Jim Haun.

This individual has been sentenced to twelve years in the State Prison. He would have got three or four years more, it is supposed, only that it was considered he had received an equivalent punishment by reason of his having lived four years in this county previous to his arrest.

Fires.

It has not been long since Pioche had a $40,000 fire, and by the last mail we learn that Eureka had one rated at $20,000 and New York one that will foot up about $100,000, besides a number of small affairs all through the country ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 each.

—The New York Herald classifies its Democratic exchanges thus: In favor of a straightout Democratic ticket, 44; in favor of awaiting the action of the Democratic Convention, 88; in favor of the Cincinnati nominee, 29.

Small-Pox.

This dreadful disease has broken out in its worst form at Batavia, Solano county, and in San Francisco. Several persons have died from it at Batavia.

GENERAL HOWARD AND THE APACHES.

Gen. Howard, after due personal investigation of the facts connected with the Apache question in Arizona, has finally given Gen. Crook full permission to deal with those pests as he thinks best; in other words, to kill every Apache he can catch off the Reservations. In a lengthy speech at a meeting in Prescott, Gen. Howard, among many other sensible remarks, expressed his belief that though the reservation system was the quickest and best to pursue in seeking a permanent peace, there would have to be some spilling of Indian blood done in Arizona before they can be brought to a realizing sense of the benefits of the system. He is undoubtedly correct on the last point. There will have to be some killing done, and enough of it to satisify the survivors that they must behave themselves or die. That is all that is required of them—to live in peace with their "white brethren," and then, so far as the latter are concerned or care, they can live and go where they please—on or off Reservations. We know from personal experience and knowledge that such was the sentiment among settlers elsewhere on this coast whose surroundings and trials were very similar to those of the people of Arizona. With the cause all animosity and blood-thirsty feeling toward the Indians ceased. But the cause did not cease until many Indians, and whites, too, ceased to live, nor will it Arizona; never in the world.

Whether right or wrong in the abstract, it is a settled and inevitable fact that the red man must give way before the white, and it is no less an incontrovertible fact that the spilling of blood is an essential condition to this result. But even these Arizona incorrigibles do not need to be exterminated to convince them of the utter futility of warring against the inevitable. It needs nothing of the kind to make them behave themselves and be satisfied to live in peace, but it does need war, and war to the knife while it does last. No foolish, temporizing policy, such as we have been having, will ever accomplish the desired object. We much hope to hear that Gen. Crook is to be allowed every possible facility the United States Government can supply to further his operations. He ought not to be restrained or limited in any manner until he does bring these marauders to a proper sense of the very simple conditions required of them. It ought to be done quick and effectually both in justice to our own people and as a real mercy to the Indians themselves. They ought to be whipped so effectually that they will gladly live in peace without being compelled to live wholly on Reservations, for to the most of them a Reservation life is scarcely preferable to death itself. The way these Reservations are generally managed the Indian's dread of them is natural and fully justifiable. Gen. Howard will have his hands full if he succeeds in correcting half the abuses connected with them. Generally speaking the title of Indian Agent, or Reservation officer of any grade, is synonimous with thief, swindler and everything else that is mean. The border ruffian Indian-hater, of whom Colyer and his kind complain so much, is a paragon of virtue and honor compared to many, if not the most of these fellows. As long as such men are permitted to stand as representatives of the white race, so long will there be trouble with Indians with which they come in contact, whether on or off Reservations.

Jail Break at San Bernardino.

A number of prisoners broke out of the San Bernardino jail on the morning of the 28th ultimo. The fact was not discovered until in the afternoon. A large number of officers and volunteers went in pursuit. Alanson Gardner, one of the murderers of the Bilderbeck brothers and an Indian were the only prisoners left in the jail. The former was in a separate cell. The Indian could have got away with the others but refused to go, saying that he is innocent of the crime for which he is confined, but was afraid to inform on the escaped desperadoes for fear they would kill him.

Protection of American Industry.

Under the above caption The American Artisan of May 22 has a long and well written article, favoring a tariff which not only affords revenue, but puts home industries on an equal footing with foreign, as the best system of taxation. It says a protective tariff must be continually supervised and regulated according to the exigencies of trade and industry. The length of the article precludes an extended notice at this time, but we shall refer to it again more at length, not only as it affects the whole people, but as applicable in some respects to communities like our own.

—Editing a newspaper is very much like raking a fire—every one thinks he can perform the operation better than the one who has hold of the poker.

LETTER FROM DEEP SPRING.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

DEEP SPRING VALLEY,
May 30, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I have just made a tour through Lida and adjoining camps, and thinking some of your readers might like to hear from them I therefore drop you a few items.

LIDA DISTRICT

is situated about ten miles east of Palmetto, and takes it name from Lida Valley, a small nook nestling in the mountains on the northwestern borders of Death Valley. Strange to say, that this place, with its great mineral wealth, and fine facilities for working mines, should have laid until lately unprospected, and only used by daring prospectors as a camping ground on their way to the barren regions of Death Valley, where doubtless they supposed the Demon of Hell had hidden his richest treasures.

The mines here look well, but, as elsewhere, when strangers come they are too apt to condemn by contrasting the many worthless locations with the few good ones. The history of all mining camps in California and Nevada shows that of legions of locations only a few prove to be genuine, metal-bearing ledges. Hence if newcomers would take this fact into consideration and select the few out of the many, in place of condemning the good ones on the evidence of the poor ones, there would be fewer sore-headed mine seekers, and the mining interests would be better off generally. Lida is not an exception to this rule, as doubtless the majority of locations are worthless, but she has her full complement of good mines, of this there is not the smallest doubt.

THE BROWN'S HOPE MINE,

owned by Messrs. Hiskey & Walker, has proved itself to be a good one from the fact that so large an amount of silver has been extracted from the ore taken from so small a space and under such adverse circumstances. The ledge matter is near four feet wide, with a vein of metal twenty inches wide, which pays from five to eight hundred dollars per ton. They are down on it now near fifty feet with as rich rock at the bottom, and a better prospect for a larger body of ore than they had on the surface. It has every evidence of being a true contact fissure lode between granite and slate.

THE LIDA BELLE,

another good mine, owned by Messrs. Ayers & Halsey, has every evidence of being equally as permanent as the Brown's Hope. It lies on the crest of a rugged mountain. At some former time fifty feet or more of the country rock slid away exposing a rich body of black ore and a ledge partially prospected by nature. This mine lies in limestone, and in my opinion successfully controverts the prevailing belief that there only pockets and chimneys in limestone. From my experience are more usual in granite than in any of the secondary formations.

There are other promising mines in Lida which bid fair to be as good as those I have mentioned when work is a little further prosecuted. An embryo mining town begins to show itself "in great expectations," as they say. With two rickety whisky shops and a half starved store other cities have started, and have grown on nothing more. The way night in Lida was made hideous by the demoniac yells, one would suppose sheep-herders delight a delightful horn—in a horn.

which lies some twelve miles southward. On our way we passed around the base of huge old Mount McGruder, towering in a sort of a curious, wild way; solitary and alone in his glory. His hoary head reposing in the lap of heaven and kissing the dewy skies with his withered lips. He seemed to say as we passed: "Gentlemen, let me lift you a little, that you may see the littleness of man and all the world below." "Old Jokeist," we quickly replied, "of the littleness of man, we know more than we would like to know. Therefore, old ruler of the storms and of the wild, sad region you survey, we would rather, with your permission, through mountain vales and woody glades, pursue our wonted way."

They have not organized a district at Tule yet, as they have found nothing but float. There is evidently good ledges close by, as the big boulders of rich metal bearing quartz don't indicate a very great disturbance. There are a few men prospecting for the ledges and they are quite sanguine of soon finding them. At this place are a few men making four or five dollars a day to the man. The placer mines are extensive enough to make quite an old fashioned California mining camp if there was only a sufficient supply of water.

From Tule we wound our way over the mountains southward to the new mining district of Addison, lately organized by some Belmonters. They have some fine, large well defined ledges located, which they intend prospecting with a will, immediately. If the mines look well after a certain depth, it won't be long until those mining people of Nevada will wake that vast wilderness from its dead slumbers with the shrill whistle and the clattering of ponderous stamps.

It must have been near this place where our

OLD FRIEND HAHN,

Wheeler's guide, so mysteriously disappeared. It is quite likely now, since prospectors have got in here, that some clue will be got to unravel the curious web of mysteries.

While here we had two distinct earth shakes, which convinced me I must be in Inyo, as old Dame Rumor has it now, "only Inyo has earthquakes." Inyo had better get up an exhibition of earth tremblings, and charge outsiders so much a sight to get even for those they have been persisting in inflicting contrary to all facts or reliable reports. By the by, since earthquakes are not exhausted, if the subject is, in my next, if your are agreeable, I will give you my theory of them.

I did not go to Gold Mountain, but was informed by parties just from there that their best ledges look remarkably well, and that a mill will be built as soon as they increase their supply of water.

OPTIMIST.

CAMP INDEPENDENCE.

We are indebted to Mr. Thos. Bell for a copy of a letter from the Secretary of War, Wm. W. Belknap, to Senator D. D. Pratt, of Indiana, relating to the proposed removal of Camp Independence. Senator Pratt is a cousin to Mrs. Bell, and at her instigation he brought this important matter to the attention of the Secretary, who writes as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON CITY, May 14, 1872.

Hon. D. D. Pratt, U. S. Senator:

Sir—Referring to your letter of the 6th instant, enclosing a newspaper article on the anticipated abandonment of the Post at Camp Independence, California, I beg to inform you that the question of rebuilding the Post and repairing the damage caused by the earthquake which recently destroyed it, has been presented for the consideration of the Department, which, however, can arrive at no satisfactory conclusion until the passage of the Deficiency Appropriation bill now pending in Congress.

In considering the subject due regard will be paid to the interests of the settlers in that locality.

Very respectfully your ob't servant,
WM. W. BELKNAP,
Secretary of War.

Important to Settlers.

It has generally been understood, says The Sacramento Union, that the time for pre-emptors to make proof and payment had been extended, though nothing was known positively. The Register, after communicating with Congressman Sargent on the subject, has just received the following copy of the law, with the date of its passage, from which it will be seen that the time is extended until March 22, 1873:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all bona fide pre-emption claimants who may have filed their declaratory statements, prior to the passage of this Act, upon any of the public lands in the State of California, shall have one year from and after the passage of this Act in which to make proof and payment of their respective claims.

Approved March 22, 1872.

Died Among Strangers.

Mr. Joseph Heath came to Visalia about the 19th instant, from Inyo county. He was feverish and unwell for most of the trip, and at Tule river became unable to keep his saddle, and hired a conveyance to this place. His fever increased, assumed a congestive form, and Monday morning he died at the Graham House. His age was 33 years. Mr. Heath's mother resides, as we understand, in Fayetteville, Penn. Among his papers was a recent letter from Mr. Matchet of Paris, Mo., giving an account of the death of his wife, who was a sister of Mr. Heath. The deceased came to Visalia with a horse which he designed entering for the races occurring this week. This horse and saddle constitute all the effects of value he had with him. He was buried Monday afternoon, being followed to the grave by a large number of our citizens, Rev. Mr. Edwards officiating. He had good care during his sickness, but it was sad to see him die among strangers, and to think of his aged mother and friends who have yet to learn of his fate. Deceased being a Pennsylvanian, the following gentleman, all from his native State, acted as pall bearers: Joseph Martin, Philadelphia county; Henry Rex, Lehigh county; J. F. Grusenmyer, Philadelphia; E. W. Willett, Philadelphia; J. M. Johnson, Philadelphia; Harvey P. Gray, Lancaster; A. P. Cromley, Jefferson; John Rinedollar, Philadelphia.—Visalia Delta, May 30.

Poor Joe; his many friends here will be grieved to learn of his sad fate. He was a man of good education and a ready writer, and but for his overweaning modesty might have filled a much higher position in life than the one he chose to maintain.

There is probably an error in the above reference to his effects; he had some six or seven hundred dollars in cash when he left Swansea.

Texas Pacific Railroad.

Mr. Horton writes from Washington under date of April 30th, that he had received most earnest assurances from the President of the Texas Pacific that the building of the road from San Diego eastward would be commenced as soon as possible, and prosecuted with much more rapidity than is required in the bill. The provision that ten miles should be completed the second year was not objected to by Mr. Scott with a view to protract, but rather as a measure to expedite the work, by enabling him more readily to negotiate for the means necessary for that purpose. The letter thus closes: "Our railroad will now be built. San Diego is regarded as having a future worthy of being looked to by men of capital and indomitable enterprise, chief of whom is Thomas A. Scott."—San Diego Union.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

During a terrific rain storm which passed over Northwestern Iowa and Dakota on the night of the 15th ultimo, a large waterspout descended to the earth, striking a few miles from White Swan, Dakota, and covering the earth for a great distance around with water to the depth of 8 to 30 feet. Fortunately it did not strike in the vicinity of any settlement, and no person was injured, but considerable stock was lost. The Mississippi telegraph line was demolished for a great distance, and covered with earth and uprooted trees.

The North Pacific Railroad, which is to run from Saucelito to the Walhalla river, is surveyed and will be built. It is to be a narrow gauge, 115 miles long and will run into a fine timber region.

More rascalities have been detected by inspecting committees in the books and accounts of the Methodist Book Concern. In one case there was an error by a clerk of $20,000 against the concern. It was also shown that those in the office had privately speculated on leather charged to the concern to the extent of more than $20,000—that is, that much was stolen.

The New York World is authority for the statement that Greeley has agreed to make Horatio Seymour Secretary of State in case the Baltimore convention indorses him and he is elected President.

Butler is importuning the President to extend the Kuklux bill (which expires with this Congress) beyond the present session. The House refuses—94 to 103.

By 113 to 83 the House refused to suspend the rules and pass the Senate civil rights bill.

The Democratic State Central Committee of Ohio voted down a resolution in favor of nominating a straight Democratic ticket, and appear to have finally indorsed Greeley.

At Philadelphia a Grant club has been organized, with over 4,000 members, to receive the delegates to the convention.

Visalia is very indignant at the Central Pacific people, who are going to build the depot six miles away. The company wants a donation of 640 acres of land on which to build a rival town. The Visalians are rather hard to please, so they don't like this proposition, and say they will give half a million dollars to any railroad that will pass through their town.

Senator Stewart agrees not to call up the Goat Island bill this session. There is evidence that the Central Pacific Railroad is temporizing from fear of stimulating the movement for constructing the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad. If the latter movement is allowed to fail the Goat Island scheme will be resumed.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says that the Protocol indorsed by the Senate is reported to be so arranged as to hold the declaration of the principle, instead of the mere surrender of the demand for consequential damages, and there is therefore a probability that Great Britain will be dissatisfied and the whole matter again be made the subject of further diplomatic correspondence.

Mount Hood, in Oregon, is smoking vigorously, and may prove to be a first-class volcano before it finally subsides.

C. Koopmanschap, of San Francisco, has failed for about $260,000; his China coolie importation scheme did the business.

The Charleston Republican, the oldest Radical newspaper in the South, comes out in favor of Greeley and Brown.

Gen. J. D. Cox, Judge Headly, Stals and other Liberal Republicans and several Democrats have written a letter to the revenue reform meeting in New York, indorsing its objects and urging the placing of a Presidential ticket in the field.

Gerritt Smith, Wendell Phillips and the three California Congressmen are set down as for Grant and against Greeley. The Greeley candidate for Mayor of Petersburg, Virginia, has been badly defeated. These things are said to have discomposed the Greeleyites East, and there is talk among revenue reformers of taking up Adams at Baltimore.

Frank Pixley is to make another political tour of California on behalf of Greeley. It is rumored that George C. Gorham will discuss the situation from a different standpoint.

A terrible tornado passed through southwestern Missouri, destroying houses and barns, killing three persons and wounding some fourteen others.

—The Danbury News says that a Salisbury German went hunting for a crow on Monday week. He put a couple of quarts of gunpowder and shot in his gun, shut his eyes, and blazed away. It is impossible to tell what a gun will do thus loaded, but it is certain it came apart in this case, and that the village physician sews in every piece of the German barber as rapidly as it is found. The crow has not been seen since; it is likely he has left town until the excitement blows over.

—An exchange quotes from a rival country paper: "A two-year old son of William Jones swallowed a shawl pin two inches long," and then continues with pardonable local pride, "Why we have a boy in our town who swallowed a whole paper of darning needles and the family sewing machine. The sewing machine being a very handsome one, his parents did not like to lose it, so they ipecaced him—very successfully."

—H. Greeley says the man who recommends cracked wheat is cracked himself. Of a peck sowed at Chappaqua, the philosopher says, not a kernel sprouted. No body but a deuced fool, he adds, would build an oyster bed of feathers. Curled hair is much better. When the oysters begin to sprout, remove out doors for a few moments every day, and allow the sun to shine upon the plants, if you wish them to blow early.

Quick Trip.

The Lone Pine stage, driven by H. W. Robinson, arrived in town yesterday afternoon bringing eight passengers, including Col. Whipple, making the through time of two days and six hours. This is the quickest time ever made over the Owens River road. Mr. Robinson again returns to Los Angeles on business connected with his line after an absence of two months in the earthquake country. We are glad to see him safe back again, and to learn that his line is doing a prosperous business and that he is about to put additional stock on the road which will enable him to make faster time to Owens river than has ever been made before. The efforts of Mr. Robinson to accommodate the traveling public is well worthy of patronage and we wish him success.—Los Angeles Star, May 31.

Back Again.

Sheriff Mulkey arrived home last Thursday from a six-weeks' cruise after horsethieves and estrayed stock. He was in chase of a couple of Mexicans thought to have stolen Frank Debeeny's horses, but after searching all over Kern county failed to get a trace of his men. Mr. Mulkey returned with a portion of his own horses, but succeeded in losing, somewhere on the plains, a pocket book containing warrants, notes and papers to the value of $500.

"Off for a Trip."

P. Reddy and D. J. Canty have sailed out for an indiscriminate sort of an excursion to San Francisco, with a probability of fetching up for a season in Hualapia, Arizona Territory. Mr. Reddy will be absent about a month, while Dan, having sold out his business in Lone Pine, may permanently locate himself in Arizona.

Deputies.

S. V. Stevens and Thomas May are operating as duly appointed Deputy Assessors. "Sher" is capturing the entire lower part of the county; Frank is assessing from here northward, while Tom stays pretty much at home, ready to attend to anybody that comes along. The assessing is being thoroughly well done, and in the aggregate will amount to nearly double any former rolls.

Orleans Hotel.

I. W. Hunt, the proprietor of the Orleans Hotel, Lone Pine, has taken charge of it again. It is to be under the immediate supervision of his sister, Mrs. M. J. Hilderbrand, and Mr. Hunt will spare no pains to make it a very popular stopping place.

Mixed.

A letter has just reached a gentleman in this place which was probably written by the original "old smarty" of Mud Springs, from which place it came direct. Its lucid, accurate superscription read: "John A. Hannah, Soratoga, Indapendance Co., Nevada."

Merchandise.

The Loomis Bros., Lone Pine, advertise for sale their very heavy stock of goods at rates unprecedently low for this part of the country. They intend closing out business, and purchasers cannot do better than to give them a call. See advertisement elsewhere.

At Work.

Further prospecting work on the Silver Sprout mines will be commenced on Monday next. Large bodies of ore are already opened in various places on the ledges, some of which was last Fall taken to San Francisco, where it worked $900 per ton.

Off for the Springs.

Rockwell Loomis starts in a few days for some of the hot spring resorts on the sea coast, to boil out some of the general effects of the earthquake. He is getting able to comfortably navigate, although very stiff necked about it.

Increase of Pay.

We understand that Postmaster Rowley has had his salary increased from $13 75 to $21 25, currency, per annum. However, the office will be made a money-order concern sometime next month—a long needed convenience.

Earthquake.

The latest shake worthy of notice occurred at 8 o'clock on Monday evening last, and consisted of light vibrations of about ten seconds duration. We know some folks who thought the time occupied was at least an hour.

Pictures.

Mr. Buehman has his photograph gallery in working order near Dr. Blair's drug store, and is taking some first-rate pictures, considering the subjects—such as Dr. Blair, Al. Venard, Judge Hannah and sich.

Livery Stable.

Charley Grannis, at Hunt's old stand in Lone Pine, lets the best saddle horses and buggy turn-outs in the county, at reduced rates. See advertisement.

Flowers.

We acknowledge our profound obligations to Mrs. Sneden and Mrs. Yaney, of Bishop Creek, for a box of superbly arranged boquets of roses. Thanks.

Licenses.

Deputy Tax Collector Moore notifies the public, by posters, that a prepayment of licenses will hereafter be required in all cases.

Cash.

County warrant No. 335 is payable at the Treasurer's office.

Improvements.

However disastrious and disagreeable the earthquake has otherwise been the final result will be that our towns will present a much better appearance than before. We hear that some large and substantial buildings will soon be commenced in Lone Pine, but we are not in possession of details and can give none. Messrs. Harris & Rhine of this place have a number of mechanics at work on their new store, which bids fair to be the largest and finest business house in the county. The building is 48 by 60 feet on the foundation, and a 14 foot story. In addition to the life and fire insurance, mercantile and other business heretofore carried on, they will also do a regular banking business—a thing that has been much needed here. Mr. Harris, of this firm, has substituted wooden walls for the damaged ones in his neat residence. Work on the new two-story Exchange Hotel will be begun very soon. The new building will be much larger than the old well known hotel, and will stand adjoining and north of the Exchange lodging house. Tom May will replace his present large saloon by another still larger and more complete in every respect. Several dwellings are to be rebuilt or replaced by new building, the lumber supply now being sufficient to warrant a commencement on some of them. Mr. A. Stecker has completed a very well executed plan for a Court House, which, should it be accepted, cannot fail to give general satisfaction. Under this plan the building will be 40 by 60 and two stories high. The first floor is divided up into roomy offices, the Court room 44 by 40 being on the upper floor, provisions being made for two jury rooms on the same floor. There is to be a balcony the full length of the building on each side, and a short one over the front entrance. The apex of the roof will project a few feet above a square front. Altogether such a building would present a very pleasing appearance, and what is of more importance be both convenient and comfortable. However, we do not mention these facts with a view of prejudicing any one in its favor, to the exclusion of other plans. It is to be hoped that other plans, no matter how many, will be submitted.

The Cerro Gordo Fire.

We are in receipt of letters from Cerro Gordo concerning the destruction of Beaudry's furnace, mentioned in our issue of last week. The following from Mr. Beaudry is self-explanatory: "Allow me to correct your statement about the fire at my establishment, which occurred at half past 12 o'clock on the 30th ultimo. It originated, as we suppose, by shavings on fire from adjoining buildings, or sparks from the chimney of my upright furnace. The wind blew harder that day than I ever saw it. The fire first commenced in the woodpile, and although plenty of help was at hand it was impossible to check it, and as it whirled with such violence against the slag furnace building it was impossible to save either wood or building. The cost of the slag furnace building was about $3,000. I had on hand from 600 to 800 cords of wood, which makes my loss about $9,000. Directly after the fire and helping the neighbors my furnace started up, after four hours stoppage and has been running ever since." Mr. Beaudry concludes by adding: "Allow me to inform you and my friends that my health has very much improved, and hope to be about again in a day or two trying to make up for this bad accident of mine." After giving the details of the burning of Beaudry's building, another correspondent writes as follows: "The town came near being destroyed; Ball's house caught fire in several places, requiring hard work to save it. The wind blew a gale directly across toward Belshaw's, where they had a hard time to save the furnace, wood, coal, etc. The wind rushed on through the gap, firing trees and stumps for a mile or two along the mountain side."

"Garden Truck."

Mr. J. W. McMurry, of Fish Springs, has favored us with a box of "garden truck," among which was a lot of fine, large new potatoes that were highly appreciated, being the first of the season. Since then Mrs. P. Reddy has placed us under similar obligations for a quantity from her beautiful grounds just north of town, which by the way, are the neatest and most tastefully arranged of any in the county, we think. We are disposed to give Mrs. Reddy all the credit for the neatness of these grounds, for while Mr. Reddy sabes law as well as anybody we don't think he knows beans about farming. As we learned during a short visit there Mr. Earl, near Camp Independence, has a large field of these tubers about ready for market; also, peas, strawberries and lots of other good things, including acres of onions and some of the sourest gooseberries that ever was seen. In carrying on his extensive farming operations Mr. Earl has to depend almost exclusively upon Indians, and female Indians at that, for laborers. In fact farm hands and miners both are very scarce in this county; not at all equal to the demand, so these Indians, even of the female persuasion, are mighty handy things to have about the house, as Mrs. Toodles would say.

Fire in Lone Pine.

On Saturday morning last the Germania Brewery, Lone Pine, came near falling prey to the insatiable fire-fiend and had the flames remained undiscovered a moment later the fire would have, gained such headway that in all probability the entire town would have been destroyed, as a stiff west wind was blowing at the time. It originated from a burning stick falling into the wood-box, consuming it and a table standing near, and when discovered a portion of the studding and weather-boarding were in flames.

Headquarters Saloon.

Somehow or other Col. Putney has most excellent ideas as to how printers like to be treated, as he has proved by depositing numerous bottled sundries upon our table during the warm weather of the past week. He knows what is what, and as a consequence the Headquarters is a very successful institution.

Sickness.

We are sorry to announce that Mr. B. P. Tasker is lying very low with an attack of typhoid fever, and also that Mr. Nathan Rhine is confined to his bed with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Ice Cream.

Delicious ice cream daily manufactured and served at the Headquarters saloon, in private rooms. Entrance in the rear. *

Religious.

There will be preaching at the school house to-morrow, at 10 o'clock A. M. Also, at the Eclipse mill at 4:30 P. M.

From Aurora.

The Aurora correspondent of The Sacramento Union writes, under date of May 25, as follows:

Parties left here this morning to survey a wagon and turnpike road to Columbus, Silver Peak and Benton. The new road will leave the Carson road about five miles from Aurora, and run through valleys, avoiding the hills, and where there is good water and grass for animals. It will shorten the distance to Columbus more than twenty miles, and it is expected, and doubtless will, take the teams and freight travel for the above named places, Owens Valley and independence from the railroad at Reno instead of, as heretofore, going from Wadsworth. The new road will be made and opened without delay, and it is intended, if the travel and business will warrant it, to build at an early day a narrow gauge railroad on the route, to run from Carson to Benton, Owens Valley and Independence, with a branch to Columbus, all of which is most earnestly desired by the whole people; the freighting of bullion, ore and general merchandise has been and is now going forward in large quantities, as the country is rapidly growing rich and prosperous.

W. F. Wilson's stage comes from Carson to Aurora in one day, bringing passengers and the mail from San Francisco in two days, connecting here with Ullrick & Wright's stage, taking passengers and the mail directly on to Benton and Independence, reaching the latter place in three days from San Francisco. At Benton they connect with the stage for Columbus and Silver Peak. Passengers can depend upon dispatch, and every attention paid to their accommodations, to make them as comfortable as possible.

An Ancient of the Earth.

An almost entire human skeleton fossilized, has been found in Hungary, together with a stone hammer, in a geological formation indicating that the living man existed long before the mammoth age. The contemporaneity of man with the mastodon had before been pretty well established by discoveries in the lacustrine deposits and bone caves of Europe, including a tolerably well carved image of the mammoth on a piece of bone. All recent researches establish for man an antiquity so remote that the period in years cannot be calculated. The evidences on this score that have been accumulated in California are particularly numerous and convincing, and will astonish the world when collectively presented.

Incorporated.

Certificates of the incorporation of the Kearsarge mill and mining company, of this county, have been filed with the Secretary of State; capital stock, $2,500,000; principal office, San Francisco; Trustees—Edward Martin, Joseph Frank, C. H. Van Gorder, M. Rosenbaum and Peter Donahue.

How To Make Rugs.

A Little western girl, thirteen years of age, tells The Kansas Farmer how she made a cheap and pretty rug. She says: "I took a piece of fine fence wire and a file and made a crochet hook. I then got a coffee sack and cut it out square and hemmed it; then I took some cloth and tore it into strips like carpet rags. I then took my hook and a strip of cloth, and held the cloth on the under side and stuck the hook through the coffee sack, catching the cloth and drawing it in a little loop on the upper side. In my rug I have made a basket of flowers, and for a border I made a row of scollops."

A Nevada Funeral.

There was a grand time over Buck Fanshaw when he died. He was a representative citizen. He had "killed his man"—not in his own quarrel, it is true, but in the defence of a stranger beset by numbers. He had kept a sumptuous saloon. He had been the proprietor of a dashing helpmeet, whom he could have discarded without the formality of a divorce. He had held a high position in the fire department, and been a very Warwick in politics. When he died there was a great lamentation throughout the town, but especially in the vast bottom stratum of society.

On the inquest it was shown that Buck Fanshaw, in the delirium of a wasting typhoid fever, had taken arsenic, shot himself through the body, cut his throat and jumped out a four-story window and broke his neck; and after due deliberation the jury, sad and tearful, but with intelligence unblinded by its sorrow, brought in a verdict of "death by the visitation of God." What could the world do without juries?

Prodigious preparations were made for the funeral. All the vehicles in town were hired, and all the saloons were put in mourning, all the municipal and fire company flags were hung at half mast, and all the firemen ordered to muster in uniform, and bring their machines duly draped in black.

Regretful resolutions were passed and various committees were appointed; among others a committee of one was appointed to call on the minister—a fragile, gentle, spiritual new fledgling, from an eastern theological seminary; and as yet unacquainted with the ways of the mines. The committeeman, "Scotty" Briggs, made his visit.

Being admitted to his presence, he sat down before the clergymen, placed his fire hat on an unfinished manuscript sermon under the minister's nose, took from it a red silk handkerchief, wiped his brow and heaved a sigh of dismal impressiveness explanatory of his business. He choked and even shed tears, but with an effort he mastered his voice, and said, in lugubrious tones:

"Are you the duck that runs the gospel-mill next door?"

"Am I the—pardon me, I believe I do not understand."

With another sigh and a half sob Scotty rejoined:

"Why, you see, we are in a bit of trouble, and the boys thought maybe you'd give us a lift, if we'd tackle you that is, if I've got the rights of it and you are the head clerk of the doxology works next door?"

"I am the shepherd in charge of the flock whose fold is next door."

"The which?"

"The spiritual adviser of the little company of believers whose sanctuary adjoins these premises."

Scotty scratched his head, reflected a moment and then said:

"You rather hold over me, pard. I reckon I can't call the hand. Ante and pass the buck."

"How? I beg your pardon. What did I understand you to say?"

"Well, you've rather got the bulge on me. Or maybe we've both got the bulge somehow. You don't smoke me and I don't smoke you. You see one of the boys has passed in his checks, and we want to give him a good send off, and the thing I'm on now is to rout out somebody to jerk out a little chin-music for us, and waltz him through handsome."

"My friend, I seem to grow more and more bewildered. Your observations are wholly incomprehensible to me. Cannot you simplify them some way? At first I thought perhaps I understood you, but now I grope. Would it not expedite matters if you restricted yourself to categorical statements of fact unincumbered with obstructing accumulations of metaphor and allegory?"

Another pause and more reflection. Then Scotty said:

"I'll have to pass, judge."

"How!"

"You've raised me out, pard."

"I still fail to catch your meaning."

"Why that last lead of yourn is too many for me—that's the idea. I can't neither trump nor follow suit."

The clergyman sank back in his chair perplexed. Scotty leaned his head on his hand, and gave himself up to reflection. Presently his face came up sorrowful but confident.

"I've got it now, so's you can savvy," says he. "What we want is a gospel sharp. See?"

"A what?"

"Gospel-sharp parson."

"Oh! Why did you not say so before? I am a clergyman—a parson."

"Now you talk! You see my blind and straddle it like a man. Put it there!" extending a brawny paw, which closed over the minister's small hand and gave it a shake indicative of fraternal sympathy and fervent gratification.

"Now we're all right, pard. Let's start fresh. Don't mind me snuffling a little, bekuz we're in a power of trouble. You see one of the boys has gone up the flume."

"Gone where?"

"Up the flume—thrown up the sponge, you know."

"Thrown up the sponge?"

"Yes—kicked the bucket—"

"Ah—has departed to that mysterious country from whose bourne no traveller returns."

"Return? Well, I reckon not. Why, pard, he's dead."

"Yes, I understand."

"Oh, you do? Well, I thought may be you might be getting tangled once more. Yes, you see, he's dead again—"

"Again! Has he ever been dead before?"

"Dead before? No. Do you reckon a man has as many lives as a cat? But you bet, he's awful dead now, poor old boy, and I wish I had never seen him this day. I don't know no better friend than Buck Fanshaw. I know'd him by the back; and when I know a man like him I freeze to him—you hear me? Take him all around, pard, there was never a bullier man in the mines. No man ever know'd Buck Fanshaw to go back on a friend. But it's all up, you know; it's all up. It ain't no use. They've scooped him."

"Scooped him."

"Yes—death has. Well, well, well, we've got to give him up. Yes, indeed. It's a kind of a hard world after all, ain't it? But, pard, he was a rustler. You ought see him get started once. He was a bully boy with a glass eye! Just spit in his face, and give him room according to his strength, and it was just beautiful to see him peel and go in. He was the worst son of a theif that ever draw'd breath. Pard, he was on it. He was on it bigger than an Injun."

"On it? On what?"

"On the shoot. On the shoulder. On the fight. Understand? He didn't give a continental—cent for anybody. Beg your pardon, friend, for coming so near saying a cuss word—but you see I'm on an awful strait in this player, on account of having to carm down and draw everything so mild. But we got to give him up. There ain't no getting around that, I don't reckon. Now, if we can't get you to help plant him—"

"Preach the funeral discourse? Assist at the obsequies?"

"Obsequies is good. Yes. That's it; that's our little game. We are going to get up the thing regardless, you know. He was always nifty himself, and so you bet his funeral ain't going to be no slouch; solid silver doorplate on his coffin, six plumes on the hearse, and a nigger on the box, with a biled shirt and a plug hat—how's that for high? And we'll take care of you, pard. We'll fix you all right. There will be a kerridge for you; and whatever you want you just 'scape out and we'll tend to it. We've got a shebang fixed up for you to-day, and its behind in No. 1's horse, and don't you be afraid. Just go in and toot your horn it you don't sell a clam. Put Luck through as bully as you can, pard, for anybody that know'd him will tell you that he was one of the whitest men that was ever in the mines. You can't draw it to strong. He never could stand it to see things going wrong. He's done more to make this town peaceable than any man in it. I've seen him lick four Greasers in eleven minutes, myself. If a thing wanted regulating, he wan't a man to go prowling around after somebody to do it, but he would go in and regulate it himself. He warn't a Catholic; but it didn't make no difference about that when it came down to what a man's right was—and so, when some roughs jumped the Catholic boneyard and started in to stake out town lots in it, he went for 'em! And he cleaned them out too! I was there and see it myself."

"That was very well, indeed—at least the impulse was—whether the act was strictly defensible or not. Had the deceased any religious convictions? That is to say, did he feel a dependence upon or acknowledge allegiance to a higher power?"

More reflection.

"I reckon you've stumped me again, pard. Could you it say over once more, and say it slow?"

"Well, to simplify it somewhat, was he, or rather had he been connected with any organization sequestered from secular concerns and devoted to self sacrifice in the interest of morality?"

"All down but nine—set 'em up in the other alley, pard!"

"What did I understand you to say?"

"Why, you're most too many for me, you know. When you get in with your left, I hunt grass every time. Every time you draw your fill; but I don't seem to have any luck. Let's have a new deal!"

"How? Begin again?"

"That's it."

"Very well. Was he a good man, and—"

"There—I see that; don't put another chip till I look at my hand. A good man, says you? Pard, it ain't no name for it. He was the best man that ever—pard, you would have doted on that man. He could lam any galoot of his inches in America. It was him that put down the riot last election before it got a start; and everybody said that he was the only man that could have done it. He waltz'd in with a trumpet in one hand and a spanner in the other; sent fourteen men home on a shutter in less than three minutes. He had that riot all broke up and prevented nice before anybody got a chance to strike a blow. He was always for peace, and he would have peace, he could not stand disturbances. Pard, he was a great loss to the town. It would please the boys if you cou'd chip in something about that and do him justice. Here once, like when the Micks got to throwing stones through the Methodist Sunday-school windows, Buck Fanshaw, all on his notion, shut up his saloon and took a couple of six-shooters and mounted guard over the Sunday-school. Says he, 'No Irish need apply!' And they didn't. He was the bulliest man in the mountains, pard; he could run faster, jump higher, hit harder, and hold more tangle-foot whisky without spilling than any man in seventeen counties. Put that in, pard, it'll please the boys more than anything you could say. And you can say, pard, that he never shook his mother."

"Never shook his mother?"

"That's it any of the boys will tell you so."

"Well, but why should he shake her?"

"That's what I say—but some people does."

"Not people of any repute?"

"Well some that averages pretty so-so."

"In my opinion any man that would offer violence to his mother ought to—"

"Cheese it, pard, you've banked your ball clean outside the string. What I was drivin' at was that he never throwed off on his mother—don't you see? No indeedy. He gave her a house to live in, and town lots and plenty of money; and he looked after her and took care of her all the time and when she was down with the small pox, I'm damned if he didn't set up nights and nurse her himself! Beg your pardon for saying it, but it he popped out too quick for yours truly. You've treated me like a gentleman, and I ain't the man to hurt your feelings intentionally. I think you're white. I think you're a square man, pard. I like you, and I'll lick any man that don't. I'll lick him till he can't tell himself from a last year's corpse. Put it there." [Another fraternal hand-shake—and exit.]

The obsequies were all that "the boys" could desire. Such a marvel of funeral pomp had never been seen in Virginia. The plumed hearse, the dirge-breathing brass band, the closed marts of business, the flags drooping at half-mast, the long, plodding procession of uniformed secret societies, military battalions and fire companies, draped engines, carriages of officials, and citizens in vehicles and on foot, attracted multitudes of spectators to the sidewalks, roofs and windows; and for years afterward the degree of grandeur attained by any civic display in Virginia was determined by comparison with the funeral of Buck Fanshaw.

Terrible Outrage by Indians.

Advices from Tucson, May 27, says about 30 Indians attacked Camp Crittenden on the 21st. They captured all the stock. After hard fighting for two hours all the stock except one ox and two horses were recaptured on the same day. The Indians killed Clarence Casgrove four miles below Hughes' ranch. All the farmers in Soncto Valley have left, abandoning their large and most excellent crops, now ready for harvest. On the 23d ultimo 30 Apaches passed down Santa Cruz Valley with two horses belonging to King. The whole of southern Arizona now seems alive and overrun with Apaches, and unless relief is soon given nearly all the settlements south of Tucson will be abandoned or the people murdered. Gen. Howard concluded his talk with the Indians at Camp Grant on the 23d. If properly managed on the reservation, and the Indians off of it are pursued with vigor we may hope for peace.

The Supplemental Rule.

A Washington dispatch, of date June 7, says:

Official information has just been received from London giving assurance that the English Government accepts the supplemental rule of the Treaty of Washington as amended by the Senate, and that the Geneva Arbitration will now proceed to consider the cases presented by the two Governments.

The summary of the claims for losses by rebel cruisers filed by the United States Commissioners with the Geneva Arbitrators, gives a total of $19,021,429, including $1,120,795 for losses for increased war premiums. The direct losses, or those from actual capture, are distributed among the rebel cruisers as follows: Alabama, $6,547,680; Shenandoah, $6,488,320; Florida, $3,698,610; Tallahassee, $579,952; Chickamauga, $95,655; Nashville, $69,537; Retribution, $20,335; Sumter, $10,606; Sallie, $5,540 and Boston, $400.

Below the Sea Level.

The scientists who denied that the Colorado Desert was below the sea level, and sneered at the possibility of a vessel having drifted in there from the Gulf of California, were badly taken down at the Academy of Science, San Francisco, by the report of the Engineer of the Southern Pacific Railroad, submitted by Col. Gray, showing that their railroad line, as surveyed, passes through a portion of the desert 215 feet below the sea level, and that the dry bed of the Salt Lake is 100 feet lower still. For fifty miles the road will be below the sea level, and it is evident that any time of high water in the Colorado a vessel could have floated in there, as claimed.

One of the New Bishops.

Rev. Jesse T. Peck, an old-time resident of San Francisco, is one of the eight Bishops recently elected by the Methodist Conference. Bishop Peck will probably make San Francisco his future residence. He is reported to be quite wealthy, and it is said that during the last few years his donations for educational and religious purposes have nearly or quite reached the sum of $100,000.

Dead.

James Gordon Bennett, one of the best known and most successful journalists of the United States, is dead at the ripe age of seventy-one. His death took place June 1st.

Charles Lever, the popular novelist, died in London on the 3d instant.

The Pre-emption Law.

We are indebted to Register Butler, of the Aurora Land Office, for a copy of the act extending the time of payment on pre-emption claims. We had come in possession and published the law previously, but Mr. Butler will accept our thanks all the same.

Homestead Law for Women.

A bill was introduced in the United States Senate on the 4th instant by Mr. Pomeroy to give to every white women, married or single, residing in Oregon or any Territory, who is a citizen or applicant for citizenship, 160 acres of Federal land, if she dwells upon and cultivates it for four years or if she spends $200 in improving it. It is not likely this bill will pass, although it is being strongly urged.

If the measure were wise, it should be extended to the whole Union, and not limited to Oregon and the Territories: but it is not wise. It would imply a gift of 160 acres of land to every married man, and to every single woman who lives four years in Oregon and the Territories. There would be no actual occupation; a little improvement, declared to be worth $200, but really worth nothing, would be put on the land; the patents would issue and be bought up by speculators

DESERTIONS.

For some unaccountable reason desertions from Camp Independence have become very frequent lately. That is one of the most pleasant frontier stations for soldiers on the coast, and it is a well known fact that the men at that Post are well fed and clothed, have light duty and are well treated in every respect by officers unexceptionably sober, kind and gentlemanly, all of whom take a pride in treating their men as men. Notwithstanding these unquestionable facts some ten enlisted men have deserted in the past month. These men all entered the service of the United States taking an oath to perform the simple duties required of them of their own free will and accord. In return they were to receive, and have to the letter received, pay, food, clothing and care in sickness. Men who will in this manner violate a solemn obligation without just cause or provocation are in no sense objects for aid or sympathy from any person whatever. If not criminals previously, as those who will desert generally are, the very act makes them outlaws for the remainder of their lives, and the conciousness of this fact is alone sufficient to constitute them dangerous characters to society. For this reason alone citizens ought to do all they can to prevent desertion, and to aid and encourage it any manner is both dishonorable and criminal and a wrong to society at large as well as the misguided men themselves. Nothing but death relieves them from liability of arrest and punishment, as the annals of Alcatraz sufficiently prove. Yet there are people who do these things; there is no question but some of these deserters have been, and probably now are harbored within a few miles of the Post. Parties who, it is almost certain have knowledge of the fact, persistently refuse to afford any intimation of their whereabouts. They are making themselves parties to a crime, and it is much to be hoped some of them will soon get corralled for it.

Besides its illegality, to thus encourage desertions is to hamper the development of our country, in preventing explorations for want of men, and does us a great injury in various ways. It is wrong and foolish, and moreover persons convicted of harboring or aiding deserters are liable to severe punishment—$500 fine and two years imprisonment in the penitentiary. This is a great risk for any man, honest or otherwise, to take, to assist in damning a man for the rest of his lifetime, merely through a mistaken notion of friendship. Since desertions have become so frequent, efforts to arrest them and those giving them aid and comfort have become correspondingly active, and there is no doubt but some one will be brought to grief in consequence before it ends Now we earnestly advise all good men in the service to put aside every thought of making criminals of themselves by deserting. However irksome military restraint may have proved to you, bear in mind that it is a thousand times easier to bear for two or three years or more, than a whole lifetime of fear and dread which inevitably follows such an act. Don't think of it, for you will never outlive its disastrious consequences. We no less earnestly advise citizens to do all they can to prevent desertions in every possible way. We will mention here that the Government makes a standing offer of $30 reward for the arrest of any deserter, or for information that will lead to his arrest. In another column will be found a full description of all the late deserters, and, in consideration of the penalties attached for harboring them, people will do well to note their descriptions and govern themselves accordingly. It is a duty we owe our country, the officers at the Post and ourselves to prevent these desertions by every means within our power.

Inadmissible.

The Reese River Reveille is earning the title of The Nevada Mazeppa. We shouldn't think that either Jim Conley, R. L. Tilden, John I. Ginn or George Cassidy would X, on the ground of not allowing it to go into their families. They used to talk that way about Forbes' institution.

Very Readable.

The other day we asked the news of a gentleman who was intently perusing The New York Herald. He said he was reading the biographical son of obituary of a great man, and added that it was very interesting.

The Difference.

The latest California conundrum is —What is the difference between a sneer and Col. Whipple? One is an inuendo and the other is the end o' Inyo.

—Farmer Greeley's rallying cry is "Lettuce have Peas." Grant says he will present him with a big beat in November.

SOME MORAL ADVICE TO LONE PINERS.

We fear our Lone Pine friends have got on the wrong track in a moral point of view. At least their way of doing certain things is so different from ours here of Independence it must be wrong, and taking our own as a model, we feel constrained to offer them a few suggestions as to what is the right thing to do under certain circumstances:

We hear that you, even the ladies, turn out in respectable number to attend preaching, even shutting up saloons for the purpose. Now, according to the way of thinking here, that's all wrong. It looks bad for a frontier town; supposing the idea should get abroad that you were morally disposed it might cause an influx of that sort of people and the first thing you know you will have to come out with a few dollars towards building a church, which would be a great scandal in the eyes of scoffers. Besides, there are only 168 hours, or thereabouts, in a week, and to waste one of these by shutting up shop for that length of time merely to show respect to morality shows a reckless disregard of the main chance; supposing a man was to come along who wanted something to drink during that hour you are wasting at church? There is a quarter or more gone, and what is worse this thirsty man might think you would harbor a preacher under some circumstances. Life is short; make hay while the sun shines; don't waste an hour every week or two in attending church or Sunday school; at any rate not more than two or three should thus fool their time away; let the rest attend strictly to their regular business at home, particularly the ladies whose influence in such things is very marked. On no account let outsiders think you favor such things as the Gospel, or its preachers, and be sure to throw cold water on educational projects. Otherwise your crop of hoodlums will be short. Should one of your most respected citizens die don't give way to the weakness of allowing a preacher to officiate at his funeral. Some folks think that is his appropriate duty, but it ain't according to the way we do it; always select a layman to perform this solemn duty or people will think you never had any raising to speak of. Your preacher and his family will probably want to accompany the cortege; you can safely allow it, but don't worry about how he is to get there; on general principles he has to be a rustler to be a preacher and not be starved to death, and of course he'll manage it himself some way. Besides, by managing it in this way you will teach him a lesson in humility suitable for a follower of the Meek and Lowly, and at the same time prove that you are not Fiji Islanders. Should your preacher have too much idle time after his weekly circuit of one or two hundred miles he can earn a portion of his grub if you will get him and his horse a Government contract of dragging poles out of the mountains. This is the way we do these things, and that is some sort of evidence of its correctness.

THE PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION.

As was generally expected Grant was the unanimous choice for President at the Philadelphia Convention, receiving every vote. On the first vote for Vice President Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, received the nomination by a vote of 384½ to 312½ for Collax. The Convention was extremely euthusiastic over Grant's nomination.

Following is a synopsis of the platform adopted: The first resolution recites at length the work performed by the party in the last eleven years in suppressing a gigantic rebellion, emancipating 4,000,000 slaves, establishing universal suffrage, its magnanimity toward rebels, its support to the new and successful Indian policy, the reduction of the national debt, has encouraged immigration and compelled an acknowledgment from foreign Powers of the full rights of our naturalized citizens, has given public lands to actual settlers and generously aided the Pacific railroads. Sustains the recent Constitutional Amendments, and opposes any discrimination in respect to citizens by reason of race, creed, color or previous condition of servitude; opposes further grants of public lands to corporations or monopolies, and demands that the national domain be set apart for the use of the people; holds in undying honor the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the Union; wants the franking privilege abolished, and denounces repudiation and sustains Congress and the President in the means adopted for the suppression of unlawful organizations in the South. Disapproves of any resort to unconstitutional laws for the purpose of removing evils by interference with rights not surrendered by the people to either the State or the National Government. It closes as follows: "We believe that the modest patriotism, the earnest purpose, sound judgment, practiual wisdom, incorrupt integrity and illustrious services of U. S. Grant have commended him to the hearts of Union people, and with him at our head we start to-day on a new march to victory."

They came together at full speed, utterly wrecking both engines and a number of cars, but fortunately without causing loss of life though a number were wounded. Visalia News.

A dispatch from Visalia, dated June 5, says:

About 3 o'clock this morning a fire alarm was given, and the roof of Fulton market and Bernard's boot and shoe store adjoining, discovered in flames. By the strenous exertions of the Fire Department the flames were prevented from spreading, and a disastrious conbagration avoided. The loss to the building and stock is about fifteen hundred dollars. No insurance Kraft's restaurant adjoining was slightly injured by fire and water.

The fire undoubtedly was the work of an incendiary, no fire having been used in the building for the last two months. Nothing but the gallant conduct of the Fire Department saved the finest business block in the city from destruction.

The cars of the San Joaquin Valley Railroad are running to the Visalia depot, about seven miles west of town, where stages now connect with trains.

For Arizona.

The Wallapai and other mining districts in Arizona Territory are attracting a great deal of attention among miners and capitalists, both here and in California. A correspondent of The Coast Review, writing from Mineral Park, April 10, says that Wallapai has more rich paying mines than any district on the coast. A movement is on foot in this city, among a few gentlemen possessing means, to form a company and send a man to Western Arizona to prospect for and locate mines, with a view of going into mining business in that region on an extensive scale. Forey Gregory, who is thoroughly acquainted with the topography of the country to be prospected, is, we believe to head the expedition. Gregory explored and prospected Arizona pretty thoroughly two years, and was with the Safford expedition which penetrated into the little to unexplored region of the Black Hills. He has prospected as far west as Granite District, north into the Black Hills, east to Verdi southeast to Tucson, south to the famous Weaver Hill diggings, and nearly every hill and mountain embraced within these points. In the proposed expedition, however he will confine his operations to Granite, Wallapai, Corbat and adjacent districts, and to the Wallapai range of mountains and the cross chain from Beal's Springs to Kirklin Valley. Reports from this expedition (which will probably not move before September) will be looked for with the liveliest interest.—Virginia Chronicle.

From Carson, Nevada.

Zeke Edgecomb, who arrived from Genoa about dusk last evening, reported that Genoa and its vicinity was visited by a rain and hail storm, between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the like of which has not occurred for years. The rain poured down so heavily that it seemed as though a cloud had burst, and the volume of water was so heavy that gravel and sand ran down the hillsides in torrents, completely blocking the road. Zeke says they are in as bad, if not worse, condition than any time during the Winter. About 7:30 P. M. the storm cloud reached Carson City and poured down its fluvial treasures in no measured style, greatly rejoicing the hearts of husbandmen, and proving that the curse on the unjust does not apply to this community.

It is reported that a married man named Alec. Hill, residing near Mottville, Douglas county, seduced an innocent young girl, who was living in his family as an assistant to his wife, and that the birth of a child so preyed on the mind of the poor young creature that she died on Monday last. From all accounts it was yesterday expected that the brute would be lynched.—Carson Register, June 5.

MARRIED.

DIED.

At Independence, Cal., Saturday evening, June 8, 1872, of typho-malarial fever, B. P. TASKER, aged 31 years.

[Tuolumne and Tulare papers please copy.]

Poor Tasker; lightly rest the sod upon his grave! He was a good man, a devoted husband and father, leaving a young wife and infant child to mourn their irreparable loss. He was widely known and respected, and the deepest sympathy prevails with the widow in her weeds and sad bereavement.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Around the Lake.

The present Summer and coming Fall will, from indisputable signs, prove a season of unusual activity, and mark the commencement of a new era in the business affairs of the lower end of the county. The steamer, Bessie Brady, according to present calculations, will be completed and ready for her trial trip by the Fourth of July, but a delay is possible on account of the scarcity of mechanics and lumber with which to build landings or wharves. However, we shall give due notice as to the date of her first trip, so that all friends of the enterprise will have an opportunity of enjoying a ride on the occasion of her first sail around the lake. The boat will undoubtedly have her hands full of business from the start, as her successful running will revolutionize the carrying trade now going on around the lake. Freight teams from Los Angeles will save eight days' time on a trip, and on all three of the southern stage lines the steamer will effect a great saving of time and horse flesh. In addition to the transportation of wood, timbers, coal and ore, her freight lists will include every pound of merchandise for Cerro Gordo, Swansea, Lone Pine, Independence, Eclipse, Waucoba, Fish Springs, Big Pine, Bishop Creek, Deep Spring and for a time a good portion of that of Benton—the whole forming a traffic doubtless contemplated with satisfaction by the enterprising builders. Busy settlements are forming at four main landings, but the prospective town is at the foot of the lake, near Passmore's, where J. B. Daneri is building a store and warehouse 40 by 80 feet in size. At Cottonwood Col. Steven's flume will land wood, lumber and mining timber directly on the wharf, from 10,000 acres of the finest timber in Inyo county. Here the surplus water, it is thought, will eventually be utilized as power for smelting furnaces when the wood is gone at Cerro Gordo, which is being rapidly exhausted. At the north-eastern landing, where Ferguson is erecting buildings, the steamer will take Swansea and Cerro Gordo passengers, mail and freight from Lone Pine and the upper portions of the county.

An Immense Institution.

It is understood that a huge corporation is forming which is to consolidate all the lead, furnace, smelting, water and steamboat interests of Cerro Gordo and the lake into one big company. The property of the concern is to include the Dorr and Bennett titles of the Santa Maria, the Front, Union, Jefferson and San Felipe lead mines, together with the Belshaw, Beaudry and Owens Lake Silver-Lead Co. furnaces, the steamer and the water company's property. Rumor has it that wealthy English company is to take the entire property at a price in the neighborhood of a million dollars.

Will Celebrate.

Bentonites are engaged in preparing for a good, old fashioned celebration of the Fourth of July. The programme as announced in the posters includes all the usual exercises—music, reading, oration, poetizing, etc., and by no means forgetting the accompaniment of a ball in the evening. By virtue of authority in us vested we hereby invite everybody to attend, guaranteeing good treatment and lots of fun.

Religious.

Rev. Mr. E. H. Orne will hold divine services during the coming week at times and places following: Independence, to-morrow (Sunday) at 10½ o'clock A. M.; George's creek, same day at 1½ P. M. and at Lone Pine at 7½ P. M. Swansea, Monday at 7½ P. M.; Cerro Gordo, Tuesday at 7½ P. M., and at Belmont on Wednesday at 7½ P. M.

Locust.

Dr. C. B. White yesterday exhibited to us a specimen of a small, black locust which he says strongly resembles the seventeen-year locust of the East. They are very numerous in the canyons of the foot-hills of the Sierras.

Unprecedented.

County Clerk Hammarstrand was considerably astonished last week upon being called upon to issue two marriage licenses in one day—a fact unprecedented in Inyo affairs.

Stock Assessed.

Our Assessor has captured and assessed seven or eight large bands of stock which were passing through the county—thereby adding round sums to Inyo's revenue.

Another Little Mill.

Yesterday occurred the latest exhibition of fistic science, Firestone and Alexander being the combatants. We are greatly troubled at having put Alexander's name last every time.

Ice Cream.

Delicious ice cream daily manufactured and served at the Headquarters saloon, in private rooms. Entrance in the rear. *

Races.

At Bishop Creek, July 4th, will be had a fourth-mile horse race, free for everybody's stock, for a purse of $50, offered by A. J. Slinkerd.

Saloon Change.

A. K. Briggs has sold his saloon business in Lone Pine to Billy O'Neal.

A Suggestion.

As there are many dancers and ball-goers in Independence who may not be disposed to spare the time consumed in spending elsewhere our national holiday, suppose that our citizens accept the proposition tendered by Messrs. Harris & Rhine—the use of their magnificent hall for the occasion of a dance on the Fourth. Their store building, which will have the sides up, roof on and floors laid by that time, is 47 by 60 feet in size, opening to an adjoining room 20 by 22. We suggest that Independence Engine Co. take hold of the matter and put in through with their usual grand success, devote the proceeds to some charitable object or give an invitation ball at their own expense. We think it a neat and appropriate thing that the largest and best structure in Inyo should have a house warming, especially about the Fourth of July.

In Town.

During the week we have noticed the following named gents skyugleing around town a for a longer or shorter time: J. G. McClinton, of Aurora, ex-County Judge of Esmeralda and former editor of The Union; Wm. H. Van Arsdale of Swansea, Mr. Walker of Deep Spring, Chris. Crohn of Cerro Gordo, Mr. Fisher of San Francisco, one of the members of the Owens Lake steamer company; J. B. Harmon of San Francisco, W. G. Russell of Bishop Creek, James Brady of Waucoba, Seth G. Sneden of Snethsigeden, Col. Stevens of Cottonwood, John S. Ullrick of every place between here and Aurora, and many others. It is unnecessary to caution our citizens in regard to their spoons.

Grain.

Some idea of the business done by our flourings mills is conveyed in the statement that the Bishop Creek mill, owned by Russell & Bro., has converted into flour 325 tons of wheat and ground 275,000 pounds of corn since July last. We are not apprised of the amount of business done at Bell's, but it is doubtless sufficient to swell the total to nearly as much more. The average increase in the production of grain has been about one-third per year, and the yield of this year's crops, from the increased number of acres under cultivation, will foot up in the aggregate nearly one-half more than last season.

Building.

Lone Pine is going ahead in the matter of building as rapidly as the scarcity of lumber will admit. Besides several other buildings completed and projected, Mustzinger is about putting up a large, two story hotel. Lumber is on the way for a 20 by 40 addition to Hunt's livery stable. Stewart's new store room will be far enough advanced for the ball which is take place there on the Fourth.

Hands Wanted.

Mechanics, workmen and laborers of all descriptions are very scarce from Round Valley to Cerro Gordo, and much needed everywhere. In the mines good men are needed at Cerro Gordo, Eclipse and Silver Sprout, while the farmers are falling back on the slow and uncertain Piutes and Piutesses for help. Five dollars per day is paid to lead miners at Cerro Gordo.

Mining Suit Re-opened.

J. B. Harmon, attorney for Mr. Edwards, has obtained a writ from the Fourth District Court, San Francisco, enjoining the Sheriff from issuing a deed to P. W. Bennett for the Santa Maria mine, or Dorr ledge, in Cerro Gordo. We presume this indicates a suit for setting aside the judgment and sale.

Kearsarge.

Superintendent Van Gorder and H. A. Clauson are announced to arrive to-morrow, with active operations to follow at the Kearsarge. Notwithstanding the mixed appearance of things, circumstances indicate that the Bank of California is running the institution—which we hope is the case.

Arm Broken.

On the Monday last, the 10th instant, while engaged at the rodeo on the plains, Henry Cofer, aged about 10 years, son of J. W. Cofer, was thrown from his horse and his arm broken just above the wrist. It was set by Dr. Blair, under whose attendance the sufferer is doing well.

A Good Artist.

Mr. Beuhman is doing really first rate work in taking pictures. From experience we are prepared to state that it don't matter how infernally ugly you are; you can depend upon getting a good picture by giving him a shot at your phiz. He has for sale some excellent views of different earthquake ruins.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of County Dads assemble in regular adjourned meeting on Monday next, the 17th instant. The session will doubtless be a long one, as the business before it is multifarious and important.

Good.

We are glad to announce that a mail route will be established between Big Pine and Deep Spring. The service is to be once a week and commences in July, with Ullrick & Wright as the carriers.

Woolly Hogs.

Tom. Boland, holding forth down at Swansea, is endeavoring to propagate a new species of hogs, bearing wool. The experiment is said to be under the patronage of Greeley.

Fresh Fish.

Lone Pine is enjoying regular shipments of fine mountain trout, from the streams on the other side of the big ridge.

Babies.

BY JOSH BILLINGS.

Babies i luv with all mi heart; they are mi sweetmeats, they warm up mi blood like a gin sling, they krawl into me and nestle by the side of mi side like a kitten under a cook stove.

I hav raized babys miself, and kno what i am talking about.

I hav got grandchildren, and they are wuss than the fust krop to riot amung the feelings.

If i could have mi way, i would change all the human beings now on the face of the earth back into babys at once, and keep them thare, and make the footstool one grand nussery; but what i should do for wet nussess i don't kno, nor don't care.

I would like to have 15 babies now on my lap, and mi lap ain't the handiest lap in the world for babys neither.

Mi lap iz long enuff but not the widest kind ov a lap.

I am a good deal ov a man, but konsist ov length principally, and when i make a lap ov miself it iz not a mattrass, but more like a couple of rails with a jint in them.

I can hold more babies in my lap at once, than any man in America, without spilling one, but it hurts the babys.

I never saw a baby in mi life that i didn't want tew kiss; i am wuss than an old maid in this respekt.

I have seen babys that i have refused tew kiss until they have been washt; but the baby warn't tew blame for this, neither waz i.

There are folks in this world who say thay don't luv babys, but you can depend upon it, when they waz babys sumboddy loved them.

Babys luv me too. I kan take them out ov their mother's arms just az eazy az i kan an unfledged bird out ov hiz nest. They luv me bekauze i luv them.

And here let me say for the comfort and consolashun ov all mothers that whenever they see me on the cars or on the steambote, out ov a job, they needn't hesitate a minnit tew drop a clean, fat baby into mi lap; i will hold it, and kiss it, and be thankful besides.

Perhaps thare iz people who don't envy me all this, but it iz one of the sharp-cut, well defined joys of mi life, mi love for babys and thare love for me.

Perhaps thare iz people who will call it a weakness; i don't care what they call it, bring on the babys. Uncle Josh haz always a kind word and a kiss for the babys.

I love the babys for the truth thare iz in them, i ain't afraid their kiss will betray me, thare iz no frauds, ded beats nor counterfeits amung them.

I wish i was a baby (not only once more) but forevermore.

Luck and Pluck.

Rev. Dr. George H. Hepworth, in an admirable lecture recently delivered in New York, says:

There is undoubtedly such a thing as good fortune, and there is, it may be admitted, such a thing as bad luck; but he succeeds who helps things to turn up, and he fails who idly waits. Men toil sometimes for twenty years, and another steps in to reap the fruit of their toil. They seem born under an evil star, and everything goes wrong with them. Admitting these cases to sometimes occur, to come to the hard pan of my subject, in the long run success in life can be reduced to a science. He touches the goal and reaches the threshold of the highest success who labors truly and earnestly. This is the universal law; if you obey it, well; if you disobey it, ill; you cannot dodge it.

There is more incentive to labor in America than elsewhere, because the highest success is within the reach of all. When in England the poor man sees a duke ride by in state, he envies him as one to whose position he can never aspire. When the rich man here rides by with his four-in-hand, the Yankee boy says: "Very well for an old man; I'll have six horses when I'm as old." There is something in the atmosphere of America that nourishes a lofty ambition, and it is the honest work of honest hands and honest brains which tells in this glorious country. See these men of every age. We look at the broad procession of those who have made us, and as we gaze upon their giant proportions, a voice comes to us, saying: "Not one of us is so great but you may be greater." I have the minimum belief in genius; I have the maximum faith in work. Every man and woman is hero once in their life. He could be a hero always; it is in him, and only needs constant effort to bring it out. Alexander, Cæsar, Napoleon are as nothing to the men and women who are bearing heavy burdens and doing God's will silently and quietly, in the midst of sorrow and poverty. Throughout the world there are unknown heroes, who shall be acknowledged some day, and who, when measured by the side of those whom we call great, shall be found greater still. There are two elements in the science of success. If you want to get on in life, in the highest and best sense, the first requisite is honesty. During the fifteen years that I have been in public life, I have seen men come up and go down, and I have found that the honest man is the only one who succeeds in the long run. Sooner or later deviltry goes under. Watch the progress of events in this city, which has witnessed the most remarkable phenomenon of modern times. Ten years ago low men began to climb; their gospel and law and practice was: Dollars will buy everything. Therefore they got dollars. They bought a legislature, and to make the thing a dead certainty, they made their own laws. They carefully covered up all their tracks; they bought juries; bought up their judges. Apparently they had the game in their own hands. No, they didn't; the Lord had the game in his hands. One is dead; one in Europe, and a great many more wishing they could get there. Their power is utterly and hopelessly gone. If you want to get on in life you must be honest and true; but you must be plucky as well. How few there are who stand up and fight it out with their teeth griped close together. If you are dead like the Irishman's turtle, don't "be sensible of it." Be like the India rubber ball, which rebounds the higher the harder it is thrown down. That's manhood; that's pluck. You must not believe in luck; believe in yourself. There may be such a thing as luck lying around loose in some corner of nature; but the chances are ten thousand to one that it will not fall to you. Make an intelligent plan, and work for it with an honest purpose, a manly heart, and will of nerve, of determination, of grit.

—"I'm so thirsty," said a boy in a corn-field. "Well, work away," said his industrious father. "You know prophet says: 'Hoe, every one that thirsteth.'"

Miss Nellie Grant's Visit to the Queen.

LANGLEY'S HOTEL, May, 1872.

My Dear Lady and Queen: I am embarrassed at the honor of an official request, given through a high officer (your Lord Chamberlain, I think), to be presented to your Majesty. I should dearly love to see you, that I might tell my mother and father that I have been thus honored. I am but a simple American girl; that I am the President's daughter gives me no claim to your recognition as a sovereign. If, with the kind lady who is acting as my chaperone, I might visit you, I should be very glad. Our Secretary of Legation hints at some political significance in this opportunity. I cannot so interpret it, and would not wish to be so received, because it would not be right, as I am nothing in American politics, and I am sure my father would not desire me to appear other than as my simple and very humble self. If, with this explanation, your Majesty will allow me to visit you I shall be greatly honored and very proud.

I have written this note of my own motion, and because I think it is the right thing to do. I am your Majesty's very obedient servant and admirer.

NELLIE GRANT.

The following autograph letter was received by Miss Nellie from her Majesty the Queen, and the visit took place at the time indicated and was very informal and pleasant:

WINDSOR CASTLE.

Miss Nellie Grant: I have instructed Lady —— to convey to you this note, and we shall receive you as the daughter of your honorable parents without the intervention of our high officers of State. I shall accept your visit as an "American girl," and there shall be no other significance of the fact than your kindly expressed desire to see the lady and not the sovereign. I shall find it pleasant to forget that I am Queen in receiving you to-morrow afternoon at our palace of Windsor. VICTORIA.

"Ef He'd Said Ducks."

During a class meeting held several years since by the Methodist brethern of a Southern village, Brother Jones went among the colored portion of the congregation. Finding there an old man notorious for his endeavors to serve God on the Sabbath and Satan the rest of the week, he said: "Well, Brother Dick, I'm glad to see you here. Haven't stole any turkeys since I saw you last, Brother Dick?" "No, no, Brudder Jones; no turkeys. "Nor any chickens, Brother Dick?" "No, no, Brudder Jones, no chickens." "Thank the Lord, Brother Dick! That's doing well, my brother," said Brother Jones leaving Brother Dick, who immediately relieved his over-burdened conscience by saying to a near neighbor, with an immense sigh of relief: "Ef he'd said ducks he'd a had me!"—Advance.

Need of More Women on the Pacific Coast.

A number of women lately formed an association in New York with the object of encouraging the emigration of females to Oregon. The ostensible enticement is a land grant under the homestead law; the real inducement, however, is husbands. The object is a good one. The Pacific States and Territories need nothing more than a few thousands of good working women, who would be willing to marry working men and live in the country. All such women are certain to find work at high wages, and almost as certain, after a short time, to find husbands on the Pacific coast.—Real Estate Circular.

Lumber.

Mr. Strong has been up in the mountains, building a track for the use of mill men, and he informs us that the lumber business is more than ordinarily prosperous this season. Wagy's steam mill is cutting an average of 14,000 feet per day, and Thomas' water mill about 7,000 feet. The lumber is good pine.

Since the earthquake loud rumblings are heard in these mountains, sometimes accompanied with motion, but very often without. Chasms 200 feet deep and 40 feet wide attest the power of the earthquake in the hills thereabouts.—Visalia Delta.

S. S. Cox on the Situation.

A St. Louis man went to Washington and interviewed Sam Cox in relation to the Democratic situation. "Well," said Sunset, "I've been fishin' all day, and they bite like——." The interviewer adds: "I thought perhaps he had mistaken my question, or that he believed the 'possum to be something to be caught with a hook and line; so I repeated the interrogation. And said Samuel: "I caught the finest trout I ever saw to-day; you ought to quit politics, get married and go fishin'." He tried him a third time, but only to be informed that fishing was the noblest occupation of the human mind.

The Goat.

The male gote haz two horns on the ridge ov his head and a mustash on his bottom lip, and iz the plug ugly ov his neighborhood.

A masculine gote will fight anything, from an elephant down to hiz shadder on a wall.

The male gote, when he iz pensive is a venerable philosophy looking old cuss, and wouldn't make a bad professor of arithmetik in sum ov our colleges.—Billings.

Procrastinating.

The latest reports concerning the Alabama business are to the effect that Johnny Bull is making strenuous efforts to postpone the Geneva Conference. The British Minister received a telegram from Earl Granville stating that the Cabinet meeting had decided to send another note to Minister Schenck informing him that the representatives were instructed to go to Geneva on the 15th instant and submit to the arbitrators a request for an extension of time, on the plea that the difficulties between the two governments have not been solved; and he remarks upon the subject of reference to the arbitrators that the British Government declines to put in their argument as required by the treaty, or to take any other step in the arbitration at the present time; and further says that should an adjournment be ordered in accordance with what England believes to be within the province of the Court, her Majesty's Government reserves all its rights as heretofore to retire from the arbitration whenever it may think proper. Probably no answer was sent to this last proposition, as the ultimatum of our Government is in the supplemental article, and if the English article was not filed on the 15th it would be regarded as a desire to terminate arbitration, and a failure of the arbitration involves the whole treaty.

Quit the Business.

T. G. Mulkey, a brother of Sheriff Mulkey of this county, has severed his editorial connection with The Benton County (Oregon) Democrat. We don't know for certain, but think it very likely that Mr. Mulkey didn't want to starve to death just yet awhile, and on that account concluded he would not endeavor to keep up a country printing business.

Sutro Tunnel.

The House Mining Committee have recommended that the Government guarantee the interest of the Sutro Tunnel company's bonds, and also make an absolute lien of $2,000,000 at the rate of $50,000 for each 500 lineal feet completed, provided that an equal amount has been expended by the company on the same work.

Adjournment of Congress.

As arranged by joint resolution, Congress adjourned June 9th, at 9 o'clock P. M. The appropriation bill, with the Enforcement Act amendment, as modified, received the consent of both Houses.

Hon. S. O. Houghton.

This gentleman has placed us under obligations for numerous favors; the latest being a copy of the Agricultural Reports for 1870, for which Mr. Houghton will please accept our thanks.

Greeley and Brown.

It appears that a majority of the States have instructed their delegates to go for Greeley and Brown.

Livingstone Found.

The following London dispatch, dated June 11th, relating to the discovery of the great African explorer will be read with interest—notwithstanding the jaw-breaking names:

A dispatch received in this city from Zanzibar gives further information concerning Dr. Livingstone, and fully confirms the other report as to his safety. Stanley, the New York Herald's correspondent, has arrived at Ugogo, with letters from the celebrated traveler. It is understood that they contain abundant intelligence in relation to the explorations of Livingstone in central Africa during the period of his disappearance, and their contents will probably be made public. Stores lately sent from Zanzibar to Livingstone were received by him in safety. He next traverses north to Tanganycka, on the way from Morema, to Ujiji to reach the latter place. The veteran explorer was requested to quit his seclusion and return with the expedition to the coast, but this he refused to do, asserting that his work of exploration in Africa was unfinished. He intrusted a number of letters to the care of the expedition, to be forwarded on its arrival at Zanzibar. He then parted company with the expedition and returned to Unyonyembe. The Doctor enjoys good health and spirits. He will explore the unknown region between Unyonyembe and Niassi.

Fire at Carson.

At about 1 o'clock yesterday morning a fire was discovered in an unoccupied house on Nevada street, Carson, next to the residence of John Booth, the editor of The Register. The fire department was quickly on hand and succeeded in saving the building nearest to the burning house, although Booth's house was on fire seveal times. Fortunately, there was no wind blowing at the time, otherwise it would have been almost impossible to prevent an extensive and serious conflagration. Booth's furniture was all removed in a hurry, and he will be out not far from $100 in the way of damages.—Gold Hill News, June 12.

A CHANCE FOR CAPITAL.

We know of no one thing that would conduce as much to the general advantage of this entire section as the establishment at some convenient point of a set of complete reduction works, somewhat on the plan, if not so extensive, as those at Reno. Throughout this entire region, and in every part of it for a hundred miles around, innumerable mines of various kinds of mineral are found. The most of these mines or veins are small, the ores very often, if not generally, rich, but incapable of profitable reduction by ordinary process. Owing to their small size and consequent limited products, these mines will not pay for the investment of large amounts of capital by heavy companies, but at the same time can all be made to yield fair returns for individual labor prosecuted on each by a few practical miners on their own account. That is to say, such could and would be worked by individual miners in this manner if they could find a ready market at home for their ores, whether offered a ton more or less at a time. Works of the kind we speak of would afford such a market, or what is the same thing, would reduce them at a certain per centage on their value. To say nothing of the larger and more prominent mines, we can state without qualification, that within a radius of a hundred miles from Owens Lake there are many hundreds of these small mines, that under the plan mentioned might be profitably worked. That is the plan that is certain to commend itself to general favor, either through the result of a railroad to cheaply transport the ores to distant reduction works, or the establishment of the latter in our midst. Miners then will sink shafts and run tunnels on the same principle that farms are managed. But a trifling amount of capital other than the labor is required, and though in some cases it might require weeks of work to obtain a single ton of first class ore, it would take but a ton of such ore to pay working expenses for the time, and often leave a fair margin for profits besides. There is plenty of ore that may thus be taken out that will run up into the hundreds if not thousands, and the possible profits from one or two tons of such, would equal a whole year's farming, involving the same amount of labor.

The aggregate yield under this system of mining will then more than equal that under the present, but an essential condition to this result rests upon the establishment of a system of cheap and thorough reduction. The most feasible and promising plan for this is embraced in the above proposition—the establishment of such works near the mines. Premising that the ores can be successfully reduced, good locations possessing every facility for the prosecution of the work as cheaply as any in the State can be found in our own county.

Among these, as the most promising, we may mention Cottonwood, a point on the west beach of Owens Lake, opposite Ferguson's landing. Since the establishment of steamboat navigation on the Lake works at that point will be conveniently accessible to all the Cerro Gordo mines as well as all others in the county and near it, from Coso on the south to Waucoba and other places east of the Inyo range, and west along the foot of the Sierras, north perhaps to Benton. Embraced within that area, 200 miles long by fifty broad, the number of good mines large and small is simply incalculable. The amount of rich ores that they are capable of producing is wholly beyond computation. The share of these that such works we speak of would command, would of course depend on the management of the works (the prices paid or rates charged and returns made on custom lots) but if liberal in all these, there is no question but such an establishment would receive an immense amount of ore to work, and if properly prepared for it, a large amount of bullion to refine.

All the wood and lumber, and of a very good quality, necessary for such works, and much more, can be obtained from a point eight or ten miles west in the mountains, where it exists in the greatest abundance. A necessary prerequisite would be the construction of a saw mill and a flume some eight miles long, down which to run wood and lumber to the lake. Col. Stevens is now, and has been for some months, trying to inaugurate this enterprise and will probably soon succeed. In connection with this, and as part of the same, we are satisfied that the establishment of furnaces and other reduction works would be a first-rate investment for capital, and would certainly, as before stated, ultimately be a great advantage to the country generally.

—The Catholic population of this country is reckoned at 5,500,000.

The Wadsworth Railroad Accident.

A telegram from Wadsworth, June 13th, has the following particulars of the late railroad accident near Wadsworth:

The train that left San Francisco Wednesday morning, bound East, met with an accident this morning about 4 o'clock near Wadsworth, Nevada. The train consisted of eight cars, one mail, one baggage, three sleepers, one first-class and second-class passenger attached to the locomotive in the order named.

The train was making a sharp curve along a precipitous bluff of rocks, going at the rate of eighteen miles an hour, when one of the rails broke, a piece of about ten feet. Two rear cars, both passenger, were thrown off the track, and dragged over the ties a distance of about 500 feet; the hind car, being close against the rocky and jagged bluff, was much raked; the two cars then fell down an embankment twelve feet high, breaking the coupling from the rest of the train. The two cars turned completely over and landed on their tops: the passengers were all asleep at the time. The sleepers knew nothing of the accident until the conductor came into the hind sleeper and said to the porter, "I guess you had better go out there and help those people." At this your reporter jumped up hastily, but before he could throw his clothes on the remnant of the train started for Wadsworth for assistance.

On arriving at Wadsworth, Division Superintendent B. O. Carr was woke up, and Drs. Geiger and Coleman, a number of hands with tools and medical stores for the injured, with all the male passengers, got aboard two caboose cars, and in one hour and a quarter after the accident assistance arrived to the sufferers.

About thirty-five passengers were in the cars, nearly all of whom were slightly bruised and wounded. Following is a list of the injured: William Reese, or Rollins, injured on the head, is now insensible; R. K. Gordon, of Oakland, injured in the back and received scalp wounds; M. B. Carroll, of Battle Mountain, bruised on the head; J. M. Woodward, Carlin, shoulder, hip, hands and head bruised; Fanny Espinosa, Sacramento, cut on the scalp; Jerry Dinan, Allison Ranch, cut on the head; Anna Dickson and three children, of Reno, one of the children slightly hurt; Mrs. Keefe, Grass Valley, and three children, only scratched; Ellen Jenkens, Virginia, hurt in the shoulder and hip; Rosa Wertha, Sacramento, hurt in the back and cut on the knee; James James, Virginia city, scalp wound, hip cut, hand cut, not serious; William Clark, Inyo county, left cheek cut; R. P. Eaton, San Diego, right knee bruised; Richard Ashton, Reno, slightly bruised; Elizabeth Holbert, Homesdale, Penn., back of head cut; David Harvey, Red Bluff, cut in the left side of head; James Wadle, Tehama, right leg hurt. The engineer's name is O. Johnson. The conductor was John M. Greenleaf, who has been on the road for four years, this being his first accident, and for which no one is apparently to blame.

Napoleon's Letter.

The following is a full translation of Napoleon's letter addressed to each of the Generals who commanded at Sedan:

GENERAL—Holding myself, as I do, responsible before the country for the institutions of the empire, I only recognize judgments that have been pronounced by the people regularly consulted. It is not my duty to appreciate the report of the Commission of Inquiry on the capitulation of Sedan. I confine myself to recalling to the principle witnesses of that catastrophe the critical position in which we found ourselves. The army commanded by the Duke of Magenta had nobly performed its duty. It had straggled heroically against an enemy twice its number. When it was forced back on the walls of the town, and even into the town itself, it left 14,000 dead and wounded covering the field of battle, on which I had witnessed the contest. The situation then became desperate, but the honor of the army was saved by the gallantry it had displayed. I exercised my right as sovereign in ordering the parliamentary flag to be raised, and I am fully prepared to bear the responsibility of that act. The destruction of 60,000 more men would not have saved France. The sublime devotion of officers and soldiers would have been uselessly sacrificed. We had then to obey a cruel but inexorable necessity. It wounded my heart, but gave me an easy conscience. Be assured, General, of my sentiments. NAPOLEON.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

The Board of Supervisors.

This honorable body has been in session all week, and have transacted a considerable amount of business, but as some of the most important is yet under consideration we defer a full report until next week. Several plans for court house and bridges respectively, accompanied by bids, were handed in but in order to give a fair showing to all competitors none of these were adopted or accepted, and the Board now advertise anew for plans and specifications simply. When plans are adopted as per advertisement they will be submitted for bids. It was also decided to use the old site for the new court house, some additional ground having been donated by interested parties to enlarge the grounds. In our humble opinion a much better site was rejected, viz., the block west of Market street. It is commanding ground, centrally located, and the court house there would add more to the good looks of the place than to have it and all such buildings strung along one street only. All things considered that location would have given far more general satisfaction than the old one, but there was a great diversity of opinion on this point and it was out of the question to please everybody.

Captured.

Four of the Camp Independence deserters were captured at Bishop Creek on Saturday last. Sergeant Butler, who effected their capture, is indebted to "Put" Yaney, a mere boy in years though a man in judgment, for a knowledge of their whereabouts in the willows, some two or three miles west of Sneden's store. One of them had been to the store to obtain some crackers, and was traced thence by young Yaney to the point where the others were hidden. We infer that Put is entitled to the reward, and hope he may receive it. The deserters are now prisoners awaiting trial, with a term at Alcatraz inevitable. Six others are still at large, but as Lieut. Haskell is on their track it is not probable that they will make good their escape.

Get to Work.

After some trouble and delay in procuring men Superintendent Wingard has finally got to work on the Silver Sprout. He intends to thoroughly prospect the mine by shaft and tunnel before going to the expense of moving the old mill up the canyon to a location contigious to the proposed tramway from the mine, which will be built if the result of present operations is satisfactory. We have great faith, based on personal observation, in the Silver Sprout series of mines.

A Fifty-dollar Purse.

We are authorized to state that a purse of fifty dollars will be given the fastest horse in a six hundred yard race to come off in this place July Fourth. The race is free to all, catch weights, at least two to enter on payment of $10 entrance, to be added to the purse. Fetch on your racers and your scrubs, and you will certainly have a chance to get your money back one way or t'other.

The Celebration at Lone Pine.

An energetic committee of Lone Pine citizens are busy with the arrangements for the celebration and ball at that place on the coming Fourth. The dance takes place in Stewart's new and spacious storeroom, and even it will hardly hold the crowd which will be in attendance. Consult the advertisement elsewhere.

Pugilistic.

Our weekly record of the milling operations of the fighting fraternity don't include our friend John Aleck. this time, but a "bloody sojer man" and John Harr, who indulged in a sociable little knock-down on Thursday evening. The casus belli was benzine, as usual.

Furnace Men Wanted.

Mr. H. F. Baker, proprietor of the Wallapai Smelting Works, Arizona, advertises for men who understand smelting, charging and running galamadores, to whom good wages and permanent employment will be given. Our furnace workers will do well to carefully peruse the advertisement.

No Shindig.

Owing to the fact that the flooring for Harris & Rhine's new building can't be had in time, there will be no dance here on the Fourth. This is fortunate, as many residents of this city want to get out and enjoy a sniff of fresh, country air anyhow.

Bonds Sold.

The Supervisors, last Monday, disposed of the entire issue of Inyo county bonds ($40,000) at eighty cents on the dollar. Harris & Rhine were the only bidders.

The Assessment Roll

For this county is approaching completion. The whole amount of taxable property will foot up nearly $1,400,000, or about twice as much as last year. On this basis tax rates will be reduced about one-half.

Bullion Shipment.

On the 20th instant Messrs. Hiskey & Walker shipped from the Deep Spring mill 3,200 ounces of bullion, of the value of $3,700—extracted from Lida ore.

An Exciting Runaway.

About dark evening before last Mr. P. W. Bennett and lady had a most narrow escape from severe personal injury if not death. They were returning from a drive towards the Post, seated in a light buggy behind his powerful black horses, "Ebony" and "Sheepdriver," and when near Rose's place the team, more out of "devilment" than fright, started to run. The bridle-bits were plain, and wrapped at that, so that Bennett's efforts to hold them were entirely ineffectual; both being race horses they came in toward town at a terrific rate of speed, the sound of their rapid foot-falls reaching the ear of nearly every person in town. People rushed to the street in time to see them flying past, their feet striking fire from the stones, their mouths wide open as they drew their load along wholly by the lines, while the buggy bounced many feet clear of the ground, altogether presenting a terrifying spectacle. Spectators held their breath as the vehicle bounded over the rough crossings on the street, only drawing one of relief when the last and worst had been passed, when the team had reached a sandy and level road. Then it was all plain sailing, and after a clean run at the top of their speed for about a mile, Bennett succeeded in hauling them up and returning to the anxious crowd which had collected to witness the denouement of the impending catastrophy. Up to this time Mrs. Bennett had withstood the peril with the completest bravery and self possession, but now she broke down utterly, serious consequences being threatened for a time, but we are glad to say that no fears on this account were realized. Bennett managed the runaways with skill and coolness, keeping them well in the road. The buggy (an open, C spring Kimball) was a remarkably good one, or it could never have stood such rough jolting, and the great wonder is that the lady was not thrown clear out of it. As for Bennett, however, he held to those ribbons like the King of Terrors to a defunct Ethiopian, and so long as things held together he could ride as fast as the team could go. It was a very exciting and unpleasant scene, one which we hope not to see repeated, especially if it endangers the life or limb of a woman. But among so many a man or two more or less wouldn't make so much difference—lawyers anyway.

George Bailey.

A petition has been gotten up here, and is being signed by everybody, asking Governor Booth to pardon this young man, who is now serving a three years' term in the Penitentiary. From all accounts this petition ought to be granted. The circumstances of the case are about as follows: Bailey, who is quite a young man, belonged and was sent from Tulare county on conviction for hog stealing. He resided with, and was the only support of a sick and widowed mother and a crippled sister. They were very poor and a neighbor named John Littlefield through a desire to assist them gave young Bailey permission to kill or capture some half wild hogs he had running at large. Acting on this permission Bailey caught several of these hogs, and among the rest was one claimed by a man whose name we do not know. This man had him arrested but on examination before a Justice the charge was dismissed. Subsequently Bailey came to this county and after remaining some months returned last April to Tulare to take care of his sister, the mother having died during his absence. He was re-arrested on the old charge, tried and convicted, receiving a three years' sentence as above stated. Circumstances were all against him. Littlefield had died, and the only witness to the offer made by him, Mr. John Hilton, a man of good standing wherever known, was in this county and knew nothing of the trial until it was over. Another fact made against the boy, and that was that a small lot of beef had been found in his possession. It can now be proved that he came by this honestly, and also that he had always been a hard working, industrious boy and without a previous suspicion of dishonesty. All those best acquainted with him and the circumstances of this charge firmly believe that he was wrongfully convicted and on those grounds ask for his pardon and restoration to citizensihp.

Still Shaking.

Granny Earth can't get entirely over her attack of the shakes, having been afflicted with several slight chills during the past week. The heaviest occurred about 8 o'clock on Thursday morning; some moments afterwards quite a heavy cloud of dust was observed rising into the clear sky just back of the first range of lofty peaks to the west of the valley. In about twenty minutes this had all disappeared. Though there was nothing here to indicate such violent effects, the probabilities are that a portion of one of those rocky crags, loosened by the great shock of March, has been sent crashing to the bottom of the canyon. It has been remarked by several that these temblors are more frequent and violent about the time of the full moon, and we have also noted the fact that they recur more frequently on Fridays and Saturdays than on other days of the week—but not being confined exclusively to these periods, no very valuable scientific deductions can be drawn from the observations. In one respect our opinion, expressed some two months since, viz: that the shakes would not entirely cease for three months, has been verified. In all respects our wishes in regard to their discontinuance have been neither verified or regarded. However, we don't claim that our opinion was based on any reliable understanding of the subject. We think now that they will "dry up" sometime, and would intimate that the present is as good time as any.

About a Horse Thief.

Sheriff Mulkey, after a long and hard ride down as far as Kern county, got back the other day with the object of his trip—a young Mexican horse thief, calling himself Francisco Palema, but whose real name is——Sepulveda, from Los Angeles. Some weeks since Francisco was at Bishop Creek. He stood in need of an outfit with which to leave the country, and not wishing to put too heavy a burden on one man he took a horse from A. G. Boley, a saddle from George M. Clarke, a bridle from Slickard, a riata from John Bourland, an overcoat from John Clarke and a pair of spurs from Steve Gregg. It will be seen by this that Francisco is a magnanimous thief. With this outfit he started south the same night and in due time got down to Indian Wells, when one Murphy arrested him and started to take him to Kern county jail. Francisco talked very pretty and finally made Murphy think that he was a very nice and much abused young man, so he was turned loose. He went on to the forks of Kern river, where he went to work on a ranch, and when the Sheriff, after going on past him a good many miles, came back and gobbled him up, and brought and safely deposited him in our magnificent jail. Francisco don't like the looks of the earthquake ruins round about, and wants to be sent right along to San Quentin without further formalities, except for the Judge to name the time. Says he is guilty and ought to have been sent to the Penitentiaiy long ago, of which fact there can be but little doubt, as he is one of the same band of thieves with which Mr. Mulkey had such a lively scrimmage on George's Creek about a year ago. Mr. Mulkey captured his horse and saddle at that time, but didn't get him. He attempted to burn his way out of our fine jail a few days since, but got afraid there might be a Mexican reduced to cinders at the same time, and put the fire out of his accord and free will. Under Sheriff Moore is determined he shall stay with us until Court sets in July anyhow, and to that end will spare no pains or irons to maintain the reputation of his boarding house.

Goes Below.

Mr. Rhine starts for the other side of the mountains in a few days, on the search of a specific for rheumatism. Mr. P. W. Bennett and lady started this morning on a pasear to San Francisco. Others would like to go, but, like rats to a steel-trap, they have become so attached to the country they can't get away.

New Boarding House.

Mrs. Catherine Wallace has opened a boarding house at her residence on Market street, and we will guarantee that parties favoring her with their patronage will have no occasion to regret their choice of a boarding house. She will spare no pains to give the amplest satisfaction.

A Premonition Realized.

Cleveland recently was the scene of one of those awful cases of mysterious warning and sad realizations that have been agonizing the country papers lately. The circumstances are as follows: A young and beautiful married lady, whose husband was attending a "railroad meeting," stepped into a neighbor's house to while away an hour or so until he returned. While engaged in knitting a stocking, she was startled by the sudden dropping of all the stiches from one needle, she proceeded to gather them up, when a looking glass in the room fell and broke; she then felt that some deadly peril hung over her husband, and rushed home. The door was open; his over coat hung upon the floor, and his plug hat was placed upon the marble bust of Daniel Webster, in the parlor. With an undefinable feeling of terror she rushed to her room—only to find her warning realized; there he lay on the bed, with his boots on the pillows and the ace of spades tightly clutched in his hand. She did not faint, but denied trumps and played clubs—around his head—until he promised to give up such "tricks."

For Reptile Bites.

One tablespoonful of gunpowder; one tablespoonful of salt; the yellow of one egg. Heat them altogether, so as to form a plaster, and apply to the wound. A yellow water will issue, and when the plaster becomes soaked with the poison it will fall off. Renew the plaster until it will adhere to the wound, which is evidence that the poison has all been drawn. The above is said to be a very effective antidote.

VARIETIES.

—Many cases have been recorded of lives saved by Bibles carried in the pocket, which have intercepted bullets, bowie knives and such like instruments of death. Of course the proper inference from these cases is that it is a good and commendable thing to carry a Bible in the breast pocket, as indeed it is. But a man in Florida, who was not base enough slave to pay his bills, allowed them to accumulate in his pocket until there was quite a thick bundle of them. A few days ago a ruffian tried to stab him, and this bundle of unpaid bills intercepted the knife and saved his life. What is the inference in this case?

—The Pittsburgh Dispatch says: A lady of rank and culture, for ten years enjoying high social standing, and leading a happy and virtuous life, beloved in the family circle and society, is suddenly confronted with the reproach of an error of earlier days by a scoundrel, who thus succeeds in destroying a home, sending the husband to the mad-house, and the wife a fugitive over the land. And then England's "good Queen," with quick feeling for the purification of court society, cancels the title of the lady to presentation at court. The years of exemplary living cannot atone for the youthful indiscretion. Oh, rare, queenly charity that shields a Prince of Wales and blasts a repentant woman!

—First Stranger—I declare, sir, that women are getting more outrageously decoltay every day. Just look over there at that prodigious old porpoise with the eye-glass! Second Stranger—Hum! Ha! Yes! I can't help thinking she's a more festive looking object than that funeral old frump with the fan. First Stranger—The "funeral old frump" is my wife, sir! Second Stranger—The "prodigious old porpoise" is mine! Let's go and have some tea.

—The Italian Government is making great efforts to encourage education among the Italians, and to overcome the effects of its almost total neglect during the past two hundred years. In the army education is compulsory, and thousands of discharged soldiers who have returned to their native villiages are acting as the pioneers of culture. No soldier who is unable to read and write is allowed a single day's furlough.

—A lady was once reading to a little boy aged seven the story of the resurrection of Lazarus. Seeing a peculiar expression of his countenance when the condition of Lazurus' body was mentioned, she sought to divert his attention from the circumstances by asking what he supposed the disciples did when the grave was opened. "Don't know," said he, "I s'pose they held their noses."

—An Irishman who had lain sick a long time was one day met by the parish priest, when the following conversation took place: "Well, Patrick. I am glad you have recovered. But were you not afraid to meet you God?" "Och, no, your riverence! It was meetin' of t'other chap I was afeard uv!" replied Pat.

—The simple expedient of driving down an iron pipe saved the life of Levi Blanchard, who was recently buried in a well in Melrose, Massachusetts. It was three hours before he was rescued, but the pipe gave him air and he recovered.

—A quiet man rang his neighbors door bell one night. "Is the gentleman in?" he asked of a servant. "I don't know. Did you wish to see him particularly?" "Oh, no, I merely wanted to tell him his house was on fire."

—"Merciful heavens!" exclaimed a grieved chap, as he leaned up against a post in front of a saloon on Washington's birthday. "Can it be that that great and good man is dead?"

—A candidate for a situation as school-teacher in Florida, being asked the shape of the earth, replied "Well, some folks likes it round and some likes it flat, and I've jinnerally teached it both ways."

—The term commonly used by us in calling a dog has induced the Japanese to think that "come here" is the English name for those animals.

—The Mariposa man who lost his ear in a fight, and afterward had it replaced wrong end up, is obliged to stand on his head to hear straight.

—The "Dolly Varden" bonnets are said to be the prettiest and most becoming head-gear that has been worn by women for centuries.

—Fifty thousand fans have been ordered from one factory at Nashua, New Hampshire, for the Boston Peace Jubilee.

Shoeing Horses.

It is almost impossible to get horses shod without having the frogs cut away. All veterinary surgeons, all horsemen, all leading blacksmiths, agree that the frog should not be pared one particle—not even trimmed. No matter how pliable and soft the frog is, cut it away smooth on all sides and it will be hard as a chip. You might as well cut off the leaves of the trees and expect them to flourish as to pare away the frog and have a healthy foot. The rough, spongy part of the frog is to the foot what leaves are to the trees—the lungs. Never have a red-hot shoe put upon a foot to burn it level. If you can find a blacksmith that is mechanic enough to level the foot without a red-hot iron employ him. The burning process deadens the hoof and tends to contract it. If you don't think so try the red-hot poker on your finger nail, and see if it will not affect the growth of that.—Mirror and Farmer.

Labor and Machinery.

[From The New Jersey Mechanic.]

Civilization always advanced in direct ratio to mechanical development; the remains of ancient Egypt, Greece, Rome, China, Peru, Mexico, and everywhere else prove it uncontrovertibly. As the laws of nature revealed themselves to men, they grew intelligent, and while some used the knowledge obtained for improvement in industries, others made it their aim to further explore the recesses of nature, from which all wisdom flows. In either case as the necessity for improved mechanical means became urgent, ingenuity was taxed to supply the want. Thus we have progress in civilization through industry by mechanical means, deducted from the laws that rule the universe. Machinery, therefore, is the promoter of human progress, the great lever by which we open the portals that exclude our vista from the formerly unknown and therefore mysterious regions, enlarges our knowledge, and dispels ignorance and intolerance.

Progress is the certain road to perfection, to virtue, to further development of that intelligence in mankind, which only requires encouragement to expand over the immeasurable extent of the universe, finding there revealed the true source of all beings; it directs to morality, to rectitude, through justice. On the other hand, substitution of automatical work for hand labor relieves the mass from a great deal of soul-benumbing drudgery, gives each more time to reflect; and the observation of the numerous devices employed in itself promotes study, reflection, and independent reasoning the real and only source of true liberty, if joined to morality and justice.

President Greeley's First Veto.

The Chicago Post says that if Greeley is elected President a veto message something like the following may be expected:

An Act to raise revenue by imposing a duty of ten cents a ton on guano. Comments by the President: I return this obnoxious measure without my approval. The man who introduced it is an ass; the men who voted for it are scheming British agents, and the men who say this is not the case are liars and horse thieves. I judge that on the average, every man, woman and child in America uses a ton of guano a year in some shape or other; whether as the farmer in New York, Louisiana, Colorado, Podunk, etc., in agriculture, or as Chas. A. Dana, for editorial articles. We thus consume, in round figures, 40,000,000 tons annually. The arbitrary and revolutionary Act which I veto to-day would thus impose a tax of $4,000,000 on our people. With what effect? It would not stimulate the production of American guano. American birds could not compete with the pauper labor of birds in debauched and priest ridden Central America. No one but a villain and brigand can question these facts. British gold, whereof many millions have been distributed to corrupt the American conscience, has originated this bill. H. G.

—These "devils" seem to be brought up with a sad misapprehension of facts concerning editors, but this is no reason why they should pour out their feelings in such miserable verses as the following:

If I was a lokle editur,
Wouldn't I have a time?
I wouldn't print a cussed word
For lessen a $ a line.

I'd get my grub and licker free,
& tickets to the shows.
I wouldn't pay for buggy hier,
& wouldn't I ware good close!

—A printer, having been "flung" by his sweetheart, tried to commit suicide. The "devil" found him out and took him to the sanctum where the editor was writing duns to delinquent subscribers. The picture of despair presented by the editor reconciled the printer to his fate. He began to consider himself as comparatively happy.

—A printer's devil in an Omaha office was bitten by a dog a few days since. The dog lingered a few days and then died in great agony.

Tornado in Ohio.

Later information from the scene of of the tornado which visited Quincy and De Graff, Logan county, Ohio, on Saturday evening, shows that it was more terrible and destructive than the first reports indicated. A sultry day was followed by a cloud in the west at 5 o'clock in the evening, which gathered blackness and size with fearful rapidity. A heavy wind set in, and at 5:30 the whirlwind struck the earth five miles from Quincy, moving southeasterly.

The destroyer was hardly more than five minutes reaching Quincy, through which it passed, making a clean sweep of houses, trees and fences along its path, which, fortunately, was comparitively narrow. In this village fifty or sixty dwellings and stores, two churches, and as many more shops, stables and outbuildings were unroofed, rocked upon their foundations or demolished. The air was literally filled with flying weather-boards, furniture, laths and plaster. A parlor stove was caught up by the wind and hurled through the air, falling upon a woman who was so crushed that she has since died. The Baptist and Methodist Episcopal churches were completely destroyed.

The tornado on the way to De Graff struck Bogg's flouring mill, five stories high, containing 3,000 bushels of grain, and moved the building nine inches upon its foundation and carried away the roof and part of the fifth story. It ploughed its way through De Graff, scattering destruction in its path, but hurting fewer persons and damaging a less number of buildings. After leaving DeGraff it passed several settlements, missing the houses, and finally rose from the earth and was seen for miles, carrying in its funnel-shaped form timber, rails and debris which it had gathered in its destructive march. The papers this morning give the names of thirty-nine persons injured in Quincy and eleven in DeGraff, the list not comprising all the injured in the former village. Mrs Rall, reported killed in DeGraff, is yet living, though two children were killed. Mrs. Glick, in Quincy, has since died from her wounds. —Cincinnati Dispatch.

A True Wife.

Daniel Webster once said: "There is nothing upon this earth that can compare with the faithful attachment of a wife; no creature who, for the object of her love, is so indomitable, so persevering, so ready to suffer and die. Under the most depressing circumstances, woman's weakness becomes a mighty power, her timidity becomes fearless courage, all her shrinking and sinking passes away, and her spirit acquires the firmness of marble—adamantine firmness—when circumstances drive her to put forth all her energies under the inspiration of her affection. It is the bubbling stream which flows gently, the little rivulet which runs along day and night by the farm house that is useful, rather than the swollen flood or cataract. Niagara excites our wonder, and we stand amazed at the power and greatness of God there, as it pours from the hollow of His hand; but one Niagara is enough for a continent, while the world requires thousands and tens of thousands of silver fountains and flowing rivulets, that water every farm, meadow and garden, and that shall flow on every day with their gentle quiet beauty. So with the acts of our lives. It is not by great deeds, like the martyrs, that good is to be done, but by the daily and quiet virtues of our life, the Christian's temper, the good qualities of relatives and friends."

The Seventeen Year Raiders.

The appearance of locusts every 17 years is a dreaded event among agriculturalists and orchardists, as they sweep down and destroy all vegetation in their way—the farmer, gardener and fruit grower beholds with their coming certain destruction of their crops. Their visits are also regarded by many as indication of some plague or pestilence. Not long since Utah suffered much from the great army of grasshoppers, and now we are having in our low grounds millions upon millions of the regular seventeen year locusts, and in Union ravine, through the canyon between here and Dayton, and in other localities, the air is pregnant with a whizzing sound, resembling the music executed by an army of rattlesnakes, emanating from this band of unwelcome marauders, who will not be content with a bill of fare composed solely of sage-brush, and, in all probability, will scent out the products of the farmer's toil. We trust our aborigine population will abandon grasshoppers for a season, and make a jaw-bone war upon the seventeen year locust. They deserve it, for, as Judge Frank Stewart, who brought yesterday a specimen to this city in his vest pocket, says, "each one is a low-cuss anyhow."—Virginia Chronicle.

—The pun fiend is again on the war path. Here is his latest effort: "Why is an egg produced last month like a native of Malacca? Because it is a May-lay."

—The Canaan Reporter says: "Our early peas came up this season in two days after they were planted." Anybody's will if they will let the hens run in the garden.

—It is remarked that a majority of the Sage's supporters brush their hair behind their ears. But this is creditable proof that they are not afraid to betray the length of them.

VOLUME III.

With the present number THE INYO INDEPENDENT enters upon the third year of its existence, and with it, let us hope, upon a greater degree of prosperity and consequent usefulness. With the second volume about two-thirds of its subscriptions also expired.

While feeling profoundly grateful to the few warm supporters who have aided and encouraged our enterprise, we feel constrained to state that notwithstanding their liberal efforts in its favor the paper don't pay. However, it will be continued for another year's trial—beyond which we make no promises—by either one or the other of its present proprietors, or by both should its prospects in the immediate future justify their attention.

Although the pecuniary aid vouchsafed us has been no adequate compensation, during the past two years we have spared no pains or labor in promoting the best interests of the WHOLE COUNTY, and in the face of all the premises and facts any man thinking to the contrary must be naturally idiotic or perversely foolish.

To run a paper in a sparsely settled community without the thorough co-operation of every man in it is a thankless, ill-paid and slavish undertaking, and one we are tired of.

Local pride and the unbounded confidence of the public in the brilliant future of our county should dictate the heartiest support to a journal advocating and fighting for its interest, and it is this aid and patronage that we ask.

From the present time forward the true system of business—that of cash payments, give and take—will be our only plan and principle; and, instead of doing hundreds of dollars' worth of advertising and job work for various objects and purposes gratis as heretofore, such work will hereafter be charged for or not done at all.

The State Fair.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary card of admission to the State Fair, which begins in Sacramento on the 19th and ends on the 26th of September next, accompanied with a number of premium lists for distribution. It is confidently expected that this will be one of the finest and most complete State Fairs that has ever occurred within Uncle Samuel's dominions. Circumstances are all favorable to this result. Many new agricultural products will then for the first time be placed on exhibition, the short period that has elapsed since they first found a place in field and garden having prevented them from appearing heretofore, while all the usual productions, owing to the favorableness of the season, will be presented in greater quantity and of a better quality than ever before. These facts, in connection with the liberal premiums, active interest by the managers, bountiful harvests and consequent abundant finances and increased facilities for traveling, are certain to induce an extraordinary attendance. The exhibition of live stock and works of art of all kinds will be very large and complete in all respects. This Fair will afford an opportunity for recreation and instruction for all classes, and one that nobody ought to allow to pass unimproved. It is expected that every county in the State will have articles of some description on exhibition. It will devolve upon our farmers and miners principally to see that this county is no exception to the rule.

Going Ahead.

The contract has been let for the construction of an additional fifty miles of the Southern Pacific Railroad southward from the present terminus near Watsonville. Work will be commenced at once, and pushed forward vigorously through the Salinas Valley.

Bonner.

Bonner, of The New York Ledger, has $125,000 worth of horses, which he keeps in $100,000 worth of stables. And not twenty years ago the owner of all this was without a dollar's capital, and humbly pursuing his calling in a printing office.

PROF. WHITNEY.

When Prof. Whitney started in this direction it was generally supposed he would devote considerable time in investigating our earthquake developments. We know nothing as to what theory or conclusion he may have deduced in his flying trip through, but he certainly did not devote the time to the subject that was expected, or its importance demanded. He crowded sail until he reached and passed Aurora, scarcely delaying an hour of daylight anywhere in the county, since which time we hear nothing of him. The mere examination of the physical effects of the earthquake, was a matter of small consequence to science. Such things have been seen and reported hundreds of times before. It required time and minute scientific observations carried on during the actual occurrence of a shock, to hit upon anything satisfactory or new, and such opportunities have been frequent for the past three months. It is a pity that some man of science had not been specially delegated to attend to this matter as was first proposed. This, we presume, would have been done had there been no misunderstanding of the Professor's intention. His well known attainments were supposed to have specially qualified him for this duty, and the question is, why were people allowed to infer and retain the idea that that was his object when it was not?

A splendid opportunity for scientific observations, possibly of great value, has been allowed to pass unimproved. Whatever we may know of the effects of earthquakes, we nor the world at large are not as yet a whit wiser as to their cause. Ben Franklin evolved a theory concerning a most mysterious and wonderful phenomenon of nature, as mystifing then, and as little understood, as the cause of earthquakes at the present time, and eventually reduced his theory to a practicable scientific fact. We firmly believe it is within the range of human power to accomplish nearly if not quite as much in respect of earthquakes. Such a result may have to be worked out step by step, and, therefore, no opportunity for taking one of these steps should be passed with neglect. Fortunately and unfortunately, both, they occur at but rare intervals and consequently the chances for finding out "the when, where and how" are lessened in the same degree, but where one such chance occurs, such as this, it is a great wrong to let it go by default. We are informed that the Professor will publish his opinion on this earthquake during the coming month (July). From his limited chances of observation we certainly do not anticipate anything new or valuable or satisfactory. If not conclusive at least something more satisfactory might have been looked for had he made this his special study on the ground for a greater length of time.

Wallapai.

Under the head of "Pacific Coast News" will be found an item copied rom one of our exchanges stating that "Elder & Cover's furnace, in Wallapai, was a failure." Parties just arrived in San Francisco from that district inform Mr. Reddy that that report is untrue. On the contrary Mr. Elder was highly elated with his prospects and was then actually running out from three to five tons of bullion per day. Cover's furnace, which is not connected with Elder's, was not a success on the start, but has since changed hands, and with different management will doubtless prove as successful as any in the district. The general prospect there is of the most flattering character.

A Chinese War.

There is open war between the Yung Wo and See Yup companies in Chinatown, Virginia city. A great fight took place among them June 18, in which several were badly wounded, one or two mortally. The fight appears to have grown out of the fact that the Yung Wos had bought a piece of ground on which to build a temple and in jubilating over the prospect they gave great offense to the See Yups, who at once went on the war path. More trouble is anticipated.

The Virginia Chronicle.

James B. McQuillan is at present editor-in-chief of The Virginia Evening Chronicle, John I. Winn giving his undivided attention to the local department. "Mc" is an able writer, and one of the founders of The Sacramento Record, while Winn is the most industrious "local" on the coast, and The Chronicle fully justifies the high expectations of its friends. We are sorry to add that John is at present laboring under a severe illness.

Cotton.

The cotton crop of Kern county is said to be very promising.

Concluded Its Labors.

The Democratic State Convention concluded its labors June 20, and adjourned. Following is the complete list of delegates to the Baltimore Convention: First District—C. T. Ryland of Santa Clara, and McDowell, the County Judge of San Luis Obispo; Second District—H. O. Cravens of Placer, and George D. Roberts of Alameda; Third District—W. F. Goad of Colusa, and J. C. Wolfskill of Solano; Fourth District—F. McCoppin and Henry George of San Francisco; delegates at large—Eugene Casserly, ex-Governor John G. Downey, Wm. M. win Gand J. H. Hardy. All but Casserly are pledged to go for the nomination of Greeley.

After the State Convention adjourned the representatives from the different congressional districts met and decided not to make any congressional nominations until after the Baltimore Convention.

The members of the State Central Committee also met and organized for the campaign by electing Joseph Hoge Chairman and Frank Lawton Secretary. As the hall was being cleared a Republican nudged Frank Pixley, who was present, remarking: "Don't you find it a little hard to swallow Gwin?" Pixley instantly replied: "Well, it ain't our convention, and if it was, I reckon if Gwin can swallow Greeley we ought to be able to swallow Gwin." It is stated as a fact that Gwin, since his return to this coast, has been an out and out Union man, and it is certain that he is now unqualifiedly for Greeley.

Labor Strikes.

At no period in the past history of the world have labor strikes become as frequent and formidable as at the present time. Though some good may result from these movements favorable to the working class, we are persuaded the evil to themselves will far outweigh any possible good. Capital is, without question, selfish and overbearing, but the motives of these strikes are just as much or more so. The idea that capital must pay for labor not performed is the sum and substance of the whole thing, where a lessened number of working hours with former pay is the object, and also where eight hours instead of ten is asked for with an increase of former pay, the request very nearly approaches the outrageous. The natural balance between labor and pay is as certain to follow one way or the other, after being thrown out by one of these movements, as the balance in true commercial values. If employers have to pay a third or a fifth more than usual for labor, their manufactured articles must be sold at a similar advance, and as laborers are the consumers, they are actually losers in the end, unless the trifling gain of a little extra time for the "improvement of their minds" is considered the first object. It men wish to have extra time for this purpose, it is scarcely fair to ask their employers to pay them for it.

Indians on the War Path.

A Sioux City dispatch gives advices that the Sioux Indians are on the war path. There is now a camp of 365 lodges rendezvoused within ten miles of Fort Berthold, and their numbers are being daily increased. It is said to be the intention of the party to attack Berthold as soon as they can muster 2,000 warriors. There seems to be a universal spirit of hostility among all the Sioux upon the Missouri. The chief of the band now near Berthold made a speech to his braves on the 27th ultimo, telling them that war had been declared, and that every one of the Sioux chiefs should stand by the decision of the counsel that made the declaration. He further said that Fort Berthold would be the scene of the opening of hostilities, and that Fort Buford would next receive attention. It is also reported that 3,000 Indians have determined to invade Texas for the purpose of relieving Santanta, their chief, confined at Huntsville. A big war is confidently looked for then. Gen Augur has telegraphed for two more regiments of cavalry.

Candidates for Congress.

The new Fourth Congressional District comprises the southern counties of the State, including our own, and seems to be full of unfledged statesmen. All of the following named gentlemen have signified a willingness to go to Congress after the 4th of March next: Col. E. J. C. Kewen and A. J. King of Los Angeles, Lawrence Archer of Santa Clara, Judge Hagan of Santa Cruz, T. J. Keys of Stanislaus, John Wilcox of Mariposa and Thomas Fowler of Tulare. Of the foregoing, Kewen, Lawrence, Keys, Wilcox and Fowler have had some experience in the State Legislature, and all are Democrats.

P. S.—Since the foregoing was in type we learn that Kewen was nominated at the Democratic Convention in San Francisco, on the 21st instant.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

A terrific explosion of nitro-glycerine took place at the California Powder Company's works, about 300 yards from the Laguna Honda school-house, San Francisco county, about 6 o'clock P. M., June 21. No lives were lost, nor was any one injured, although the building was blown into kindling wood, and five other frame buildings in the vicinity were wrecked or badly damaged The nitro-glycerine (1,500 pounds) was in a leaden tank and covered with water, but the heat was sufficient nevertheless to explode it. The earth was torn up to the depth of twelve feet and a circumference of 125 feet.

Joel H. Mansfield, who shot Miss Mary Hein, and then attempted suicide by shooting himself, has so far recovered that he has been removed to the county jail in San Francisco, as it was feared that he might escape from the county hospital, where he had been taken for treatment. As soon as he gets well enough to undergo the operation he ought to be hung by the heels until dead, as a warning to such murderous, love-sick fools.

A large portion of the town of Mineral Hill, Nevada, was destroyed by fire June 17. The total loss foots up to about $60,000.

A worthless wretch in Virginia City named Roger Ryan shot and killed his wife, June 19. Mrs Ryan was much respected by all who knew her. Owing to ill treatment from him she was living apart from her husband. After shooting her, Ryan, we are pleased to add, killed himself. A written request, found in his pocket, asking that they might be burled together, was not complied with.

W. A. Hart, indicted for the murder of L. W. Fletcher in Visalia in April last, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. K. W. Kinney, indicted with Hart, pleads guilty.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Sneaking Vandalism.

Mean men may be divided into two classes: those who take a pride in doing mean things, and don't care who knows it; and a cowardly, sneaking class who will do anything from robbing a grave to stealing a stick of candy from a suckling babe, provided always, they can do it without danger of immediate punishment. This latter class are the mudsills of the devil's own; they are his especial delight; his zero, above which every other mean thing coming under his jurisdiction take rank in wide degree. One of these cowardly things the other night, mainly as so much towards the fulfillment of his natural calling, took occasion to utterly destroy some shade trees standing in front of the Headquarters saloon. The act doubtless gratified his soulless carcass because he could thus aggravate the little orphan owners without fear of punishment. Col. Putney will give him a hundred dollars in cash if he will make himself known, or the same amount to any other person that will point him out.

Insane.

Dennis O'Haran and —— Ritchie, both insane, were brought here this week for the purpose of being placed in charge of the County Physician at Camp Independence. For some reason not clear to us they were refused admittance into the hospital, but have since been placed under care at private houses in this place by order of the Board of Supervisors. O'Haran, when attacked, was working at the Silver Sprout mine, but had recently been employed at Cerro Gordo, where he got "leaded," superinducing this mental affection. He will soon recover. Ritchie comes from Swansea. His affliction is of a mild and intermittent type, and dates back several months, and except at short intervals has not incapacitated him from attending to his business. The great earthquake is chargeable with an aggravation of his disorder. With proper attention he may be all right again, but it is possible he may have to be taken to Stockton to procure this kind of attention.

Disappeared.

Our old fraud of a Court House has pretty much disappeared. After being stripped of the wood and iron which partially held it together, the remains of the standing walls were thrown down, and we will mention as a somewhat remarkable fact, a number of the brick of which they were composed still remain whole—the material being that much better that was generally supposed.

The Fourth Here.

The main feature of interest connected with the celebration of the Fourth in this place will be the contemplated sweepstakes, free to all comers, $10 entrance to be added to the $50 purse, catchweight horse race. Operations will commence about 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and will be continued until all are satisfied, if it takes all Summer.

County Court.

A regular term of the County Court commences on Monday next. With the exception, perhaps, of ordering a Grand Jury, no business of importance will be transacted until some days after the Fourth. Judge Hannah proposes to give everbody a fair chance to get duly sober before they undertake law matters.

Warrants Issued.

Justice Clark, of Bishop Creek, has issued two warrants requiring the Sheriff to bring Francisco Palermo, alias Sepulveda, before him on charges of horse and saddle stealing. In accordance with this order Sheriff Mulkey started for Bishop with the prisoner on Thursday last.

The Exchange Hotel.

Mr. John Broder informs us that work will be begun immediately on the new addition to the Exchange Hotel building, which has been delayed up to the present time for want of lumber. Besides cook rooms, the building is to be 26 by 40 feet, and two stories in hight.

A New Landlord.

Billy Lake, who formerly had charge of the Exchange lodging house, having resigned and gone to Salt Lake, Judge Hannah is now major domo of that establishment, over which he presides in the most urbane manner.

School Funds.

The following is the apportionment of moneys now in the county School Fund: Bishop Creek, $52 81; Independence, $25 06; Lone Pine, $68 02; Milton, $23 27; Round Valley, $23 39; Union, $36 70. Total, $228 25.

Crops.

Throughout the county the prospect for all kinds of grain is unusually promising. The aggregate yield will be fully a third larger than ever before, but this result will be mainly due to the increased acreage seeded.

New Restaurant.

Some parties to us unknown have leased Schneider's new building, and will re-open it as a restaurant in a few days.

Personal.

Mr. Rhine started below last Monday, with the intention of visiting some of the health-giving springs supposed to be efficacious in rejuvenating people afflicted with rheumatism. Al. Briggs, Al. Vernard and Billy Lake have gone to pay Brigham's people a visit at Salt Lake. They will stop with them some time or longer if mutually agreeable, which is a matter of extreme doubt. J. L. Greeley, of Aurora, dropped in on us one day last week. He tells he is for Greeley (J. L.) first, last and all the time, and with that object in view, started hence for Columbus, having previously taken a run up to Cerro Gordo. S. G. Sneden, of Bishop Creek, has been among us this week taking a few observations and things. Mr. S. P. Leeds, of Morrison & Co., San Francisco, paid us a visit a day or two since, and to show his appreciation of what printers like he has since sent us up a liquid, if not a substantial, reminder. Mr. Jas. Brady has selected our burg as a place of residence for his family, as being the most convenient to his new field of operations in Waucoba.

Waucoba.

Col. Brady informs us that he has now en route, and over due, a water wheel and other machinery for his furnace in Waucoba, and hopes to have it running in a very short time. Though somewhat difficult of access, the prospects are altogether favorable for that district soon to become the most prominent and valuable of any in Inyo county, not excepting Cerro Gordo. He has one rich lead mine which is not less than 120 feet in width, and four silver ledges, all well opened, and showing an abundance of the best quality of ore, while the facilities afforded by an ample supply of water, wood and grass for animals employed about the works, are all as fine as could be wished for.

About Dogs.

Though our town may have but little else to boast of, it can produce some of the most irrepressible, incessant barking dogs of any place in the State. They will start in on the least possible provocation and keep it up as long as they can wag a tail. Tray, Blanche, Sweetheart, the whole yelping crew. From the way they hold out, the amount of vital force and bark they possess is something wonderful; enough to overstock a large tan-yard. It would be a source of intense gratification to all sleepy listeners to know that their worthless hides were as full of tan bark as they are of the yelping kind. Yea, verily.

Our Next Issue.

As printers like to help celebrate occasionally, as well as people enjoying the full rights of freedom guaranteed by the Constitution of these United States, and, further, as those of THE INDEPENDENT propose to do so in their own feeble way on the coming Fourth, it is more than probable that our next issue will not make its appearance in consequence, until a late hour on Saturday next, and possibly not until Sunday morning following. We wouldn't do this thing if we were not tolerably well satisfied that the most of our readers will survive the disappointment occasioned by the non-appearance of THE INDEPENDENT at the usual time.

After a New Stock.

Dr. Gelcich, of Lone Pine, whose extensive stock of drugs was almost totally destroyed on the 26th of March, has just started to Los Angeles with a view of replacing his stock and beginning business anew. We hope the best of fortune may attend him. As a memento of that memorable crash the Doctor has presented us a very beautiful glass hanging flower basket, almost the only article of a fragile nature which escaped utter destruction when his store went down. We appreciate this present very much, indeed.

Celebrations.

Of the National anniversary day will occur at Bishop Creek, Lone Pine, Benton and Columbus. In each place the programme includes the usual exercises, winding up with the festive dance in the evening. The affair at Lone Pine, from its extra attractions and able management, will doubtless draw an immense crowd of participants, while at Bishop Creek will congregate all of the residents of the upper portion of the county, and as near as we can "fagle it up" the Benton celebration won't be no slouch of an institution. All hail to the Yankee Bird!

Steamboat Excursion.

As will be seen by a formal invitation elsewhere in this issue, everybody is invited to celebrate the Fourth by a steamboat excursion on the lake, grand pic-nic at one of the landings, etc., and this is an invitation everybody ought to accept. A view of the lake from the decks of the first steamboat that ever ploughed its waters will be an event worth remembering.

Bullion Shipment.

The Bessie Brady on her first trip, June 27, landed 700 bars of bullion at the embryo city, which we believe is to be called Lakeville, situated at the lower end of the lake.

Seven of Them.

Seven of the ten deserters from Camp Independence have been caught. Lieut Haskell caught two in Visalia, and got back with them early this week.

Beef Reduced.

By observing L. Schneider's "notice" elsewere it will be seen that beef has come down and debtors are requested to follow suit.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the usual hour (10½ A. M.) at the school house to-morrow; Sunday school immediately after.

Democratic State Convention.

A San Francisco dispatch to The Sacramento Union, dated June 19, gives the following concerning the recent Democratic State Convention:

The Convention effected a permanent organization by electing James W. Coffroth Chairman, Beard and Thorne Secretaries, and Thomas Chandler Sergeant-at-Arms. Coffroth exhorted the Democracy to adhere to their principles, and have nothing to do with any hybrid organization. He would express no preference of his own, but would say that if his vote could elect a President of the United States he would cast it for Hendricks of Indiana. His remarks were received with great applause.

The Convention appointed a Committee on Resolutions and adjourned to 8 P. M. There is an intensely bitter jealousy of the city manifested by the country members. It now looks as if the delegation wou'd be uninstructed on the question of the presidency.

Mrs. Emily Pitts Stevens presented an address on the woman's rights question in manuscript. She was loudly cheered and withdrew.

The Convention this evening adopted a series of resolutions very skilfully drawn, the substance of which are as follows: Recommending the union of all good citizens in opposition to Grant's election; condemning the extravagance and corruption of his administration; indorsing the principles of the Cincinnati platform; recognizing the patriotic motives of the parties composing this Convention, and recommending the delegates to the Baltimore Convention to take such action as will insure the co-operation of all patriotic citizens in the effort to purity the Government; pledging the votes of the Democrats of California for the nominees of the Baltimore Convention, and leaving the delegates uninstructed as to what candidates they should vote for, they having the fullest confidence that they will act for the best interests of the party and country.

The resolutions were voted upon seriatim, and that indorsing the Cincinnati platform, which was regarded as practically committing the Convention to Greeley, was the only one on which there was a contest; the anti-Greeley men opposing it strongly. It was adopted by at least ten to one. This was followed by prolonged applause.

Snake Bitten.

Last Sunday as Mr. James Latimer, of Latimer's Ranch, was working in his vineyard, in reaching under a grape vine, a rattlesnake bit him on the end of the finger. He immediately arrested the circulation by a tight band above the wound, killed and skinned the snake and applied the skin to the bite—as recommended by an Indian. Then, as soon as possible, whisky was procured and his skin filled — Latimer's, not the snake's—and a physician summoned. At one time a fatal result was feared, but we are happy to state that Mr. L. is now out of danger. The Indians also recommend that the flesh of the snake be applied; but, as it is said to be a peculiarity of the reptile when attacked and wounded to bite himself, it is rather risky, as the act would be "adding fuel to the fire."—Tuolumne Independent, June 22.

A Squelcher.

A great many hard and unjust things have been said againat Farmer Greeley since his nomination, by both Democratic and Republican journals, but we were not fully prepared for the following squelcher from a Welch paper, published in Iowa, in the Welch language:

"Seneg il drmf Greeley tamphlfs bipl nygil dischs scropflim pig ov gsmixvel druldsponk in wirltn derwixil qnt gin, as kempfeltuk der-gyxgerbkdmuvlk-gzx."

Greeley and Brown, after the above, had just as well retire from the contest. No ticket can withstand such a forcible attack.—Eureka Sentinel.

Verdict on Keeney.

Yesterday at 9 o'clock A. M., Keeney was brought before the Court to receive the verdict of the Judge, who found him guilty of murder in the first degree, and ordered that he appear to receive the death sentence this morning at 9 o'clock. He received this blow calmly, remarking to Hart that they had "been played by the lawyers." It is said that he expresses himself as being reconciled to die, and that he has been so since killing Fletcher. — Visalia Times, June 22.

—An Ohio paper says that Colorado bugs are sitting on the fence offering 78 cents a bushel for potatoes and $1 a day for hands to plant them.

VARIETIES.

—In order to get the streets cleaned, a Little Rock paper prints this pleasant paragraph: "We have an elegant assortment of first-class obituaries, from which we shall select, with pleasure, fitting ones for each of the aldermen, when he dies from cholera or other disease, superinduced by the filthy condition of our streets and alleys."

—M. Prudhomme, in the decline of life, was talking to his nephew, to whom he related the stories of his early life. "But, uncle," suddenly exclaimed the young man, "what struck you most during your life?" There was a sad, sickly smile upon the old man's face as he replied: "My dear boy, it was your aunt."

—A very wicked Connecticut man being recently taken ill, and believing he was about to die, told a neighbor that he felt the need of preparation for the next world and would like to see some proper person in regard to it, whereupon the feeling friend sent for a fire insurance agent.

—"Mr. Jones," said Mrs. Jones, with an air of triumph, "don't you think marriage is a means of grace?" "Well, yes," growled Jones, "I suppose anything is a means of grace that breaks down pride and leads to repentance."

—Mistress to new house maid: "Jane, I'm quite surprised to hear you can't read or write! I'm sure one of my daughters would gladly undertake to teach you." "O. Lor', mum, if the young ladies would be so kind as to learn me anything, I should like to play the pianner."

—A newsboy having been garroted and robbed in Jacksonville, (Ill.) The Chicago Times says that highwaymen will be attacking reporters soon, as those gentlemen stand next below newsboys in the scale of journalistic opulence.

—A Massachusetts paper publishes this outrageous slander: Thirteen old maids from Vermont lately went to Wyoming Territory to get husbands. The men there said they preferred squaws, and the Vermont ladies are mad.

—The editor of The Reedsburg Press refers to the occurrence of a "little female incident" at his house which prevented his strict attention to business last week.

—A middle-sized boy, writing a composition on "Extremes," remarked that we "should endeavor to avoid extremes, especially those of wasps and bees."

—"Mr. Postoffice-man, I want to pay the postage on this letter." "Single or double, miss?" "Double, sir," with a curtesy, "I was married last week."

—"Babies taken and finished in ten minutes," is the announcement of a Western photographer.

COUNTY SEAT REMOVALS.

Chapter II, New Political Code.

SECTION 3976. Whenever the inhabitants of any county in this State desire to remove the county seat of the county from the place where it is fixed by law or otherwise, they may present a petition to the Board of Supervisors of their county, praying such removal, and that an election be held to determine to what place such removal must be made.

SEC. 3977. If the petition is signed by qualified electors of the county equal in number to at least one third of all the votes cast in the county at the last preceding general election, the Board must, within five days after receiving such petition, order an election, naming the day on which it must be held, not more than sixty, nor less than thirty-five days from the time of calling it, specifying its object.

SEC. 3978. Notice of not less than twenty-five days must be given of the election, by publication in some newspaper, if there is one published in the county, and by posting notices thereof in at least five public places in the county.

SEC. 3979. The election must be held and conducted and the returns made in all respects in the manner prescribed by law in regard to elections for county officers.

SEC. 3980. In voting on the question, each elector must vote for the place in the county which he prefers as the seat of justice, plainly designating it in his ballot.

SEC. 3981. When the returns have been received and compared, and the result ascertained by the Board, if a majority of all the votes cast are in favor of any particular place the Board must give notice of the result by publication in some newspaper, if there is one printed in the county, if not, then by causing notices thereof to be posted in not less than five public places.

SEC. 3982. In the notice provided for in section three thousand nine hundred and eighty-one the place selected to be the county seat of the county must be so declared from a day specified in the notice not more than ninety days after the election. After the day named in the notice the place chosen is the county seat of the county.

SEC. 3983. Whenever any election has been held as provided for in the preceding sections of this Chapter, the statement made by the Board of Supervisors, showing the result thereof, must be deposited in the office of the County Clerk, and whenever the Board gives the notice prescribed by section three thousand nine hundred and eighty-two they must transmit a certified copy thereof to the Secretary of State.

SEC. 3984. When an election has been held and a majority of the votes are cast for some other place than that fixed by law as the former county seat no second election for the removal thereof must be held within two years thereafter.

SEC. 3985. When the county seat of a county has been once removed, it may be again removed from time to time, in the manner prescribed by this Chapter; but no election must be ordered to affect any such subsequent removal unless a petition praying an election is signed by one third of all the electors of the county registered on the Great Register thereof, nor unless at such election, when ordered, a majority of all the votes cast are in favor of some other place as the county seat of the county; nor must two elections to effect such removal be held within any three years.

A Failure.

The attempts to grow tea in California as an article of profit have proved failures. The El Dorado experiment, from which so much was expected, resulted in great pecuniary loss, and the plants would not grow either, while the same poor success attended the experiments in Calistoga. It is not unlikely that some portions of the State will yet produce tea, but the result of these experiments will retard tea culture in California for many years.—Rural Press.

—The collection of contributions throughout the Catholic world for the Pope have annually yielded twelve million of dollars since 1860.

Strange Whip.

A rather singular occurrence was related to us the other day. A little child of Wm. Murray, who resides a few miles from the city, came into the house a few days ago swinging a good-sized live snake by the tail and sang out to its mother: "Papa's black-snake! Papa's black-snake!" The child had been accustomed to seeing and hearing about its father's "black-snake" whip, and never having seen or known anything about a real snake, supposed it had merely found a whip. The mother was almost frightened to death, of course, and while rushing around to get something to kill it with, the snake got loose and escaped. Fortunately the reptile was of a non-biting species, or too badly scared to bite, and the child was uninjured.—Stockton Herald.

Venom.

Mrs. Partington has been heard from. She thinks the Judge should have granted a "change of venom" in the case of Mrs. Fair. The old lady is about right—we ought to be treated to a new dish of that article, differently prepared from that which we have been accustomed to.—Sacramento Bee.

THE COUNTY SEAT QUESTION.

The long mooted question relative to a change in our county seat is likely soon to be brought to an issue. Lone Pine is the candidate for the honor and emoluments of the county capital, and has a number of agents circulating around seeking signatures to a petition ordering an election. To that extent they will probably be successful, as under the code as amended in the Legislature from the original draft, it requires the signatures of but one-third of the legal voters of a county to bring this question to a voting test. We publish the law on this point in full in this issue. In the present case 193 names of legal voters are required to the petition before the Board of Supervisors are authorized to order the election.

If there is to be a change in the location of the county seat now is the time to effect it, but no efforts should be made in that direction without a reasonable prospect of success, for it involves a very considerable expense in time and money. Directly and indirectly, not less than $10,000, which is quite a large sum for a county of "helpless paupers" to expend mainly to gratify the aspirations of a few individuals, for that is the sum and substance of the whole thing. People generally will utterly fail to see any compensating advantage in making a change in this instance, and in inaugurating a system under this absurd and unjust law, which, in a mining county like this, is certain to be repeated at short intervals until an earthquake shakes the bottom out of it, the law repealed, or as the most uncertain contingency, until its ever changing population becomes fixed in one end or portion of it in such predominating numbers as to render such a movement out of the question. In all possibility and probability ere the half of another decade passes away, the needs and conveniences of a majority of the citizens of Inyo county will demand the location of its court house on the eastern side of the Inyo range; and with the precedent once established, there it will go as sure as fate whenever a majority of a single vote, whether obtained by fair or foul means, can be found to favor it. There is nothing wild, chimerical or improbable in this case. Already Waucoba district, directly opposite and most accessible from this point, bids fair to have the largest population within a year of any in the county. In that direction we are to look for any important accessions to our mining population. The very first railroad ever to touch any part of this county and revolutionize its every channel of business will be on that side, and be the southern extension of the Palisade narrow gauge now in course of construction. At least such are the present indications. Taking probabilities into view, with the precedent favored by this law once established, we would consider any man but little less than a fool who attempted to follow the county seat around, expecting to establish a permanent or profitable business in any manner contingent.

No step, such as this now in contemplation, should ever be taken without good and sufficient reasons, and to be such they must be far in excess of anything which has yet been urged in favor of Lone Pine. It cannot be shown that it is at the present time, or gives any reasonable assurance that it will be any nearer, or as near, the center of population, particularly the permanent class as the present county seat. If not in this, then wherein does it present a single superior claim? That there is no real ground for the first and only important claim is obvious enough in the fact that advocates of the change deem their case hopeless unless they can command aid from persons whose present interests alone considered are wholly and undeniably in opposition. The whole question rests with voters residing north of the present county seat and distant that much further from the new aspirant. It seems strange, indeed, that any person at all living on Bishop Creek, for instance, should favor a change, which, if effected, will compel every man of them to travel nearly forty miles further and spend two days' extra time on every round trip to the county seat of justice, but strange as it is it is no more strange than true, respecting a few anyhow. To the aid and comfort afforded by probably not exceeding three or four persons there we are indebted for this movement, and in consequence, besides the direct expense, the privilege of paying interest on $40,000 of useless and idle money and doing without county buildings of all descriptions for at least a year to come, our county business in the meantime being transacted in whatever temporary makeshift of a rented building it may by chance be able to obtain. Had this worse-than-an-earthquake law required the signatures of at least one-half of the voters favorable to incurring the delay and consequences of such an election no reasonable man could object, but as it now is the majority, though two to one, is wholly at the mercy of the minority. We shall never get done admiring the wisdom which dictated this law; never.

Before the pending issue is brought to a vote we propose to present every argument, pro and con, at our command, or is presented for publication no matter by whom or which side; our columns are free to all. It is an important question and should be well considered.

For the present we pass all further reference on these points, but will try and explain in part the motives for the singular views held by these three or four Bishop Creekers:

It appears there are three or four magnanimous Moseses living there who are willing to forego their own good for a time in hopes of something better in the distant future. They are frantically anxious to lead their people from this wilderness of subpœnas and taxations into a promised land where there is no Independence or Lone Pine, for they have but small love for the one and still less for the other. We shall have to defer for a time a full explanation of this lamentable lack of love on the part of these Moseses towards certain supposed Pharaohs dwelling in these two cities. Unlike that of old, their promised land is to be gained by a simple change of county lines. In short they want a entirely new county wherein these ambitious Mosesse may become rulers and be respected among men. This new county is to be made out of a portion each of Inyo, Mono and, we suppose, a part of the State of Nevada; the capital city and Jerusalem thereof is to be Benton.

If this plausible scheme can't be fixed up in time to benefit the present generation, they propose to revert to their old love and again become part and parcel of Mono. The advantages to accrue in this contingency are doubtless obvious enough to these far seeing Moseses, of whose statesmanship Seward and Bismarck combined might well be proud, but common people as yet fail to appreciate them or the prospect. For the present Bridgeport is to remain the seat of justice, the presumption being that the great distance and impassable nature of the roads at certain seasons will, as a general thing, preclude court summonses, and for the same reason there will rarely be any tax gatherers or sheriff's officers to molest or make them afraid. Should their anticipations in these respects not be realzed these Sewards and Bismarcks have another scheme in view, and that is to remove the county seat from Bridgeport to Benton. In that event the point to be gained is this: Parties attending court will then merely have to go north forty miles or a little more, instead of south the same distance or less, as at present. This will be a marked advantage and will no doubt fully compensate the necessary expenditure of some $40,000 in bringing it about. Inyo, or what there will be left of it, will want about a third of this sum, we will say by way of elucidation, as a reimbursement for her outlay in the original purchase of the same territory and the remainder will be required for legislative purposes. Legislatures, though venal, are remarkably obstinate about disrupting county lines, particularly the second or third time. This obstinacy can of course be removed, but it is a very expensive process, and on reflection we are inclined to think the above estimate rather low.

Under the new apportionment this new county will be entitled to a voice in affairs of state in about fifty years—certainly not before these middle aged Moseses have all been gathered unto their fathers, which sorrowful event will, as it did with their ancient prototype, take place anterior to the full realization of their scheme of life allowing them but a view from afar into their happy land of Canaan.

It is true they are promised reliable and important aid from parties at the other end of the county who long to get a dab at the flesh pots cost, what it may, and thus they hope to work out this marvelous scheme. "You help us get this court house and we'll help you to go hence." "You tickle us and we'll tickle you," is the understanding.

The degree of self-abnegation here promised, and the amount of easy credulity with which it is accepted would have done Swedenborg's soul good, for of such are the inhabitants of his highest heaven. Well may we hope for the great millenium, for that good time coming, when men thus covenant and agree, one set to cut off their own noses now on a promise that the other will do the same thing with theirs, hereafter. When men can thus rely on and confide in each other it almost reconciles one with his kind, and effectually squelches the doctrine of inherent depravity, especially as applicable to the Moseses of modern times.

EARTHQUAKES.

Contraction—A Cheerful Theory.

MESSRS. EDITORS: As I promised to give you a theory of earthquakes I will take the present opportunity of so doing. Doubtless some of your readers will consider me a little Quixotic in my views; nevertheless, if they will only reason on the subject rationally they will almost surely believe as I do—that the contraction of the earth from a radiation of its internal heat causes earthquakes. This proposition can only be proven inductively, as the great inward structure of our globe is hidden forever from the scrutinizing inquisitiveness of man. Happily, the sisterhood of sciences, moving hand in hand, have advanced far enough among the mysteries of Nature to almost indubitably establish this strange yet simple theory.

It is a pretty well conceded fact that the Earth had a beginning, and the questien naturally aaises, from whence had it its origin? There are good reasons for believing it was thrown from the sun by some tremendous explosions which are known to a certainty to have happened on the great burning orb—hence what heat the earth brought with it was entirely borrowed. Professor Yong, one of our best American astronomers, with the assistance of the spectroscope, a few months ago witnessed a great outburst from the sun's disk, which threw glowing hydrogen gas to the enormous hight of 200,000 miles, at the rate of 213 miles per second, the condensed matter along with the hydrogen, and it is reasonable to suppose that there was some sent whirling by this immense projectile force away out to the uttermost bounds of the planetary system, or perhaps beyond amidst the realms of other suns. At first, no doubt, the Earth was a grand metoric system, such as we know now to exist. After a lapse of long ages this system, bearing all the constituent elements to make a globe, under an operation of the laws of attraction, gravitation and cohesion formed into a great, inflated, molten, liquid sphere, as round as a liqud mass would naturally be, which now began to move in its grand orbit around the sun at the speed of 18 miles per second, through a colder region of space than it is possible to conceive.

Radiation of heat commenced, contraction followed and as an effect the first earthquakes occurred. Let me here state that there are two kinds of contraction—the instantaneous or periodical and the gradual or continuous; the former of these produces great earthquakes. Oxygen and hydrogen soon united and covered the whole globe with a seething ocean of water. Heat kept diminishing, contraction succeeding, and this process continuing for long centuries at last formed the deep beds of oceans and lakes and the great river channels; formed, also, the network of mountains and hills and the magnificent valley system of the world—great physical changes that fitted the Earth for vegetable and animal life and for the temporary abode of man, with his God-like mind to contemplate the harmonious whole, and with a glimmering vision faintly detecting a greater power far behind the scenes than yet is known.

The internal heat of the earth influences the changes in climate, and the fact changes have been wraught from warm to cold proves that the earth is gradually parting with its heat supply. It was during the Pliocene period, which came after the Tertiary, that the ice coverings of the poles began to form; prior to this time there was a warm, congenial climate in these high latitudes. What proves this to be so are the researches of paleontologists, who, in fossil remains, have found a fauna and flora that could only have existed there in a temperate climate. It is perfectly evident that as the heat kept diminishing and the cold increasing and stretching its icey arms over a broader domain that it became a matter of necessity for those different species of animals and vegetables to migrate to a climate better adapted to their wants. The same species are now found existing in warm a latitude, no doubt similar in climate to their indigenous latitudes, where cold in its dismal power now holds undisputed sway.

During all this period of radiation contraction was going on, and the result was the submergence in the Pacific Ocean of a continent or a connecting body of land between the Old and New World, the vestiges of which are the sunny islets rising from the sea and stretching far away toward the Orient. Our best geologists tell us that this depression is still going on.

The contour of the earth's surface indicates that contraction goes on in zones, and when one of these zones is of an unyielding nature it is liable to havy earthquakes, from the fact that it resists contraction for a long period of time and at last yields instantaneously. Now the great Inyo earthquake came from the contraction of such a zone, which reaches all along the Pacific coast of North America.

There is no other power but contraction known that could move such a vast area in such a gentle manner and yet so wonderfully quick. Had it been an accumulation of electricity sufficient to have done it, it would have torn half the world into atoms, and certainly would have made itself known through the electrical apparatuses of California.

If it had been a disturbance of the molten mass within there would have been a very material difference in the time of agitation at the place of disturbance and the place of subsidence away off thousands of miles. Had such a great disturbance occurred in the center of the earth to have caused the instant movement of such a vast section, it would have broken through its walls and covered with lava half the coast. A combustion of gasses at one place would not shake such a large territory, nor is it likely that an accumulation of gasses would reach over the whole of it and then explode without producing a greater devastation than was ever dreamed of.

No theory seems so plausible as that of contraction. It is soothing, too, as it robs earthquakes of more than half their terrors. It is easy to make a miniture earthquake, by placing a mixture of earthy matter in a large crucible—fluxing, melting to a liquid mass and then cooling. As contraction takes place all the phenomena of earthquakes occur, such as reports, vibrations, etc

In conclusion, this theory brings up the startling idea of the world's doom, unless averted by some now unknown law of the solar system. Doubtless it will become, as the moon, its pale, sad satelite now is, a frozen globe, wearisomely and patiently rolling through dreary space, awaiting some great rejuvenating power to adapt it for a different order of existence.

OPTIMIST.

Deep Spring, Inyo Co., June 28.

The Geneva Conference.

The Geneva Board of Arbitration met June 28, when its final decision was put on record, rejecting the claims of the United States for indirect damages, and likewise the demand of Great Britain for a protracted adjournment of the tribunal. The next sitting takes place on the 15th of July, at which time Lord Tenterden will be able to have his argument on the part of Great Britain put in printed form. Count Sclopis, President of the Board, congratulated the arbitrators on the wisdom and perseverance displayed in their deliberations. English journals are delighted at the course taken by the court of arbitration. The Times says Charles Francis Adams is the man who rescued America from the discredit of an obstinate course, and The News gives credit to Minister Schenck.

Earthquakes.

Our Deep Spring correspondent, "Optimist," this week presents our readers with his theory of the causes of earthquakes. Had the same article been written by a State Geologist, and not by a gentleman modestly hiding himself under a nom de plume, it would be published throughout the land, and become celebrated as the best argument and theory ever yet produced on the subject.

The Fourth.

Our "mention" of the fine celebration and excursion on the Fourth at Lone Pine—occupying over a column—is unavoidably crowded out of this issue, and will have to be laid over until next week.

Earthquake Effects.

Parties lately returned from the vicinity of Mount Whitney relate wonderful stories of the recent effects of eaathquakes in that region. They tell of yawning chasms opened in mountains thousands of feet deep, other constant vibrations and terrible rumblings, of monster rocks, almost mountains in size, being thrown down frightful declivities with inconceivable velocity, carrying destruction to trees and all else in their path and of astonishing phenomena. That region must indeed be a veritable wreck of matter since the shock. Visalia Times, June 29.

Fatal Mining Accident.

On Wednesday last, the 2d instant, there occurred a cave in the Buena Suerte mine, near Belmont, Cerro Gordo, which resulted in the death of Samuel W. Steele. The unfortunate victim of the accident was working alone, engaged in making a raise from an old drift in the upper portion of the mine. It is supposed that he had knocked out an old timber for the purpose of replacing it, and while so doing a quantity of rock, dirt and timber caved down, burying him beneath. Dr. Gould, working some distance away, heard the man's cries, but supposed he was singing, as was his habit while at work. However, Gould went to the place and found the man covered up as described, groaning; the Dr. went frantically at work to remove the debris, at the same time calling for assistance from the other miners. The poor man was once heard to groan, with a choking breath, that he was getting very weak. Every possible effort was made to rescue him, but before he was finally extricated life had fled. Steele was a very quiet, industrious man, having lost from all causes but five days' work during the year which he has been in Cerro Gordo. He leaves a wife and three children, now living at Santa Barbara, and we think a couple of brothers at Virginia, Nev. On the following day Coroner Lank held an inquest over the remains, the jury returning a verdict of "death by suffocation in a cave in the Buena Suerte mine." This accident, which we believe is the first fatal one of the kind in Cerro Gordo, caused the death of a man of whom the community will greatly feel the loss.

The Fourth Here.

Under the above caption we last week stated that no celebration would be attempted here, but in this we were most agreeably disappointed. Two ladies—Mrs. P. Reddy and Mrs. N. Rhine—resolved to have a free ball and supper, and executed their resolution in a manner that does them infinite credit. Their ball and supper, with the general enjoyment, has never been surpassed in the town. When they undertake a thing of this sort these ladies are worth all the young or old men in town. Harris & Rhine's new store building, sixty feet in length, was used as the dancing hall, and a fine one it was. Decoration was not attempted, except by covering the walls with four sixty-foot flags kindly furnished by the officers at the Post, but this was amply sufficient. Some thirty-five couples were present and enjoyed themselves hugely. Messrs. Connolly and Hammarstrand, we believe it was, constructed quite a large paper balloon, and sent it up in the evening. After floating high up and away to the northward it took fire and came down by the run. An even hundred persons sat down at the supper table in Schneider's restaurant, which was donated for the purpose. The two ladies were very ably seconded in the arduous duties attending this part of the business by Mr. T. A. Gardner and others.

The Assessment Roll.

The Inyo assessment roll this year foots up to the neat little sum of $1,509,005 80, or a little more than double that of last year. This apparent large increase is for the most part, but not entirely, due to the new system of valuations and the more thorough listing of all kinds of property. After the roll is returned by the State Board of Equalization, into whose hands it now goes, our County Board, next month, will then fix the rate of taxation for county purposes. We infer that this rate will be about three-fifths of what it was last year. Assessor Dillon and his deputies have certainly displayed a great deal of energy in completing the work in the limited time allowed them. Frank has done his best and is entitled to credit for the judgment and impartiality displayed, although it is quite possible some exceptions to valuations may be taken by a few. It would be strange if such were not the case.

Lunatico Inquirendo.

The other evening J. Barleycorn and Gen. Wheat took a notion (without sugar) that John Rye was crazy. Deeming it a duty they owed to society they decided to have the said John arrested and examined on this charge, and accordingly the General drew up the proper affidavit which was duly sworn to by Barleycorn before his Honor, the County Judge, who issued an order of arrest. The Sheriff, knowing that the charge was baseless, declined to execute the order. Early the next morning the affidavit was withdrawn, and of course, no examination took place, but John don't intend to let the matter rest here; if he is crazy he wants to know it, and if not he wishes to impress upon Barleycorn the danger of playing with edged tools. If he is crazy he is satisfied both the others are amenable to the same charge from precisely the same cause. The whole thing was a very sorry joke.

Gone to Benton.

Dr. Fisher C. Smith, so long a resident and practicing physician in this place, has located in Benton, Mono county, where, as will be seen by his advertisement, he will give his attention to the practice of medicine. As a physician Dr. Smith has but few superiors, and we hope he may do well in every sense of the word.

The Board of Supervisors.

This honorable body has transacted a large amount of business during the week, but we cannot undertake to give the full report at this time. But two members, Messrs. Bell and Simpson, present. On motion of Mr. Simpson all further action in reference to building bridges and court house was postponed till the next regular session in August. This was done in order to give the county seat removers a chance to bring in their petition praying an election. The chances are we will have neither a bridge nor a court house before next year. One of the gentlemen having this petition in charge stated here repeatedly that a sufficient number of signatures had already been obtained to authorize a call for an election. Why was it not presented then if such was the case? The election would have been ordered at once. If they did not have the requisite number is it the right thing to hold such important matters in abeyance month after month merely to give them a chance to hunt up a few more names? If it takes so much time and labor to get a bare third now how long will it take to obtain a majority to carry the election? Two or three of those who have signed the call declare they will vote against it finally, and altogether we should think it a hopeless case; but whether it is or is not it would have been cheaper in the end, even in case of removal, to have gone right along with the preliminaries. They require time enough of themselves to afford ample time for the introduction of petitions and a final settlement of the question involved before the matter goes far enough to prejudice the new cause if it is energetically put through with a present prospect of success to start with. Officially this expected petition, or no other, should be recognized for a moment until actually presented. It don't matter a particle whether a new court house is complete or not a single stick on the ground the county seat will be removed whenever the numerical strength of those desiring it is sufficient to effect it, but it is extremely poor policy to defer such much needed improvements indefinitely in mere anticipation. While we are perfectly satisfied Mr. Simpson's motive was a good one he asked rather too much when he insisted upon his motion in this instance.

Fire.

About half-past 4 o'clock yesterday morning a fire, which doubtless originated from a falling rocket, was discovered in a large house, or rather shelter, belonging to the Ybacita estate, in Lone Pine. Almost instantly the entire concern, which was a light frame, the sides being composed of willows interwoven with tules, was in flames, imminently threatening the destruction of the surrounding frame buildings. The light nature of the structure, however, caused the fire to die away, to everybody's relief, just in time for the lively workers to prevent its spread. It was unoccupied, except by an old wagon and some furniture, but the loss will probably reach $100.

Returned.

We are pleased to see Mr. S. P. Moffatt among us again, looking very vigorous after his desert trip to Wallapai. Of that country he says there is more rich ores on the surface than in any other place he has seen, but all developments so far indicate no great depth or permanency. Mr. Elder had experienced some difficulty in his first attempts to smelt the rich ores, but had succeeded in running out a number of bars and would make a success of his venture.

New Firm.

Elsewhere will be seen the advertisement of Messrs. Fox & Kays, who have established at Swansea a branch of their Cerro Gordo store. The members of this firm are very popular gentlemen, and their stores will doubtless be well-patronized institutions.

Goes North.

Mr. H. Beuhman, photographer, will start up the country, to-morrow, intending to stop a few days at Big Pine before risking his instruments in trying to take any of the ugly young bucks at Bishop Creek. We commend Mr. Beuhman as a good artist.

More Legal Talent.

Thomas Laspeyre, Esq., late of Kern county and at the last election Democratic candidate for Clerk of Supreme Court, arrived in town by a late southern stage, and proposes locating here for a time.

Horses for Sale.

Parties desiring to obtain some stock or young work horses will be afforded an opportunity of doing so at almost their own figures by attending W. H. Burrough's advertised auction sale here next Saturday.

VARIETIES.

—The Worcester Spy says the young ladies of West Belston gave a leap year party, at which everything passed off to the satisfaction of the young gentlemen, who were the invited guests, till the close of the entertainment, when they were coolly invited to pay the bills.

—The question at a country tea-party turning on the impropriety of mixing up cake with a pinch of snuff in the fingers, a lad remarked that he had seen his mother do it, and never drop a bit of snuff. "Why, my son," said the lady, "how can you lie so?" "Well, mother," he replied, "maybe you did drop just a little."

—The following appears among other "sanitary notes:" "Never go to bed with cold or damp feet." Mullington, on reading it, said: "I guess I'll have to go to bed with cold feet until they are allowed as a cause for divorce; Mrs. Mullington's feet are always cold, and she warms them on me."

—A young lady in New Hampshire has just secured a position as school teacher upon the following certificate: "This is to certify that Tamar Noyes stands on a medium with other girls of her sex, and for what I know, is as good as folks in general."

—A Parisian journalist recently lost the sight of one eye in a very curious manner. He was putting on a clean shirt, when the edge of the stiffly starched bosom struck him in the eye, permanently disabling the organ. Moral: Don't put on clean shirts.

—In Maroa, Illinois, the bridegroom does the fainting and takes the kissing at the wedding, while the bride whispers "Lean on me, dearest."

—Chenango county wives prevent their husbands playing billiards by making them shake carpets until their arms are so tired they can scarcely move them.

—The Atlanta Sun has given to the world this masterly attempt at verse making:

Mary had a little lamb,
She kept it in her garden,
And every time it wagged its tail
It spoiled her Dolly Varden.

—"What are you digging there for?" asked a loiterer of three men who were digging a trench in the street. "Money, sir," the answer came. The man watched the operation until the joke got through the roots of his hair, and then moved on.

—A wife having lost her husband, was inconsolable for his death. "Leave me to my grief," she cried, sobbing, "you know the extreme sensibility of my nerves—a mere nothing upsets them!"

—In an advertisement by a railroad company, of some unclaimed goods, the letter "l" dropped from the word "lawful," and it reads now: "People to whom these packages are directed are requested to pay the awful charges on the same."

—Mrs. Catherine Marsh, who was tried in Baltimore last year for the murder of her four children, and pronounced insane, is now confined in an asylum at New Mount Hope, several miles from Baltimore. Although only twenty-nine years of age, her hair, since the tragedy, has turned completely white.

—After sight-seeing from St. Louis to Washington, "big Indian" Red Cloud kindly assured his hearers at the Cooper Institute that the people of New York collectively met with his approbation, especially the "white squaw."

—An Alabama paper was not issued at the regular time, lately, one of the editors being on the jury and the other having been married. Both expressed their regrets in the next issue.

Popular Follies.

To suppose that you can receive one dollar a day, spend two, and get rich.

That to do a man a favor and then refuse another won't make him twice as mad as if you had refused him the first.

That when a man presents you with a hound pup that it cost you nothing.

That when you buy on credit, knowing very well that you can't be able to pay, that it is not stealing.

That next year the taxes are to be lighter.

That every other man is bound to die except you.

That if you have a good cause in love, war or law—pitch in—you are sure to win.

That when you buy a horse he will be sure to turn out as represented.

That if you always say what you think, you will win the regard of the entire community.

Grumbled.

The Rev. H—— has a large family of unruly boys, and one of them did something very wrong, but as none of them would confess it he declared he would whip them all, and then he would be sure to punish the real culprit. Lisping Jimmy, the youngest, retired to a corner and grumbled. "What is it you say?" asked his father. "I said," whimpered Jimmy, "that'th jutht the way old Herod did. He killed all the children tho that he would be thure to kill Jethuth."

MILL SUPERINTENDENTS.

[COMMUNICATED]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—On the 9th of March last we were favored in your journal with one of the spiciest, and at the same time, soundest communications by that has ever appeared in this country. Full substantiation of some of the truths which are there so humorously enunciated will be found in a recent article in The Scientific Press, June 22, where the entire blame of unsatisfactory results is shown to have been most properly laid on a newly invented furnace, instead of any lack of intelligence on the part of the Superintendent and his assistant, whose judgment and reliability must be maintained at any cost, else the whole present system of mill management might be called in question to the sad detriment of very many ABLE (?) SUPERINTENDENTS.

The circumstances referred to in the article in The Scientific Press most probably refer to a mill bearing a scriptural name, the mismanagement of which is but a type of many others; and it is as well that the attention of should be called to it and similar instances of the ignorance of some of those to whom they unhesitatingly consign the management of their mining and mill property. That such a state of affairs should exist in the earlier days was of course a necessity from the very few who could be found in any way acquainted with the reduction of ores. Men were then selected for their superior intelligence even, although the business was new to them. Next, we find they were selected to posts of responsibility and trust from their connections, their resources, or their relationship to moneyed stockholders. These of course failed more essentially than the first named, and some proprietors sought for experienced men, by which they would seem to mean men who had been around a mill for some years, but who are as little acquainted with the science or details of its working as the overworked mule which for years has deposited the ore on the platform.

The writer of your communication, to which I have adverted, felicitouely hits the mark when he says of a metallurgist who is wanted after a haphazard mill has been erected: "Get a good one if you can, get a cheap one anyhow; sometimes a good one can be caught hard up, which will be so much the better, as he will not only work cheap, but will get along with whatever you may give him to work with. He will also live on bacon and beans, * * and he will not object to lend a hand at any laborious work when he has nothing else to do."

AN INSTANCE IN KIND.

Truly this has been fully attested in a very recent case. A practical metallurgist was found, not hard up exactly, but his business was dull. Liberally, they offered him $150 a month and his expenses. He found imperfect and totally inadequate machinery. A Superintendent who, after years of mining and milling experience, had learned about as little as it was possible for him to learn, and a managing partner a perfect illustration of the smart but scientifically ignorant man so happily described by "A Millman." Of course there was a muddle. The mill could only be kept in operation a small portion of the time and finally shut down for a rest—probably from shortness of funds. Of course all the blame was saddled on the metallurgist, and when it came to the matter of settlement an attempt was made to charge $30 a month for the "bacon and beans," and other objections raised, both as to the time employed and to the expenses to be allowed. The lack of a written agreement placed him at their mercy; but fortunately, in striving to prove too much, which they did, with marvellous unanimity not found even in the Gospels, they overreached themselves, so that the matter of "bacon and beans" was thrown out of court. Nevertheless, the metallurgist was mulcted of at least $150 on his short engagement.

This astonishing saving, together with the false economy of inefficiently furnishing the mill machinery has, of course resulted in the suspension of a business' which, if properly managed in the place it is located, could not but have proved most profitable to the proprietors. It is but another case added to the many where the absence of a qualified man to superintend the erection of the entire plant which he is hereafter to work, has led to financial as well as a working failure.

ANOTHER MILLMAN.

Interesting Country.

The Northern Enterprise gives the following description of the country about the head waters of the Feather river, at the east of Lassen Butte:

As you ascend the river the country abounds in most beautiful valleys, covered with the best of grass, in small but beautiful lakelets, whose waters are as clear as crystal and cold as ice, innumerable springs and an abundance of game. As you approach the head waters of the stream the aspect of things most wonderfully change. From the beautiful you are transferred to the rude. The first view is a valley of innumerable springs, all seething, spouting and boiling. Cast your gaze over the valley and you might well suppose you were stationed in the midst of thousands of steamboats, for each spring is distinctively sending up its smoke and making the escape of its steam just like a high pressure boat. Years ago the noise created by the springs—before they burst out, but remained pent up in the bosom of the earth—could be heard the distance of four or five miles. Now it is only audible as you closely approach the valley. There is little or no greenness or freshness about this valley. Pent up internal fires seem to have drank up its verdure, and the scene looks desolate in the extreme. Almost every character of alkaline water is found among the springs—soda, sulphur, iodine, etc.

The valley is surrounded with hills, upon whose surface can be seen no trace of living vegetation, but covered with masses of huge burnt rock. One of the mountains has evidently been a volcano. Upon its summit is a small lake of salt water, covering the crater. Its sides are covered with rock, many of which will weigh tons, burnt upon their face to cinder, and all around are quantities of lava so loose and light that when you step upon it you sink to your knees. Here and there you can see a single tree, or clump of trees, all dead, yet standing, furnishing evidence that within a few years past this must have been an active volcano. On the opposite side of this mountain is a large lake, its waters as blue as the vault of heaven and so placid that seemingly not a wave had ruffled its bosom for centuries. It contains no life neither fish nor reptile. Its silence is deep and unbroken.

The Patent Corpse Preserver.

We have received a circular from a man who wishes to recommend to us a "Patent Corpse Preserver." We do not know why we should have been selected as the recipient of such a document, and there are two good reasons why we will have nothing to do with the "Preserver." In the first place we have not on hand at present any corpse which we care to preserve. All of the remains which are lying around on the floor of this office—men who have been murdered because they brought original poetry to this office—we intend to have buried somewhere as soon as they have served as awful examples and a warning to other poets who call with their verses. In the second place we shall not buy this "Patent Preserver" until it is recommended by some one who has tried it. Bring us in a certificate from some experienced and judicious corpse which has been preserved, guaranteeing that the patent will work, and then, if we ever have use for a "Preserver," we will buy one; but not otherwise.—Max Adeler.

—Old lady—Can you tell me, my good man, where I can find Mr. Jones?

Pat—Sure, ma'am, I expect it would be at his house you would find him.

Lady—Does he live anywhere in this street?

Pat—Sure! no indade! It's not for the likes of him to be livin' in the street at all.

Lady—You stupid fellow! I mean what number does his family stop at?

Pat—Now, ma'am, you have me. He has six boys and four girls; but whether he manes to stop at that number I can't say.

Lady—Oh, you blockhead!

Exit old lady in a tremor of indignation.

—Why is Gratz Brown like Satan? Because he was the cause of Adams' fall.

A Narrow Escape.

The railroad runs through the field and close to the house of Mr. J. W. Stokes, at a point about six miles from Visalia. We learn that the other day as the train came in sight, Mr. Stokes' two little children went on the track and laid down between the ties to let the cars pass over them. The elder is about five years old. The agonized mother saw the experiment, but was unable to rescue them. The conductor saw them there, and though his blood turned cold, it was too late to stop. On swept the train, while the mother and conductor held their breath, and lifted their hearts in prayer to Him in whose hands are all the issues of life. The cars were stopped as soon as possible, and the men ran back to where the children were. They were found uninjured. Happily, the road was not ballasted, and they had room, by lying flat, to keep out of harm's way. But it was very fortunate that they did not raise their heads.—Visalia Delta.

The Shortest Man.

Some clerks were waiting in the Treasury Department for the opening of business. One said to the company—

"Who is the shortest man mentioned in the Bible?"

The old Joe Millers were all exhausted. "Nehemiah (knee-high-miah), Bildad, the Shuhite, (shoe-hight.)"

To all the answers the clerk replied "No."

"We give it up," was the response.

"Peter," was the reply.

"Peter!" they all cried; "he was a stout, large, athletic man."

"Can't help it. He was the shortest man I ever read of in the Bible. He said he had neither silver nor gold, and a man is pretty short who hasn't any money."

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Tom Shannon has assumed control of the San Francisco Custom-house.

Small-pox is said to be abating in San Francisco; twenty-five cases are now in the pest house.

Gen. Rosencrans is at the city of Mexico, pushing forward his great railroad enterprise.

Joseph Gibbons, the murderer of Joe Rawles in Sonoma county, has been sentenced to fifteen years in the State Prison.

Tom McNabb, a noted desperado, died in San Francisco recently.

British Columbia Indians are coming to the Sound by the hundreds to avoid the small pox.

W. B. Haslett, Chief Engineer of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad surveying party, died while crossing the Mohave desert a short time since.

A Yreka date of the 2d instant says that William Williams, under sentence of death for the murder of Todhunter two years ago, escaped from the jail there that evening during a temporary absence of the jailor.

Senator Fowler, of Tulare, has declared himself a no-fence man. Experience this year has converted him.

Oliver C. Obey, who killed Dolson in Salt Lake, has been held in $2,000 bail.

Mullendore, The Call reporter who was shot in San Francisco some ten days since, is wounded beyond recovery.

The Stokes Trial.

The trial of Stokes for killing Fisk has been in progress for some days in New York attracting great attention. The testimony for the prosecution was closed July 3. The counsel for Stokes, in his opening speech, disclosed the line of defense. It will be directed to prove that Stokes met Fisk by accident, not by design, that he killed him as he supposed in self defense, believing that Fisk was drawing a pistol; that his mind was upset at the time, and some of his relations had insantity. The result will be anxiously looked for, as it is a trial of money against justice.

After the Apaches.

The Arizona Miner, of June 22, says that Adam Reesbeck, a German who was wounded by the Apaches, has died in the hospital at Fort Whipple. A scouting party has left Camp Date Creek since the attack on the Goldwater Bros., and the Indians not upon the reservation will be treated as hostile. This, however, is the old thing, so that it is not likely the Apaches are much frightened. In Sonora, according to the latest accounts, they are waging a relentless and indiscriminate war.

Stamp Law.

By the same law which takes effect October 1st, 1872, all stamps now imposed in schedule B of the Internal Revenue laws are repealed, except only the tax of two cents on bank checks, drafts and orders. This law abolishes stamps for affidavits, agreements, assignments, bills of exchange, bills of lading, bills of sale, bonds, broker's notes, certificates, charters, conveyances, insurance policies, leases, legal documents manifests at custom house, mortgages of any kind, power of attorney, probate of will, and promissory notes.

More Mud.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT calls The Reveille "The Nevada Mazeppa," likening us not unto him of the "fiery, untamed steed," but to THE INDEPENDENT'S San Francisco contemporary. We don't mind his babbling, as his brilliant intellect has evidently been impaired by the recent earthquake shocks up there, or from some other cause.—Reese River Reviler.

We didn't mean to hurt you so bad, brother Dennis; tell us more of what you know about sister Woodhull--the fair Olinska.

La Cronica,

The Spanish journal published at Los Angeles, contains a stirring editorial on the glorious Fourth, which concludes with Byron's ode to Napoleon the Great, wherein the immortal Washington is eulogized as

"The Cincinnatus of the West
Whom envy dare not hate."

The same paper also publishes a translation of the Declaration of Independence.

The Pioneer Horse.

A feature of the procession on the Fourth was the pioneer horse, thirty-one years old. He was brought to California in the Fall of 1849, and wintered at Hangtown. In the Spring his owner—of the party who brought him from the States—Adam Newbauer brought him to Sacramento and sold him to Chas. Heinrich in May, 1850, and in the latter's possession he still remains.—Sacramento Union.

ASSESSING MINING BROPERTY.

This is one of the most difficult questions an Assessor has to determine. As a rule, both in right and good policy, this class of property, especially non-dividend paying mines, ought to be favored above all others in this respect. Mining is our leading interest, and the one upon which all others are contingent. As an investment it is, in insurance parlance, extra hazardous, but whether the owners receive any returns or not the county is benefited none the less by the expenditure of the vast sums of money necessary even to prospect. A mine may nominally be valued at a half a million of dollars—may have actually cost that much or more—yet, always having been a source of expense instead of profit, intrinsically it is not worth one dollar. Its prospective value for assessing purposes should not be taken into the account at all, and, as general thing, we believe it is not, except in this way: That the attached machinery and other improvements are rated as high upon a mine of this kind as if part and parcel of a paying mine. This is wrong; the highest valuation for the purposes of taxation on such property should not exceed its actual "cash value" if sold with the view of being torn down and removed elsewhere. That is its only value, though in every day use, until the receipts from its use equal or exceed expenditures—when the conditions are entirely changed, it then rating as any other manufacturing property of equal cost. This is the true intent of the law—to value not only mining but all classes of improvements according to present, not prospective, values. As before stated, a mill or other improvements though but just placed on a non-paying mine, no matter what its future prospects may be, are worth just what the material would bring if sold for removal, or for use in present position when suitable for other mines or purposes. If assessed at a higher and fictitious rates the owners or managers themselves are to blame, not the Assessor. They can fix and sustain their own valuations under oath, and the present convertible value of such property is the true one, the mine with which it is connected and contingent to be considered worthless as long as expenses exceed receipts.

Gardner Acquitted.

The trial of Alanson Gardner, charged with the murder of the Bilderbeck brothers, was concluded in San Bernardino, June 29. It resulted in the acquittal of the murderer, as murderer he undoubtedly is according to evidence as well as his own statements given at his first trial in Los Angeles, from which place he obtained a change of venue to San Bernardino. The verdict was received in Los Angeles with astonishment, and well it might be. We suppose his worthless neck was saved for a time through some legal technicality, but be that as it may, this trial will give Vigilante Committees a little lift.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

A London dispatch says that Gen. Sherman and Nellie Grant stayed at Geneva but a short time and received only a few visitors, and endeavored to avoid public attention.

The Orangemen of New York were determined to parade on the 12th instant, protection or no protection. But thorough arrangements were being made to prevent any disturbance.

A hundred barrels of beer are daily consumed to moisten the chorus singers at the Boston Jubilee. Strauss receives his expenses and $12,000 for his part in the performance, while the members of the foreign bands get $5 per day and expenses.

Strikes are still maintained in New York, and a great public demonstration is projected by the strikers for the 1st of August.

A large number of deaths from sunstroke were reported in New York on the 5th instant. The thermometer stood 90 degrees in the shade. During the week there were over 1,000 deaths from the heat, 302 occuring in one day.

The British Grenadier Band gave the New Yorkers a concert on the eve before their departure, at which the wildest enthusiasm prevailed. The band was interrupted in nearly every air by the audience breaking in with cheers and cries of "bravo." "St. Patrick's day in the Morning" produced an intense excitement. "The Star Spangled Banner," and "God Save the Queen" were given, the entire audience standing and cheering. About 2,000 people waited at the stage door to see the band off. Three cheers were given for "Old England" and three for the Grenadiers. H. G. occupied a box.

A Niagara Falls dispatch says that on the evening of the 3d three United States officers visited Thorald, a small place about nine miles from the falls, on the Welland Canal, and forcibly took with them a young man named William White, a ship carpenter of Chicago, who they blindfolded and bound. After going four miles into the country they discovered that White was the wrong man. White states that the officers were after some Ku-Klux who was connected with the Greensboro, N. C., riot.

There were thirty-five fires in New York on the Fourth, and yet it wasn't a good day for fireworks.

The first celebration of Independence Day at Richmond, Virginia, since 1860, was held on the Fourth. Augusta, Ga., and Norfolk and Fortress Monroe, Va., also celebrated for the first time in twelve years.

At the Monmouth Park races at Long Branch on the Fourth, mile heats, best three in five, "Longfellow" again won, making the first heat in 1:43¼.

Dispatches received at London on the 5th state that a terrible conflagration is raging at Constantinople, 1,000 houses having been destroyed and the flames still spreading.

The Fourth was brilliantly celebrated at Geneva, Switzerland. United States Minister Rubles presided, and speeches were made by Caleb Cushing and Charles Francis Adams.

Sixteen militiamen were sunstruck while parading in the procession at New York on the Fourth, and before the march was completed one-half the men left the ranks because of the intolerable heat.

Both the "excursion" balloons anchored at Boston which have been hired to people visiting the Jubilee who wanted to go up a rope's length, were blown against the ground and burst by a high wind on the Fourth.

On the Fourth the train carrying John Robinson's circus was passing under a bridge at West Haven, New York, when the bridge settled and smashed the menagerie cages. The lion and tiger escaped but were recaptured: fifty monkeys got loose, and are enjoying themselves in the woods thereabouts.

Large numbers of the strikers in New York are reported as having returned to work, at old rates.

James McHenry says that when Jay Gould's trial comes on other large frauds in the Erie management will be brought to light.

The French Minister of Finance has signed the convention with the Bank of France for a loan to the Government of 40,000,000 francs.

A coal mine near Limaville, Ohio, took fire lately, when twenty men and a boy were down the shaft. Nine men and the boy were suffocated.

Two fiends went to the house of a farmer named Schweitzer, of Farmer township, Ohio, against whom they had a grudge, recently, and finding only the little daughter at home, saturated her clothes with kerosene and then set them on fire. The child was so badly burned that she died in a few hours.

The fourth trial of Mrs. Clem, for the murder of Jacob Young and his wife in Indianapolis in 1869, resulted in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

—A Sheffield, English, youth recently rode a bicycle four days in succession, traveling at the rate of 85 miles per day.

—Dr. Mary Walker is said to be creating a sensation on the streets of Washington by appearing in a Dolly Varden coat and pantaloons.

—Charles Bediker, the "California Boy," will again attempt to ride 200 miles in twelve hours, in Chicago, some time this month.

—Julia Ward Howe was not permitted to speak at the London Peace Society, because "they had never had a woman speak there."

Mrs. Fair's taial has been postponed till September.

A Murderous Horse Thief.

Col. Putney favors us with the following particulars of an occurrence at Benton on the Fourth: A desperado named Ed. White, recently of Cerro Gordo, appeared there that morning with a young horse which he desired to enter for the races of the day. A Mr. Mallory, of Bishop Creek, recognized the horse as one that had been stolen from him, and laid claim to him. White denied the claim in a very insulting manner, but, we believe, gave the horse up, nothing more being said about it until about 6 o'clock in the evening when he approached Mallory standing in a store and commenced to abuse him. But a few words had passed when White jerked out his revolver and aimed a shot at Mallory, they being but about five feet apart at the time, but a bystander knocked the pistol up and the ball went through the ceiling. He fired again but with no better success, Mallory having retreated inside, an open doorway close by. White then jumped into the street, brandishing his pistol and proclaiming that he was "on it! If you don,t believe it, jist pitch in. The click of a revolver is music to my soul. d—n you all!" Sheriff Hightower tried to arrest the raving scoundrel, but was told to stand back or he would get his heart blown out. Hightower, not being armed, was forced to do so, but started after his shotgun standing unloaded in a room a short distance away. White, meantime, walked leisurely off down the road, and soon after met Dr. F. C. Smith riding along. With an obscene oath he ordered the Doctor to "get off of that; I want to ride awhile right now." As the Doctor had been celebrating considerably during the day it took him sometime to clearly understand the exact nature of the proposition, and was finally saved the necessity of compliance by the interference of an acquaintance of the desperado who came up and persuaded him to let the Doctor alone. Shortly afterwards Mallory and the Sheriff came up mounted and armed with shotguns. As there is no music in the click of these things the desperado decided at once that he was not "on it" so very largely after all and surrendered without more ado. He was committed and sent to Bridgeport on three several charges of horse stealing, an assault to commit murder and attempted highway robbery. As he did'nt actually murder anybody his prospects of spending a few Summers at the seaside are exceedingly flattering.

Presentation.

Uncle Abe Parker received from Lone Pine the other day a present in the shape of the hugest musical instrument we have seen for some time. It is a stringed concern, said strings being stretched across a dilapidated guitar box, ranging from a baling rope to a silk thread. The dulcet tones of his voice can now be nightly heard practicing on the latest serenade.

Bullion Shipment.

July 4th Messrs. Hiskey & Walker shipped from their Deep Spring mill ten bars of bullion, weighing 3,644 ounces, valued at $4,000, the product of Lida Valley ore. Jim, be careful to-day; don't drink too much. [It strikes us that that last sentence hasn't much to do with the bullion business, but then it was on the paper and we always "follow copy."]

Hay Destroyed.

On the 3d instant, on their ranch near Lone Pine, R. Van Dyke and partner lost about 40 tons of hay by fire, through the cussedness of a juvenile Piute. The hay had been spread out to dry, and the little fellow attempted to test its dryness with a match—with the result stated.

Eastward.

Major H. C. Egbert, Commandant of the Post, left for Reno on Wednesday last, with his lady, who goes on Eastward from that point. The Major makes a short trip to San Francisco before returning, we believe.

The Store at the Post.

As will be seen by the advertisement, Joseph Harris succeeds his brother Jacob in the ownership and management of the store near Camp Independence. He will restock the entire institution, and doubtless do a rushing business.

San Carlos.

Private advices from San Francisco state that it is the intention of the old San Carlos company to shortly resume operations on their mines and mill property across the river.

Ice Cream.

Joe Harris, at the Inyo saloon, manufactures daily a superior quality of ice cream—an article in decided demand during these "heated days."

Hotel Change.

Messrs. Kennedy & Smith have leased and are now running the Inyo House—a fact set forth among the new advertisements.

For Sale.

D. Campbell, Esq., offers to sell or rent his well known and very desirable hotel property at Big Pine. See advertisement.

New Butcher Shop.

Jasper Caldwell, the new butcher man, this week places his business card before the public.

THE FOURTH AT LONE PINE.

A report of the memorable proceedings at Lone Pine and the lake on the Fourth can hardly fail to be of interest, even though it be a week late, or a late week, for making it.

The Start

of our reporter for the scene of operations on the morning of Independence Day might have been seen by any one who was up early enough to have assisted at the firing of the National salute, but as most of our readers were still abed the said start probably was not seen. Nevertheless, he started, in good company and behind a substantial team, with the outfit abundantly supplied with salubrious liquids of a celebrating character.

Lone Pine,

on our arrival, presented a peculiarly animated and lively picture, perhaps the more strongly reflecting the inate life and indomitable pluck of its inhabitants by reason of the very visible traces of the late calamity. Amidst the ghostly ruins of the adobe style of architecture have risen scores of hastily erected wooden buildings, as if in hurried ambition to, supplant and hide away the relics of the former treacherous structures—each bearing aloft some national color, the grand old stripes and stars predominating. Lone Pine's holiday rig, even under her present circumstances, could scarcely have been excelled by any other equally young town within the State.

The Procession, which was formed to convey the fast augmenting crowds to the lake, consisted of about twenty wagons and carriages, each loaded to the guards with expectant excursionists and all displaying flags and gay trappings. On the leading wagon, containing the band, was thrown to the breeze the flags of America, France, Spain, Mexico and Chili, and along the line were others not comprehended within our knowledge of heraldry. Following the whole came a cavalcade of horsemen, amongst whom our reporter chose to place himself, thanks to the courtesy of a rustling member of the Committee of Arrangements. A ride of five miles brings the party to

at Ferguson's Landing, on the upper or northwestern shore of the lake, where we'll stop awhile and note a little useless information, as the company are consuming the bountiful beverages and watching the boat, as she slowly steams across from Swansea. Owens Lake, vested with a new interest since having become navigated, is situated at the southern extremity of the valley, and occupies a basin 23 miles long by 14 wide. In the early morning its blue, mineral waters are shaded by the Inyo (formerly designated as the Monache) range of mountains, rising to a hight of 7,000 feet. On the summit of these is situated Cerro Gordo and her mines, at the base, Swansea and her furnaces. The evening shadows fall from same of the loftiest peaks of the Sierras, rising abrubtly from 11,000 to 15,000 feet; on their summits and in the canyons are the timbered regions, and at their base is situate Cottonwood with its magnificent water power—the future mart of lumbermen and smelters. Back of this point towers the hoary head of old Mount Whitney, the loftiest peak in Uncle Sam's dominions, from whose whose dizzy hight on this day SHOULD have floated "Old Glory!" The low Coso range forms the center background of the southern view, on the right being the pass through which runs the Los Angeles road; to the left a pass opens to the Telescope and Granite districts, to Death Valley and the Colorado. To the north, by west, stretches away Owens Valley proper, with the 300,000 acres of tillable land along the river, extending back to and surrounding Lone Pine, George's Creek, Independence, Fish Springs, Big Pine, Bishop Creek and Round Valley. The pent-up, brackish lake is fed by the river, the pure, Hesperian waters of which form perhaps the only stream in the State yet undefiled by the delving gold-hunter. A somewhat (!) exaggerated tad pole would be a fair representation of the general contour of the lake, with the tortuous river illustrating the immensely elongated tail. To complete the simile, make our tad-pole a hirsute monster, and then the scores of fine mountain streams flowing into the river would appear to be the hairs, which, by the way, make good crops an unfailing, dead certainty for the Owens River rancher.

The Christening.

About quarter past 10, amid cheers and the booming of anvil salutes, the steamer, having on board the Cerro Gordo and Swansea delegations, arrived at the shore, with a barge in tow for use as a temporary wharf. Soon the ladies and gentlemen were safely on board, and now occurred the ceremony of naming the craft. Mr. and Mrs. James Brady, with their little daughter Bessie, then stepped forward to the bows, where little Bessie falteringly broke a bottle of wine over the bow and pronounced the name, amid the warm applause of the surrounding coterie of friends. As is well known, the steamer is named after the eldest daughter of the principal owner of the boat, as suggested in an article in THE INDEPENDENT of April 20, which said:

"Bessie Brady,"

"Give us the honor of naming your boat, gentlemen, and then christen her the 'Bessie Brady.'"

Mr. W. H. Creighton, the Poet of the Day, then arose, and with a fine intonation, read the following

Ode to the Bessie Brady.

Go forth! and be our valley's pride,
Born as thou art of Enterprise and Skill—
Buyant and swan-like o'er the waters ride,
And, silver laden, do thine owners' will.

O'er Owens' tide thy steam-blown whistle sound,
And as thy sturdy voice along her shores shall break,
The ceaseless echoes from rock to crag will bound
And hail the "Pioneer," prime navigator of the Lake.

The rolling echoes shall the grand Sierras climb
To where Mount Whitney rears his noble crest,
And echoing back from his great hight sublime,
Will challenge Inyo's metal range to call thee blest.

A noble work before thee lies,
The opening of a country rich beyond compute,
Removal of the stigma "want of enterprise,"
Which hitherto we've born in shame and mute.

Go forth! And may thy bright future be
An emblem of the life of her whose tiny hand
Has this day named thee; may Bessie live to see
Her namesake prosper and herself happy in the land.

Presently the captain is heard ordering the shoremen to "let go," or words to that effect, and soon the "Bessie Brady," amid the wildest cheers, is slowly steaming out into the lake with 130 excursionists on board—ladies and gentlemen. We will now take a look around and see on which many are taking their first ride on interior California waters, and which, we believe, excepting that on Salt Lake, is the first craft to float on any inland lake west of the Mississippi for purely commercial purposes. The dimensions are briefly given thus: Length of keel over all, 85 feet; breadth of beam, 16 feet: depth of hold, 6 feet. Although the lake is almost (we do not know but quite) unfathomable in the middle, her light draft admirably calculates her for service in the shallow water near the shore. Her engine is of 20-horse power, 10 by 10-inch, oscillating cyliuder, built at the Pacific Foundry, San Francisco. The propeller, with its crank shaft geared directly on to the piston, is of ordinary construction, 52 inches in diameter—which is altogether too large, since it is not all under water. She was built by William Tiernan, for her present owners and original projectors, James Brady and D. H. Ferguson (who have been supported and aided by the Owens Lake Silver Lead Company), at a total cost of $10,000. She is in a somewhat unfinished state, with the cabin and engine room to be built, with some probable changes in the machinery and the addition of strengthening "hog chains," extending from stem to stern, to be made. Her speed is 7 miles per hour, and her carrying capacity can be safely put at 100 tons, although her builder claims for her strength to transport 150 tons; but in addition she can certainly tow one or two barges loaded with from 15 to 25 tons each. Now in respect to the former method of shipping merchandise around the lake by teams, her business operations will amount to about this—when wharfage and loading facilities are perfected: In one day she will make the round trip from Swansea to the foot of the lake, carrying passengers and 70 tons of freight, including shipping and unshipping, at a cost of a little less than that required to run a 12-animal team the necessary five days to convey six tons of freight. Los Angeles teams with freight for Cerro Gordo are saved nine days of the heaviest work, and those loaded for Lone Pine and the upper country will find transhipping to be comparatively advantageous. Wood flumes must go in at Cottonwood, and a tramway from Cerro Gordo to the lake is one of the future probabilities, when the timber wood, coal and ore business will call for more than one steamer. The work now being carried on, and shortly to be commenced, by Messrs. Brady & Ferguson comprises every requisite for the easy and rapid prosecution of the transportation business — such as erecting wharves at the foot of the lake, Cottonwood and Ferguson's Landing, building barges and the putting in of water-pipes. The latter are rendered necessary from the fact that the lake water is unfit for use in steam boilers, as has been proven by experiment. Near Swansea, a spring within the lake has been boxed and the good water raised several feet above the surrounding expanse of vilainous stuff. At this point the O. L. S.-L. Co. have constructed a wharf 360 feet in length—an extra 150 feet being required since the vicious earthquake caused the water to recede that far from its original shore. On and from this dock is laid a tramroad, extending to the furnace, fitted with cars for propulsion by horse power. As soon as practicable, the trips of the Bessie Brady will be regularly arranged, with due reference to the accommodation of the passengers of the stages which ply around the lake. Captain W. R. Low is the able "skipper" in command—the right man in the right place. Mr. Wagner, the present carpenter in charge, acted as our pilot, and the engine was manipulated on the occasion by Mr. Gray.

Going Down.

To a party less determined upon enjoying themselves the downward trip would have been anything but pleasant. The almost intolerable heat of the sun glowered unobstructed upon the deck, and the atmosphere was not made cooler by the added pulsations of heat from the boiler and furnace. But "the ball went on," ladies joining in the dance regardless of the sun and heat, during which time men would fain strive for the honor of holding the diminutive, portable awnings—otherwise known as parasols—carried by the ladies. Liquids were in demand and liberally dealt out, until distance wore away and the boat landed at the embryo town situate at a local habitation which should have a name. This is a fertile spot, the mouth of a beautiful stream flowing from the mountains, and the location of the Franklin ranch, somewhat celebrated as the scene of the Rogers murder and cannibalistic orgies several years ago. Ross Browne is our authority for saying that at or near this place, in 1862, a town was laid off and called Lake City, but having but few inhabitants at that time. Here all hands disembarked, hieing away in squads to patronize the inviting shade and cool, delicious water. Then came the war of fingers and teeth vs. elegant edibles generally. Our free-booting reporter has such a distinct recollection of assisting at so many splendid "lay-outs" that it would be invidious to attempt to designate the finest. The major portion of the crowd mosied off to some point, where the

was read, in due form and ceremony. The rugged mountains were assuming the gray garb of evening when the whistle of the steamer called for her passengers, and the in the cool evening, proved one of unalloyed enjoyment, the time speeding swiftly with music, dancing, general joking and chatting. Passing Cottonwood a half mile from the shore, the boat's whistle gave a shrill salute to a small party assembled on the beech, probably consisting of Col. Stevens and family. Intently listening we fancied to hear the incorrigible "Sher" incoherently murmer something about eternally having a Cot on wood (or springs), whereon he could ever recline and watch the busy steamer passing to and fro, unawed by the fear of Alabamas or aught else to molest or make her afraid. At half past 9 o'clock all landed at the upper shore of the lake, and with cheers for the vessel, her Captain and crew, the first excursion on Inyo waters was ended.

At Night

the celebration and amusements at Lone Pine far eclipsed anything hitherto attempted in the "Owens river country." Universal enthusiasm and display ruled the hour; the air seemed filled with brilliant fire-works and the town alive with flags and illuminations. Profusely decorated was the fine, large storeroom doing duty as a hall, and here assembled the youth, wit, beauty, intelligence and chivalry—all intent upon the fullest enjoyment of the gay Terpsichorean exercises. But our strong suit was the supper, an elegant, substantial and recherche affair, prepared by our hostess of the Lone Pine Hotel—the chiefess at that sort of thing.

The sun shone fairly over the valley on the morning of the 5th before the programme commemorating the Ninety-Sixth Anniversary closed, and if any untoward incident happened to mar the occasion during the day and night previous, it had escaped our notice.

Notice to Parents.

An eight months' term of the public school in this district has just begun. The number of pupils belonging to the district is not sufficient to occupy the whole attention of the very efficient teacher, G. H. Hardy, and as he holds a first grade certificate and desires more pupils than he now has, we are authorized to state that others of any grade of scholarship belonging in districts where there is not now a school will, on application and the transfer of the public money due each for the time or the payment of an equal amount, be admitted to this school. To correct a prevailing misapprehension as to facts we will state that it is not now, nor never has been the intention, policy or desire of the Trustees of this district to exclude children desiring to change from an existing school in their own district to this. The only condition in that case, in addition to the above, is the consent of the Trustees of that district to such withdrawal and transfer. This requirement is based on law, reason and courtesy.

Shooting.

Justice Pearson's court, Lone Pine, has been for the past three or four days engaged in the examination of George Lee for the shooting of George Bircham, on Wednesday night, at a camp on the river, from difficulties growing out of alleged horse stealing on the part of Lee. Bircham received two shots in the thigh of a very bad nature, his recovery being a matter of extreme doubt.

The Weather and Shakes.

The weather has been somewhat sultry and cloudy during the week Wednesday afternoon a regular old forty-nine rain, with thunder and lightning, set in and contiued through the greater part of the night. About 10 o'clock that night there was a slight shake and at 5 o'clock Friday evening another, both being of a very mild type.

Bishop Creek.

Parties report the ball at Bishop Creek on the night of the Fourth as having been a grand success in every particular. The hall was crowded with dancers, some 60 couple participating. We are not advised as to the success of the proceedings in the general exercises of the day, but presume that everything was au fait.

Discharged.

Pearce, arrested by Sheriff Mulkey last week on a charge horse stealing preferred by his employer, was on the examination at Lone Pine discharged from custody. It appears that, after an interesting interview, the said employer was willing to swear that the said Pearce wasn't much of a horse-thief after all.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Since the date of our last report, June 15, the Supervisors have transacted quite a large amount of business, the most important items of which are as follows. Since the beginning of the present month but two members, Messrs. Bell and Simpson, were present. Report for June: Bills allowed

Since the first Monday in July the Board has made the following orders:

A. Stecker's plan and specifications for Court House, and Vanderbilt's for bridges, accepted and specifications ordered on file.

J. Alexander, in behalf of Lone Pine, notified the Board that some time or other he would probably present a petition praying an election for the removal of the county seat, and asked that proposals for bids on Court House should be framed accordingly. In deference to this notice Simpson moved a postponement of further action in relation to bids till the dog days. Motion amended by Bell to include bridges and agreed to.

Board then (July 5), adjourned for the term.

Chance for Prospectors.

According to Mr. Joel Smith the foothills to the west of Bishop Creek and Round Valley offer a very promising field for both quartz and placer prospecting. The ledges are numerous presenting good indications of the precious metals, and he knows from actual trial that the gulches contain gold. No person has ever tried to prospect them to the bedrock, but small particles of gold can be found in each pan of surface dirt, so that the chances are quite favorable for good placer diggings. The finding of such would certainly be a very important event and with such favorable chances to begin with we wonder some one don't thoroughly test the matter.

Lida Valley Items.

Some six-shooters got on a drunk in Lida Valley on the night of the Fourth, and one of them going off accidentally, inflicted a slight flesh wound in Gandalupe Ochar's arm. On the same day Len Martin was returning from Silver Peak with a bottle of sheep herder's delight, some of which he gave to two men whom he met. As might have been expected a free fight ensued, from which Martin, by the free use of a pick-handle, came off first best. A great future for Lida is now considered assured.

Tall Oats.

As a specimen of what his farm will and does produce, Mr. I. W. Clanton, of George's Creek, has left with us a handful of oats as they grew which stood six feet and five inches high. They are of the common small white variety, but the heads bear a sufficient weight of grain to be a credit to any part of the State.

Professional Card.

The law card of Thomas Laspeyre, Esq., will be found elsewhere, indicating that he has located himself amongst us and is ready for business.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the usual hour (10½ A. M.) at the school house to-morrow; Sunday school immediately after.

Board of Equalization.

This Board have been in session during the week, but, so far, have had but little business before them.

—One of the greatest evils in the world is men that praise rather than practice virtue. The praise of honest industry is on every tongue, but it is rare that the worker is respected more than the drone.

—A gentleman inquired of a carpenter's boy, "My lad, when will this job you have on hand be done?" "I can't tell, sir," replied the honest boy, artlessly; "its a day job, and it will depend on how soon the boss has another order."

—"I never go to church," said an irreverent man to a pious lady: "I always spend Sunday in settling accounts." "There is another day," said the lady, "that will be spent in the same way." "What day is that?" asked the man. "The day of judgment," was the solemn reply.

—Gustave Dore is about to challenge the opinion of the world of art on a large scale. He has just finished a picture thirty feet long by twenty feet wide, at which he has been working pretty constantly for four years. The subject of this large composition is "Christ Leaving the Temple," and it contains about four hundred figures. This picture is to be shown for a few days in the painter's studio in Paris, and then to be sent to London for public exhibition.

—Some wags were walking around an agricultural implement store, and they chanced to see in the rear, a dressed hog hanging by a hook in the wall. "Ha! ha!" cried they to the young man in attendance, "what sort of an agricultural implement do you call that?" "That," said he, "is a patent combined root grubber, corn sheller, apple grinder, gate lifter, double action, back spring, sod plow; but I guess you won't want one, for it takes a mighty smart man to manage it."

—Mark Twain tells this good story in "Roughing It:" An Irishman fell from a third story window with a hod of bricks, and had his life saved by falling upon Uncle Lem, an old gentleman who was leaning against the scaffolding. "Uncle Lem's dog was there," says the narrator. "Why didn't the Irishman fall on the dog?" "Because the dog would 'a' seen him coming, and stood from under. That's the reason the dog warn't appointed. A dog can't be depended on to carry out a special providence."

A MYSTERIOUS ADVENTURE.

BY W. H. CREIGHTON.

'Twas a pleasant Autumn afternoon towards the end of October, that I rode my trusty "Silver-tail" over the prairies on my way to the little town of H—— in Illinois. The sun was getting low in the Heavens, and I was beginning to feel somewhat anxious as to where I should pass the night; when, reaching a small rise in the road I espied before me a comfortable looking farm-house, which suggested cosy and clean lodgings, with every prospect of fresh eggs, milk, and other delicacies so acceptable to the weary traveler. "Wake up, old friend," said I to "Silver-tail," who was jogging along at a sing song gait; "for, if I am not very much mistaken, here is a place where we will find first-class entertainment for man and beast."

The knowing horse seemed to take in the situation at a glance, and soon we were at the door of a substantial frame house, which, although it had all the appearance of thrift, and I might almost say affluence, still lacked an indescribable something which I could not account for, but which was afterwards explained—that something was the presence of woman.

As I stopped at the door I was confronted by an intelligent, good looking broad shouldered young fellow, apparently about twenty years of age, who bid me good evening, and asked me which way I was traveling. I answered that I hoped my journey was at an end for that night at all events, and asked if he could give me a bed and a feed for my horse.

"Certainly," said he, whose name I afterwards learned was Henry, "we will do our best to make you comfortable, but my brother and myself live here alone, and cook for ourselves, so you will have to take pot luck."

"That suits me to a dot," said I, getting out of my saddle.

At this moment the brother appeared and bade me welcome; he was the counterpart of Henry, except that his hair was darker and he had a keen, restless black eye, which indicated a quick, fiery and suspicious nature whereas, his brother had wavy, brown locks, and a large, open, noble looking brown eye, with which he looked you straight in the face as he spoke.

"Perhaps the gentleman would like to go down to the barn," said John, the last who appeared, "and see for himself that his horse is properly cared for."

"Right," said I, "I always see that my faithful Silver-tail has what he wants before I think of my own comfort, so if you are ready we will walk down together."

We sauntered slowly towards the stable, talking on indifferent subjects, when I caught sight of a snug, little cottage some distance from the house, and noticed that the shutters were all closed, which brought forth the remark that I supposed the parties who had lived there had moved out. Both brothers answered quickly, and as I thought uneasily: "Yes, yes, the house is closed up," and until we entered the stable I noticed the restless eyes of John ever and anon throwing furtive glances back at the house as if he feared some one would appear and belie his statement. We soon had Silver-tail comfortably disposed of, and were about returning to the house, when Henry, as if seized by a sudden impulse, took me by the arm, and said:

"Excuse me, sir, but I wish you would step in here for a moment. I want to show you a portrait of our mother," and leading me through a door, we entered what had evidently been a sleeping apartment.

On the wall hung two pictures—both lovely faces—and as I gazed on them I at once noticed the remarkable resemblance that one bore to Henry and the other to John.

"Which of these ladies is your mother," said I, "for they are evidently sisters?"

"This one," said Henry, pointing to the picture with black, glittering eyes, the image of John's. "But," said he hesitatingly, "do you know that the other portrait always has a strange fascination for me? When I look at the eyes they seem to search into my very soul, with such a wistful, longing, beseeching, yearning gaze, as if they were trying to speak or make me understand something that she wanted."

"Nonsense," said John in an angry tone; "come, sir, do not let us get a cold supper by listening to my brother's foolish fancies."

"It is no foolish fancy," said Henry. "Now, sir, just to oblige me, please look closely at the eyes in that portrait and see if they do not almost speak."

I stepped closer to the picture, and looked straight in its eyes, when horror! the eyes moved; and as I involuntarily followed their direction, they led my gaze to the floor under the head of the bedstead, where there were evident signs of the boards having been removed at some period. But what was more remarkable, my view did not stop there. I saw through the floor as through a clear glass; and horror of horrors! there, in a rough, board coffin, pale, death-like but calmly beautiful, with a paper clasped in her white and slender hands, lay the original of the picture whose eyes I had followed. For a moment I was dumb and terror-stricken, but summoning all my energies I straightened myself up and drawing my revolver, I exclaimed:

"Boys, this is some trick, but do not fancy you that have caught a greenhorn. The first of you that moves I will send into eternity," and I slowly backed toward the door. The youths seemed thoroughly dumbfounded. At last Henry found speech, and he said:

"Oh, don't go, sir; please, for God's sake tell us what you have seen."

He seemed so earnest and pleaded so with those large hazel orbs of his, that I hesitated.

"Seen," said I, "I am either the victim of some diabolical machination, or else I have seen enough to freeze the life blood in your veins. Take that axe," said I, pointing to one in a corner of the room, "move the bed and raise the floor where the head now stands;" and turning to John, whose restless eyes looked more uneasy and dangerous than ever, "do you remain where you are, if you move one step I will blow your brains all over the room."

Henry lost no time; he moved the bed and went energetically to work, and as he removed the first plank, there, sure enough, lay the coffin, with the pale, still, beautiful corpse fully exposed to view just as I had seen it. Henry clasped his hand to his brow, reeled, and would have fallen had I not caught him.

"Be a man," said I, "take that paper and read its contents to us." He obeyed as one in a dream, and with trembling accents read the following tale of jealousy, madness and horror:

THE CONFESSION.

"I am going mad. I know it, and a strange, irresistible impulse impels me to write this confession. John, my son, will you ever forgive your mother when you know the depth of her infamy and crime? But I had some show of cause for what I did, John, for I loved as woman never loved before. Your father used to visit at our house before his marriage. I soon learned to love him, and, alas, so did my sister Lucy, and woe to us all, he loved her! I could not bear it. I knew that he loved her, and what did I do? I seduced him! Yes, I repeat it, I seduced him three months before he married my sister, but, although I compelled him to keep up our illicit intercourse, yet I could not induce him to give Lucy up. They were married, and I, wretch that I was, stood up with her and wished them joy. After his marriage he would have nothing to do with me; this made me desperate, besides I found that I was enciente. I went to him and told him of my condition, he spurned me and denounced me as the cause of all our trouble, but said he would send me away until my child was born. The thought of parting from him, and leaving my rival in peaceful possession was like rending my heart-strings. I went, however, and you, John, were born. I wrote repeatedly to your father to know if I could return, his answer was always, "wait till I send for you." At last I heard accidentally that Lucy too had a baby boy. I know not why, but the news crazed me. I left you with the woman with whom I was boarding, and came back. I arrived about dusk; your father was away and not expected home before midnight. Here was my opportunity. That evening I poisoned Lucy! Yes, God forgive me, I poisoned her. When she was stiff, stark and cold, I told him all. I must have been mad then. I thought he would kill me on the spot, but his grief outweighed his anger.

We left the country, and people supposed that Lucy was with us. I wrote home and signed her name. After a time I sent home word that Lucy had died, but had left another boy and that it would be my life long task to care for her motherless babes and watch over their father's comfort—hypocrite that I was! We remained abroad for ten years, by which time nobody could have told that you and Henry were so near of an age, you, John, being always puny and the smaller of the two. We returned home, and—oh, God! I am going mad, I can write no more—heaven have pity on my erring soul!"

As Henry finished the last sentence I heard a rustle behind me, and turning around, my blood was congealed in my veins by an apparition that stood before me; there—with her fierce, black eyes glowing like balls of fire, her hair dishevelled, and her long, talon like fingers tightly clutched, and her whole appearance resembling that of a fury—stood the original of the black-eyed portrait. My pistol fell from my hand, and I stood paralyzed gazing at this weird figure. I had not long to wait; with a bound like the spring of a Bengal tiger, she was upon me. I endeavored to defend myself, but was powerless; her talons seemed to enter my face in a thousand places, tearing and lacerating the flesh in the most frightful manner. "Great heaven!" thought I, "how long can I live and endure this torture?" As this thought flashed through my brain, I—awoke to find that my old cat had brought one of her kittens to my bed, and that the little "varmint" was practicing gymnastics by trying to get astraddle of my nose. The time that kitten made through the open door is, I believe, the best on record.

TOO MUCH RESPONSIBILITY.

In modern days of enlightened jurisprudence it has come to be laid down as a maxim that it is "better to err on the side of mercy" than to impose too severe penalties upon offenders against the peace of society, but in the pursuance of this sentiment a case occasionally presents itself where a too free application of this principle results in decided wrong to the community, and in the assumption of a little too much responsibility by an inferior or examining tribunal. An instance in point is the case of George Lee, arrested for the shooting of George Bircham, near Lone Pine, briefly mentioned in our local columns last week. The statement of Bircham, who is dangerously wounded, is to the effect that Lee commenced firing before he was aware of his intention to do so and before he had thought of drawing a weapon himself, but the preponderating testimony, offerred by men who would scarcely be believed by any jury in the land, was in substance that the wounded man first drew his pistol and was the aggressor. At the close of an extended examination before Justice Pierson, on the strength of the evidence referred to, the prisoner was discharged and allowed to make a rapid exit out of the country--perhaps to seek other interesting little episodes of the same character--while there is hardly a man in the community but who believes the fugitive guilty of an attempted murder or manslaughter.

In any other country in the world but among free and easy-going Californians an affair of similar nature would produce some excitement, and there would be a criminal prosecuted unto the bitterest ends of the law. But here Justices' Courts deem themselves competent to take the responsibility of deciding upon the guilt or innocence of the person charged with the greatest crime known to the laws of God or man.

While making no pretensions as to being a legal authority, we do presume to say that, more especially where public sentiment pronounces the defendant's testimony false, the prisoner should be arraigned before a full judge and jury, whose duty it is to finally decide upon the credibility of his witnesses and whether his defense be tenable or not. Life would be safer, and even cases of justifiable homicide would be fewer and far wider between, if such occurrences always involved a due trial and legal defense--which does not appear to be a sequence nowadays.

GREELEY INDORSED.

The Baltimore Convention, July 10, nominated Horace Greeley and B. Gratz Brown for President and Vice President respectively, by a vote of 681 to 41. It was a foregone conclusion that the nomination or indorsement would be made, but few expected such unanimity. By operation of the previous question, all discussion on the matter was cut off at the outset. The Cincinnati platform was also formally indorsed. Democratic newspapers generally, almost universally, acquiesce with good grace and will support the ticket. Many Democrats, however, still insist upon a regular nomination, and there is a possibility that one may yet be made. Among Republicans Greeley appears to be losing strength.

An Auroral Display.

A little after 11 o'clock last night the northern heavens were illuminated by a gorgeous celestial pyrotechnic display of auroral phenomenon. There were broad sheets of crystaline light mounting high into space, and delicate silvery tracings and hairlike pencilings of amber sheen crowning all with bristling glory. How awe-inspiring and imposing are these mysterious, incomprehensible, nocturnal manifestations of the power and grandeur of the great I Am, whose presence fills all space, and who ruleth all the millions of worlds by that will which is the inexorable law of nature?—Reese River Reveille.

We give it up.

Stokes' Chances.

They are trying to prove that Fisk's death was caused by the use of morphine or some other poison. To this end Drs. Carnochan, Jacoby and McReady were examined. Their evidence tended to show that the wounds of Fisk did not directly cause his death, but that it resulted from the effects of injurious probing and improper treatment generally. In the course of Dr. Jacoby's testimony, he stated that it was his undoubted belief that Fisk died of morphine poisoning.

A LIVE PAPER.

Newspaper editors, particularly in the country, frequently have to listen to questions and remarks like these:

"Why don't you give us a real live paper; one that's got some snap to it? There is officer So-an-so don't do his duty, and Mr. Suchaone is a rascal and a mean man, anyhow. You must come out and give 'em fits. That's how to make a live paper. If I was editor you bet I'd stir 'em up if I got into a fight every day," and so on ad nauseam.

Now, this is all very fine and intellectual and all that, and the right way to run a newspaper to fill the standard of this class of people. A live paper with them means one that abuses officials efficient or otherwise, private individuals whenever an occasion offers, and to "fret and scold like a very drab," generally. Besides these it must regularly dish up some mental pabulum of a high order—historical, philosophical and political disquisitions. Having a smattering of these things, though with but an imperfect understanding of their uses, they like to spell out the big words that tells about them, and think that he is but a poor stick of a newspaper man indeed that cannot furnish them. In short they deduce from the possible fact that as an original idea once in six months perhaps has penetrated their own brains they only need a pen and an opportunity to spread such before the wondering world every day. Human affairs, they are satisfied, are all wrong end to. The mere sticks fill high places in the land, and still lesser sticks presume to instruct the people through the press, while they, the heavy timbers, are left to plod along unknown, their latent talents undeveloped, unappreciated—though not born to do so, like the desert rose or a lady of color, destined to blush unseen. Hence they become cynical and morose; they like to see fighting and growling going on, but prefer to take a hand only by proxy. They roar their own adversaries, when face to face, as gently as a sucking dove; their rusty cannons remain unburnished and there is no sulphury smell about their houses. They toil through the day firm in the conviction that naught but this toil prevents them from sitting down at night and recording a column or two of bright scintillations of genius, but they go to sleep and nary a scintil; only a growl at the editor who toils like a hod carrier through the day and can't write like a Junius at night.

They would have shown how it should be done had a kind fate permitted them to have wielded the editorial pen, tripod, three-legged stool or whatever it is called. Josh Billings has remarked that men who are always telling what they would have done had they been there never by any chance happen to be there. That is why "live papers" are so scarce. These latent geniuses are never "there;" the "sticks" always step in first.

These latent geniuses, who know so well how a paper ought to be run, forget some of the prerequisites necessary for a "stick," or anyone else, to make his paper fill their standard. They don't know that it takes brains trained in the first place by years of study in the arts, classics, sciences and professions. They are not aware of the fact that a person having any brains thus trained can and probably would put them to a more profitable use than anything depending on such as they for pay. They forget that money, in one sense, supplies brains by affording a little time use them in lieu of muscle the day through. They like to have a live and able paper and encourage it by subscribing but never paying for it. They don't know that a live paper produced on such terms must sooner or later cause a dead editor, though but a mere "stick" to begin with. They don't fully realize the anguish in the world's heart that they should persist in hiding their own brilliant lights under a bushel, or two bushels, if so many are needed for the purpose. They certainly don't. They must practice a while longer in sticking their fingers in water and then looking for the hole.

Weather Reports.

The Signal Service weather reports, which were only intended originally for the benefit of commerce, have proved so useful to the agricultural interests of the country also, that Congress has authorized the War Department to extend the working of the system so as to provide specially for these interests by the collection of reports from various points in the interior.

General Conference.

The Nevada Annual Conference of the M. E. Church commences at Sierra Valley, August 15. Bishop Foster is to preside. There are fourteen ministers employed by this Conference, which embraces all of the State of Nevada and all of that portion of California lying east of the main summit of the Sierras.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

In Tehama, July 12, John Donahoe shot and mortally wounded William Oram, in a most cowardly manner. The trouble grew out of a gambling game the night previous.

John Howard, a truck driver in San Francisco, beat his horse to death a few days since. He has been arraigned in the Police Court.

Army worms are destroying gardens and orchards about San Francisco, Sacramento and other places on the west side of the mountains.

Extensive fires are raging in the mountains around Los Angeles, and also in Fresno county. The Fresno Expositor says that in that locality an immense amount of feed is being destroyed by the fires.

Some State militia men are to be court martialed August 1st, for refusing to parade in San Francisco on the Fourth.

Ex-Governor Edward Stanley was stricken with paralysis and is lying in a critical condition at the Grand Hotel, his friends having but little hopes of his recovery.

Small pox has broken out among the workmen at the State Prison who are lodged outside the walls, and the institution has been placed in quarantine, residents inside not being allowed to receive visits from friends and relatives outside.

A man by the name of Sloper, a blacksmith, living at Forest Grove, Oregon, had his eyes put out by a premature explosion, while loading an anvil on the morning of the Fourth.

J. L. Houx, a notorious highwayman and murderer in Sonoma county, was recently brought up for trial and discharged for want of evidence.

Seven Chinamen were blown to pieces by the explosion of severals kegs of powder on the railroad near Carson city, July 12.

A Yreka date of the 10th instant says that Williams, the escaped murderer, after hiding six days in the mountains near Cottonwood, gave himself up to the authorities on Monday night. Unless his sentence is commuted, he will be executed on the 25th instant.

The San Francisco Committee of One Hundred had an important and exciting meeting on the 12th instant, and passed resolutions strongly aimed at the Central Pacific road, and questioning their good faith and sincerity. The subscription books of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad were opened, and $120,000 subscribed in a short time. R. G. Sneath stated that he was authorized to sign for A. Hayward any amount from $50,000 to $500,000 according to the liberality of others. Hayward's subscription is not yet entered.

The Los Angeles Daily News (Democratic) repudiate Greeley. The Daily Star (Democratic) supports the Baltimore nominees and Kewen for Congress.

Mullendore, of the Call, shot by McCauslin, is yet living, and his physician thinks he may yet linger for days or even weeks. His case is a terrible one, and death will be a welcome relief.

Journalistic Changes.

We note that The American Artisan has widened it pages and made other improvements, and taking it altogether, we consider it one of the cheapest journals of its class published, and one that no reading mechanic, particularly, ought to do without. Price, $2 per annum, published by Brown & Allen, 189 Broadway, New York.

The Scientific Press has adopted its original name of two years ago, and now appears as The "Mining" and Scientific Press. This paper has done much for the mining interests of this coast, and our miners generally would be doing a good thing for themselves, as well as their representative journal, to both write and subscribe for it. Its columns afford a better medium than any other we know of to bring your mines to the notice of capitalists in the East and in Europe.

Peolpe of either sex and all ages, fond of good reading—short stories and serials, copiously illustrated—will find Appleton's 32-page weekly Journal the very best one for their money. Price, $4 per annum. D. Appleton & Co., New York, publishers.

A Big Strike.

According to telegrams received in San Francisco the greatest body of mineral ever discovered has been located by two men from Illinois, named McHenry and Hughes, in the Wahsatch Range, about seven miles south of Kimball's Hotel, Parleo's Park, and twenty-five miles from Echo on the Central Pacific Railroad. The ledge crops out seventy feet, with an average width of thirty feet. Assays show a yield in silver of from $250 to $1,100 per ton, of free milling ore. The rock in sight is estimated at over 20,000 tons, valued at over $5,000,000.

Greeley in the South.

The Charleston papers speak favorably of the action of the Baltimore convention.

LETTER FROM NEVADA.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

VIRGINIA, July 8, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Having seen no correspondence from this city in your paper for a long time, and thinking that perchance your readers might like to hear from the metropolis of Silver-land, I have adjusted my gig-lamps and looked up a few items of interest, which I will jot down for your readers, subject to your approval.

THE CITY

has greatly improved in general appearance since the opening of Spring. Hundreds of stately buildings have replaced the yawning gaps made by the great fires of the past twelvemonth, while away from the business center an immense number of private residences have been erected, showing that around the great Comstock a permanent population is clustering, imbued with faith in the lasting richness of this famous lead. From Cedar Hill to the Divide the elements of prosperity are visible, and no city in the land has so thrifty, rich, rushing, busy, free and happy a population as this little Christian Virginia City.

C STREET

presents to the visiting pilgrims a constant succession of surprises. All day long teams in endless variety throng the center, while on the pavement pouts an ever-moving mass of humanity, who jostle one another as they hurry along, intent on pleasure or business; every variety of humanity, "Black spirits and white, blue spirits and gray;" gayly dressed ladies and gentlemen, slip-shod beggars, toil-stained miners, Piute Indians and moon-eyed Celestials, crowd along in confusion, yet good-naturedly, all the live-long day. Night shows no diminution; under the gaslights and through the glare flashing out from store, saloon or deadfall, the endless procession moves on, while beneath the flicker of flaming torches venders of patent nostrums noisily harangue listening crowds.

THE MINES

continue to yield their treasures up and give employment to thousands of men, who, when pay day comes, scatter their earnings through all the avenues of trade, and thus all are made happier. From one half to three quarters of a million of dollars are paid monthly for the simple item of wages alone, and, as at least two-thirds of this amount is spent in Virginia, it is an easy matter to account for the good times we enjoy. Besides the item of wages, there is paid out by our mines treble the amount for supplies, and of this the major part is circulated in our town. The product of the Comstock for the present year will exceed twenty millions of dollars and daily the supply of ore is increasing. The Crown Point and Belcher mines have opened up immense bodies of ore, and other mines along the lead have promising prospects, with an almost assured rich bonanza in the near future, and when they do strike it, look for lively times along the range.

STOCKS.

The wild excitement in stocks has subsided for the present, and the immense crowds around the broker's windows have passed away, but our people are ripe for another excitement, and I predict ere long a repetition of the scenes of early Summer. A great many of the boys were floored on the last break, and they want to get even; they will have a chance, else I am no prophet.

POLITICS

are quiet; all hands are apparently awaiting Greeley's indorsement at Baltimore, albeit his nomination will have but little effect in this part of the world save to drive Democrats to the support of Grant, but parties are awaiting the event before opening a vigorous campaign. The Senatorial fight is the one great political event that shadows even the Presidential contest. The candidates for the Senate to succeed Jas. W. Nye, are the Hon. J. W. Nye, John P. Jones and Wm. Sharon. Possibly your readers are not acquainted with the gentlemen, and so, with your permission, I will give a short sketch of each:

JAMES W. NYE.

"Jim Nye," "Slippery Jim," "Truthful Jeemes," the "Grey Eagle of Nevada, whose tongue is laden with quotations from scripture, whose heart throbs for Jim Nye." Jim is a man of fine presence, a noble looking, dignified man; affable to a fault; always ready to drink with a friend; a man who preaches what he does not profess; a Senator from this State, and yet the paid attorney of the Central Pacific Railroad. Jim is too well known to require an extended obituary, and now I will trot out

BILL SHARON.

"King Billy of the Bank," the most thoroughly despised man on the Pacific coast, whose friends are only those who cringe at the feet of power, servile while they hate. Sharon is worth twenty millions, and he proposes to buy voters enough to carry the State, and his emissaries are now at work promising fortunes, promises never meant to be fulfilled, for the emissaries will gobble the coin and let the hireling voter whistle for his pay.

Sharon is not a man of fine physique, being a little, dried up old rooster with dyed mustache, and false teeth, a regular scrooge; in expression as cold as an icicle and as vindictive as a she-wolf; he forces his minions to do his bidding and dare they rebel he crushes them to earth. He is, or was, the agent of the Bank of California, and is the pet of all the monopolies on the coast, who are reported as having combined in his interest to defeat Jones for the Senate.

JOHN P. JONES

is a different stamp of a man, a free-hearted, open, generous, jovial, and not in the least vindictive. Jones is a man of pleasing address and ripe culture, and he stands right in among the boys and spends more money than Sharon promises. He is a man who sprang from the ranks of the people, and is well known in your State as a miner, then State Senator and lastly as a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. His advent into this State marked a new era in mining on the Comstock; the ring, of which Sharon was leader, was broken and a new system inaugurated, hence the enmity of the bank ring.

Jones is the opposite of Sharon; he is a fat, round, jolly looking fellow, and apparently feeds his oats like a boy. I will touch all these gentlemen in some future letter, in this I must tell of some other things.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

is flourishing finely, and on the Fourth the various companies made a display that I venture to say was not equalled in any city in the land. Every engine and hose carriage carried a Fire Queen, a Goddess of Liberty or a young Mose, while wreaths and bunting were used profusely in the decorations. The steam fire engine of Young America, No. 2, and the "Old Father Neptune," of Neptune Hose Co., were the features. Next week I will elaborate a little.

Au revoir. COMSTOCK.

NOTES OF TRAVEL.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

We left Independence for Los Angeles on the evening of June 26. Saw nothing worthy of note after leaving Owens river until we reached

SAN FERNANDO VALLEY.

This is rather a beautiful valley, but owing to the fact that it is mostly owned by one man it is but sparsely settled. Soon after getting into the valley we arrive at that beautiful old Mission of the same name, and here is to be seen all of the many kinds of fruits usually cultivated by these people in early days. We arrived at on Saturday morning, my first visit to it since 1850. Of course there has been many changes since those days. Old structures have disappeared, and many fine, new ones erected. The numerous groves of oranges, lemons, limes, olives and the very many other varieties of fruit and ornamental trees constitute this a most beautiful and attractive place. You can see here people of all nationalities and mixtures. A large majority of them smoke paper cigars, and evince an air of contentment. They are generally a slow going people, although you find many enterprising and pushing men among them. These latter must have a hard time to awaken the majority of these people to anything like a public spirited enterprise. Great preparations were made for celebrating the Fourth, and the display made that day would have done honor to any city. Off again for in going to which we pass over about 80 miles of the same road traveled on our down trip, and then turn westward down the Tejon Pass. We soon find ourselves in full view of the magnificent valley of Kern river. We stop on the mountain top, and as we gaze over this broad, fertile land we speculate upon its assured great future. About 36 miles more and we are at Bakersfield. This is a fine looking town, containing two weekly newspapers, five stores and other business houses in proportion. Everything indicates thrift and energy far in excess of most new places. It is 150 miles from Los Angeles to this place. Bakersfield is at the southern extremity of the San Joaquin valley, and on the line of the railroad now in course of construction at the rate of one mile a day. It is finished to a point 40 miles of this place. We take a drive to some bluffs overlooking the town, and while viewing it from this point we arrive at this conclusion respecting the future of the town: That it must soon prove to be the great inland city of the State, situated as it is in the last valley on the thoroughfare of the 35th parallel railroad, and at the point of junction of another railroad coming from Salinas valley on the west. Going southerly after passing this point, the railroad will soon strike the mountains at the Tehechepi Pass. From our elevation we can see hundreds of thousands of acres of fine farming land, and the beautiful Kern river coming down from the mountains, its waters so near the surface of the valley on either side as to make irrigation the easiest thing possible, and seeming to invite the tiller of the soil to come and occupy this, the garden spot of the Pacific coast. The unlimited amount of water and water-power will be a great inducement to the railroad companies to establish here their machine and repair shops and a depot for the freights of a vast expanse of country, including all Inyo county. In that event you will soon see this little village swell to the proportions of a large city.

There is now a line of stages running from here to Los Angeles, with which the line from your place, Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine will connect here for that city or the railroad down the San Joaquin to San Francisco.

I must mention, before concluding this letter, that we saw here flourishing cotton fields and the new plant called the ramie. Two crops a year are produced here—first, barley, wheat or oats, after which from the same ground, a crop of corn. The mines on the Colorada will furnish a good market for all the last named products of this country.

Respectfully, J. DANFORTH.

New Volume.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT has entered upon the third year of its existence. The proprietors announce that the paper does not pay, but that they will give it a trial of another year, which is doing a great deal for the people of that section, and they should support it as a matter involving their own interests.—Reese River Reveille, July 9.

Take Care of This.

In view of possible contingencies we commend the following from The San Francisco Post to medical men and our readers generally:

A correspondent writes as follows: I herewith append a recipe which has been used, to my knowledge, in a hundred cases. It will prevent or cure the small-pox, though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered cow-pox in England, the world of science hurled an avalanche upon his head, but when the most scientific school of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published this recipe as a panacea for small-pox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure the scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used it, and cured my children of scarlet fever. Here it is as I used it to cure small-pox; when learned physicians said the patient must die, it cured:

"Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar. Mix with two tablespoonfuls of water; when thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water. Take a tablespoonful every hour."

Either scarlet fever or small-pox disappears in twelve hours. For a child, smaller doses, according to age. If counties would compel their physicians to use this, there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.

Very Good.

A Yolo correspondent of The San Francisco Bulletin gives the following palpable hit at the political affairs of the day:

A life long Democrat, being asked if he could "go" Greeley, replied that the situation reminded him of an incident that occurred in the mines. A party of miners took up a claim and elected one of their number cook, who was to serve in that capacity until some one found fault with his cooking. In that event the fault finder was to take his place and do the cooking himself. George B—— was the first to fill the position, and everything went on smoothly for a week or two, when George became tired and resolved to have some one find fault if possible. So one morning he mixed up his dough for breakfast, putting in equal parts of flour and salt. All sat down to breakfast, and Bill J—— was the first to break a biscuit. He tasted it, smelled it and tasted it again, and said: "Hell! I'll be d—d if this ain't the saltiest biscuit I ever got hold of—but," said he, suddenly remembering the contract, "it is good!" Now, the Democrats are in the same fix. Greeley is the saltiest pill they ever got hold of, but then he is good.

From Arizona.

A violent storm of wind, gravel and dust peted Salt River valley on the 21st ultimo, the effects of which are thus described by Judge J. F. Alsap: "We had a terrible sand storm here on Friday last, which did considerable damage to standing grain. It came from the northeast and lasted about one hour. During its violence a person could not see five feet. The whole air was full of dust. It killed a great many vines (melon, pumpkin, etc.), and some beans. It is said that some grain fields were injured 30 per cent."

From William H. Hardy, who arrived here from Mohave county, Thursday night, we learn that, on Sunday last, as Mr. Wallace, with his team of twelve mules, was crossing the Sacramento valley, bound for Wallapai Mining District, flashes of lightning descended, killing, almost instantly, nine of his twelve mules. Mr. Wallace's face was burned by the lightning, the effects of which, of course, stunned him. One of the mules killed had a hole through his head; the others bore no marks of having been struck.—Prescott Miner, June 29.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Very Sad Accident.

In our journalistic experience we have never had occasion to record a more sorrowful accident than that which resulted in the death of little Lula Tibbitts, a bright and universally beloved little girl of four years and a half of age, whose parents live some fifteen miles north of this place. On the morning of the 12th instant her mother, it appears, had turned out a bucket of hot water which she left sitting on the floor for a moment while she stepped into an adjoining room. During her short absence Lula by some means fell backwards in a sitting posture into this bucket of water. She screamed but once ere her mother came to her rescue. On being taken out she did not appear to have received any material injury, but in her childish way attempted to explain the occurrence, talking in her usual tone of voice. Her injuries, however, were far more serious than was at first supposed, for, though apparently suffering but little pain, on the following morning her sweet spirit winged its flight to the realms above. The bereaved parents have the sympathies of the entire community in the loss of their little darling.

Committee Meeting.

Under the above caption will be noticed, in our advertising columns, a call for a meeting of the Republican County Central Committee at this place on Wednesday next. The principal object of this meeting, but not the sole one by any means, is to name delegates to attend the State Convention at Sacramento on the 1st of August, which meets for the purpose of nominating Presidential Electors and Congressmen. We are requested to state that owing to the absence of both the Chairman and Secretary a meeting of the Committee could not take place sooner, and in order to be in time for the Convention but a short notice can be given. A full attendance is desired.

Mining Sale.

Record has been made of the sale, by P. W. Bennett and P. Reddy, of the Bennett interest or title to the Santa Maria mine, Cerro Gordo, to William Watt, of New York, for the sum of $30,000. This indicates the commencement of the heavy operations in that place referred to by us some weeks ago.

Lost.

On Friday, the 12th instant, between this office and Camp Independence, was lost a bundle of Scientific Americans and American Artisans. After reading, the finder will confer a favor by leaving them with Mr. A. N. Bell or at THE INDEPENDENT establishment.

Proposed Ball.

We believe it is the proposition to give a grand, opening ball by the citizens on the occasion of the completion of Harris & Rhine's spacious storeroom. Some of the boys talk about sending to Carson or Virginia for a band for the event.

Gone Fishing.

Sheriff Mulkey, with his family, has gone out into the Sierras for the general benefits of a few month's recuperation in the splendid regions about the head of Kern river. A jolly crowd of Lone Piners are also out on a fishing and hunting excursion.

New Driver.

The Northern stage, or the section from this place to Big Pine, is now engineered by the popular Harry Wright himself. We wish him huge loads of passengers—particularly on each downward trip.

Money Order Office.

Postmaster Rowley, having received due authority and equipments, is now ready for business under operation of the postal money order system. Here is another addition to his perquisites, amounting to 37½ cents per annum.

Justice of the Peace.

The Commissioners of Esmeralda county, Nevada, have appointed Mr. I. J. Rice a Justice of the Peace for Lida. He is also a Notary Public, by appointment of Governor Bradley.

New Store.

Mr. John E. Jones has established a new store in Round Valley. It is located near the center of that thriving, prosperous community, and ought to do a good and profitable business.

Fined.

A creature unnamable was on Monday last fined $25, in Justice Gunnison's court, for assault and battering a soiled dove, by whom the wretch has been hitherto supported.

Real Estate Transfer.

Thomas J. Goodale has sold his fine livery stable property, in the northern part of town, to Mr. John Broder. The consideration was $2,000, we believe.

Chopped Around.

P. P. Dow, the accommodating old growler, has changed his base of operations, and now slings silk on the Southern or Visalia stage.

The Eclipse.

We understand that contracts are being let for the sinking of two new shafts on the Eclipse mine.

Harvesting.

Farmers from Big Pine northward are engaged in harvesting their crops.

Sun-Struck.

The first case of sun stroke that we have heard of in the county occurred here Monday forenoon. B. F. Welch, with Welch & Stevens, tinners, had been engaged for several hours that morning putting on the metalic roof of Harris & Rhine's new store. Continuing at his work, exposed to the direct rays of the sun, intensified by reflection from the tin roof, until about 10 o'clock, he began to feel a little faint and started to descend the ladder. When within one or two rungs of the bottom, he fell over in a dead faint from the effect of the heat, in which condition he continued until the following night. The next morning, however, through the aid of Dr. C. B. White, he was all right again, and the probabilities are no bad effects of a lasting nature will follow this attack.

Beating a Mule.

Thursday evening a man whose name we do not know, but employed by A. B. Kitchen, started to go to his camp in the foothills. He was riding a mule belonging to Kitchen, but did not ride him far until the mule threw him off or else he was so drunk he fell off. This two-legged brute then took the far nobler animal of the two, the mule, and tying him securely to a fence, commenced to beat him with a club some two inches in diameter, which operation he continued until the mule could no longer stand. This all took place within the town limits, though but two or three persons were cognizant of the facts, or the drunken two-legged brute would have received a taste of the same treatment he gave the mule.

High Waters.

Our Bishop Creek friends don't complain any more for the want of water for irrigating purposes. On the contrary, quite the reverse. They have water to sell there now days, six bits worth for a dollar; Sneden and Yaney's advertisement announcing this fact will probably appear at a future date. The creek in consequence of the late rain got very high, indeed; rather beat Seth in that respect, so he had to build a boat with which to get his goods the stream across. One chap named this craft "Sneden's Relief," but Seth says: "The d—d thing won't balance, it's a Greeley dug-out." This is all we know of this lamentable occurrence.

Gen. Schofield.

Yesterday Lieut. Haskell, with a party of soldiers and a large pack train, started across the mountains to Visalia, where he will meet and escort back Gen. Schofield and staff. The return of the entire party is expected in about two weeks, with Major Egbert accompanying. The absence of Egbert and Haskell leaves Lieut. Dove running the whole institution on his own hook.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the usual hour (10½ A. M.) at the school house to-morrow; Sunday school immediately after. Preaching at George's Creek 1½ P. M.; Lone Pine 7½ P. M.; Swansea on Monday following at 7½ P. M. This will be the last round for this Conference year.

SOME FINE BOOKS.

Mr. Jas. N. Davis is canvassing this section for subscribers to the following splendid works, all of which we have examined and take pleasure in recommending to our readers. The first named is sold only by subscription, while all are warranted to be exactly as represented, otherwise subscribers are not required to take them:

A new, illustrated, devotional, practical and Polyglot Bible, containing the Old and New Testaments, the Apochrypha, Concordance and Psalms in metre, embellished with over 200 fine scriptural engravings; a history of all existing religious denominations of the world, numerous tables of money, scriptural measures, marriagable degrees of consanguinity, etc., and also a photographic album for sixteen persons, family record, new and valuable additions, the whole constituting it a work of the kind never surpassed. Prices according to binding, varying from $9 to $15. Each subscriber to this work will receive a fine, large steel engraving of Landseer's picture, "The Happy Return."

Dr. Mackenzie's "Literature, Art and Song," a splendidly bound and illustrated work of 500 pages, containing Moore's Melodies, and American poems, a biography and critical review of lyric poets, and a collection of choice melodies arranged for duetts, trios and quartettes, and many other features of excellence. This work is a gem of art in all respects.

Prof. Fowler's "Sexual Science," a work of 900 paegs, with illustrations. This work is replete with valuable information to husbands, wives, parents, young men and young women, and all married or contemplating marriage.

California Boundary.

It is stated that the United States Surveying Party, now camped near Verdi, will move the State line a mile eastward, throwing Crystal Peak, Verdi and all that portion of Lake Tahoe, now claimed by Nevada, into California.—S. F. Bulletin.

Parties hereabouts who are familiar with the circumstances of the former erroneous survey, say that the line will be moved about two miles westward, instead of to the east.

Hubbell's True Statement.

[From The Gold Hill News, July 11.]

Hubbell has made so many statements relative to the Yellow Jacket fire, that we, as well as others have got them mixed. We understood that the only one which he claims to be true, is that made by him originally to Col Hoge in San Francisco, and which he was willing to swear to and sign for $50,000, but it appears that he subsequently made another which he now says is the only true one. The Virginia Chronicle of last evening, referring to the matter, says:

Unless Hubbell was acting in good faith in making that statement, and is so acting now, we have no hesitation in saying he is in a hobble. We think that the statement, written, subscribed and sworn to is now in this city, but of this we are not certain; and we are equally well satisfied that Hubbell will not get eyes upon it until he has made a clean breast before the Grand Jury or District Court, when the "only true statement" may be introduced, by way of instituting a comparison. We think that this statement is his ignus fatuus, from the fact that he seems to distrust his ability to make another like it. District Attorney Woodburn must be getting at tangible facts, for he has been closeted with Hubbell for two days, and yesterday another witness (probably called in at Hubbell's suggestion) was before that officer for some hours. The whole matter may now be said to be before the Courts, and as the plot is thickening we look for a thorough investigation of the case and a settlement that will be final.

The Chronicle will soon come to the same conclusion that we did long ago, that there is a vast amount of humbug in this affair, and that the "thickening plot," after "thorough investigation" and "final settlement," will be found to have nothing in it. Jim O'Donnell, who first started on the track of the alleged important information, was grossly deceived; Mr. Sharon was consequently grossly deceived; Hubbell was himself grossly deceived in the sources of his own information, and the whole affair from beginning to end savors of sensation and humbug. An interview with Hubbell himself confims us in this opinion, and we have no further remarks to offer until Hubbell's "true" statement shall be published.

Kern County Items.

[From The Kern County Courier, July 13.]

The Committee on the road to Owens River will report on financial affairs next week (Tuesday). The amount of money they raise will determine the direction of the road. To build it by way of Havilah will require a very large sum. We are satisfied very little reliance can be placed upon any professions the people of that place may make, and very much doubt their ability to give a bond sufficient to ensure the satisfactory performance of the work necessary to be done on their end of the line. But whatever is decided upon should be done quickly.

Mr. Nadeau, of Los Angeles, largely engaged in the freighting business to Owens River, and Mr. Earl, the stage man of that region, were here this week. They came with a view of urging our people to action on the subject of a road to Owens River, in which both of these gentlemen are deeply interested. They prefer the Tehachepi route. Neither of them have any doubt that a good road can be built by way of Havilah or on a nearer route, but think it would prove too expensive at present. Mr. Nadeau states that he finds it very difficult to procure good teamsters, and seems to feel that any road that could now be opened by way of Havilah, with the means at hand, would be impassable to them. The road through Tehachepi is one that can be improved at a very small expense, and made perfectly safe to the most incapable driver.

A dispatch to Sioux City from Fort Sulley says: It is reported here that about 1,000 Indians have collected at a point on the route of the river to be taken by the Yellowstone expedition, which is to leave on the 25th instant, and that they will prevent, if possible, the proposed survey of the Northern Pacific railroad through their country. VARIETIES.

—It is said that the following words actually formed the peroration of the counsel's plea for his client in an assault and battery case at Athens, Alabama: "Let the humble ass crop the thistle of the valley. Let the sagacious goat browse upon the mountain's brow; but, gentlemen of the jury, I say that John Gundle is not guilty."

—The rising generation "age" rapidly in Detroit. A mature specimen eight years old, was hunting about the police station for a stray father the other night. "You see," he remarked, with filial exultation, "the guv'ner's a little wild yet, but he'll grow out of it."

—The most gallant man that we know of is one who refrained from kicking a dog that had bitten him because it was a female dog. "Confound you," said he, "if it was not your sex I'd kick your head off."

—Wesley Walker, colored, who was hanged at Colquitt, Georgia, on the 24th ultimo, assured his mother, who was standing in the crowd at the foot of the scaffold, that if "she did not do better, she would go to h—l a-howling."

—The New Orleans Picayune neatly says: We don't have any Ku Klux in Lonisiana, but the sugar planters raise cane with the negroes every year.

—A law of Pennsylvania makes the taking of money at the door of a theater on Sunday illegal, wherefore it is invariably taken at the window.

—A Georgia judge, who seventeen years ago sentenced John Dotten to be hung, last month performed the office for John Dotten's son.

—A dozen persons were stabbed on an Illinois "pleasure excursion."

—"Daughtercultural Show" is the latest name for a fashionable party.

A Novel Duel.

Among the reminiscences told of the Franco-Prussian war is the account of a curious duel between two subordinate officers of the French army.

"You intend to fight a duel, eh?" asked the commandant.

"Yes, Colonel. Words have passed which can only be wiped out by blood. We don't want to pass for cowards."

"Very well. You shall fight. But it must be in this way: Take your carbines, place yourselves on a line facing Malmaison, where the enemy is. You will march upon their garrison with equal step. When sufficiently near their posts, you will then fire upon them. The Prussians will reply. You will continue to advance and fire. When one falls, the other may turn on his heels, and his retreat shall be covered by one of my companies."

"In this way," concluded the commandant, "the blood which you both demand will be spilled with profit and glory, and he who comes back will do so without regret, without the remorse of having killed or wounded with his own hand a Frenchman at a time when France needs all her defenders and all her children. If you both fall who shall say that you are cowards? I may also add that I thus give you an excellent opportunity for putting a couple of Germans out of the way, a service that will procure for you a good recommendation for reward and promotion."

The matter was arranged as the commandant had dictated. At twenty paces from the walls of Malmaison, one of the adversaries was wounded, staggered and fell. The other ran to him, raised him up and carried him off on his shoulders amid a perfect hailstorm of balls—both, thenceforth, entitled to the greatest honor and respect from the whole regiment.

Turkish Abstemiousness.

Constantinople is the most temperate capital of its size in the world. Spending day after day in the open air, wandering among the common folks, having at one time several people in my employ, even in the biting air before daylight, I never found any Turk drinking stronger beverage than coffee. But that is nothing to their great annual fast. During the Ramadan, which lasts a whole month, from sunrise to sunset the panting boatman, the heavy laden porter will touch nothing like food, not even tobacco, and no drink whatever; and at sundown will make up for this abstinence not by a drunken carouse, but by a larger dish of pilau and a longer smoke of Latakia. To be sure, temperance is a part of the Turk's religion, but is it not of ours? And that religion—an imposture as we call it—has something very real in its worship at four in the morning the year round, its indifference to "infidel" gaze, the heartiness of all its observances, the severity of its daily self-denials. Often have I found the shop entirely open while the shopman was at his prayers, and I have taken up the goods to see if any one would remonstrate, and laid them down again without anybody's interference. And often have I watched the thin clad boatman kneeling in prayer on the wet sand or in drizzling rain, "the world forgetting, by the world forgot!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Squirrels and Gophers.

Some genius has struck out a new way to get rid of these pests. He stops up all the holes but one. Then he takes a small bellows, and burning some sulphur, blows the fumes into the open hole. He says there was not only death but a complete funeral for the whole tribe.

Singular Outrage.

In Humboldt county, in this State, the daughter of Capt. West was despoiled of her fine dark curls, by some wretch who entered her chamber in the night. She was about thirteen years of age.

—As there are many things, so the truth of many things is many sided. Call no man a liar, therefore, for he may behold truth from sides that are opposite your own.

Delightful Occupation.

Wet nurses should be at a premium in Burmah, to judge from the following account of a visit to the King's palace brought by a member of the Italian Embassy to Burmah, and reported by the Italian correspondent of The Swiss Times:

On our taking leave, His Majesty gave permission to his minister to accompany the Embassy to the Imperial garden, where they might see a young white elephant which had been recently brought from the Teak forest, with which the country is covered. Our surprise can be imagined when we saw this young elephant under a pavilion covered with velvet, silk and gold, and surrounded by about thirty young women, its nurses, whose milk it sucked (going from one to the other), and this with so much delicacy as if it had been a baby! Taking the breast in its mouth, the sacred animal leant its trunk with the greatest lightness upon the shoulders of its nurse. These women are paid fifty rupees (about $25) a month, and it is said that thousands of pretty Burmese offer themselves as nurses for the adored animal. The minister and the women prostrated themselves before this favorite of Buddah. The elephant has since died, although the number of nurses were increased to over a hundred.

Anecdote of Ward.

In his lecture on Artemus Ward, Mark Twain tells the following:

When Artemus was very young he and a companion got hold of a pack of cards and learned to play eucher. Artemus was perfectly fascinated with the game and played it as often as he had an opportunity; but it had to be done on the sly, and he had to hide his cards from his parents. So, when he looked out for a place to hide them, the boys thought the safest place where they could put the cards was in the pocket of the minister's black gown, under the very ægis of the Church. I don't know what ægis means, but its a good word, and I suppose its all right. Well, the old minister was called on to baptize a convert, and as he went down into the water, wearing a gown, the cards began to come up to the surface and float off. The boys, who were on the bank watching, though in great fear, kept their eyes on the cards. As it happened, there came up first two bowers and three aces. Of course the boys were thrashed, and an old aunt of Artemus proceeded to lecture him on the enormity of the crime. "Why," said she, "just imagine how the poor man must have felt when he saw the cards coming up! I should have thought he would have fainted, and don't see how he got out." "Well," said Artemus, "I don't see how he could have helped going out on such a hand."

The L. A. & S. P. R. R.

The annual report of the Los Angeles and San Pedro Railroad Company was last week presented at a meeting of the Common Council. This little road is doing a most lively business—in fact a much more extensive and lucrative business than you might think possible. The gross receipts for the year have been set down at somewhat more than $218,700, of which sum a net income of $96,200 remains with the company. This latter sum has been pretty thoroughly expended in improvements, new material for the road, rolling stock, etc. The cars make two trips daily, remaining at San Pedro over night. B. D. Wilson, of this city, President of the road, has administered its affairs much to the satisfaction of all interested.—Los Angeles Correspondence Arizona Miner.

Our Town.

Our town is plodding along just about as usual. The steam whistle screams in the desert about six miles away from us, and never disturbs our peaceful slumbers. We hardly realize that it is there, so little difference does it make any way to our present prosperity, or future prospects. Our people go on improving and working just the same and we are fain to exclaim that a railroad is not much of an institution after all. So far as we can see, our people are just as hopeful as though it were right at our doors.—Visalia Delta

Bullion from Wallapai

Mr. W. H. Blakely has arrived from the new mining district of Wallapai, bringing with him some magnificent bars of bullion. We took the valuation of several of these bars yesterday. Those at Temple & Workman's Bank, $89 40; $68 41; $45 45; $51 14. One large brick at the store of Levy & Coblentz, $576 63. One at the Orient, $59 13. The bullion appears to contain in value nearly as much gold as silver.—Los Angeles Star, July 13.

Wheeler's Next Expedition.

We notice that Lieut. Wheeler is arranging for another expedition to the southward. Salt Lake will form his base of supplies and his investigations are to be confined this season to Southern Utah, extending to, but not beyond the Colorado river. The expedition will move in a few days.—Eureka Sentinel.

—A Texas Sheriff, who lately ran away, was vigorously pursued, captured and reinstated in office. This is poor encouragement to absconding officials.

Assured Her.

An affectionate Detroit man was sent for the other day to remonstrate with his sister, who had been trying to take poison. He knocked her down and dragged her round the room by the hair, and finished by tenderly assuring her that "if she did not go to work and let the suicide business alone, he would break her neck for her."

PHŒNIXED.

The senior editor of this institution is a goner—to Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine. On this occasion the very antecedents of our printing machinery dictate the course to pursue. We must follow the time-honored and twice set exampleand "phœnix" the concern—declare our opinions on the vital questions of the day. Here, then, is our Presidential ticket, and in triumph may she flutter:

For President,

HORACE WOODHULL,

OF NEW YORK.

For Vice President,

THE FENIAN,

OF LONE PINE.

ARRANT HUMBUGGERY.

The Overland Monthly for August, just at hand, is chiefly remarkable for containing Prof. Whitney's article on "the Owens Valley Earthquake." It is in two papers, that now given being the "local incident" and a general description of the country. Upon careful examination we find that the inaccuracy of detail is equalled by the "cheek" which conveys the idea that the writer's flying transit through the center of our valley rendered even possible the observations and inquiries necessary for a comprehensive report, though the author does condescend to say that "our wanderings took us through but a very insignificant part of the mountain gorges."

Although long and somewhat pointless, we shall next week endeavor to give such excerpta as will enable our readers to forestall the scientist's forthcoming theory of the phenomena, and we may take occasion to note our exceptions. Something readable and correct may follow in the second paper, but it now seem to parties familiar with the facts that the expectant literary world is to experience a disappointment, both as to character and completeness of the high official's report.

Becoming Civilized.

From all accounts, there are continued improvements in Japanese affairs worth noting. Recent dates say that the custom of going down on their hands and knees before the Emperor has been abolished; gas has been introduced into Yokohama, and the Yokohama and Yeddo railway was opened June 13th. Women have been granted the same rights as men, the burned portion of Yeddo is being laid out with broad streets, and a fine suspension bridge is soon to be erected near the city. Other improvements are projected, and the work of advance goes bravely on. The Japan Mail says that a notification has recently been issued by the Governor of Yeddo with a view to the elevation of public morals. The simultaneous use of the bathing houses by both sexes is prohibited; the sale of obscene toys is forbidden, and the government has lately taken up the consideration of laws relating to mining.

Terrible Boiler Explosion.

The Gold Hill News of July 15th contains a lengthy account of a frightful explosion which occurred in that place on that day. Both of the south boilers of the Petaluma mill exploded with terrific force, scattering death and destruction to the southwest, and entirely demolishing the building. Three men were killed outright, and a passing Piute squaw was so injured with a flying missile that she will probably die. Several persons were wounded. No cause is assigned for the accident, and no blame is attached to any one.

Snobbery.

Gen. Sheridan, for his attention to Duke Alexis while on his late visit to the West, has been honored by the Emperor of Russia with a title that will give to him some $2,000 a year, and he has been enobled and is to be known as Sheridantoftzy. Should the General accept it can but be considered a piece of unmitigated American snobbery.

Candidates.

The following aspirants for political distinction have been mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination for Congress in the San Francisco district: William H. Sears, M. M. Estee, Cornelius Cole, John F. Swift, A. D. Splivalo and D. C. McRuer.

Train.

George Francis told some of the planters in Alabama that Greeley knew nothing at all about farming—that he bought a keg of powder for turnip seed and sowed it broadcast, and raised hell instead of turnips.

PROSPECT YOUR MINES.

In a few weeks the principal work of the farmers throughout the valley will be over, to be followed by a season of comparative inactivity. With prosperity assured by excellent crops and good demand, the question of turning attention for a time to the development of the great numbers of unprospected mining properties becomes one well worth careful consideration, since upon that interest depends the market for all the farmers' productions and since therein lies the very base of all our business pursuits of whatever nature.

There are none of the oldest settlers in the county but who have interests in mines and locations which were abandoned during the exodus attending the Indian troubles, and there are but few of the later accessions to our population but who have a thorough belief, based on observations and hap-hazard discoveries, that at many points in the mountains around us is to be found mineral wealth of the greatest importance and value. Mining is reckoned a risky business—either a feast or a famine in the matter of returns, and such is the case as it is generally conducted by the salaried officials of big companies. But we advocate no movements involving more than the operator—considering his chances for immense gain—is able to lose, for such are unnecessary. A hundred dollars or so judiciously expended on many of the promising locations now lying idle would render them paying property, and two-thirds of them worth a fortune each upon the establishment of centrally-located reduction works, or upon the advent of a railroad. Both of these are bound to come, and will be greatly hastened by the developments referred to, increasing their necessity ten-fold.

Under the operation of the new mining law the ousting of absent or non-paying owners is made easy and simple, leaving the remaining owner free to develop his property unannoyed by the idea that he is investing his labor and money for the ultimate benefit of others. And in making new locations the same enactment provides every encouragement and protection for the enterprising owner and prospector.

Then locate mines, work them and hold them. It is not necessary to run long tunnels or sink deep, non-paying shafts. It is no exaggeration to say that there are hundreds of silver, gold and lead ledges now lying untouched which will pay from the surface, or present every indication of so doing. But there are few residents of Inyo not willing to trust entirely to their own judgment on these matters, and the time is at hand for the exercise of such judgment and for the investment of our surplus labor and capital in the mining interest. There is not a mine in the flourishing district of Cerro Gordo but what was opened by men of the most limited means, yet for years the furnace men have reaped from them a clear profit of from $2,000 to $3,000 per day. Besides, the day is long past for the selling of undeveloped mines, and we must continue to make our country prove its own worth.

The advent of a railroad and the consequent influx of population and capital is an event far closer at hand than most of us suspect, and when we are united with commerce and prosperity let us not be confronted with the question, "Why stand ye here idle?"

Bennett's Stanley.

We remember reading with bated breath the telegraphic accounts of the bloody achievements and unparalleled operations of Stanley, The New York Herald's Livingstone explorer. And now comes The Omaha Bee, incredulous on the Stanley business and refusing to take stock in the matter. It says that Stanley used to live in that city, and "had several very narrow escapes from actresses and slandered military officers," and adds: "When we reflect upon the fact that he was in the habit of writing up his experiences of trips to Denver and Western towns from the sanctum of The Republican with all the coloring of truth, we shall go rather slow upon anything he has to say about Livingstone and Central Africa. He is a consummate fabricator of sensations, and the story that Livingstone refuses to return for two years longer from Africa is, in itself, a proof in our mind that he has not met with that distinguished traveler."

Sheridan on "Lo."

In a communication to the War Department, Gen. Sheridan is accredited with saying: "We can never stop the wild Indians from murdering and stealing until we punish them. If a white man in this country commits murder we hang him; if he steals we put him in the penitentiary. The Indian commits these crimes and we give him better fare and more blankets. I think I may, with reason, say that under this policy the civilization of the wild red man will progress slowly."

The Big Tunnel.

The Virginia Chronicle man has had a lengthy interview with the famous Adolph Sutro, from the report of which we make the following extracts:

Reporter—About what time do you think the tunnel will tap the Comstock lode?

Mr. Sutro—After we get all our large pumping and hoisting machinery in position and our drilling machinery in operation, I think it will take about two years; and we expect that our machinery will all be completed and set up within the next four months.

Reporter—What will be the probable cost of the tunnel by the time you reach the Comstock?

Mr. Sutro—It is very difficult to state what the precise cost will be. We know now that the cost of our machinery will exceed the estimates that have been made. Our pumping and hoisting machinery alone will probably cost, erected, from $400,000 to $500,000.

Reporter—After the tunnel is completed to the ledge, it is to be carried along the lode as far as it has been traced continuously, is it not?

Sutro—That is our intention. We also intend to make cross tunnels that will follow the different lodes which we expect to cut before we reach the Comstock. We also propose to continue these cross tunnels to a considerable distance beyond, in order to reach some of the outlying mining districts; for instance, Silver City, the Flowery district, etc. By continuing a tunnel along the Monte Christo lode we will reach the mines at the lower end of Gold Canyon, near the Devil's Gate, and the neighborhood of Silver City; and I have no doubt that after the main tunnel is completed, together with the branches along the Comstock lode, the ramifications in the course of ten years will comprise at least 100 miles of lateral tunnels.

Reporter—About how much money has been raised to carry on the work, from the sale of stock and from other sources?

Sutro—We have now about $1,500,000 in coin, and the company does not owe a single dollar. We have also before us a proposition for a loan of $5,000,000 by private parties, for which mortgage bonds are to be issued by the company, and I have every reason to think that they can be disposed of without difficulty.

Notable Death.

Samuel Platt, Esq., better known as the "Citizen Sam Platt," a man of fine intellect and education, and peculiarly pungent wit, died in San Francisco, July 14, after a brief illness of dropsy of the stomach. He was a native of Delaware, and a law student with Hon. John M. Clayton. Some years since his brother committed suicide. Soon after this a favorite daughter, a particularly gifted and interesting young lady, fell from a swing and was fatally injured, and soon after his wife, a noble woman, died. Under these accumulated afflictions he broke down completely, and of late he had frequently avowed his desire to be done with life as soon as possible.

Sensible.

The idea of reclaiming the Colorado desert by means of artesian wells is now on the tapis. It is thought a large stream runs under the desert, and that all that is necessary is to bore deep enough to strike it. Congress will be applied to for a grant as a recompense for boring these wells.

Rather Neat.

The Gold Hill News designates a candidate for the Vice Presidency as "Big Rats Brown."

The Owens River Road

We stated in our last that a meeting of citizens to consider the Owens River road project had decided in favor of the Havilah route. Since then our people have reconsidered the matter, and the final determination is to go by the Tehachepi route. This we deem a wise decision. This road can be easily opened within a month. It will cost less, and we shall more immediately reap the benefit of the traffic, and be the better able to judge whether it will justify a greater outlay. Work was to commence on the road yesterday, and we are assured it will be pushed to a speedy conclusion.—Bakersfield Californian.

Up

Old Sol seems to have been making a "corner" in mercury, judging from the way that article has been going up within the past few days. On Saturday and Sunday it reached 106 degrees in our office, at Jones' store and Buchanan it reached 110 in the shade. Some people call it "red hot," but we think it has passed that stage and got to a "white heat." It can't get much hotter, as our thermometers are not long enough.—Fresno Expositor.

Attempt at Rape.

We are informed that a brute having the semblance of a human being, entered the residence of Theo. Winters, in Washoe Valley, and attempted to commit rape upon Mr. Winter's little girl. Report has it that the neighbor's on hearing of the fact, pursued the fellow, beating him within an inch of his life, and that he was afterwards shot dead by Theo. Winters. The affair occurred yesterday afternoon, and we were unable to gain further particulars.—Carson Register, July 19.

—A faro-banker, of Louisville, being told of a hen that had laid an egg every day for a year, replied: "That is nothing; I have laid abed every night for a dozen years." "And hatched scheme after scheme against your depositors," added one who knew how it was himself.

The B. B. Mill

[COMMUNICATED.]

MESSRS EDITORS:—My attention has been directed to two articles which have somewhat to my astonishment, found place in the columns of your usualy well conducted journal. The first of these articles by "Millman," is characterized by a coarse and vulgar attempt at sarcasm, which stamps its writer as one of those pernicious ihdividuals, unhappily of late becoming too numerous, who have lost all sense of that deference and respect which is due from the lower classes to the possessors of wealth and influence. I have too much contempt for such persons to take any further notice of his insolent insinuations, except to remark that he, as well as "Sad Truth," who, though apparently meaning well, is abominably ignorant and stupid, would be much better occupied in wielding some instrument of productive industry, such as the pick or the hammer, than in exposing themselves to the contempt of well-bred people by a display of their ignorance or malignity in the public prints. You will also permit me to observe that I think it highly unbecoming in the conductors of a respectable periodical to encourage a disposition among the lower orders to presumptously pass judgment upon the acts of their superiors, a disposition, which if not checked in time, will result in the subversion of the social fabric, of which the most powerful element of preservation is the proper subordination of the masses.

The B. B. Mill Company is composed of a body of gentlemen who are well known not only as being immensely wealthy, but as men of the noblest type of philanthropy and most distinguished piety. The name of the mill was given in accordance with the lofty motives by which its projectors were animated. Of this name the company, with that modesty which always characterizes true merit, decided to make public only the initials, "B. B.," hoping that the character of their operations would at once supply the correct explanation. The preposterous interpretation assigned to these symbolic letters by the malevolence of "Millman," and acquiesced in by the stupidity of "Sad Truth," inspires me, in common with all right thinking persons, with ineffable disgust. Such insolence on the part of mere working men suggests the oft-repeated inquiry—an inquiry to which, I much fear, a terrible future will ultimately develop a most disastrous answer—"whither are we drifting?"

The letters "B. B." are, as I have stated, symbolical, and the name which they represent is expressive of the philanthropic nature of the enterprise in question. The real significance of these mysterious initials, the beautiful and heart-touching appellation of these magnificent metallugical works, is the "Blessed Benefactor," and a blessing and a benefactor they will prove, when the glorious programme of the company is fully carried out, to the poverty-stricken and benighted inhabitants of Chango county.

In reference to the past I will say but little. If, for the sake of argument, it is conceded that the gentleman who was intrusted with the arduous duty of putting into execution the benevolent intentions of the B. B. Company although a gentleman of unquestionable moral standing, of eminent piety and exalted intellect, did not entirely fulfill the high expectations of his associates, of whom the writer is an insignificant member, still it would ill become me, much more such low persons as "Millman" and "Sad Truth," to criticise, even by implication, the actions of a gentleman whose motives are above suspicion, and who, moreover, has voluntarily retired from his official position. Let us rather turn our attention to the future, pregnant as it is with bright promises of advancement, both moral and material, to the grovelling and degraded miner, now groping his subterranean way in physical and intellectual darkness.

The resumption of operations by the B. B. Company will inaugurate a new era in Chango county. The company's works will be regenerated and reconstructed from root to branch, or, to use language more appropriate to the subject, from the species of canal by which residual matter is removed after the complete extraction of the precious metals, vulgarly denominated the tail-race, to the graceful column of laminated iron which conveys to the "upper deep" the deleterious gasses and pernicious products of ligneous combustion and torrefaction of mineral substances.

These operations will be conducted under the supervision of a gentleman of known ability, assisted by a staff of competent officers, and subject to the control of a duly elected Board of Trustees, a minute record of whose proceedings will be kept with scrupulous care by a gentleman who modesty forbids me to mention more particularly, but who prides himself on a strict adherence to virtue, as well as on elegance and precision of diction.

The object of the company of the Blessed Benefaction will not be the accumulation of vile lucre for themselves, though of course desirous of securing a proper remuneration for their outlay, but the elevation of the ignorant and brutish miner to a higher moral plane, whence he may descry with tearful eyes and softened heart, the ineffable goodness of Divine Providence in creating both rich and poor, in order that the one may minister to the needs of the other; that the poor may labor to produce those things which are needed for the use and comfort of this perishable body, and receive in return a small, but for them sufficient share thereof, and in addition the inestimable benefit of government and the unutterable consolations of religion, neither of which can exist without a wealthy and intelligent class, such as the gentleman of the B. B. Company.

As I have already intruded too much on your valuable time and space, I will defer a description of the church and schools which it is the intention of the B. B. Company to erect (by subscription) for the benefit of the miner's families, though it seems few of them have families, and the most horrible immoral practices prevail among them. But all this will be changed. Meanwhile, I remain, gentleman.

Your obedient servant.

SECRETARY B. B. Co.

P. S.—This was written some months ago, but being displaced by the terrible, but doubtless deserved, visitation of March 26, would have remained in the oblivion of my escritoire but for the letter of "Another Millman," which manifestly alludes to the B. B. Mill. To the writer of that article I would mildly suggest that a wholesome diet of "beans and bacon," seasoned with pious discourse, would be more conducive to his spiritual welfare than riotous living in San Francisco.

Killing at Eureka.

A dispatch from Eureka, Nev., of July 14, gives the following particulars of a fatal shooting affray at that place:

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning a man named H. W. Guthrie, better known as "Club-foot," was murdered near the American building in this place. He received two charges of buckshot in the back from a shot gun, literally tearing him to pieces. Eight balls entered the small of his back and his right arm was completely riddled, being reduced almost to jelly in the in the vicinity of the elbow. Notwithstanding all these wounds he lingered in great agony for about four hours. He was sensible to the very last and talked rationally of the affair until he ceased to breathe. Judge Adams appeared and took his dying statement, which was in effect that Lew. Faurot had done the shooting. According to his statement he did not fall until the second shot was fired, when Faurot ran up, six-shooter in hand, exclaiming "you son of a — I'll finish you." At this juncture officer Mooney appeared and prevented further shooting. The man who fired the shots then made off. Later, however, Faurot was arrested. Two six-shooters were found on Guthrie, who is reported to have threatened Fourot's life on several occasions, and the universal impression seems to be that he generally meant what he said, and was a man to be feared. He was a native of Ohio, aged 38 years and had formerly lived in Tulare county, California. He has a sister residing in Visalia, California.

Stay of Execution.

We are informed that a stay of execution in the case of the People vs. Hart, wherein the defendant was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung on the 16th of August next, his case having gone on appeal to the Supreme Court. Rich.

The Mountain Sentinel gives an account of the discovery of a gold mine near Auburn, Baker county, Oregon, and claims that it is the richest in gold ever discovered on the coast. The ordinary quartz from the lode yields $800 to the ton, but it is in the pockets where the richest comes in. In one pocket the discoverer secured $4,000 in four days.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Board of Equalization.

The Board of Supervisors have been for the past week sitting as a Board of Equalization, and during the session transacted the following business:

Assessment of J. Hodges reduced from $18,277 to $15,254.

Owens Lake Silver-Lead Company—reduced from $35,870.44 to $29,520.44.

Wittekind Mining Company—from $3,400 to $2,500.

Macedonia mine—reduced from $2,440 to $1,840.

M. W. Belshaw—3,500 bars of bullion reduced from $105,000 to $21,000. This reduction was made on bullion assessed at five times its value, it appearing to the Board that there was no attempt to avoid assessment as was claimed.

Several other cases were brought before the Board, but it refused to take action upon them, and July 22d adjourned for the term.

Drowned.

On Saturday last a Mexican known as Manuel, whose full name we have not learned, was drowned at the mouth of Bishop Creek. He rode a mule into the river, which plunged and unseated him, when he swam until he got nearly across. Discovering that the mule had turned back, he started back after him and had got, as his companions thought, safe to shore, when to their surprise they saw him going down out of reach of assistance. He was prepared for swimming, having taken off his boots and coat before starting in. It is supposed that he became frightened or got the cramps. He was with a band of cattle belonging to Staniford, en route north from Tenechepi Pass.

County Jewelry.

Under Sheriff Moore has lately ornamented the walls of his office with a unique set of jewelry, consisting of three pair of shackels and four pair of handcuffs—one of the latter being intended for three persons, or one person with three hands, we are not certain which. They are all of the latest patent, and seem perfectly adapted for the uses required.

Died.

Guadaloupe Ochar, the Mexican wounded at Lida, died at Camp Independence on the 22d instant. He received a shot in the right arm in a drunken fracas at Lida on the Fourth, and was brought to the Post on the 12th, when his arm was amputated on the following day by Dr. White. The arm was in a terrible condition from neglect, and the unfortunate man died of pyemia.

The Foot of the Lake.

John Daneri is receiving lumber for his new warehouse and store at the embryotic town at the foot of Big Lake, which is now designated as "Danerisburg." A cargo of bullion is lying at that point waiting for shipment to Los Angeles.

Rafting.

Two rafts of lumber from the saw mills of Lewis and that of the Rowan Bros. have been lying in the river at Bishop Creek for over two weeks waiting for the water to subside, it being so high that the rafts are carried out on to the flats.

Always There.

Times change and men change, but the business of Uncle Abe Parker, the sylph-like blacksmith, never changes. He is always on hand, does the best of work and makes no unreasonable charges for it. See his new "ad."

Staging.

Ullrick & Wright have added another team of horses on their Independence and Aurora line, the changes being made at Fish Springs, Watson's, Fish Slough, Benton and Adobe Meadows.

Delayed.

The building of the new school house at Lone Pine has not yet been commenced for the want of lumber Many other contemplated improvements are delayed for a similar reason.

Overhauling.

The Bessie Brady is at Ferguson's Landing, where she is being overhauled and fitted with deck houses. She will be ready for business again on Monday next.

Not the Man.

"Bob" Grasier, who is "in the employ of Kitchen," says he isn't the man mentioned in our last as having unmercifully beaten a mule. We didn't suppose that he was.

Bell's Flouring Mills.

Elsewhere see advertisement of this standard institution of the county. We propose visiting it next week, and reporting fully on its merits.

Examining.

A somewhat noted mining expert is engaged in examining the San Carlos mines, for the purpose of reporting to the company at San Francisco.

Shipment.

The Eclipse company shipped, per last stage, two bars of bullion, valued at $1,000.

Crops

Are reported good and harvesting in full blast at Bishop Creek.

Resting.

The senior member of THE INDEPENDENT firm is taking a spin around the southern end of the county, in the interest of this "organ" and for general relaxation. We would request our old Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine friends to treat him gently like, for he's somewhat unsophisticated. Any man dead-heading him will be entitled to a part of the great future reward which is in store for editors. You can keep him as long as you like, and please be as amiable and obliging as possible should he happen to present a "little bill." However, never invite him to drink after he has already taken thirty cocktails, as we will not be responsible when he once gets started.

The Stokes Case.

New York dispatches to the Associated Press, of the 15th and 16th instants, give the following particulars concerning the farcical termination of the first trial of Fisk's murderer:

The Stokes jury did not retire until this morning. One report is that they stood nine for murder, one for manslaughter and two for acquittal; another, that they stood eight for acquittal, two for manslaughter tnd two for murder in the first degree. There are no hopes for an agreement.

LATER.—There was an immense crowd in the Court room this morning, awaiting the verdict. The prisoner and his counsel looked rather cheerful. When the jury entered and announced that they were unable to agree, the Court discharged them, and Stokes was returned to the Tombs. Among the reports as to the jury is one that seven were for murder in the first degree and five were for acquittal. A move will be made to-day to have Stokes bailed.

The Express, commenting on the Stokes case, calls it a farce and a contempt for common sense. "Hereafter, murder is no crime, but a trial and disagreement at first, and finally an acquittal."

The Commercial blames the law, which allows no intermediate verdict between murder in the first degree and manslaughter in the third deeree.

The Post says: "We are nearing, if we have not already reached the point where the taking of life is not considered murder, except in the case of vulgars burglars who have trespassed upon the rights of property and have sacrificed life to reach it. The particulars given of the proceedings of the jury show that on the first demonstration after retiring they stood seven for murder in the first degree, three for acquittal, and two for manslaughter in the third degree. The jury stood this way until they came into Court and got Fisk's clothes, which were all tried on one of the jurors. They arrived at the conclusion that Fisk had both arms enveloped in his military cape at the time Stokes fired, and consequently that the theory of Fisk's drawing a pistol was a humbug. This influenced the three who were for acquittal over to a verdict for manslaughter in the third degree. The medical testimony was thrown out altogether, all believing that the wound was mortal from the first, and the question of insanity was barely referred to. There was a long discussion as to premeditation. All of the jurors were of the opinion that Stokes never went to the Grand Central Hotel with a premeditated design of killing Fisk. The seven jurors who were for murder believed that when Stokes met Fisk on the stairs in a moment he formed in his mind the design of killing him, and that this second was a sufficient time for premeditation. The remaining five jurors stoutly maintained that Stokes pulled his pistol in the heat of passion, being stirred to frenzy by the sight of Fisk, and that the crime was only manslaughter in the third degree. Debate on this point became quite excited, and some hard words were used by both sides. Time and again a poll was taken, but all to no purpose. Firm in their opinions they all remained, and at last fell asleep, but woke up in precisely the same state of mind. Finally they gave up the dispute, seeing that there was no hope of altering their opinions. Several of the jurors stated that if they were allowed to bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree, or manslaughter in one of its highest degrees they would have reached a verdict; but this was not allowed them, as the Judge charged that they must either find a verdict of murder in the first degree, manslaughter in the third degree or acquittal."

Playing Possum.

Some few years since I witnessed rather a strange scene in Shakspeare's beautiful tragedy of Romeo and Juliet; it was at one of the western theaters. The piece had passed off well, without interruption, until the last scene. The character of Romeo was excellently enacted and loudly applauded. The very model of the lover was before the tomb of the Capulets, gazing upon the motionless form of her who had so attracted his soul, and meditating upon committing an act which would send his spirit to that undiscovered country where he supposed Juliet's had gone. Just as he had exclaimed "Here's to love!" and at the same moment raised the vial which contained the poison to his lips, a stalwart young countryman jumped upon the stage, seized him, dashed the vial from his hand, crushed it to atoms, yelling:

"You darned fool! She ain't dead! Only been takin' a little sleepin' medicine. Didn't yer get parson's letter?"

"Sirrah!" growled the enraged tragedian, while the house fairly shook with laughter.

"Why, yer gal ain't dead, I tell yer. The way it was, they wanted to make Julie marry that chap thar," pointing at Paris, "whose business you've just settled, but I tell you Julie war spunk—she got her back right up and vowed she wouldn't do it, even if while she was lyin' in the vault the ghost of the other feller whom you kilt should dash her brains out with the bones of some of her dead cousins. Wall, her spunk war up, and she took the stuff the parson fixed up so she could play possum till you got hum. That's the way it war," replied the countryman, giving the desperate husband a tremendous poke in the ribs with his elbow, and at the same time loosing his hold.

"Hell's curses on the fellow," muttered the raving tragedian, as he stalked behind the scenes.

"Wal, now," said the countryman, fronting the audience, "if that ain't the dod darndest, meanest cuss I ever did see I hope to be swowed. That's all the thanks I git for stoppin' him from pizening himself. Hope to be tarnelly swowed if ever I go to interfere agin when a fellow wants to murder himself," he continued, as he clambered back to his seat, just in time to prevent his upper story from coming in contact with the descending curtain.

The Outrage for Which Three Men Were Lynched.

The following account of the Secor outrage, for which three men were lynched, near Cleaveland, is taken from an Ohio paper:

On Sunday, the 22d ultimo, as little Belle Secor, aged 14 years, was returning from church, and while passing through a strip of woods, she was seized by these fiends, carried to an obscure place, and her person outraged. Not content with committing so horrible a crime, and to cover up their guilt, as they supposed, more effectually, they took a club and in a shocking manner broke her skull. This would have sufficed for the most hardened criminals known to modern crime, but not so with these villains. They cut and separated the head from the body, cut out the intestines, and so disfigured her that it would have been impossible to distinguish her sex save by the physique. Then they left the mangled body in the woods, to be eaten by the hogs.

We find the following additional particulars in The Schenectady Star, of the 11th:

The mob who lynched the men charged with outraging and murdering Miss Belle Secor, at Selma, Mercer county, Ohio, numbered three thousand. On leaving the jail the men were placed in a wagon, and an immense concourse, at the command "forward," marched off for the Kimmel farm, in sight of the place where the poor girl had been murdered and thrown to the hogs. Here they halted. Under a sapling a rude gallows was erected, and halters were fitted about the necks of the prisoners. At this juncture Elias Secor, brother of the murdered girl, appeared and plead for the life of Jacob Kimmel, the youngest prisoner, seventeen years old, expressing his doubts as to his participation in the affair. This appeal was received with cheers, and young Kimmel was exempted from the halter. Absalom Kimmel was much broken down, but McLeod maintained the same stoical indifference that he had shown from the first. He maintained stoutly that he had never seen the girl, and accounted for the blood on his clothes by bleeding from the nose. He took the testament, kissed it, and called on God to attest his innocence; he importuned them to have mercy on his poor mother and asked God to forgive them all. Absalom Kimmel adhered to his confession made the day before. The two were hung till they were dead, while the younger Kimmel was returned to jail. The father of the Kimmels was warned to leave the country in a specified time.

A Stern-wheeler.

At Louisville I left the mail boat, regretting exceedingly that I couldn't take it with me, and embarked on the stern-wheeler J. H. Rankin, bound for Evansville.

I once knew an old man who bet he would wheel a barrel of flour ten miles over a mud road if Henry Clay wasn't elected President. I never saw such a stern-wheeler as that man was about the sixth mile.

I made some little inquiry at Louisville as to how the steamer ranks, and I was gratified to find it rankin' about as high as any of the stern-wheelers. There was water enough to permit us going over the falls, which we did in gallant style, with colors flying.

Just below the falls we passed another stern-wheeler.

"We've left her astern!" cried the captain of the Rankin exultingly.

I rushed to the stern of the boat, examined it critically, and returning asked the captain if he wasn't mistaken about that.

"Mistaken about what?" he inquired.

"I think you remarked of yonder boat that we had left her a stern. I find on examination, that the stern like our flag, is 'still there;' and consequently, you couldn't left her a stern, unless you carry an extra stern or two to leave boats your on friendly terms with, which is hardly probable. No, captain, I saw you give her a bow as you passed, but you certainly haven't left her a stern."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the captain, "I mean we got a head of her."

"Got a head of her? Where is it? What do you propose to do with it?"

The captain regarded me long and sadly, and then he remarked in tones of deep solemnity:

"Young man, if it wasn't any better head than you've got, I would throw it overboad."

And yet I studied steamboating under Cons. Millar.

Stages.

A. O. Thoms' line of stages from Los Angeles to Visalia is well patronized, and, 'tis thought, will warrant a daily line to begin next month. A line to Havilah is promised in a short time, to connect with the Owens River stage.—Kern County Courier.

We understand that Thoms has been awarded the mail contract from Cerro Gordo to Los Angeles.

The Biter Bit.

Cyrille Dion, in his perambulations about Lockport, N. Y., recently very naturally dropped in to one of the billiard halls of the city. While watching a pocket game and quietly smoking a cigar, he was accosted by a pompous individual with the invitation, "Take a hand? Bet you five to one on a carom game of five hundred points." "Don't care if I do," says Dion blandly, whose name and station were entirely unknown to the profferer of the invitation. The money was staked, coats pulled off, and the game commenced. The stranger won the first shot and then missed. Dion only ran up ten points and then missed intentionally. The stranger then took the cue and ran right up some thirty points (for he was a good player) and then missed. Dion then took the cue like a prince, and with a smile of mingled disdain and satisfaction on his lip, ran up, without saying a word, 542 points! Had his cue not proved defective he could have made 1,000 easily. His opponent wilted, and has not been seen since.

A New Plan.

A Salt Lake letter says: When the congregation was dismissed, the rustle of silks and the flashing of diamonds attracted my attention, and I saw many of the poor Mormon women gazing with longing eyes on the rich dresses of their Gentile sisters. The contrast between saints and sinners was still further hightened by the conduct of the men. The Gentile men tucked the arms of their pretty wives under their own, and walked away with a proud air, while the Mormon women trudged off alone. How could a Mormon tuck the arms of half a dozen wives into his? And if he escorted one, or even two wives, how would the rest feel? If I wanted to break down Mormonism, I would put a dozen French millinery stores in Salt Lake City, give Gen. Morrow, the military commander, $15,000 or $20,000 to entertain with during the Winter, and station a strong corps of good-looking young army officers at Camp Douglas.

Our Commerce.

Some twenty ships are now in California waters, having an aggregate carrying capacity of 25,000 tons, and 200 more are on their way hither. Estimating the wheat crop at 400,000 tons—the crop of San Joaquin Valley alone being set at 300,000 tons—and these vessels will not have sufficient capacity to take it all hence. The Panama steamers will commence running tri-monthly on the 1st proximo and expect to carry wheat by that route to connect with English steamers at Aspinwall. Freights by sailing vessels to English ports from San Francisco are quoted at $20 per ton, although it is stated that vessels on the way are under engagements at $18. The rates ruling are exorbitant, but English commerce has it all her own way.—Vallejo Chronicle, July 9.

—A rather grand and dramatic style of expression came to a sudden collapse in Court the other day. An indignant witness exclaimed: "The first time that I did such a dishonorable act I would blow out my brains, sir." "Very good," said the counsel, "and what would you do the second time?"

VARIETIES.

—A writer in a Virginia paper tells a pleasantly characteristic story of John Randolph. Mr. Randolph was engaged to Miss ----, a very beautiful young Virginian, who lived near the Randolph place. One day, the lover was seen to quit the lady's residence in what might be described as a "state of mind." It turned out that the father of the lady had proposed that Mr. Randolph should settle a sum of money upon the bride; whereupon, the spirited lover remarked: "It is not my purpose to purchase. When I design to purchase, I shall go to the cheapest market —I shall go to Africa."

—There is a species of honey bees is South Africa without stings. They usually take possession of hollow trees, in which they construct rows of wax cups nearly the size of half an egg shell. When full of honey they are capped over to exclude the air, which preserves the contents in a liquid state. When one pot is finished they proceed with another, and thus store up an immense amount of delicious food, of which they are invariably robbed without the power of offering resistance.

—A man was brought before an Illinois magistrate and fined $6 50 for being drunk. He smiled blandly and drew out a dollar bill, saying: "All right, Mister Magistrate. I suppose you remember when I sold out my saloon in Pekin I had $5 50 on the slate against you. With this dollar, that will exactly pay my fine. You must excuse me, Squire, for this little spree of mine; but I didn't see any other way of collecting my bill against you than this."

—A gentleman, who had taken the horse cars for the Worcester depot, in Boston, encumbered wifh manifold bags and parcels, reached the bell-rope, with an effort, when he wished to get off, gave a vigorous pull, and the result was a sharp ring from both bells. "What are you ringing both ends for?" was the discourteous and surly reply of the conductor. "Because I wish the car to stop at both ends," was the quiet reply, that left a convulsed car-load and a discomfitted conductor.

—An exchange says: There is a curiously assorted couple in Lone Pine, California, the husband being nearly fifty years of age, and the wife barely twelve. What is more curious they have been married three years and the wife, who is small even for her age, wears short dresses and conducts herself like the child that she is.

—A Philadelphia girl has been so squeezed by her corset and her lover that she now sleeps in the cold, cold grave. A post mortem examination revealed the causes of her death, and Philadelphia girls now confine themselves to kissing alone, and permit even their most favored admirers no other liberty.

—Miss Ida Greeley is a young lady about eighteen, of medium height, handsome, with the soft dark eye, shapely features and fine complexion of her father. A mass of dark, brown hair is done up in becoming folds about her head. Her manners are affable and cordial, her conversation ready and sprightly.

—Thibodeaux, La., has a curious system of water-works. The town lies below the level of the sea, and is protected by a dyke. Over this embankment water is introduced by large siphons, by means of which the streets are sprinkled, the ditches kept clean and the atmosphere cooled.

—Jenkins, an old whisky bloat, had a son born to him recently. The nurse put his first born in his arms, and Jenkins, regarding it lovingly, while a tear trickled down his grog be-blossomed nose, said, "Twenty years hence he will keep me in whisky."

—Mark Twain says Franklin was always proud of telling how he entered Philadelphia for the first time with nothing in the world but two shillings in his pocket and four rolls of bread under his arm. But really it was nothing. Any body could have done it.

—A grim, hard-headed old judge, after hearing a flowery discourse from a pretentious young barrister, advised him to pluck out some of the feathers from the wings of his imagination and put them into the tail of his judgment.

—A number of ladies in Greenville, Ala., have signed the following pledge: "We, the undersigned, do promise hereby that we will faithfully abstain from the use of tobacco in any shape, form or manner while in church."

—A Utica girl at the proper hour pulls a string which reverses a picture on the back of which appear in huge characters the words: "Ten 'oclock is my bed-time," and her admirers take the gentle hint and depart.

—"We will meet in heaven, husband dear," is the affectionate epitaph which an Ohio woman has had inscribed upon the tombstones of each of three departed husbands. Trouble ahead in that family, certain.

—Madam Oviedo, the New York belle, who, two years ago, married the Cuban millionaire, who considerately died shortly after, now lives on a hundred thousand a year, and lays up seven hundred thousand dollars.

—The simplicity that believes that the stars are the innumerable ends of God's shining fingers piercing the heavens, is infinitely more blessed than the astute skepticism that believes nothing.

—When the millennium will come: When knowledge becomes an instrument of good; power an instrument of justice and honesty is honored equally in precept and in practice.

The Corpses of the Great.

The embalming of Mazzini's body recalls the singular fate which has attended the remains of so many distinguished men—in fact, an extremely interesting volume might be made of the posthumous adventures of the bodies of those whose memory the world has sought to keep alive. There is but little doubt that the tombs of the Pantheon of Paris, which are shown as containing the remains of Voltaire and Rosseau, are in fact empty, having been rifled during one of the periods of Conservative reaction in France. Milton's head is said to be in the possession of a private collector in London. So is Cromwell's. Jeremy Benthem's body, by his direction, was stuffed, and dressed in his usual suit of clothes, with his hat on, his stick in his hand, and seated in his chair, is now preserved in a glass case. A few years ago there was sold at auction in London what was said to be the head of Confucius, the Chinese sage. It was was a skull mounted in gold, and was said to have been taken by an English sailor from the Summer palace in Pekin when that building was sacked. In Le Chemin des Ecoliers, by Saintain, there is an illustration by Dore, drawn with the imaginative realism of that artist, representing the skeleton of Charlemagne seated in his tomb at Aix la-Chappelle, with his crown upon his skeleton head, and his bones wrapped in the Imperial robes. This tomb was built by Charlemagne for himself, and was buried there. In 997 Otho III had the tomb opened, and found the skeleton as Dore has depicted it, seated upon the marble chair, which is still shown to the curious. Otho found the body and the Imperial robes much decayed, but, bowing respectfully before the remains of the great King, retired and had the door sealed again. In 1165 however, they were opened again by Frederick Barbarossa, more for plunder than for curiosity. Having possessed himself of the treasure the tomb contained, he removed the skeleton and distributed its fragments as relics, and the skull and some of the bones can be seen in Aix-la-Chappelle, where, with other curiosities, they are shown for five francs a head.

Heavy Suit.

[From The Virginia Chronicle.]

It seems that fate has decreed that development shall follow development to an alarming extent in regard to mining operations and schemes, and the utter depravity of the guilty be be stripped to the view of honest men. Gen. John B. Winters, by his attorney Will Campbell, commenced suit against William Sharon on the 17th of this month, for the sum of $50,000 and costs of action. The complaint alleges that the defendant entered into an agreement with the plaintiff, whereby they mutually agreed to purchase 1,600 shares of the capital stock of a corporation known as the Kentuck Mining Company, and they mutually agreed to divide profit and losses in said purchase and sale of such mining stock, the plaintiff to receive one-third of the profits and pay one-third of the loss, if there should be any, on the sale of the same. The stock was purchased under this agreement, and was placed in the hands of Sharon for the mutual profits and advantages aforesaid. Plaintiff avers that Sharon did sell said stock at great profit—to-wit: one million five hundred thousand dollars over and above the cost thereof; that the said defendant had the whole charge and control of the same, with full power to sell at the highest market rates; that on or about the 1st day of November, 1870, the said plaintiff made demand for his share of the profits derived from said sale; that said Sharon refused, and now refuses, to accede to the demand of said Winters; so it is now made through the District Court of the First Judicial District. From this brief synopsis our readers can form a fair idea of the burden of the complaint.

—A popular doctor in Oswego gave a prescription with directions to "take one teaspoonful every three years." The patient recovered.

The Sea Serpent Again.

J. Cobbin, of Durban, forwards to The Natal Colonies (Africa), the following account of a "sea-serpent" seen by him:

During my passage from London I saw no less than three sea-serpents, but an account of the last will suffice. On the 30th of December last, on board the Silvery Wave, in latitude about 35° S., and longitude 33:30 E., at 6:20 P. M. solar time, an enormous serpent passing nearly across our bows compelled the alteration of our course. He was at least one thousand yards long, of which about one-third appeared on the surface of the water at every stroke of his enormous fan-shaped tail, with which he propelled himself, raising it high above the waves, and arching his back like a land snake or caterpillar. In shape and proportion he much resembled the cobra, being marked by the same knotty and swollen protuberance at the back of the head and neck. The latter was the thickest part of the serpent. His head was like a bull's in shape, his eyes large and glowing, his ears had circular tips and were level with his eyes, and his head was surmounted by a horny crest which he erected and depressed at pleasure. He swam with great rapidity, and lashed the sea into a foam, like breakers dashing over jagged rocks. The sun shone brightly upon him and with a good glass I saw his overlapping scales open and shut with every arch of his sinuous back, colored like the rainbow.

A "Magnificent Echo."

Up in Lehigh Valley there is a hotel keeper who has a mountain about a quarter of a mile from his house, and it occurred to him that it would be a good idea if he could fix things so that a magnificent echo could be heard from the mountain by persons who stood at his hotel and halloed. So he engaged a boy to secrete himself behind a clump of trees, with orders to repeat the words of any one talking on the roof of the hotel. After practicing to make sure, the landlord announced one day his discovery of the echo, and took up a lot of people to enjoy it. They called for half an hour, but no echo responded. At last, when the landlord had become crimson with rage, and was about to give it up, the echo came but not in the shape expected. It said: "Bin down to the spring far mother; fire away now, I'm all right." The guests smiled and mine host suddenly disappeared. It is dangerous now to mention the word "echo" at that hotel.

Another Tunnel Enterprise.

A joint stock company has been organized and registered in London to commence the construction of a tunnel under the Straits of Dover. Two millions pounds sterling, or $10,000,000, will be required for the experimental driltway, and it is calculated that the tunnel can be finished in five years for five millions sterling, or $25,000,000, working day and night from both ends. The distance is twenty-two miles, and as no shafts for ventilation are spoken of, it is understood that the plan includes two parallel tunnels with trains running only in one direction through each, so as to keep up a constant current of air. This is the most herculean project of modern times, but as the bed of the arm of the sea between Calais and Dover rest on a chalky formation it is believed to be highly feasible.

Facts about Tacks.

The length of tacks, as understood and given by the manufacturers, is by the "ounce," which is printed on the label, and stenciled on the box or package in which the goods are placed for transportation. "Three ounce" (3 oz) means that the package so labeled contains tacks three-eighths of an inch long, and that for every three ounces of tacks of that length there should be 1,000 tacks. Four ounce would be seven sixteenths inch long; six ounce, eight-sixteenths; eight ounce, nine-sixteenths inch long, and for each "full weight" package thus labeled there should be 1,000 tacks, and so on up to twenty-four ounce, which likewise is equivalent to one and a quarter inches long, and 1,000 tacks.

School Girls.

The following note, written by a girl to her schoolmate, illustrates the sweet simplicity of childhood: "Dear Susie—I shan't attend school until I get some new cuffs, collars and jewelry. Dear mamma agrees with me that it is my dooty to take the shine out of that Upstart Mary Jones, and I'll do it if I never learn nothing."

Not Surprised.

"Mother, I should not be surprised if our Susan gets choked some day." "Why, my son?" "Because her beau twisted his arms around her neck the other night, and if she had not kissed him to let her go, he would have strangled her."

—Happy should be the community that has a good local paper in its midst, and the solemn duty incumbent upon it is to give it hearty and earnest support. —American Press.

—An apiarist at Aurora, Ill., has lost 95 swarms out of 110 swarms of bees, in consequence of civil war between them.

—More than a million pounds of willow leaf were made up last season at Shanghae and palmed off as green tea.

THE TAX RATE

During the ensuing session of the Board of Supervisors that honorable body, under the workings of the new code, will have a somewhat embarrassing question to decide: that relative to the rate per cent. of taxes yet to be collected. According to instructions issued last Spring by the State Board of Equalization, the Tax Collector made his collections upon all personal property belonging to non-real-estate holders at the old rate, which, we believe, was three dollars per hundred. In the aggregate, this amounted to about $7,000. At this rate, under the new system of "full cash value" assessments, the total tax will amount to nearly double that of last year, and will prove onerous and burdensome in proportion. As the current needs of the county do not require such a large sum at once, it is generally expected that the rates will be reduced in a proper ratio to the increase of taxable property, but as the law requires that taxes shall be uniform, the question arises as to what is to be done in reference to those already collected. To collect at the high rate from one and only half as much from another, months afterwards, is not a fair thing nor in accordance with constitutional rights. To collect from all at the high rate is imposing a most onerous and uncalled for burden. It is, so to speak, to compel the present generation to pay debts which should be shared in by the next. We know nothing as to what instructions the State Board may have given in this regard, or whether they have considered it at all; but if the matter is to be decided by the County Board we would suggest that the rate be reduced in fair proportion to the old standard. Transient stock men are so far the only sufferers, and we fail to see wherein their burdens would be lightened by imposing an equally heavy tax on permanent residents. That stock men own no land is scarcely the fault of our officials. The sensible course of making a proper reduction and adopting a low rate is the one to pursue, even though the possible contingency of refunding a portion is involved. Otherwise the new code and thorough system of assessments will have inflicted a serious evil upon us.

A QUESTION FOR SAVANS.

During the past four weeks the water in Owens Lake has been rising quite rapidly; sometimes as much as four or five inches in a night. During this period the water in Owens River, its main and almost only source of supply, has been constantly diminishing, while the loss by evaporation has certainly not been less than usual. For a short time after the earthquake the waters of the lake fell several feet, and then became stationary, remaining at about the same point until the time mentioned above. Previous to the earthquake the lake had been steadily rising for ten years, the wagon road, opposite the Swansea furnace, then traveled, being now under about five feet of water and some two or three hundred yards from the present shore line. Innumerable springs have broken out all along the foot of the hills for a mile or more west of Swansea, rendering the low lands next the lake swampy and entirely impassable for vehicles; this ground was perfectly dry before the earthquake. The only stream of water or spring existing along here previous to that occurrence was a very small one in Docwiler's cellar. For a time this went entirely dry, but in about ten days after the big shake, and simultaneously with all the others alluded to, this spring commenced running ten times its former volume. At no great distance from the surface the underlying ground here is a stiff clay. This was opened in deep cracks running parallel to the foothills and lake shore, and we presume that the surface earth and sand falling into these cracks dammed up former underground channels and forced the water to the surface. But this theory affords no satisfactory clue to the extraordinary and sudden rise of the lake itself. It would seem as though some subterranean outlet had become suddenly and entirely closed, for large as the river is, it would require almost the whole amount of water it carries into the lake, with no allowance for loss by evaporation, to increase the depth of water three feet or thereabouts in such a short time over a surface of 14 by 26 miles square.

Sumner has written a letter, coming out in favor of Greeley.

THE CERRO GORDO TOLL-ROAD.

It is generally conceded that where puplic necessity requires the construction and maintenance of expensive roads it is better in all such cases to have them built by private enterprise, which is to be recompensed by the tolls collected. It is presumed that the parties holding such right will do all reasonable things to improve their property in consideration of the increase of their own gains thereby, though it may not be done merely to accommodate a public in return for a favor granted The self interest of the holders of a road franchise, for instance, is supposed to be a sufficient guarantee that the road will be built and kept in the best possible order. Honest and liberal minded men do not do these things solely through self-interest and the fear of opposition. When an exclusive franchise falls into the hands of a man whose soul is not above a five cent piece then the public may expect to be choked until that five-cent piece is forthcoming. That is precisely the past and present condition of Cerro Gordo, the most important mining district in the county. In an evil hour the county gave up its own surveyed highway to M. W. Belshaw & Co., on condition that they would construct a good practical wagon road into that place in consideration of the right of collecting tolls. He so far complied with this condition as to expend $2,000 in cutting a narrow wagon track, having a grade of from 28 to 48 inches to the rod around two or three points, the aggregate length of these improvements being less than two miles, or one-fifth of the whole distance claimed in his franchise. Though this remainder was left as Nature made it, tolls were demanded for the whole. The possession of two of the points mentioned gives him the exclusive control of the only practical route into Cerro Gordo, and knowing this he has and does persistently refuse to spend a dollar in improving his road to make it passably good for even half loaded wagons. The interests of the O. L. S.-L Co. imperatively demanded better facilities than that afforded by any portion of this abortion of a toll road, and accordingly Darrah & Miers, contractors for that company, expended some $7,000 out of their own pockets and built a good road over the whole distance, with the exception of the two points above named around which it was not possible for them to pass. It was cheaper for them to do this than to be at the expense of repairs to wagons occasioned by the outrageous condition of this toll road, to say nothing of the loss sustained by reason of not being able to carry either way more than half loads for ordinary roads. As no travel passes over any part of the Belshaw road except in these two short canyons it might reasonably be expected there would be a commutation in the tolls, but such is not the fact by any means. It might also be expected that he would expend a few dollars in repairing and improving this short piece of road, but no; Darrah & Miers have that to do all the time and pay for the privilege besides.

He is receiving $600 a year tolls (an infinitesimal part of the whole) from one stage line alone; he has been offered $150 per month rent, and $8,000 for his title to this road, and then when taxes are demanded upon it he comes forward and makes oath that its "full cash value" does not exceed one thousand dollars!

Now, that being its fixed value we earnestly recommend that the county take it at that price for the public benefit. The law gives the right and the public interest demands it, or that the rates of toll be so reduced that those having the greater part of that burden to bear may be enabled to expend the money thus saved in much needed improvements on this road, which Belshaw never will make as long as he thinks he can thereby prevent any other individual or company from getting a foothold in what he conceives to be his especial domain—the mines of Cerro Gordo. His whole connection with that camp, in far more important matters than this road, has been characterized by a selfish and illiberal policy which, for the general good, we hope may soon be brought to an end. So far as we know, he patronizes no home industries of any sort save wood-choppers, and they have to pay him full price for the very water they dip from his spring. He makes a poor return to a country that has yielded him hundreds of thousands of dollars; very, indeed.

More Nominations.

The straight-out Democrats are fully determined to hold a Convention at Louisville soon and bring out a Presidential candidate of their own. The movement seems to meet considerable favor in some quarters.

—It cost The New York Herald $20,000 to find Dr. Livingstone.

CAMP INDEPENDENCE.

Congress has made an appropriation of $30,000 for military building, purposes on the Pacific coast, about $30,000 of which will be devoted to the rebuilding of Camp Independence. As may be seen elsewhere in this paper, the Quarter Master at the Post invites bids for the construction of the different buildings, according to plans and specifications to be examined at his office. The appropriation is niggardly in the extreme, and it is doubtful if all the required structures can be erected with the sum named. However, half a loaf is better than none, and the action indicates the permanent establishment of the Post—which is as it should be.

The Mexican President Dead.

Through a New York telegram from Matamoras the news comes of the sudden death of President Juarez. Apoplexy is the reported cause, but it is more than probable this extraordinary man has fallen a victim to foul play. His noble fight against the outrageous aggressions and oppressions of the Churchmen has caused him many bitter and unscrupulous enemies, among whom there were quite enough who would gladly compass his death by any means within their power. He was the only obstacle in the way of the successful prosecution of the nefarious ecclesiastical operations aiming to make the Church superior to the State. The death of Benito Juarez, no matter by what means, is the greatest loss the Mexican people have yet sustained. Revolution and anarchy will now be the order of the day. Rebellion had but just ended in all the States, and the chiefs were at the capital begging amnesty.

By The Hour.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company have disposed for the present of the labor question, so far as their employes are concerned, by the adoption of a rule employing all workmen by the hour. If they wish to work ten, twelve or fourteen hours, where there is a demand for it, they can do so and earn wages accordingly. If work is slack, or if any man thinks ten hours a day too heavy a task, he can have his choice to labor eight, or six, or but five hours, if he believes that enough, of course receiving pay only in proportion to his time. The New York Evening Post thinks this rule can work no more than a temporary settlement of the question, but that the question of a fair distribution of the profits of labor must have a much more radical solution.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Small-pox has made its appearance in Los Angeles.

A freight train of fifty-two cars was wrecked twelve miles from Winnemucca on the Central Pacific Railroad. Some of the passengers in the emigrant car were injured, but none seriously.

The Greeley and Brown Convention of the First Congressional District met July 25 in San Francisco, and nominated Piper for Congress on the first ballot. The friends of Wand, one of the candidates, refused to make the nomination unanimous.

Col. A. W. Von Schmidt has received the contract for running the eastern boundary line of California and Nevada. He will commence work immediately.

Charles F. Lehman, City Marshal of Anaheim, was shot, and has since died of his injuries, while in the discharge of his duty on Sunday, July 23. His dying testimony accuses Davis, the Constable, of firing the fatal shot. The testimony is corroborated by a witness, and also by the ball extracted which fitted Davis' pistol. The Coroner's jury gave a verdict simply as to the cause of death. A fued between the Marshal and Constable is said to have existed for some time.

A conflict of authority between the military officers of the Presidio, San Francisco, and the Health officer of the city has arisen on a small-pox question. The Health officer charges the military with a violation of the health ordnances by sending small-pox patients to a place near Point Lobos, while the military reply that they make their own sanitary regulations and are not bound to obey the civil ordinances. The matter will go into Court.

The Grand Jury of Storey county, Nevada, are inquiring into the cause of the Yellow Jacket fire.

Gold Hill was lighted by gas for the first time, July 27.

The railroad proposition of the Southern Pacific met considerable opposition at Los Angeles, because of the stipulation allowing five years to make connection with San Francisco.

On the west side of the San Joaquin river there are yet large fields of grain uncut, and not over one-half of the crop is thrashed. Fully one-half the grain will have to be stored in the locality, as it will be impossible to ship it before the fall in the river will render boating impossible.

The Greeley and Brown party had a large ratification meeting in San Francisco July 22.

A grand tournament will constitute a feature of the San Joaquin Valley Fair in September.

The Owens Valley Earthquake.

IN TWO PAPERS.—I. LOCAL DETAILS

[Prof. Whitney in The Overland Monthly.]

The earthquake of March 26, 1872, having been more disastrous in its effects than any which have taken place on the Pacific coast, north of Mexico, since California became a part of the United States, has naturally attracted much attention, and been much written and commented upon. The distance of that part of the State where the most violent disturbances took place from the ordinary routes of travel is such that few, except those residing there, could see for themselves what had actually happened; and it is quite natural that exaggerated stories should have been put in circulation when the truth itself was so remarkable. The exigencies of the Geological Survey work requiring that a party should pass through Owens Valley to reach the field of their labors, occasion was taken to inquire and observe, as carefully as time would allow, into all the principal facts connected with this earthquake; and the following pages contain a plain statement of the results obtained, with such few comments as the space at our command will allow us to append. It must be borne in mind, however, that the region where the disturbances occurred is one which is very thinly inhabited; and that the buildings which existed there at the time of the shock were of the kind most unsuitable for the preservation of a serviceable record, in the form of fractured walls and the like, for future examination by the scientific observer. Hence, the results obtained are less satisfactory than might, perhaps, have been expected, or than they would have been in a thickly settled region, over which large and well built edifices had been erected. Still, a number of valuable facts have been observed, and some general conclusions can be drawn with safety from the data collected.

To understand what follows, it will be necessary to devote a few lines to a sketch of the geography and geology of Owens Valley, since it is a region but little known, even to Californians, and quite a terra incognita to the ordinary reader. And yet, it is certainly one of the most remarkable portions of a remarkable State; and it is safe to assert that it will, at no distant period, attract many visitors. For its position, is almost if not quite unique, in respect to the attractions of its scenery, among all the valleys of which our ample territory has the right to boast. It is traversed by the river of the same name, which rises in that remarkable knot of mountains in which head the Merced, the Tuolumne and the San Joaquin, and of which the dominating summits are Mount Ritter and Mount Lyell—two peaks which are very conspicuous from Mount Hoffman and other high points around the Yosemite Valley. After leaving the mountains, Owens River runs through a large, secluded valley, lying some thirty miles, a little to the east of south, of Mono Lake, and called Long Valley. Leaving this, it makes its way through a volcanic table-land, in a deep, precipitous canyon, from which it emerges and enters Owens Valley proper, bending its previous easterly course into an almost southerly one. After running some seventy miles in a south-south-east direction, it empties into Owens Lake, where it becomes lost by evaporation—like all the other streams in the Great Basin, on the western borders of which Owens Valley lies. Both sides of the valley are bordered by extremely steep and elevated mountains, by which it is closed in, as if by two gigantic walls. On the west is the Sierra Nevada, with no pass across it of less than twelve thousand feet in elevation; the crest of the range broken into a thousand pinnacles and battlements, and rising to from fourteen thousand to fifteen thousand feet above the sea level, and from ten thousand to eleven thousand feet above the valley itself, which at Lone Pine is about four thousand feet above tide-water. The eastern wall is formed by the range of mountains called Inyo in the southern part of the valley, and the White Mountains farther north; for this chain double in name is in reality a unit. The Sierra wall of the valley is, in fact, the eastern edge, or face, of a great mass of mountains, from seventy to a hundred miles in width, intersected with numberless deep canyons, the divides between which are crested with domes and pinnacles—forming a vast labrinth, whose recesses remain yet to be explored, and to disclose scenes of grandeur and beauty rivaling those presented by the Alpine chains. The Inyo and White Mountain range, on the other hand, is one narrow crest, almost unique in its narrowness and steepness. It rises very precipitously from the valley to a hight of from eight thousand to eleven thousand feet above the sea, or four thousand or seven thousand feet above the plain at its foot. Dark, sombre, destitute of trees and water, and rarely whitened with snow, even for a short period, it presents a most striking contrast to the Sierra side of the valley, down which the snow masses extend, at least—at this time of the present year—for a distance of five thousand to six thousand feet vertical, and whose melting feeds the numerous and copious streams which make the valley habitable.

At Lone Pine it is only eighteen miles across from summit to summit of the ranges; the bottom or level portion of the valley being two or three miles in width. On the Sierra side, there extends from the base of the precipitous portion of the range a long slope gently descending at an angle of five or six degrees, covered with sage-brush, and made up of coarse detritus from the mountains behind—a vast pile of bowlders, gravel and sand, two thousand feet thick at the upper end, and spread out at the foot of the range in a belt of varying width, which, in some places, is as much as six or seven miles. Just where this vast belt of detritus, or "sage-brush slope" meets the valley bottom, the mountain streams lose their torrential character, and finer sediment being deposited, there is a growth of vegetation somewhat meadow like in character. It is on this fringe along the edge of the sage brush—which, however, is not continuous, but rather in patches opposite to the great canyons from which issue the numerous streams referred to above—that the small settlements in the valley are exclusively located.

The geology of Owens Valley is as interesting as its scenery is grand. The two great ranges which enclose it are not of the same geological age, nor are they at all alike in structure or lithological character. The Sierra is chiefly one vast mass of granite; indeed, this is the only rock visible, from the south end of Owens Lake north as far as the thirty-seventh parallel, which crosses the valley about nine miles north of Camp Independence. The interior of the chain, between the parallels of 36 degrees 30 minutes and 37 degrees is also all granite, so far as we know. This granite has been elevated since the Jurassic and belongs to the Sierra Nevada system of upheaval. The Inyo and White Mountain range, on the other hand, is much more ancient being a part of the great Palæozoic formation which occupies so extensive an area in the Great Basin. The mass of these mountains, instead of being made up of granite, consists chiefly of limestone, sandstone, and other stratified materials, tilted up at a high angle, and with the most complicated system of strike and dip.

Midway in the valley, commencing at a point about thirty miles north of Lone Pine, and extending for ten miles, there is a region of volcanic cones and lava flows, by which the river is crowded over against the Inyo range, at the foot of which it has just room to flow. These cones are seemingly as perfect as they ever were; and the flows of basalt have spread themselves out over the sage-brush slope in a manner wonderfully indicative of a recent date for their outbreaking. Yet all now is absolutely quiet. The volcanic forces are dormant. Farther up the valley, however, especially after the river bends to the westward, and when we reach the volcanic lands, spoken of before, and which forms a vast plateau south of Mono Lake, there are abundant indications of former volcanic activity, in the usual form of solfataras and hot springs.

So, too, south of Owens Lake, in the mountains which lie east of the Sierra, and which are known as the Coso range, are numerous cones, from which long, dark streams of basaltic lava may be easily traced down into the valley, where they have spread out in great tables. As we debouch from Walker's Pass, we see the Coso Mountains off to the northeast, and the basaltic cones and flows offer a curious contrast of color with the light colored granitic rocks forming the mass of the range from which the volcanic masses have issued; so that it was hard for us to convince ourselves, for some time, that these dark spots were not the shadows of clouds resting over the landscape.

We have then in this region all the elements of geological disturbances; a narrow valley, which was once a chasm of immense depth, between two stupendous ranges of very different geological ages; and volcanic cones and lava flows, which have issued from the interior of the earth since the detrital slope at the base of the Sierra was formed. The gigantic character of the forces which have here been called into play is evident on every hand, and the observer, even if no geologist, cannot fail to become impressed with the idea that the fabric of the earth must have been shaken to its very center while these stupendous features of its surface were in process of developement.

[Here follows a lengthy account of local effects and incidents, the publication of which we are obliged to forego for lack of space. It is simply a repetition of facts, most all of which have previously appeared in the newspapers, and interesting only because given by a noted author. In the Professor's next paper in The Overland we are to expect the promulgation of his theory of earthquakes, which we shall endeavor to present in full.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Benton Affairs.

We hear that at the present time there is scarcely a dollar of money in circulation about Benton, but it must not be inferred that this fact is one indicative that Benton is on its last legs. On the contrary, its prospects were never more flattering. The present scarcity of money is explained in this wise: Heretofore the supply has been kept up by returns on the many tons of rich ores sent to Reno for reduction. Now, owing to the fact that a new mill is soon to start up on the ground, no ores have been sent forward, but is being piled up on the dumps for reduction at home. The mill is expected to start up in about thirty days, but in all probability it will be twice that long before it is fairly in operation, so that until that time the money market is bound to be "powerful tight," and the boys will continue to grow very seedy. On the dumps of some five or six mines there is, in the aggregate, enough two and three hundred dollar ore to keep that mill in constant operation for six months, and that, too, without raising another pound. The value of the ores, some of which yields from six to seven hundred dollars, is not a matter of speculation, it having been determined in every instance and in large amounts by actual mill process. Should this mill be as successful as the works at Reno, it will be seen that in a money point of view Benton must soon flourish like a green bay tree, and more too.

Recovering.

Notwithstanding the very dangerous wounds that Dan Bircham received at the hands of Geo. Lee some four weeks since, Dr. Columber has managed to bring him through, and no doubts are entertained for his recovery. In answer to a communication requesting information on the point, we will state that "Dan" Bircham, the wounded man, is not "Jim" Bircham of Bishop Creek. It was Dan, old man Bircham's son, and nobody else.

At Home Again.

We are glad to chronicle the return home of several Inyoites who have lately been wandering promiscuously around the country. Among the rest are P. Reddy, Mr. Lentell and Mr. Rhine—all a little too well known to need an introduction. They return satisfied that this country is about as good as any, and so settle down to regular business after their rest.

Returned.

Major H. C. Egbert arrived at Camp Independence on Wednesday last, from San Francisco. He reports that Gen. Schofield, with a large corps of distinguished officers, will arrive here to-morrow or on the Monday following. The General is accompanied by Bierstadt, the artist, and others of more or less note.

Challenge.

Sergeant Remsnyder challenges Mr. James Dulith for a diving match, to come off at any time and place agreeable, for $50 or $100 a side. The challenger has deposited $10 as a forfeit at this office, and hopes that Mr. Dulith will "see" it. We hope that a match will be arranged.

Regular Term.

The Board of Supervisors convene in regular session on Monday next, with a large amount of very important business to consider. The quarterly report of the County Treasurer will be looked for with interest, and the rate of tax-levy for the ensuing year is one of general concern.

Visitor.

State Senator Phelan, of Storey county, Nevada, paid a short visit to Independence and some old Virginia friends during the past week. He was looking for some earthquake, to put in his cabinet.

Cuckoo.

The "Cuckoo Saloon," Cerro Gordo, Johnson & Co., proprietors, appears as an advertised institution this week, and offers superior inducements to those who imbibe.

Stage Travel.

With the next issue we commence the regular publication of all arrivals and departures by the various stage lines for the week preceding each Saturday.

Dangerously Ill.

We are sorry to hear that Senator W. M. Boring, well known to many throughout this section, is lying very dangerously ill at his home in Aurora.

The Cosmopolitan.

See new advertisement of Davison & Hughes' saloon, Cerro Gordo. It is a huge concern, and they know how to run it.

Left Over.

Several "lokleytems" of more or less interest are necessarily "scrouged out" of this issue, to receive attention next week.

Bed Bugs.

Wash bedsteads with a strong brine, and sprinkle fine salt in the cracks and clothing, and the last bug will leave.

Notice.

The attention of parties interested is directed to the "notice" given by Mr. Sneden, of Bishop Creek.

A LOOK AT OUR MINES.

We recently spent a number of days in climbing up and down and through the mines of Cerro Gordo and the adjoining district of Belmont. It is too much to undertake a statement in detail of our observations in any of the mines, but shall briefly refer to each. First in order comes

THE SANTA MARIA OR THE FRONT.

This mine, with a number of others, belongs to the Owens Lake Silver-Lead Company, and is under the immediate supervision of Mr. John Simpson—than whom a more energetic or better qualified foreman cannot be found on the hill. Under his lead we traversed tunnels, inclines and shafts in all their mystifying lengths, depths, angles and windings. It would be extremely absurd for a novice in underground mining to attempt at the first visit to convey a true idea of the extent of ore deposits, first seen in one portion of the mine, then again in some other level or side drift, the said deposit supposed to extend through and through, but whether it is but a few feet or many rods none but an expert might say. However that might be we saw bodies of good ore in several places in the upper levels and to all appearance extending through to the lower, a probable depth of one hundred and fifty feet. The walls on both sides are well defined, and appear to be from ten to sixty feet apart. By far the greater portion of the vein matter is barren, the ores in this as in all other mines of the district, being found in pockets, some of them yielding thousands of tons of rich soft and hard ores. In this mine there has never been a day during the past four years when there was not a considerable, sometimes a very large, body of ore in sight and, until the bottom is reached, however deep that may be, it is highly probable no such event ever will occur. To the lower levels of the Santa Maria chutes have been raised from one hundred feet below. This tunnel belongs to the same company, and is sixteen hundred feet in length, running south under all the principal mines of the hill, and cutting about one hundred feet deeper than the lowest working levels of any of them. From this it will be seen that through this tunnel all these mines might be worked to much better advantage than by hoisting directly to the surface, as several of them are now and have been doing. Some four hundred feet from the mouth of the tunnel is a shaft down one hundred and sixty feet on

THE OMEGA NO. 1.

In this shaft, commencing at a point about half way from the top and extending an unknown distance below, a fine body of very rich carbonate ore is to be seen. This is the deepest excavation in Cerro Gordo, and, so far as we know, in the county. On the night of the big earthquake there were but few miners at work, but two of them, "old Frank," a Mexican, and his "pard" name and nationality to us unknown, were at work in a side drift extending out some twenty feet from the bottom of this shaft. Feeling desirous to know something of the experience of the man the deepest down in the bowels of the earth on that memorable occasion we approached Frank on the subject, but with much indignation, great volubility and actuated by any amount of bad whisky he positively declined to be interviewed, for the reason that we had badly treated and were "jaloose of Lone Pine." Not being a Chronicle reporter we were forced to obtain our information on this interesting point at second hands, but it is not worth repetition here.

Owing to a conflicting title, now happily settled, work on all the above named property has been greatly retarded. Within the past month the O. L. S-L. Company paid Messrs. Bennett and Reddy $30,000 cash down and enterred into an agreement to pay within eighteen months an additional $30,000 for their title, covering that of Dorr, to the Santa Maria, which is the predomidating mine of the series belonging to that company, if not of the entire hill. This company have expended in the purchase and systematic development of this mine a very large sum of money. It is considered the most valuable in the district and in the best shape for working, although at the present time another mine in the immediate vicinity, of which we shall presently speak, has a larger body of ore in sight. There is enough ore exposed, however, in the Omega tunnel and connections to keep the company's furnace at Swansea in constant operation, and now that all necessary preliminaries have but just been effected, the work of extracting it begins at once. Some fifty men are employed in and about this mine.

THE UNION MINE.

This mine is the joint property of Messrs. Belshaw and Beaudry, the owners of the two furnaces which have done so much to give the place a name. Our visit to the Union was attended by circumstances not calculated to give us a very elevated opinion of the courteous nature of the gentleman in charge, Mr. J. L. Porter. That is to say, acting upon an ungracious assent we followed him down some 300 feet of ladders to the bottom of the whim shaft and the present lowest working level; but here, owing to his greater agility, specific gravity occasioned by the lead that has become incorporated in his system, or our slowness in descending the long ladder, when we arrived there was no Porter of any sort nor any memento thereof to be seen. There were men and wheelbarrows and rich ores in profusion, but Porter was non est. In the course of two hours of waiting our fears on his account finally gave way to a lively hope of having a first-class funeral to announce, but in this we were doomed to a grievous disappointment. He had only disappeared down another hole some 80 or 90 feet deeper, and as it subsequently appeared, hadn't even broken a leg. In the meantime, after examining the largest body of ore probbly ever discovered in the county, we sat and studied practical geology by candle light, and after learning exactly how a reticent Frenchman fills ore tubs for a melancholly mule in a dark hole above to hoist, we had ample time to cogitate upon the wonderful mystery below. Perhaps Porter had struck upon a pile of twenties down there and knowing the propensity of printers to pick up little things, dared not to take any chances; mayhap it was an African of prodigious proportions, and then again it might only have been a "horse." In point of fact we really did not care two cents what it was or about, any person connected therewith. Without doubt the weight of responsibility resting upon Mr. Porter's shoulders in the absence of his employers is very great, but then it ought not to make him a boor. It will be remembered by a number of our readers that another of the editorial fraternity had occasion to complain of of a lack of courtesy shown him by the owners and managers of this same mine. Now, the only apology we have to offer for any of them is that they are like Major Jones' cousin Pete—good enough fellows, only they have no better sense.

The two furnaces belonging to these parties are never allowed to cool off scarcely for a moment, except when the need of repairs every month or two makes it absolutely necessary. They each turn out daily about 125 bars of bullion, or a total for the two of a fraction over ten tons. The Swansea furnace before alluded to is of the same capacity. The value of bullion varies somewhat, of course, but the total daily yield of the three may safely be placed at $3,000, more than half of which, under ordinarily favorable circumstances, is clear profit. Men, whose judgment may be relied upon, say that Cerro Gordo and vicinity is capable of producing ores in abundance to keep twenty such furnaces in constant operation. We shall allude to this matter more in detail next week.

At the two furnaces in Cerro Gordo there is enough ores on hand to keep them both steadily running for five months; in the Union alone, enough in sight for a year more. At all of the furnaces the bullion is now produced without using the galmadores, whereby a very great saving in cost, probably not less than $25,000 each per annum, has been effected. Old slag is used over and over for fluxing. In addition to other savings, the slag the second time used does not carry over four per cent of silver, whereas, by the former process it was not less than seventeen.

We visited the Belshaw furnace during a temporary absence of the manager, Mr. Shepherd, and therefore did not make his acquaintance. Mr. Porter, assisted by Mr. F. F. Thomas, has charge of the Beaudry furnace, and notwithstanding the little shortcomings in other respects, so delicately hinted at above, is considered one of the most efficient and competent furnace men in the country. In this respect Mr. Thomas is certainly not much behind, and on the other hand, he seems to take a pleasure in showing visitors through his dusty dominions.

We are forced to pass without notice a number of other extensive and well-developed mines situated in the vicinity of those mentioned, and can only say that we have never seen a more sanguine set of miners and business men than are those of Cerro Gordo district. They consider their mines as rich, lasting and profitable as any on the Pacific coast, not excepting the oft-quoted and far-famed Comstock, and notwithstanding the enormous difficulties under which the camp is now laboring. The great trouble, of which we have heretofore written, is the lack of water—a difficulty readily surmounted when the right kind of capitalists get into the place.

THE BELMONT DISTRICT

is situated some three miles east of the town of Cerro Gordo, and on the opposite or eastern slope of the mountains. The ores there contain but little lead, silver being the predominating metal. The ores are sacked and packed on mules to Cerro Gordo, where they are sold to the furnaces in accordance with the assay value. Just at this time we can but little more than allude to three or four of the mines.

THE BUENA SUERTE,

Dr. Gould & Co., has quite a large amount of good ore piled out on the dump, but there is no more of consequence now in sight in the ledge.

THE BELMONT,

Hunter & Beveridge, is among the oldest and most extensively worked of any in the county, and has yielded a vast amount of rich rock. It is now looking very well indeed, more particularly in the upper levels.

THE WITTEKIND,

Messrs. Chambeau & Co., is developing satisfactory, showing a streak of the best quality of "metal" in various places on two levels, and the owners are very sanguine in their hopes.

THE M'DONOUGH & WELCH

makes rather the best showing of any we examined on that side. A ledge of ore, some of which assays over $900 per ton, varying in width from one to three feet, has been exposed the whole length of two tunnels of seventy-five feet each, one above the other. The same appears in a 100-foot shaft, sunk further back on the hill.

Notwithstanding the great amount of ore that has been taken out, and is now in sight in the last three of these mines, experts say that the main ledge in the hill has not yet been struck.

However that may be, all the work on them so far is comparatively but a mere scratch, and the Belmont mines, for many years to come, may be considered among the permanent paying institutions of the country.

How He Was Afflicted.

The following gushing effusion was picked up in the streets of Cerro Gordo, and given verbatim et, &c., is worthy of a lasting record:

CERRO GORDO, June 9, 1872.

Dead Letters.

According to a semi-official report, during the year ending June 30, 1862, there were sent to the United States Dead Letter Office nearly 3,000,000 letters, of which 400,000 were not stamped, and over 3,000 had no direction whatever upon them. Money orders amounting to over $2,000,000 were found in these unstamped letters. This account shows the necessity of placing the address of the writers at the head of every letter; for even in case the envelope should accidentally not be stamped or directed, the clerks the Dead Letter office would, with this precaution, have a clue to the person to whom the money ought to be returned. These remarks, of course, only apply to persons who write occasionally. Merchants and business men should use letter paper with a printed heading, and also "return envelopes." With these precautions a letter will ordinarily reach its destination.

VARIETIES.

—A singular accident befell Capt. Grant, of Wyoming, a few days since. Stepping into his garden he saw some chickens picking at a rare plant, and catching up a stick he made for them. While at full speed he encountered a clothes line, which hit him in the mouth. His momentum carried the line back to its fullest tension, and the rebound threw him eight or ten feet. As the line left his mouth it took out three teeth and all that part of the jaw bone in which they were imbedded.

—The following anecdote is told of the celebrated Spurgeon: His brother James is a very handsome man, which can scarcely be said of the Rev. C. H. One day Charles said to his brother, "James, if I had your nose I'd make my fortune." "Pshaw," said James, "I'd find it easy enough to make a fortune if I had your cheek."

—When two Fort Wayneites aspire to the hand of one fair damsel the fashion is to repair to the cemetery at daybreak, accompanied by a referee, a surgeon, the damsel in dispute, and a few friends, and fight it out according to the rules of the P. R. The woman belongs to the victor. Woman's rights don't flourish there.

—An old Scotch lady had an evening party, where a young man was present who was about to leave for an appointment in China. As he was exceedingly extravagant in his conversation about himself, the old lady said when he was leaving, "Tak' good care o' yoursel' when ye are awa', thay eat puppies in China."

—They have sharp lawyers down East. One of them marketing for dinner, asks a poultry-dealer: "Is that turkey a young one?" "Yes, sir." "Will you take your oath on it?" "Certainly I will." Lawyer administers the oath, charges a dollar for his services, and takes his pay in poultry.

—A Bridgeport church has invented a new form of religious lottery. A "tea-meeting" is held, and a silver brick from Nevada is given to the person who estimates its weight correctly by "hefting"—each estimate 25 cents—for the infant class.

—An Iowa man recently died from swallowing a pocket-knife and injudicious medical treatment combined. He got along very nicely as long as the knife was closed; but when the doctor gave him opening medicine, it killed him.

—The man with an iron jaw is in Taunton. He takes a thick, heavy flint tumbler and bites pieces out of it with ease, and chews them to powder. he does not swallow them, however, for fear of having a pane in his stomach.

The following enthusiastic Greeley campaign song is said to have been composed by a windmill:

The boy stood on the burning deck,
His name was Enoch Arden;
He waved aloft his old white hat
And cheered for Dolly Varden.

—Rhode Island was struck by lightning the other day, and the thunder bolt never grazed any of the adjacent States. Where is the marksman that can beat that for sharp-shooting?

—A Scotch diver at work on a sunken ship, was recently compelled to suspend operations on account of the fierce attacks of the lobsters and crabs that had taken possession of the vessel.

—Every breeze that stirs, every bird that sings, every flower that blooms, every moment, with its perfect possibility, is a portion of the universal joy of life.

—A Brooklyn paper says that gravity is no more evidence of wisdom than a paper collar is of a shirt.

Castor Oil in Childhood's Happy Days.

[From The Baltimore American.]

Breathes there a man with soul so dead that he does not recollect the castor oilings which his poor little machine used to undergo at stated periods of his youth? To castor oil a child of two to seven years of age requires three or four strong women, a spoon, a magnum bottle of the fluid, a lump of sugar, a towel, a jumping jack and a seraphic temper. The first motion is to endeavor to wring in the medicine on the unsuspecting babe, thinly disguised in milk. This maneuver failing, you parley with the enemy and attempt to corrupt its infantile integrity with bribes of pa's gold watch, Imperial revenues of small change and Hesperides of small oranges. After having tempted it thrice to put the spoon of Tantalus to its lips, it refuses to touch the nasty thing. Thereupon your surcharged indignation finds vent in corporeal chastisement of the rebellious infant. It howls; peace being restored, you bring up reinforcements, and strategy and diplomacy having failed, determaining to accept nothing but unconditional surrender, and prepare to march at once upon the enemy's works. A grand combined attack is made. The left wing firmly holds the child's hands. The right wing pinches its nose, so as to compel it to open its little mouth for the spoon. Meanwhile, the reserve holds a lump of sugar commiserately saying: "Poor ittle tootsy-pootsy! was it nassy medicy, eh!" and keeps the towel ready. The baby yells and chokes; the young mother, afraid of killing it, lets go of its nose; the infant, catching breath, discharges the whole dose upon her, and ruins all the front breadths of her black silk; and follows its advantage by so heartbroken a yell that the attacking party surrenders at discretion, and calls it: "poor, injured, mamsie's own tootsenz, and it won't take any more nassy castor oil if it don't want to." A treaty of peace is then ratified, whereby the infant is ceded immunity from castor oil, and an ample indemnity from lollipops; and then the mother enters into war with infant's grandmother, who vigorously reprehends the weakness exhibited in dealing with children nowadays. People have tried all sorts of expedients—taken it in milk, in soda water, from the hot spoon, every way—but no later Franklin has ever been able to overcome and annihilate the nastiness of taking castor oil. It has a sluggish, cold, aperient look about it, like an ill-omened pool in a deadly swamp. It uncoils itself into the fatal spoon like a boiled rattlesnake. It tastes like molten graveyards, and one's gorge rises at it as if it were one of Mrs. Woodhull's lectures. But the feeling, when it has been achieved, is that one's inside is full of earthworms and cork screws.

The Level of the Dead Sea.

A few years ago a party of English engineers were employed, under the command of Capt. Wilson, to make a survey of Jerusalem, and take levels of this region from the coast of the Mediterranean to the sacred city, and thence to the Dead Sea. The leveling was made by independent observers, with different instruments, and with accuracy that the result is reliable within three or four inches.

From these observations it appears that on the 12th of March, 1865, the surface of the Dead Sea was 1,296 feet below that of the Mediterranean, which result confirms the calculations of the Duc de Luynes and Lieut. Vignes, who by the barometer made the difference 1,286 feet on the 7th of June, 1864. At the season of the winter freshets the waters of the Asphaltic Lake stand two or three feet higher than usual, and during the fierce heats of Summer sink by evaporation six feet below the average hight. Lieut. Lynch found in the Dead Sea a depth of 1,308 feet opposite the Wady Zerha Maia. Thus the bottom of the Dead Sea is, in one locality, 2,594 feet below the level of the Mediterranean.

—"Teeth extracted here with great pains," is the rather ambiguous advertisement of a dentist.

Tulare County.

[From The Visalia Delta, August 1.]

We had thought that the issue of "fence" and "no-fence" had been amicably arranged between stockmen and settlers last Spring. We are informed that large herds of cattle have recently been driven into the neighborhood, and that the owners of stock claim the right to herd on the stubble where the unthreshed stacks of grain are still standing. We hear that the settlers are not disposed to quietly submit to this wrong. Their all is at stake. Unfruitful seasons and the ravages of stock have brought starvation to their doors. Many of these families are destitute of suitable clothing. Their small, uncomfortable cabins scarcely exclude the rude winds and rains of Winter, and their situation will be pitiable in the extreme if their crops are given over to the ravages of landless stock-owners, whose starving cattle at this season of the year no ordinary fences can withstand. We hope there will be no violence or destruction of property, but we learn that the settlers are moving to rid themselves of these unwelcome pests.

Sheriff Mulkey of Inyo county, with his family and a party of friends, are spending some weeks in the mountains near Kern Lake, on Kern River, near the base of Mount Whitney. This gentleman and Grant made the ascent of Mount Whitney—the highest peak in the United States—on horseback, a couple of weeks since—quite a feat considering the difficulties to be encountered. They rode to to the monument on the summit and returned to a pleasant camping place four miles below on the same evening.

On Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Sexton, wife of a section man on the railroad, near Midway, was fatally burned. She was standing on a chair to reach for something on a shelf near the stove, when some hot fat on the stove took fire, and blazing up set her clothes on fire. She immediately rushed out of doors and screamed for assistance. When reached it was difficult to hold her. One of the men who came to her assistance endeavored to beat out the fire with his felt hat, but the poor creature was fatally burned before the fire was extinguished. Mrs. Sexton was only fifteen years of age, and but three months married.

T. P. McCarter, who was scalped (as we noticed at the the time) by the earthquake shock at Lone Pine, passed through here a few days since on his way to Inyo county, having spent several weeks below for his health. We are pleased to note that he wears the ruddy complexion of vigorous health.

Lieut. Haskel, of Camp Independence, received a dispatch here Tuesday announcing that Gen. Schofield and Staff, with Col. Jones, Inspector of the Pacific coast, and Gen. Small, Chief of Commissary Department of California, would arrive here this (Thursday) morning. The party, under escort of Lieut. Haskel, will proceed by the Hockett trail to Camp Independence.

Lieut. Haskel and command, from Camp Independence, has been encamped out east of town for several days. The Lieutenant gave a social reception to a few friends Tuesday evening, the occasion being much enjoyed by its participants.

"Something Tifferent."

[From The Cincinnati Times.]

"I pese clad to see you, like ash never vas, Mister Gris; when did Zinzinnaty goome away from you?"

Such was the warm salutation of a Teutonic friend whom we met the other day in a distant city, where he had recently gone to reside. The reader might not guess in a long time what business our friend from Cincinnati was engaged in, so we will tell you; he kept a lager-beer saloon.

"How do you like your new location?" we inquired, after his raptures at meeting a Cincinnatian had somewhat abated.

"Nice poys in this towns; nice poys. The first night vot I opens my saloon they goomes in and galls for lager-beer, doo, eight, seex, half a tozen of 'em; unt ven I says, 'Who makes pay for dis too zoon already?' py tam dey say, 'put it on de schlate,' I dole dem, 'I don't geep no schlate.' THAT TOLL ROAD AGAIN.

Three petitions relating to the above incubus were presented to the Board of Supervisors last Monday. Petitioners pray the county to buy this toll road and make it a free one, or, if that cannot be done, to reduce the tolls to the minimum allowed by law. The petitions have received the signatures of almost every tax-payer in the southern portion of the county, including those of this place. They were not circulated further north. Mr. F. K. Miller appeared for the petitioners, or a portion of them, Mr. Darrah for Darrah & Miers, who have spent a large sum of money in building other roads in order to avoid as much of the impracticable Belshaw road as possible, which part is a road just as it was in the Jurassic age, (vide Whitney), and Mr. P. Reddy for Belshaw, who is pasearing in the East. It was a sort of a three-cornered fight, quite warm at times, and ably maintained on all sides. The Jurassic engineer in constructing this road finished it all up pretty much as we find it today with the exception of two short canyons, on which a few dollars had to be expended, or no half loaded wagon could ever reach the toll house situated a little above. By virtue of this little expenditure Mr. Belshaw was granted the exclusive control of these canyons, and thereby, together with the right of discovery and shrewd management, to the toll road and mining interests of Cerro Gordo. Having this right he is bound to make the most of it. Nobody can cut around him, nor can opposition ore buyers afford to haul over his road He doubles the business of the road, and the receipts from tolls as well, by doing nothing, so that teams can only take a half a load at a time and, of course, will have to go twice as often. He forfeits no legal rights by neglecting to take tolls, but, on the contrary, labors diligently and with assiduity in the impartial fulfilment of the law in that respect. To sell, or rent, or improve his road he is satisfied would be a very absurd thing for him to do, and so he labors on when everybody is satisfied he ought to take a rest before he wears himself out, or becomes impoverished by taxation on his toll road. Hence, we have these petitions and the arguments pro and con.

One counsel claimed that he (Belshaw) had worked too hard for several years in collecting tolls on his mountain trail and not enough in trying to make it good for wagons, and consequently he ought to be made to take a rest. The other in defence claimed that if it had not have been for the owner of that trail practically there would have been no Cerro Gordo, or need of any road at all, and therefore no one should insist on his taking a rest until he first evinced some sign of fatigue. Counsel didn't state what the result would have been if his grandmother had proved to be only his aunt after all. The third party in this fight wanted him to either fish or cut bait, but as there was no way to make him do either at this session, the Board were compelled to postpone the whole thing until the next meeting.

COUNTY FINANCES.

Elsewhere will be seen the official statement of Inyo's financial condition, embodied in the regular report of the County Treasurer. Throughout the past six months there have been numerous extraordinary expenses, occasioned by the purchase of bridges, the buying of a law-suit and by the heavy hospital and legal demands, as is shown by the increase of outstanding warrants on the general fund. Nevertheless, the report shows a slight curtailment of the county indebtedness, which now amounts to the sum of $29,656 30, while the exhibit of six months ago made the exact debt $29,656 63—a clear reduction of precisely thirty-three cents.

The North Carolina Election.

Full returns have not yet reached us as to the result of the North Carolina election, which took place August 1, but enough is known to show that the Democrats have a majority in the Legislature of from 40 to 70, and four, possibly five, out of the eight Congressmen. The Republican papers, however, do not concede Merriman's election yet, and claim four Congressmen as a certainty. This election is deemed of importance as forecasting the Presidential contest, and great exertions were made by both parties to carry it.

CERRO GORDO.

The need of a better supply of water in the town of Cerro Gordo is too obvious to require argument. It is only a question of how the desired end may be best attained, although but one plan, aside from that now in use, appears to have received general or special attention. This is to bring the water from Miller's Springs, a distance of about nine miles through pipes, a portion of which may be of wood. These pipes would doubtless have been put in place ere this, but in addition, some very powerful and expensive machinery is necessary in order to raise the water to the proper elevation to carry it into the town. This elevation is about 600 feet, and is a serious obstacle to overcome, but not at all insurmountable, provided the requisite amount of capital, say $60,000 for all, could be obtained for the purpose. We allude to main points of this plan only, and merely as a means of comparison with another which presents some very superior inducements. This plan, or combination of plans rather, is essentially that of Col. Stevens, of Cottonwood, and when carried out in detail, as it is bound to be sooner or later, must inevitably be of vast benefit to the whole country as well as to its projectors. The principal point to be gained is to reduce the cost of transportation and reduction of ores but in addition to this, it also contemplates an ample supply of timber, wood and lumber for mining and the general uses of the country.

The central or objective point in this plan is the lake shore at or near the mouth of Cottonwood creek. That stream affords an abundance for all purposes of fresh and cold mountain water, and at the point mentioned, which is directly on the main thoroughfare of the county, all necessaries of life can be furnished as cheap as at any other place within our limits. Here, it is expected, the principal reduction works of the country are to be located, the supplies of wood, coal and ores for which is to be effected through means which we shall now consider.

First, a V flume is to be constructed extending through the canyon of this creek on a uniform grade of about ten inches or less to the rod and with but very few curves of any sort. The whole length now required will not exceed 12 miles, but when needed, it may be continued back over comparatively level ground for another 12 miles or thereabouts. Throughout the last mentioned distance, and for many miles beyond, the ground is thickly covered with timber of the very best quality for common uses, all of which may be reached by wagons without the necessity of previously constructing roads for the purpose. Throughout the whole length of the canyon, except four or five miles at the lower end, the mountain sides are also covered from top to bottom with timber suitable for firewood, so that here, with this flume in practical operation, a supply of wood, timber, railroad ties, etc., may be obtained sufficient for all the requirements of that section for the next half century. We devoted some time to a personal investigation of this matter and base our statements wholly on our own observations.

The working capacity of such a flume would, of course, be entirely in excess of present needs, but by its use wood may be delivered on the lake shore for a price fully one-half less than that now paid at any of the furnaces, or other places where required in large amounts. This, of itself, would effect a saving in the daily running expense of each furnace of not less than $50, if not twice that amount in some cases. We have thus briefly outlined this essential part of the plan in order that the remainder, directly applicable to the mining and water question in Cerro Gordo, situated across the lake and on the summit of the opposite range of mountains, may be better understood.

From the eastern shore of the lake, itself 14 miles in width, the distance to Cerro Gordo is about seven miles, the elevation being a little less than 4,000 feet. Over this it is proposed to erect a wire suspension tramway of the same kind and character as one which for many months has been in successful operation in White Pine. The total cost of this tramway, including all necessary appliances, will not exceed $40,000 In packages not exceeding 150 pounds each, it is capable of transporting downwards full 300 tons in twelve hours, and half that number of tons may be carried up by the same means and power at the same time. The running expense will be about $40 per day. Assuming that all ores were carried to the lake for reduction, the present amount of freight to be transported, including water, short mining timbers and other small packages of up freights of all descriptions, the total amount both ways would not probably exceed 100 tons per day. This or even a less amount could be very profitably carried at $3 per ton. At this figure for freights on ores, which is just one-half the rates on them and the bullion now shipped by wagons, they may be transported over this tramway and then across the lake, where the bullion can be produced for 50 per cent. less than the same thing may be done in the town of Cerro Gordo. To make this more clear we submit a few figures by way of comparison. These are only offered as approximates: The value of the wood or its equivalent in coal required to produce a ton of bullion in Cerro Gordo is $40; water at five cents per gallon, $12; freight to lake shore, $6, or a total of $58 for wood, water and freight on each ton of bullion ready for shipment to Los Angeles. To produce the same amount on the opposite side of the lake, and that much nearer its final destination, we have no charges for water, and the transportation charge included in that of the three tons of ores required for one of bullion; the freight charge would be $10 for three tons of ores; wood, or its equivalent in coal, $15. This shows a saving in these items alone of $33 on each ton of bullion, or an aggregate on the average day's run of each furnace of say $140. This is not the only reduction by any means that would be effected in this direction, but it shows sufficient for our present purpose.

It is obvious that no buyer of ores under present conditions could compete with one having the above advantages in his favor, and the result sooner or later would be an increased price for ores put on the market, or a transfer of all reduction works to the lake, which would practically solve the water question at the same time, and that, too, without taking into the count the ability of this tramway to furnish the desired element at a low rate and in all desired quantities. In addition to this, vast amounts of clayey, soft ores, now of little or no value, could be made available by transporting them to where there is an abundance of water for washing them—an advantageous process, when practicable, for other classes of furnace ores. We do not deem it necessary to explain in detail the remaining link in this combination, viz, the lake transportation. The method by which that is to be accomplished, though expensive and important, is neither new or novel.

Theoretically, at least, the plan here outlined offers a positive remedy for the only obstacle to the full development of the richest and most lasting mining camp in the State. It is perfectly feasible in every particular, we do not doubt, and at the same time the amount of money necessary to put it in execution is not greatly in excess of that which provides for a supply of water alone. The whole cost, allowing a margin of full 20 per cent. for contingencies, will not exceed $100,000. The interests of the camp and of the county at large imperatively demand something of the kind, and it is much to be hoped the right style of men and capitalists may be induced to take hold of it before another Winter passes away.

Stanley and Livingstone.

A Herald London dispatch has letters received by Stanley from Viscount Enfield, Earl Granville and a son of Livingstone. Enfield, in the name of Earl Granville, acknowledges the receipt of letters and documents from Livingstone delivered by Stanley to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris for transmission to the Foreign Department. Granville says in his letter that he has no doubt of the genuineness of the letters purporting to come from Livingstone. Livingstone's son says he has no doubt that the paper and letters brought him by Stanley are from his father. The Herald's London dispatch also says that Stanley was invited to dine with Lord Stanley, Lady Franklin, and other distinguished persons.

This Convention which met in Sacramento August 1, made the following nominations: For Presidential Electors: First District—Claus Spreckels; Second District—J. E. Hale; Third District—Jesse O. Goodwin; Fourth District—T. H. Rose; at large, John B. Felton and John F. Miller. In the Second, Third and Fourth District Conventions, H. F. Page, J. M. Coghlan and S. O. Houghton, respectively received the nominations for Congress

Commuted.

William Williams, a convicted murderer in Siskiyou county, sentenced to be hung on the 19th ultimo, escaped from jail a few days ago, and the officers in pursuit caused information to be conveyed to him that his sentence had been commuted to imprisonment for life. Williams thereupon gave himself up, when he learned that the reported reprieve was only a ruse to capture him. These facts being communicated to Governor Booth, he commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life.

DIAMONDS.

A great diamond excitement is now raging in San Francisco. This excitement is based on a document written by Henry Janin, a mining engineer who has visited the mines, examined them professionally and reported favorably on them. Their exact location has not yet been made public, except only that it is either in Arizona or New Mexico. It appears that about three years ago an Indian near the diamond deposits gave several diamonds and rubies to a white man, who brought them to Messrs. Roberts & Harpending, in San Francisco. Those gentlemen satisfied themselves of the value of the gems, and sent the man to find more. They met the Indian after a long search, when he took them to the place, and was subsequently drowned. Then Mr. Janin went to the spot, washed a ton and a half of gravel, took out one thousand diamonds, four pounds of rubies, and a full dozen sapphires, and selected the best ground for mining or that supposed to be the best. Three thousand acres were claimed under the mining law passed at the last session, which allows miners to take up any valuable mineral deposit. Wood, water, grass and game are abundant, and water for washing can be led without difficulty over the diamond-bearing gravel bed. The country, for a considerable distance around, was examined and no other equally promising deposit was found.

Janin claims that with twenty five men he can take out $1,000,000 per month. A joint stock company has been formed in San Francisco to work these mines, and the stock is selling rapidly at $40 per share. The latest news is to the effect that the excitement is on the decrease, but doubtless thousands will rush off in search of this great diamond field and come back loaded with brilliants—or something else. If no other good comes of it, this rush will do much towards solving the Apache question, and for so much let us be thankful.

For Mayor.

They have a man in the chain gang in the city of Los Angeles and they now propose to make a Mayor out of him. It is not stated whether they intend to put the present incumbent of that office in his place or not, but it is altogether likely it would be a salutary arrangement to give the whole city government a turn in that institution.

Lewis M. Gillham.

Mrs. Hannah M. Bell, of Grafton, Jersey county, Illinois, the only sister of the above named individual, is very anxious to know something of his whereabouts. Any person who can afford the desired information will confer a great favor by addressing a note to this office, or to the above address.

The Gun-Sight Lode.

A late Los Angeles dispatch says prospectors in search of the lost Gun-Sight ledge in Death Valley, have returned after a fruitless search. This is the third or fourth time expeditions have been fitted out and returned unable to find the ledge, which is reported to be nearly pure silver at the surface.

Money-Order Offices.

The following additional money order post-offices have lately been established in California: Independence, Inyo county; North San Juan, Nevada county; Salinas, Monterey county; Truckee, Nevada county. In Oregon: Ashland, Jackson county; Forest Grove, Washington county.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

An Interesting Country.

A small party of mountain excursionists, consisting of Sheriff Mulkey, W. T. Grant and George Foster, on the 19th ultimo made the ascent of Mount Whitney on horseback, riding within three feet of the monument which Clarence King erected to commemorate his triumph in making the perilous (?) ascent. The accounts concerning this country given us by Mr. Grant are of singular interest, and seem conclusive that the region is destined to become a second Yosemite for Summer excursionists. King reported the mountain as 15,470 feet in hight, but prior and later observers place its altitude at 15,000, which is probably correct. Beyond four miles the other side of Lone Pine nowhere is there visible the slightest trace of the great earthquake, notwithstanding reports to the contrary by the Visalia papers. The monument referred to, on the summit of the peak, stands four feet high, on a base of about eighteen inches and composed of small stones loosely laid up, stood perfectly intact, with the half dollars resting undisturbed. On the northwestern side is a terrific precipice of 3,000 feet perpendicular, close to the edge of which is a deep fissure in the rock some eighteen inches wide—which also remains unmoved. Thirty-five miles from Lone Pine, on the Hockett trail, is Kern or Fishing Lake, a beautiful body of water one half mile wide by one and a half long, fed by the purest, sparkling streams. This contains unlimited numbers of large, salmon trout, the streams abounding with the smaller, speckled variety of finny beauties. Magnificent trees shade a perfect matt of grass and clover, and furnish coverts for a plentitude of bear and deer—the whole forming a paradise for venturesome Nimrods. Near by is a natural soda fountain, or spring, the virtues of which our informants despair of properly describing, so delicious is the beverage brewed by some chemical process of nature. On a blazed tree hard by the lake is written the names of Kennedy, Smith and McFarland, 1868, with an inscription designating the name of the lake as "Anterugeon." Our copy of Noah's Unabridged fails to ascribe a meaning to this nomenclature, and we give up the conundrum.

A Grand Affair.

Willing to lose the opportunity offered by the completion of Harris & Rhine's magnificent storeroom, our citizens have not determined upon giving a ball and supper on the night of August 19th, and, judging from the preparations now making, it is destined to be the grandest fizzle of the kind ever yet gotten up in Inyo. The active management comprises the most unreliable workers in town, while the whole is not encouraged by the countenance or coin of the heaviest and most responsible members of our little community. Heretofore, a chief obstacle to the perfect success of such occasions has been the lack of good music, but now this difficulty has failed to be surmounted by the engagement of four former members of a noted Grass Valley band, now in Cerro Gordo, who are vouched for as being of the "best what there is." Consult the full announcement (if you can find it) and then don't all join in for a glorious reunion. A free and cordial invitation is extended to every lady and gentleman in this entire section of the country. Overhaul your most gorgeous toggery, for our Jenkins will be there—in a horn. P. S.—Under the unwarrantable presumption that there still remained in town a faint spark of life and spirit, an item was placed in type announcing that the proposed ball would come off. We give it above, with some slight changes.

Proposals.

The Board of Supervisors advertises for bids for the building of bridges and the Court House, according to plans to be seen at the Court House. You builders and carpenters, sail in and get rich—or get squeezed. It might occur to a man up a tree that this season would not be a "Winter of discontent to the son of York," if that gentleman were a contractor.

Bullion Shipments.

July 21st Messrs. Hiskey & Walker shipped four bars of bullion, weighing 1,789 ounces and valued at $1,800. Also, August 4th, five bars, weighing 1,850 ounces, valued at $1,900. Lida continues to "pan out" as well as any locality on the Coast, considering that a five-stamp mill is its only reduction facility.

Completed.

The wharf for the steamboat landing at Danerisburg is reported as being completed. The steamer now mosies up and down the lake with her regular cargoes just the same as if accustomed to it for twenty years.

Again in the Field.

Messrs. Wood & Cohen again take their regular place among our advertisers, announcing a heavy stock of staple and fancy goods. Go and see them; dress well if you don't have a cent.

Firm Changes.

The firm of Hughes & Anderson, butchers, of Cerro Gordo, has been changed to Hughes & Diaz, and Mr. Hughes has bought the interest of I. Davison in the Cosmopolitan saloon and billiard room.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Board met in regular session Monday, August 5. Full Board present.

Petitions by citizens of Cerro Gordo, Swansea, Lone Pine and Independence, were presented by Messrs. Earl and Miller praying the acquirement by the county of the toll road leading from Swansea to Cerro Gordo, known as the Belshaw road, and that said road be declared a free and public highway. Action deferred until the September meeting.

Petition presented by F. K. Miller, praying an election on the county seat removal. Rejected for want of the requisite number of qualified signers.

County Treasurer's report for the six months ending July 31, 1872, accepted and ordered advertised.

The following appointments were made to fill vacancies in Election Boards:

Fish Springs—D. B. Curtis, Judge.
Lone Pine—John Sheppard, Judge; I. W. Hunt, Clerk.

Polling places at the ensuing election:

Independence—B. L. Brown's office.
Lone Pine—Stewart's store.
Cerro Gordo—H. W. Gould's house.
Bishop Creek—Sneden's Hall.
Round Valley—John Laird's house.
Swansea—C. Doewiler's house.
Deep Spring—Hiskey & Walker's house.
Big Pine—Naylor's store.

Election precinct at Big Pine ordered re-established. This embraces the territory between A. W. Cochran's ranch on the north, and a point one mile south of Naylor's store; to be known as Precinct No. 9.

A committee consisting of J. Earl, John Sheppard and W. L. Hunter, was appointed, by advice of counsel to examine into the state and affairs of the Belshaw Toll Road, said committee to have power to send for persons and papers. The object of this order is to arrive at the proper rate of tolls to be allowed on said road.

A board of arbitrators, consisting of T. Lasheyre and Judge Snelling were appointed to settle any outstanding differences that they, as a committee of inquiry, may find to exist between the county and A. B. Elder, ex Sheriff and Tax Collector. P. Reddy, Elder's agent, agrees to pay a sum of money not exceeding $1,000, to the county to make good any delinquencies that may be found in the account of Elder as Tax Collector or his appointees.

Advertisement for bids on Court House and bridges ordered printed.

The following bills were allowed:

Board adjourned, August 8, to the 12th of September next.

Body Recovered.

The body of Manuel, of whose drowning we gave an account two weeks ago was discovered a few days since lodged on some willows in the river opposite Bishop Creek, and buried yesterday on the river bank near by. It was out of the question to take the body elsewhere for burial owing to its condition. Some chief, before the citizens took possession of the body, had robbed it of some $25 that was known to have been in the possession of deceased at the time of his death. The pocket being cut open was the evidence of the robbery.

The Fort Contracts.

To day is the time set for the awarding of the building contracts at the Post. It is thought that the bids will all be too high for the appropriation, and that the work will eventually be done by Uncle Sam himself.

Ranch for Sale.

J. M. Newland offers for sale his fine farm and station at Big Pine, known as the Gregg place. This is one of the best places in the county, and should soon find a purchaser.

Aurora Borealis.

Night before last, from 11 to 11½ o'clock, there was visible a fine display of Northern Lights, seldom if ever equalled in latitudes so far south as this.

Religious.

Parson Ira P. Hale, of Benton, will preach to-morrow (Sunday), at 11 A. M. and 7½ P. M., at the school house. A general invitation is extended.

Notice.

The attention of parties interested is directed to the "notice" given by Mr. Naylor, of Big Pine.

On the Mountain.

Sheriff Mulkey and family were to be on the summit of Whitney on Tuesday night last, with a large signal fire. By a preconcerted arrangement, a similar fire was lighted on the top of Buena Vista, above Cerro Gordo, on the opposite range of mountains. There is something grandly poetical in the idea, and as carried out the event must have been a supremely happy one for the lofty and distant participants. Mrs. Mulkey and daughter will have something to boast of, in having been the first ladies to reach the summit of the highest peak in the United States.

Sudden Death.

We hear that John Manter, a bar keeper at Lone Pine, died suddenly on Thursday last. Coroner Lank held an inquest, and after duly investigating the circumstances the jury returned a verdict to the effect that he had died of heart disease; was a native of the town of Industry, State of Maine; was twenty-six years of age at the time of his death, which took place in the house of C. D. Begole in Lone Pine.

Arrived.

Gen. Schofield, accompanied by a number of regular army officers, arrived at Camp Independence last evening. After holding a Court-martial on the seven captured deserter, the party propose to return immediately to San Francisco via the Yosemite, over the Bloody Canyon trail.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the School-house to-morrow (Sunday) at 11 A. M., and at one quarter to 8 P. M. by Rev. Ira P. Hale of the M. E. Church. Sunday-school at 2 P. M.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Drury Melone, Secretary of State, and his wife have had a serious misunderstanding, brought about by a mischevious mother-in-law, which has resulted in a separation. A suit at law for the possession of the only child was decided in favor of the father.

Capt. Chas. Beane, editor and part proprietor of The Los Angeles News, was taken suddenly and dangerously ill a few days since. The presumption is that he was poisoned by an overdose of morphine. He will probably recover.

James B. Seabase, or Seaborn, late of Cerro Gordo, was found dead near San Juan Capistrano, August 28. He had evidently committed suicide.

Professor Gilman accepts by telegraph his election as President of the University of California. He will enter on his duties about the 1st of September.

The proprietors of the Keystone and other quicksilver mines in San Luis Obispo county have made a contract to deliver 1,000 tons of cinnibar to parties interested in the China and English trade. The ore will be shipped to China for reduction.

About 10 o'clock last night Charles Wilson, a notorious thief, and John Simpson, aged only fourteen, had an altercation on the Barbary Coast, it is said over a division of the proceeds of a robbery, and Wilson slapped the boy's face. Simpson was arrested at his father's house and locked up to await the action of the Coroner.

B. G. Whiting sues the city for $30,000 damages, in being run over by a hook and ladder truck, and crippled for life.

Dr. Zabriski, county physician of Storey county, Nevada, received a dispatch from his son, Buck Zabriski, stating that J. Neely Johnson of Nevada, now in Salt Lake, was lying at the point of death. His sickness is said to be the result of a sunstroke which he received a few days since.

At Pleasanton August 1st a tailor named Leodig shot his wife and then shot himself through the breast, dying in a few minutes. His wife is still alive, but will probably die. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause of the trouble.

The prominent papers in San Francisco appear to be well pleased with the election of Prof. Gilman to the position of President of the University of California. He was the favorite with many for President of Yale at the last election.

J. H. Mansfield, who shot Mary Hein and then shot himself, was arraigned in the San Francisco Police Court August 1, waived examination and was held in $10,000 bail for trial on the charge of assault to murder. His counsel said he could not get bail, and would have to go to prison.

The Elko Independent of July 27th says: By private letter from Mountain City, Cope District, we learn of the death of Miss Agnes Miller, lately of Carson City. On Tuesday evening, July 23, she was riding horseback when she was thrown from her animal, her head striking a wagon wheel, killing her almost instantly.

On a ranch near Ellis Station lately a harvest hand named Dugan met with a terrible accident. While working at a threshing machine one of his legs got caught in the wheel, instantly tearing the tendons of the ankle into shreds and crushing the foot to a jelly. The arteries were tied up and the wounded man sent on by the next train to San Francisco.

Senator Wilson goes from North Carolina to Indiana, and in September he will make a canvass of Pennsylvania.

At Salt Lake, Elder Cannon, the Mormon Church candidate for Delegate to Congress, has not accepted the Democratic nomination, the anti polygamy plank in the Democratic platform being too much for him.

VARIETIES.

—A few days since one of our popular attorneys called upon another member of the profession and asked his opinion upon a certain point of law. The lawyer to whom the question was addressed drew himself up and said: "I generally get paid for telling what I know." The questioner drew a half dollar "fractional" from his pocket, handed it to the other and cooly remarked: "Tell me all you know and give me the change." There is a coldness between the parties now.

--A lost cow was lately advertised by the following notice which was posted on trees and fences near the owner's dwelling: "Strayed or Stolen —A large Red Kow, with Yaller Specks on her left side, and a pair of white specks on her right ear. She is about seven or eight years old and belongs to a poor widow with a short tail. Ten dollars will be given to anybody who will turn her to Newark, Gune 17, 180069."

--Among the replies to an advertisement of a music committee for a "candidate for organist, music-teacher, etc.," a vacancy having occurred by the resignation of the organist in office, was the following; "Gentlemen--I noticed your advertisement for organist and music-teacher, either lady or gentlemen. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services."

—"Mother," said little Ned one morning after having fallen out of bed, "I think I know the reason I fell out of bed last night. It was because I slept too near where I got in." Musing a little while as in doubt whether he had given the right explanation, he added, "No that wasn't the reason; it was because I slept too near where I fell out."

—All the employes of The New York Tribune said the other day they would vote for Greeley. One exception, however, the man who has been doomed to "setting up" Greeley's copy. Revenge is sweet.—N. Y. Herald.

—While the burial service was progressing in Wisconsin, the corpse vacated his coffin and remarked that his friends hadn't got rid of him yet.

—"Did you call me an ass, sir?" "Yes, sir; but I qualified it." "Eh?" "I qualified it; I said you were an ass all but the ears."

—A lady excused her extreme love for diamonds and other precious stones by saying: "They are the only bright things which never fade on earth."

—If you can't coax a fish to bite, try your persuasive powers upon a cross dog, and you will be sure to succeed.

How Money is Made by Farming.

Much labor is done on farms that is not farming in the true sense. By such labor no money is ever made. A man may support himself and family, keep out of debt, and a few dollars in his pocket, by practicing the most stringent economy. If he is otherwise than industrious and sober he is on the down grade with loose brakes, and the end is soon reached. But farming, in its true sense, is a profession equal to that of the law or medicine, and needs equal study, mental capacity, and intelligently directed labor to command success in it. The principles which underlie the practice of the true farmer must be well understood, and a steady, consistent course of operations must be followed. Having thoroughly learned the nature and capacity of the soil he possesses, and chosen the rotation most suitable, and the stock to be most profitably kept on it, he does not swerve from his chosen course, but in good markets and bad raises his regular crops, and keeps his land regularly increasing fertility. No special cry tempts or affrights him. He does not talk dairying this season or crops the next, but doubtless, if any particular product be in demand and bring a good price, he has some of it to sell and reaps a share of the advantages. He saves as much money as some men make by care and economy in purchasing and preserving tools, seeds manures and machines, and his business habits and constant readiness for all occasions give him reasonable security against the effects of adverse seasons and bad weather. Always prepared, he is never too late, and always calm, he is never too soon, and thus "taking Time by the forelock," he has the stern old tyrant at his command, and turns him at his will. He has no losses and his gains are steady.

The True Cause.

"Why does the operation of hanging kill a man?" asked a medical professor of his class. "Because," replied one of the students, "inspiration is checked, circulation is stopped and the blood suffuses and congests the brain.' "Fudge," said another, "it is simply because the rope isn't long enough to let his feet touch the ground."

THE SUICIDAL CAT.

There was a man named Ferguson,
He lived on Mackerel street,
He had a speckled Thomas cat,
That could't well be beat;
He'd catch more rats and mice and sich
That forty cats could eat.

This cat would come into the room
And climb upon a chair,
And there he'd sit and lick hisself,
And pure so awful queer
That Ferguson would yell at him—
But still he'd purr severe.

And then he'd climb the moon-lit fence,
And loaf around the yowl,
And spit and claw another cat
Alongside of the jowl;
And then they both would shake their tails,
And jump around and howl.

Oh, this here cat of Ferguson's
Was fearful then to see,
He's jest yellow precisely like he was
In awful agony;
You'd think a first class stomach-ache
Had struck a small boy.

And all the mothers in the street,
Waked by the horrid din,
Would rise right up and search their babes
To find some worrying pin;
And still this vigorous cat would keep
A hollerin' like sin.

And as for Mr. Ferguson,
'Twas more than he could bear,
And he hurled the boot-jack out
Right through the midnight air;
But this vociferous Thomas cat
Not one cent did he care.

For still he yowled and kept his fur
A standin' up on end,
And his off hind foot a doublin' up
As far as it would bend,
As if his hopes of happiness
Did on his lungs depend.

But while he a-cursed of his spine,
And wanting to attack
A cat upon the other fence,
There came an awful crack;
And this here speckled Thomas cat
Got busted in the back.

When Ferguson came down next day,
There lay his odd line,
And not a life was left of him,
Although he had nine;
"All this has come," said Ferguson,
"Of curvin of his spine."

Now all ye men who's tender hearts
This painful tale does rack,
Just take this moral to yourselves,
All of you, white and black:
Don't ever go, like this here cat,
To go to jump your back

RAMBLES SOUTHWARD.

"Rover," a correspondent of The Virginia Chronicle, elegantly "writes up" an account of a trip from Virginia southward to this country as follows But the "earthquake references" are entirely overdrawn, since the subject has been well-nigh forgotten hereabouts. Starting in when leaving Aurora, the letter speaks of BODIE CANYON.

Following up the canyon from the Del Monte mid the road passes any number of houses built of brick, stone and lumber—houses that would be ornaments in any city in the land here are tenantless, and through open casements the free, wild winds of the canyon pass and repass unchecked by bolt or bar. The waters of Bodie creek flow all along unfretted by a single wheel, their plaintive murmurings the only sound that relieves the ant like solitude. A few miles up the canyon is situated the singular formation known as "Sun bine Bluffs." It is a bastard quartz and in color a rosy red, and all times presents the appearance of reflecting the rays of the sun, hence its name. Bodie Bluff, at the head of the canyon, is well known to most readers from the fact that Ross Browne wrote up the district in Harper's Magazine some years ago, giving sketches of the principal points of interest. Situated immediately under the Bluff is the mill and mine of the "Empire Company," owned by Capt. Taylor, of Gold Hill. The mill is a costly structure of brick, complete in all its details, yet standing idle in one of the richest districts in the southern country. A short distance from the Empire is the little stone hut built by Governor Stanford, and now occupied by Judge Bechtel, an old residenter of Bodie. Just above Bechtel's, in a lovely little valley, is built the town of Bodie—to be sure not a very large one, being but a collection of half a dozen frames and as many more houses of stone or peat. It is supposed that in this little valley Fremont camped one season while looking for a pass in the Sierras. The marks of the camp are plainly visible to this day. A few miles from Bodie one can look down upon Mono Lake, and catch a superb view of the lofty Sierras, which here are verdureless and white with eternal snows. Castle Peak, the land mark for two hundred miles around, is just north of the lake, and lifts its giant dome fourteen thousand feet above tide water.

MONO LAKE.

"the Dead Sea of the West," according to Ross Browne, is a most singular place, and one that appeals to the stranger to go away and leave it to its chosen solitude. The lake is about eighteen miles long by fifteen wide, and is the reservoir for the melting snows of the Sierras Its waters are strongly impregnated with borax and alkaline salts, deadly to man or beast, yet not to birds. Millions of ducks hover over its surface and feed on the little black worms peculiar to the lake. This would be an excellent place for pot hunters, the ducks crowding so closely together it is not an uncommon thing to kill twenty at a shot. The lake, which receded for some time, even when the mountain streams were swollen and pouring in immense quantities of water, no sooner than they relaxed their vigor than the lake began to rise and extend its margin, and the process is still going on, the waters having risen four or five feet since the dry season set in, and yet no apparent cause is visible The boiling springs around the lake are not more active than formerly.

THE MINES OF BODIE

are located near the summit of a range of mountains almost the counterpart of our Washoe range, and consists of unnumbered veins of gold-bearing quartz and a belt of auriferous gravel, that pays well for washing during the seasons of water. All the ledges prospect well, in fact it is impossible to find a piece of barren quartz in any vein in the district. Judge McClinton, who resides here with his family, is the principal owner of a very rich vein of rock. Owing to bad manipulations and the speculations of Superintendents the rock has not given satisfactory returns in the district, but some Storey county boys, Ham. Courser, Billy Stanley and others, are about erecting a mill, and then Bodie will again be known and honored as it deserves.

SOUTHWARD, HO!

The road from Aurora runs through the same bleak, barren country one sees northward of the town. Occasionally it plunges down steep mountains and into vales green with wild grasses and dotted with herds of cattle. Adobe Meadows, once the home of Daly and his gang, who were hung in Aurora by the Vigilantes, is a fine range for stock, and thousands crop its rich, nutritious grasses. Through these meadows passed the convicts after murdering young Poor, and four miles to the right is the spot where Morrison was killed in trying to arrest them It was in one of the little valleys nearer the Sierras that the citizens of Bishop Creek hung Morton and Black, two of the escapes.

BLACK LAKE

is what its name implies—a sheet of water black as coffee and strongly impregnated with alkali, and yet, just at the edge of the lake, is a spring of delightfully pure, sweet water.

HOT SPRINGS.

Passing over the ridge the road enters the little hamlet of Hot Springs, or Benton. Here are situated in the bases of the White Mountains, rich mines of silver, several of which are in active operation. Bill Leette, of Virginia, is now putting up a fine mill and roasting furnace for the reduction of ore The road from Hot Springs, for about five miles, is probably the worst in the world, as it passes along the crown of a rocky ridge, and the poor traveler gets bumped severely. It finally debouches in a long valley shut in on one side by the dark hills of the Inyo Mountains, and on the other by the gray granite walls of the Sierra Nevada. After crossing Owens River, the stage dashes into Bishop Creek, a little farming town—the first of the settlements of Owens River Valley.

THE EARTHQUAKE COUNTRY

begins here, and great masses of stone have been rolled from the hill sides; streams have changed their courses, and the people speak in accents of fear when they tell of the mighty trembler, and they talk of little else.

IN OWENS VALLEY,

below Bishop Creek, the mountains on either side approach until the valley is scarcely three miles wide, composed of debris from the Sierras and a small strip of alluvial land along the river bottom. At Big Pine the earthquake worked great havoc—opening yawning chasms and immense, gaping holes in the earth. In one place the earth has sunk twenty five feet for several miles. From here to Independence the ravages of the trembler are terrifying—lakes are formed, and streams rush along in places once void of water; the road which runs south from Independence has been cut in two by a great crack in the earth, and one portion has been moved sixteen feet to the south. Other portions of the valley have been thrown into hills and depressions. All the brick and adobe in the town and at the Fort are shapeless masses of ruins. The shakes still continue at intervals, accompanied by loud grumblings and explosions, keeping the denizens of this lovely region in a constant dread.

THE KEARSARGE MINE

is located on Kearsarge Mountain, just west of Independence, and about eight miles distant. The company has a fine mill in complete order, boarding house, shops and outbuildings, but the camp is deserted, save by Bill Jocelyn, an old Virginia fire jakey; and Bill has been shook up so high that he sighs for his old home on the Comstock.

THE MOUNTAINS

here assume a different aspect from the ranges in sight of Virginia—the Sierras being bare, bleak walls of granite, reminding one of the old darkey's "inexcusable Alps." The Inyo range looms up black, bleak and precipitous, in striking contrast to the Sierras. In this range is a singular formation, known in the valley as the "Squaw Monument," and is what its name implies—a monument of stone upon the very apex of the ridge.

THE "INDEPENDENT,"

edited by Chalfant & Parker, is a lively little sheet, established weekly and circulated largely through the Owens river country. Jimmy Parker is an old Virginia fireman, and hopes "to lay his bones" on the Comstock.

FORT INDEPENDENCE

is under the command of Major Egbert, a young officer of gentlemanly instincts and beloved by all the residents of the valley. The Fort, destroyed by earthquakes, is soon to be rebuilt under his supervision.

THE STAGES

Running from Aurora to Independence are owned by two old Virginians, John Ullrick and Harry Wright, and the public can always feel secure and well treated in their keeping.

ROVER.

[This correspondent has evidently got on a worse earthquake scare than Whitney, and falls into some of the same errors. And if allowed the floor for a moment, we would state that we have no present intention of going into the bone-laying business.]

Stage Robbery—A Thousand Dollar Haul.

[From The Reese River Reveille, August 3.]

The Battle Mountain stage was stopped and robbed last night about 11 o'clock on its up trip, about half way between this city and Battle Mountain. Three robbers sprang suddenly up out of the sagebrush and ordered Scott, the driver, to stop and as the request was instituted at the butt end of a shot gun, Scotty instantly complied, and pulled up his team. The road agents, after unsitching the leaders, ordered the passengers to alight and stand in a row by the side of the road with their hands pointing toward the firmament, while one of their number "went through" the party to the tune of about $1,000 in coin and watches. The treasure box was broken open, but Mr. Crockett, the agent here, is of the opinion that nothing of any consequence was found in it. The robbers then broke open and examined all the baggage on the stage, even broached a box of eggs in search of concealed treasure, without however finding anything to repay them for their trouble. There were eight passengers on board the stage, two of whom were females. The ladies were exempted from the general search, and one of them, who was unwell, was allowed to retain her seat in the coach while her fellow passengers were being interviewed by the robbers on the outside Mr. Rodabush—who was riding on the box with the driver—had a valuable gold watch and a six shooter taken from him, the pistol—which was the only one on the stage—was not loaded Mr. R had $94 in gold coin in one of the pockets of his pantaloons, but having on a pair of overalls the robbers failed to find it. Mr. Spencer was mulcted to the tune of several hundred dollars and a valuable gold watch. A gentleman named Letcher contributed $250 to the general fund, and a boy who was coming out from the States to seek his fortune in the silver mines was relieved of $150, but the benevolent road agents, in consideration of his youth and innocence, generously returned him a five dollar piece for breakfast money, etc., upon his arrival in Austin.

"GONE FOR A TRIP."

The senior member of THE INDEPENDENT firm is again off on a pasear, this time to the northward. He intends taking in Virginia, Carson and surroundings during his absence, which will continue some four weeks, or thereabouts. Ater more than two year's constant, unceasing wear of brain and body, we begrudge him not his needed recreation, and would here announce that he can stay as long as he pleases, provided our patrons can stand it. But it will be lively about the time he gets back, when parties anxious about the authorship of "those little articles" can call around. Until he returns with the cannon, our "fightin' editur" isn't at home.

LET US GO SLOW.

We are fully cognizant of a deep undertone of growling at a late action of the Board of Supervisors in allowing a bill of some two thousand and odd dollars for "services rendered to county," and claim to clearly understand all the merits and demerits of the matter referred to. We are never an apologist for wrong; and in this instance the only error committed was one of over-liberality. The gentleman was perhaps the only man in the county in position to satisfactorily "render" said "services," and the allowance of a reasonable compensation, if asked, was proper enough, on the principle that "the laborer is worthy his hire." It is undoubtedly a fact that the gentleman's own interests would dictate a similar effort without pay, but the matter assumes a somewhat different phase when we consider that the whole duty was performed entirely at the solicitation of the Board of Supervisors, and on their shoulders must rest the responsibility. Of course our readers will understand that the matter under consideration is the payment of $2,050 in warrants to Nathan Rhine, Esq., for selling the county bonds in San Francisco. The disposals of these securities at this time will work a saving of thousands of dollars to the county government. There are residents of the county abundantly able to have taken them, but they are of the dead-weight class who reserve only the right to lay back and growl, always refusing to make a move favoring the general public welfare. In opposition to these men, THE INDEPENDENT, by unceasing effort, has raised the convertible value of county paper from fifty to seventy cents on the dollar, so it is hardly to be supposed that we would fail to get in our oar if there was any material mistake in the conduct of the matter being discussed.

If in the investigation of county affairs the Grand Jury see fit to censure the Board, why all right, provided it is not done through spleen; but until then, let's go slow and "be decent."

The "Litigant" Contracts.

The Havilah Miner and Bakersfield Courier are engaged in a newspaper wrangle over the "phat" legal advertising of Kern county. Since the game is evidently worth the powder, and since The Courier has arrived at a happy "state of pecuniary independence," we would respectfully suggest that that journal—perhaps with the aid of others interested—make a test case and get a decision from the Courts in the matter the litigant contracts. So far as this county is concerned the class of advertising referred to amounts to about six bits per annum—the perverse people won't get sued, and taxes never (?) become delinquent. And our Tax Collectors generally slope, when we get District Attorneys who are not inclined, or are incompetent, to prosecute the sureties.

Some Hanging Needed.

Two attempts have recently been made to burn the Court House in Santa Barbara. The first time the alarm was given by a prisoner in jail, and the second time it was discovered by parties who happen to be abroad at an untimely hour of the night. It was set on the east side of the roof, and burned with a fierceness which was afterwards discovered to be due to coal oil, with which the roof had been saturated. The Board of Supervisors have offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of the scoundrels who made the incendiary attempts.

—"Door-step" parties are coming into fashion among the elite of some of the Eastern cities. The moonlight evenings are passed on the doorsteps, and ladies and gentlemen make calls and are received in style; refreshments are also served.

HOW SAN FRANCISCO DOES IT.

For purely charitable purposes, the generosity of the people of San Francisco is proverbial. In the light of the recent railroad fiasco, wherein the tremendous smoke which was produced by the wordy resolves at least indicated that a spasmodic fire of energy had at last obtained, the finale shows that the stupidity and selfishness of the people of San Francisco are quite as remarkable. So far as actions show, all the weighty schemes of the ponderous Committee were busted wide open by a wave of the Railroad Dictator's hand, although later advices do announce that the formula of appointing officers and directors for the Pacific Division of the Atlantic & Pacific road has been gone through.

With the steady support of a thousand interior towns and settlements, San Francisco has waxed exceedingly rich. What she has not captured in legitimate trade and business her heavy "rings" and "corners" have gobbled up in monopolies. With no thought of the welfare of the interior, they forget that something is due in return, and in this is exhibited shortsightedness as to their own welfare in the future. To-day no poor man, uninitroduced, can go there and obtain capital to open a mine the ledge matter of which is half gold, unless the Board of Breakers can see something therein available for immediate stock-gambling. Should the party have influence and an extended circle of friends, the Half Gold might go on the stock board, for those friends could perhaps be induced to patronize the concern and withstand the calls for "more mud." Is a prospector lucky, he straightway goes there to live, and forgets mines. He thereafter diffs into real estate and other city speculations, and like his new-found confreres totally ignores the fact that the true basis of all city values ranks exactly in proportion to the prosperity of the country surrounding. The great interior buys their manufactures, maintains the importers and all business, yet they make no adequate investment of their surplus millions in the development of the interests which afford them their commerce, net them profits and make them important.

The big daily papers of that burg are a complete reflection of this sentiment. They grow blatant over the spoils of county, city and government patronage They fight on paper the battles of nations, with minds oblivious to the actual necessities of business outside of their own streets. The many able country journals throughout the State may week after week point out with unerring accuracy and logic the infallible returns which would accrue to capital from investment in this or that enterprise, yet these "influential" city blankets, in their miserable lack of forethought, utterly ignore these efforts to develop and enhance the State. But let a country paper record a murder or suicide, or mention the birth of a natural monstrosity in the shape of a six-legged hog they seize upon the news with avidity, and with honied or caustic introduction give the item in full. Let country merchants dump millions into the coffers of San Francisco importers, let provincial publishers patronize city dealers to the extent of thousands, yet not one dime have these liberal cusses to expend in advertising their merchandise among country patrons. To this let us except quack medicine men and sewing machine agents, who seem endowed with better sense than to miss the golden opportunity. But there is no investment of money for the regular sharps down there, no encouragements and no advertisements; and what is worse, they sell goods to country dealers and then by means of drummers and circulars sell the very same wares to the country merchants' patrons at precisely the same prices. This might be called poor judgment, but a harsher term fills the bill better.

The Papers.

Newspaperdom is now head over heels in a mighty political warfare, each and every teeming sheet vieing to say and do the most stupendous things in the impending "battle for the nation's existence." We feel for the poor readers of these political cyclopedias, who must now and then turn away in disgust at the oft-repeated doses of nauseating vituperation which is heaped upon the heads of the unfortunate candidates. Even the seven-by-nine county papers, whose mission is properly their home affairs, fill every line of space with political hash, as if burdened with the cares of all the departments of government. In addition to the spunky papers which repudiate both nominees, we sigh for a few regular old orthodox exchanges, upon which to exercise our editors-in-chief—the scissors.

What They Owe.

The Savings Banks of San Francisco owe their depositors over $40,000,000, and have on hand only $1,588,000 to pay them with. It is doubtful whether there is enough coin in the State to pay off the depositors.

ARBITRATORS AND COMMISSIONERS.

Our readers are aware, from the published report of the proceedings of the County Board of Supervisors, that that body has gone into the arbitrator and commission appointing business. In the case of the Jurassic toll-road of our friend Belshaw, the Board have elected that Messrs. Earl, Hunter and Sheppard act as a Commission to examine into the state and affairs of that institution, with power to summon witnesses, send for books and papers, etc., and report their conclusions. Also, in the matter of the defalcation of Elder's Deputy Tax-Collector, they order that as a Board of Arbitrators Messrs. Laspeyre and Snelling do investigate and report upon the amount of the deficiency to be paid by Elder's bondsmen. Notwithstanding the fact that the Board paid $100 for the advice (if not for this, for what?) that this course would be legal, they have about as much right to organize these commissions and pay them as a Justice of the Peace would have to appoint as acting Deputy. In the first instance, the Board are elected and paid to do the work themselves, and should attend to it. In the latter, the collection of the deficiency should not cost the county one dollar, if the District Attorney is capable of conducting the proper suit. If he is competent, the feeing of an outside attorney is an insult to him; if not, then he should be impeached—the shortest way through these things is generally the best. The case is one in which the State is interested, and should any subsequent Grand Jury find that the whole defalcation has not been properly settled in full, then the present county officers concerned are liable on their official bonds. We will gamble a plug hat that an action which enjoined the Board from paying these commissioners, or from feeing a lawyer without an actual suit, would stick—for such proceedings are not in accordance with the precepts laid down by Hoyle, the apostle.

Cotton.

In Kern and Merced counties the growing cotton crops are reported as being in the most promising condition, with prospects of more than double the yield ordinarily obtained in the cotton States. In the former county, The Courier strongly advocates the cultivation of the product to the exclusion of cereals.

The Road to Owens River.

This road is now finished to the summit of Tehachepi Pass, beyond which there is no road making to be done. Mr. Cross will commence his return on Monday, with his working party, and on his way will revise and complete such portions of his work as may seem imperfect. We are told, however, by a person who has just been over the road, that the grades are remarkable easy, and that it is so wide and the turns so gradual that the longest team can be driven over it with perfect ease and safety by the most awkward teamster, without any further improvement whatever. This road will greatly facilitate the passage of freight to and from Owens River, and probably give a new impetus to mining operations in that region. Grain, and partlcularly hay, is very abundant in this vicinity. So is it also at Tipton, the present railroad terminus, three miles this side of Tule river, and about forty-five miles from this place. Freight and passenger cars make regular trips now to Tipton, where a large freight house and platform are almost complete, and where hotel accommodations of a very fair character are afforded in a temporary building, preliminary to one of a permanent and superior description that will soon be commenced. There is now nothing to prevent the Owens River freight teams from changing their tedious, difficult and expensive route for one that offers none of these objections.—Kern Co. Courier, Aug. 10.

Fire.

On Saturday morning last we were startled by the cry of fire, and looking out, discovered an immense volume of black smoke, darkening the sky in the lower end of town. Great tongues of savage flame shot and leaped into the air as if they would devour everything before them. Hastening in the direction of the conflagration, we found that magnificent casa, the Peco House, entirely enveloped in flames. So rapid had been the progress of the consuming element that some of the occupants of the upper stories had barely time to escape with their lives. Indeed, some of the children, who were probably in the bath at the time, appeared on the street in the interesting costume usually worn in the bath. It was but a brief period till the proud structure was laid prostrate, a heap of smouldering ruins. The Peco House was of unique and primitive style of architecture, located on Third street, North, nearly opposite the City Bakery. It was conducted on the European plan, by some sun-browned descendants of Montezumas. Its loss will be severely felt by the community, as we understand it will not be rebuilt. There was no insurance on it. —Bakersfield Californian, Aug. 8.

—A humming bird flew into a court room in Georgia during the session of the court one day recently, at 10:30 A. M., and continued to fly within a few inches of the ceiling until 6 P. M., when it fell slowly and alighted on the mantle piece, where it was captured. It was on the wing seven and a half hours without rest.

GENERAL NEWS RECORD.

The United States Marshal at Newport, R. I., has taken formal possession of the Cuban privateer, the Pioneer, by order of the President. The confiscation of the vessel will be contested in the United States Court.

German Catholics of New York are resolving against the expulsion of the Jesuits from the German Empire.

An Apache chief and sixty men, women and children are reported to have come into Fort McDowell, Arizona, to surrender their arms and take up their residence on the reservation.

A meeting of the Liberal Union Gentiles, at Salt Lake City, was broken up August 3 by the Mormons. Castro, of Monterey; Robert McGarvey, of Mendocino; John Daggett, of Humboldt, and A. J. Spencer, of Santa Clara.

The Greeley and Brown State Executive Committee appointed in San Fran on the 3d is composed of the following named members: Democrats—Michael Hoyes, William Hayes, J. W. There is soon to be a meeting of the Emperors of Germany, Russia and Austria at Berlin. Peace is said to be the meaning of it.

The Emperor Napoleon is about to test the virtues of the famous watering place—Carlsbad—in Bohemia.

Dispatches from Nijni-Novgorod, Russia, state that a great fire is raging in that city, where the annual fair is now being held, and much property is destroyed.

Stanley, the finder of Dr. Livingstone, is in London. He dined in company with Gen. Sherman and other distinguished Americans yesterday.

A dispatch from Judge Settle to President Grant, under date of August 7, says that the Republican State ticket in North Carolina is elected by 1,500 to 2,000. A later Raleigh dispatch gives official returns from all but two counties, which elect Caldwell (Rep.) by 1,000 majority. The Democrats talk of frauds and will probably contest the election.

At a meeting of Union soldiers and sailors at Baltimore, a resolution was adopted to invite Confederate soldiers and sailors to the September convention at Pittsburg, Pa., exacting only a pledge to support Grant and Wilson.

A call is soon to be issued by the straight-out Democrats of the United States to meet at Louisville in convention in September and nominate a ticket for President and set up their own platform of principles. Charles O'Conor is mentioned as the Louisville candidate for President.

The Republicans in many towns and cities East and in this State are celebrating the North Carolina victory by firing 100 guns.

Maxwell, the Gentile candidate for Congress in Utah, received about 3,500 votes. His friends claim that this is a majority of the legal votes, but the vote of Utah will probably be some over 21,000; whether legal or not the next House of Representatives will have to determine. Cannon (Mormon) will doubtless have 12,000 to 14,000 more votes than Maxwell. The excitement at Salt Lake continues on account of the second attempt of the Mormons to break up a Liberal meeting. Brigham Young and the School of Prophets are said to have instigated the outrage. Another public meeting of the Gentiles was to be held to-day, the 17th. Horace Meyers, editor of The Mining Journal, was assaulted by a Mormon on the street at Salt Lake City lately.

The second heat was taken by American Girl in 2:17¼. The third and fourth heats were won by Lucy, the fourth in 2:19¾, beating the Maid by a head. Road to Owens River.

Many of our prominent citizens are still discussing and considering the benefits which a practicable road across the mountains to the Owens River country would confer. Such a road, constructed so as to invite and secure the freight and travel now directed to Los Angeles through our valley to a point on the railroad in Tulare county would be of immense advantage to this section. The wants of the hundreds of mule teams would furnish a market for the hay and grain which is now well nigh unsalable, and the effect would be to make money plentiful and build up the country. Such a state of things might not benefit Visalia, itself, directly; but indirectly it would do so, while it would be of incalculable advantage to the farmers of the surrounding country. We hope to see some steps taken towards proseenting this great enterprise to completion. Our farmers of all others are the ones especially interested in its success. —Visalia Times, Aug. 8.

Solomon's Temple.

Lieut. Warren, an officer of the Royal Engineers, has for a long time past been engaged, at the expense of an English society, in making extensive explorations on the site of the Temple of Solomon in Jerusalem, and has already made some startling discoveries. He has, it is stated, established by actual demonstration, that the south wall of the sacred enclosure which contained the Temple, is buried for more than half its depth beneath an accumulation of rubbish—probably the ruins of the successive buildings that once crowned it—and that if bared to its foundation, the wall would present an unbroken face of solid masonry of nearly 1,000 feet long, and for a large portion of that distance more than 150 feet in hight on the transept. The wall as it stands, with less than half that hight emerging from the ground, has always been regarded as a great marvel.

Disinfectant.

One pound of green copperas, costing seven cents, dissolved in a quart of water, and poured down a water closet, will effectually concentrate and destroy the foulest smells. On board ships, steamboats, and about hotels and other public places, there is nothing so nice to purify air. Simple green copperas, dissolved under the bed in anything that will hold water, will render a hospital, or other places for the sick, free from any unpleasant smell. For butcher's stalls, fish markets, slaughter houses, sinks, and wherever there are offensive, putrid gasses, dissolve copperas and sprinkle it about, and in a few days the smell will pass away. If a cat, rat or mouse dies about the house and sends forth an offensive gas, place some dissolved copperas in an open vessel near the place where the nuisance is, and it will soon purify the atmosphere.

—"I don't care much about the bugs," said Warmley to the head of a genteel boarding house, "but the fact is madam, I haven't the blood to spare, you see that yourself."

DIED.

In Aurora, Nevada, August 7, 1872, Judge WILLIAM M. BORING, aged 43 years.

Our record of deaths has never contained an announcement that occasioned more genuine sorrow than will the above. The genial, kindly Boring, one of the noblest-hearted men that ever lived, has gone to the mysteries beyond the gate of death. The deceased was an early resident of this State, and one of the Pioneers of Nevada. Formerly, he was County Judge of Tulare county, subsequently filled the offices of Probate Judge and District Attorney of Esmeralda county, Nev., and was State Senator at the time of his demise. He stood at the head of his profession as a lawyer, his advice and counsel being freely given to all asking it, and was of the strictest integrity as a public officer and private citizen. The sorrowful winds are now moaning their sad dirges over his grave on the hill, but his memories will linger freshest in the hearts of those who knew him best.

The Military Party.

On Monday last we had the pleasure of meeting Gen. Schofield, Judge Hoffman and Col. Wherry, members of the distinguished party whom we last week mentioned as having arrived at Camp Independence. The party consisted of Judge O. Hoffman, of the United States District Court; Major-General J. M. Schofield, commanding Military Division of the Pacific; Dr. McMillin, Asst. Surgeon, U. S. A.; Brevet Brig. Gen. Samuel Breck, Assistant Adjutant General Department of California; Brevet Col. Wm. M. Wherry, Aid-de-Camp, Gen. Schofield's staff; Col. C. W. Wingard, Paymaster U. S. A., and R. R. Tilley, Clerk Pay Department, the whole escorted from Visalia by Lieut. Harry L. Haskel, of the company at the Post. They started from Visalia on the 31st ultimo, coming thitherward over the Hockett trail. On Kern river they spent some days in fishing, attended with good, bad and indifferent luck, according to the skill of the amateur fishists, the amusements enlivened by an occasional hunt. Bierstadt started in advance of the party, and is now in the mountains. This region was new to all save our old friend Dr. McMillin, the former Post Surgeon, and all seemed to take the liveliest interest in what they saw and heard hereabouts. Judge Hoffman, in particular, was not at all unobserving of the country which produced the Kearsarge bankrupt case, and in which he, years ago, ventured some thousands in what he denominated as "the Owens River mine" across the valley. Rushing through their official business, the officers and the Judge started by the Yosemite route homeward on Tuesday last, having made but a very short stay, that being the only disagreeable part of their visit.

Shooting at Lone Pine.

A shooting affray occurred at Lone Pine at 2 o'clock on the morning of the 13th instant, in which Leonardo Dalenguela, a Mexican, was shot and severely wounded by one John Stewart, an American. From accounts it appears that Stewart was occupying a bed with a low Mexican creature known as Tule, when Dalenguela came in and engaged in a Spanish conversation with the woman. Stewart got up, when the Mexican struck at him with a knife, cutting his collar; the Mexican afterwards assaulted the woman. Going to Begole's saloon Stewart got a six-shooter and returned, when he was asked by the Mexican if he was "heela." Receiving an affirmative answer, business was about commencing at the time Stewart fired. Dalenguela exclaimed "Don't shoot again," and turned away, having been hit in the right breast, just above the nipple. Upon examination, Dr. Columber pronounced the wound not necessarily fatal, though it is said that the ball passed directly through the man's body. Upon arrest, Stewart was examined before Justice P. Pierson and discharged, no complaint being made against him. The wounded man is recovering. Dr. Columber being remarkably successful in his treatment of such cases.

Ball at the New Hotel.

A grand benefit ball, in aid of the Blaney children, is announced to come off at the new Exchange Hotel building, on the evening of Friday, August 30th. The affair is under the supervising management of the executors of the estate, but we understand that the ladies of Independence generally are to join in the preparation of the supper. The object is a most worthy one, and lovers of the dance cannot do better than to attend.

The Post Contracts.

No awards have been made for the rebuilding of the Post quarters at Camp Independence, under the invitations for bids as advertised. Three proposals were received, being those of J. B. White for $61,000; E. Chaquette $69,000, and J. Earl for $84,000. The largest sum allowed by the Department for this purpose is $40,000, currency.

New Saloons.

The country is coming out, and is safe now. At Bishop Creek, J. C. Kingsley will next week open a new saloon, and Bob Peterson will shortly do likewise at Danerisburg.

To Postmasters.

Our local postmasters throughout the county will confer upon us a great favor, as well as comply with instructions from the Postmaster General, by notifying us when papers fail to be taken from their offices, from any cause.

County Court.

A term of the County Court commences on Monday, September 2, at which time the Grand Jury, now being summoned, will hold a regular session for general business.

Law Card.

The professional card of M. A. Murphy, Esq., attorney at law, of Aurora, this week appears among our new advertisements.

Mount Whitney Again—Return of Sheriff Mulkey.

Sheriff Mulkey arrived home on Sunday last from a lengthy stay in the mountains and valleys near Whitney and in the Kern river region, himself and family looking robust and hearty from the effects of the cool, salubrious climate, the delicious mineral waters and the wholesome "dieting" on fish and game. To Mr. Mulkey is due great credit for discovering and making a practicable riding trail to the summit of the mountain, the detailed route of which he describes as being the Hockett trail from Lone Pine across the Sierra Nevadas to the waters of the South Fork of Kern river, and thence west to the summit of the divide between the South Fork and the Middle Fork, where the trail is left to the southward. From this point the route leads in a northwest direction to the head waters of Natural Bridge creek, and then directly north across the crest of a range of hills dividing Natural Bridge creek and Fall river; thence eastward and up Fall river to the head, where the trail turns to the north immediately on the summit of the Sierras, and leads to the foot of the main peak of Whitney. From here it goes nearly due west, around the base of the peak to the west side thereof; at this place there is a break or pass in the terrific cliffs described by King and hitherto scaled by tourists. There is considerable upness connected with the whole journey, but now a ride of two and one half miles eastward up the mountain, on the zig-zag trail made by Mr. Mulkey's animals, bring the sight-hunter to the top of the daddy of all American mountains. The pass referred to is formed of sand and nearly covered with hugh granite bowlders, between which riders pick their way. The timber dies out about four miles from the summit, the vegetation from this point upward consisting of weeds and a species of sour-grass. The crevices and small canyons are filled with snow, from which water trickles down the rocks and sand. There are three monuments of rock on the peak, the oldest of which was laid up by Wm. Bellows, in '64, who was probably the first white man to reach the apex. Having taken up a pack-load of wood, on the evening of the 6th instant, the party lighted a huge bon fire, which was distinctly visible at most of the settlements in the county. The weather was severely cold, and a snow storm at one time passed entirely below them. The eye reached beyond all surrounding mountain ranges, but views in the valleys seemed obstructed by fog. However, they identified buildings in Lone Pine and Independence, so the peak must be in sight of this place. Mr. Mulkey gives the same general description of the region as published by us last week, and confirms the statement that there are no evidences of the late earthquake to be seen anywhere in the Kern river country.

Mine Jumped.

A small sensation is contained in the announcement that the Eclipse mine, after having had thousands of pounds sterling expended upon it by its owners, has been "jumped," with a fair prospect of the rightful owners having a lively time of it to retain their property. The circumstances, which we give without unnecessary comment, are these: On Saturday night last, one James Banning, lately of Cerro Gordo, accompanied by —— Byrnes, proceeded to a point near the mine and located a claim, dubbed the "Warrior," which will cover the entire Eclipse ground, but did not disturb the Eclipse works, the miners of which company are now regularly working in the shafts. After recording their claim, the jumpers make the following allegations concerning the Eclipse company, which are about the facts: That the Eclipse company, being composed of aliens and foreigners, have no title whatever under the United States laws concerning the acquirement of the public domain; that an attempt was made to fraudulently obtain a patent by temporarily deeding the property (without actual change of ownership or supervision) to one I. Friedlander, him to obtain the Government title and convey the same to the company; that the company have in no way, shape or manner aided or patronized American business where it could be avoided; that the present Superintendent has actually taken every means to throw the utmost discredit upon everything and everybody connected with this immediate county; that it is impossible for them to get a title by their present illegal efforts, and that they, the new claimants, can obtain a patent and will succeed in doing so. We have had no conversation with the Eclipse men, but presume they are not much alarmed, since they paid $250,000 for the original possessory title, and no abandonment can be claimed by the jumpers. In most countries a case of this kind would involve some shot-guns, Henrys and things.

Amusements.

Preparations are being made by Antonio Veillagus for a series of characteristic Spanish amusements, to commence on the 16th of September next and continue three days, at Rancho de Olancha. The programme includes bull fighting on foot, with bull riding, horse racing, chicken pulling, dancing and—drinking, somewhat. The date is the anniversary of the independence of Mexico, and the annual celebrations on this day are justly notable affairs.

Lumber.

Lone Pine busines men complain of the great scarcity of lumber, and of the almost impossibility of obtaining it. The construction of many projected buildings is necessarily delayed on this account.

Book Binding

Consult the advertisement under the head of "Book Binding."

Building.

Under the busy hands of the carpenters, the several new structures going up around town are making good progress. Harris & Rhine's establishment is now nearly complete, half the shelving in, painted and ceiled, with the doors and final touches upon the cornice to be added next week. The Exchange Hotel, Firestone & Stecker, builders, is receiving the siding and roof, and already adds greatly to the appearance of the town. Tom May's old frame building and the adobe butcher shop of John Broder will shortly be torn away for replacement by large, fine buildings. Lumber is arriving for the new INDEPENDENT office, and judging from the numerous lumber piles scattered around other houses will in due time increase the size of our town. Once proof against earthquakes, then save us from fire. In the name of common sense why don't the citizens do something in regard to the matter? Some cold morning the denizens of the place will find themselves wishing they had devoted half they was worth to some method for protection.

Benton.

A "jokial" writer from Benton says, among other things: "I would send you some items, but the item market is very dull. When the d—d mill starts up there may be a few ideas to gather, but now things are statuer quoer than I ever saw them anywhere. Have you seen the last Horace joke: 'You must never feed hens corn in the ear, as it's apt to spoil their hearing.' * * I want to go home." Run right along, sonny.

Change of Base.

John Daneri yesterday commenced removing his stock of goods from Lone Pine to his new store and warehouse at the foot of the lake, where he and Mr. Creighton will henceforth carry on the merchandising business, in connection with the shipment of bullion, etc. Immediately in front of the temporary store just vacated by Mr. Daneri, will be erected a large storeroom, by L. Munzinger.

Information Wanted.

We are in receipt of a letter from Latta & Tarr, Greensburg, Pa., addressed to The "Swansea Democrat," asking for information of Joseph Heath, who died in Visalia some months since. If some of Joe's old friends will send us any particulars concerning him, we will take pleasure in forwarding it to the parties, who will convey it to the aged mother of the deceased.

Aurora Drug Store.

Our readers to the northward will take notice of the advertisement of Mr. C. E. Baldwin, of the Aurora Drug Store. He has a very large and complete assortment of articles in his line, and is always ready to dispose of them at reasonable rates. Charley is a popular man, and sabes his business.

Valid.

One of the deserters, upon his trial for desertion by the Court-Martial held at Camp Independence last week, offered, in extenuation of the act, that he had previously deserted from Company I, of the Battery, in Arizona, and was going to return there to give himself up.

Another Change.

We last week neglected to mention the fact, to be shown by the advertisement, that Mr. J. Schalton has taken the management of the Inyo House, and will run it to everybody's satisfaction.

Good.

We are indebted to Col. Putney for a sample bottle of J. C. Morrison's "Turf Congress" whisky. The Senior aint here, but we return thanks all the same.

VARIETIES.

—They will never let up on the "old chap of Chappaqua." He is now credited with the following: "In sowing turnup bedsteads a sail-maker's needle should invaribly be used. With it perforate the ground to the depth of two or three inches, pull out the hole and insert the bedstead. In two weeks the turnups will begin to sprout During the period, the bed should be well watered and kept warm by a counterpane. The best way to prepare these beds is with a threshing machine. Of these there are several descriptions, but the Mace and Coburn is undoubtedly the best. Whoever dares to think different is a red handed rebel, a liar, a villain, a slave, and bought with British gold."

—The idea of sending the New York morning papers to Chicago by pneumatic tube in time to read at the breakfast table, does not seem so feasible when we know that the law governing pneumatic power is said to be, "The mean speed of transmission varies inversely with the length, and inversely also with the square root of the diameter of the tube. If this be true, a body which flashed through a tube a mile long in one minute, would take sixteen minutes to go through four miles of tubing, and would crawl through the thousand miles between New York and Chicago in one year, 229 days, 10 hours and 4 minutes.

—Somebody wrote to the editor of a village paper to ask how he would "break an ox?" The editor replied as follows: "If only one ox, a good way would be to hoist him, by means of a long chain attached to his tail, to the top of a pole forty feet from the ground, Then hoist him by a rope tied to his horns to another pole. Then descend on to his back a five ton pile driver, and, if that don't break him, let him start a country newspaper and trust people for subscription. One of the two ways will do it sure.

—In the First Division, second corps, they had a mule noted for his wonderful kicking powers. In fact, he was ready to give any one a kick upon all occasions. On the road to Richmond he got his leg broke in a bridge, and was taken out of the team and shot, and was to all appearance dead, when a soldier ran up, seized the mule by the tail, and exclaimed: "Now kick;" and the mule, having just one kick left, let him have it, breaking the soldier's jaw, and sending him rolling into the ditch The soldier never heard the last of being kicked by a dead mule.

—Resist the temptation of circulating ill reports; if you cannot speak well of another, at least do not speak ill of him Never speak ill of another behind his back. Why should you consider his character of less value than your own? Speak of others as you would were they present; speak as a friend of him who is absent, and cannot speak for himself.

—At Mattoon, Ill., there is a pie woman who retails sewed, pegged, or machine stiched pies, the size of an elephant's foot, for the sum of two nickels each. Those who think the country is not prospering under the present Administration will do well to note this fact.

—A Burlington (Iowa) doctor charged $10 for removing a grain of corn that lodged in a boy's ear, but the lad's father grumbled at the surgeon's price, and said, "A coffin only cost $7, and then the corn would have sprouted soon and could have been pulled up by the roots."

—An Indianapolis youth surveys the beauties of nature with one eye while the other calmly reposes beneath an oyster. And all because he tried to loosen the corsets of his girl, who had fainted at Barnum's shop. He says he never again will believe what he reads in the papers.

—Street cars in New Orleans are propelled by steam which is "cooked" before it is placed on the cars. It is said to ease the minds of all who think the old lady was right in her statement that "them pesky accidents come of cooking the steam on board the boat."

—An old Dutch acquaintance, some years ago, who was elected a member of the Legislature, said in his broken English style: "Ven I vent to the Leckislatur I tought I vood find den all Solomons dere, but I found dere vas some as pig fools dare as I vas."

—Willard's Hotel at Washington has been leased at the rate of fifteen thousand dollars the first year, twenty thousand the second, twenty-five thousand the third, and thirty thousand the fourth year and thereafter.

—The best recorded vaulting over horses was performed by George M. Keily on August 24, 1868, at Corinth, Miss., when he cleared seventeen horses. This is vouched for by affidavits of responsible parties.

—A new style of ornamenting parasols is with a top, on which is a small thermometer, so that they can always tell to what degree of heat they have been subjected in their morning promenade.

—A man in Michigan swapped a horse for a man's wife. A bachelor acquintance remarked there was something wrong about that horse, or he would never have fooled him away in that manner.

—A young man who was caught straining his sweetheart to his bosom the other night, justifies himself on the ground that he has a right to strain his own honey.

—A telegram from London says that during the past month of July seventeen thousand emigrants sailed from Liverpool for America.

EGYPT.

BY GEN. W. H. LYTLE, U. S. A.

(Published by Request.)

I'm dying, Egypt, dying,
Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast,
And the dark Plutonian shadows
Gather on the evening blast;
Let thine arms, oh! Queen, support me,
Hush thy sobs, and bow thine ear,
Listen to the great heart's secret,
Thou, and thou alone must hear.

Though my scarred and veteran legions,
Bear their eagles high no more,
Though my wrecked and scattered galleys
Strew dark Actium's fatal shore;
Though no guttering guard surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will,
I must perish like a roman,
Die, the great Triumvirer still.

Let not Cæsar's servile minions
Mock the lion thus laid low;
'Twas no foeman's hand that felled him,
'Twas his own that struck the blow.
Here then pillowed on thy bosom,
E'er his star fades quite away,
Him who drunk with thy caresses,
Madly flung a world away.

Should the base plebian rabble,
Dare assail my fame at Rome,
Where the noble spouse Octavia
Weeps within her widowed home;
Seek her, say the gods have told me,
Augurs, Augurs, clearing wings,
That her blood with mine commingled
Yet shall mount the throne of Kings.

And for thee, star-eyed Egyptian,
Glorious sorceress of the Nile,
Light the path to stygian horrors
With the splendors of thy smile.
Give this Cæsar crowns and sceptres,
Let his brow the laurel twine—
I can scorn a senate's triumph,
Triumphing in love like thine.

Oh! I'm dying, Egypt, dying,
Hark! the insulting foeman's cry,
They are coming, quick! my falchion!
Let me front them ere I die.
Ah! no more amid the battle,
Shall my heart exulting swell;
Iris and Osiris guard thee,
Cleopatra, Rome, farewell.

"I'M CONSCRIPTED, SMITH, CONSCRIPTED."

(PARODY ON "I'M DYING, EGYPT, DYING.")

By A. G. Roberts, Conted, Conscript, and not by Gen. W. H. Lytle.

I'm conscripted, Smith, conscripted,
Ebbs the subterfuges fast,
And the sub-enrolling marshals
Gather with the evening blast;
Let thine arms, oh! Smith, support me,
Hush your gab and close your ear,
Conscript grabbers close upon you,
Hunting for you, far and near.

Though my scarred, rheumatic "tratters"
Bear me limping short no more—
And shattered constitution
Won't exempt me any more;
Though the provost guard surround me,
Prompt to do their master's will,
I must to the front to perish,
Die the great conscripted still.

Let not the seize 'n's servile minions,
Mock the lion thus laid low;
'Twas no fancy drink that "jewed" him,
Whisky straight out struck the blow.
Hear, then pillowed on my bosom,
Ere he's hurried quite away,
Him, who drunk with bust-head whisky,
Madly throws himself away.

Should the base plebian rabble,
Dare assail me as I roam,
Seek my noble squaw Octavia,
Weeping in her widowed home.
Seek her, say, the guards have got me,
Under their protecting wings,
Going to make me join the army
Where the small and minnie sings.

I'm conscripted, Smith, conscripted,
Hark! you hear the grabber's cry;
Run, old Smith, my boy, they'll catch you,
Take you to the front to die.
Fare thee well, I go to battle,
There to die, decay and swell,
Lockhart and Dick Taylor guard thee,
Sweet Octavia, Smith, farewell.

Hydroscopy.

A Frenchman by the name of Paramelle has been devoting himself to the scientific study of subterranean waters, the kind of ground where they are to be found, their flowing, the physical laws that govern their abundance or scarcity, and their depth.

The science is now said to be complete, and has been christened "hydroscopy," or subterranean hydrology. Its applications are definite, and among them we must place in the first rank the discovery of springs and well sites. Within easy access of every village, almost of every house, and generally at a little depth below the surface of the soil, there exists streams of water. By a simple digging (indicated after a thorough survey of the place, and not by the aid of the divining-rods, which have made so many dupes), one can channel out the hidden streams, and make them flow to the surface; or else a well can be dug which will furnish an abundant supply of water. Paramelle has already, it is stated, discovered 9,500 springs in France, and his disciples have been equally successful.—American Artisan.

A Second Solomon.

A case recently tried before the Clonmel (Ireland) Assizes was brought to a singular and novel termination by the presiding Judge. The parties in the case were a young man and a young woman, both of whom claimed possession of a rural property, one by virtue of an ancient lease and the other under a will. They were in court for the purpose of giving their testimony, when a bright idea occurred to the magistrate, one Clarke, who interrupted the case to say: "It just strikes that there is a pleasant and easy way to terminate this lawsuit. The plaintiff appears to be a respectable young man, and this is a very nice young woman. [Laughter.] They can both get married and live happily on this farm. If they go on with law proceedings it will be frittered away between the lawyers, who, I am sure, are not ungallant enough to wish the marriage not to come off." The young lady, on being interrogated, blushed, and said she was quite willing to marry the plaintiff. The latter, on being asked if he would wed the young woman, gallantly responded, "Most undoubtedly." Clark remarked that the suggestion occurred to him by instinct on seeing the young couple. A verdict was subsequently entered for plaintiff on condition of his promise to marry defendant within two months, a stay of execution being put on the verdict till the marriage ceremony is completed. The counsel gave the young lady such an unmerciful "chaffing" on her consent, which many in court thought should have been first obtained from the plaintiff, that she left the court in tears.

Eccentricity.

The following singular instance of eccentricity, illustrating the close connection of this connection of the mind with insanity, is related by Professor Hammond in his work on diseases of the nervous system:

A lady had since her childhood shown a singularity of conduct as regarded her table furniture, which she would have of no other material than copper. She carried this fancy to such an extent that even the knives were made of copper. People laughed at her, and tried to reason her out of her whim, but in vain. In no other respect was there any evidence of mental aberration. She was intelligent, by no means excitable, and in the enjoyment of excellent health. An uncle had, however, died insane. A trifling circumstance started in her a new train of thought, and excited emotions she could not control. She read in the morning paper that Kopperman had arrived at one of the hotels and she announced her determination to call on him. Her friends endeavored to dissuade her, but without avail. She went to the hotel and was told that he had just left for Chicago. Without returning to her home, she bought a ticket for Chicago, and actually left on the next train for that city. The telegraph, however, overtook her, and she was brought back from Rochester raving of her love for a man she had never seen, and whose name alone had been associated in her mind with her fancy for copper table furniture. She died of acute mania within a month.

Striving for Popularity.

They have a candidate for the Legislature in Virginia who thought, some time ago, that he had hit upon a first-rate plan for gaining popularity. He used to go out by the railroad track and pick up the first child he saw playing around anywhere near, and then he would hold that infant until he saw a train coming. Then he would place his little victim on the track and hide in the bushes. Just as the locomotive got almost to the spot he would rush out and seize the child and drag it off the track just in the nick of time. Upon other occasions he would push little children off the canal boats and dive after them. The consequence was that he was for a time the most popular man in the country. But he did so much of this kind of business that people at last began to grow suspicious, and certain of his political adversaries determined to watch him. One day they came upon him while he was placing the child upon the track. They kept quiet until the crowd started up in front of him. He was so unnerved that he forgot to seize the child, and the train ran over it. He had to pay ten thousand dollars damages for the loss of the boy's leg, and he is now in jail on a charge of assault and battery with attempt to kill. It is thought he will not go to the Legislature next Winter.

Scientific Revenge.

A terrible scientific revenge was recently taken by a young chemist in Venice named Orlando Farnerini. He loved a young lady, but she loved another, who was a tailor. Orlando owed him money, and sent word he would pay it if the tailor and his betrothed would visit him in his laboratory. The invitation was accepted, and Orlando slyly got them to take part in electrical experiments. He bade them give him their hands, put one pole of a Rumkorf apparatus between the girl's fingers, and the other into the tailor's hands and then joined currents. The lovers fell to the ground in convulsive fits, but Farnerini only laughed. After trying to disengage themselves from the apparatus in vain, in five minutes they became distorted corpses. Farnerini, with the utmost sangfroid, reported the matter to the police and gave himself up.

—Camilla Urso, the violinist, will return to this country soon.

Oysters.

An observer of the oyster says that he is not so stupid as he looks; he can keep his mouth shut and thereby defy all our arts to wile a secret from him. When spatting time with the oyster comes, it is said to be sick or milky. This appearance is due to the accumulation of the spat, which is, in its earlier stages of development, of a creamy consistency and color. When the spat is mature it assumes the appearance of the scrapings of a slate and pencil; the parent oyster then opens its shell, and a kind of mistiness is observed in the surrounding water. This is caused by the myriads of young oysters scattered in every direction. No sooner are these tiny creatures free from their mother then they assume the most active state of life and motion, dancing and gyrating up and down in eccentric sunbeams.—Under the lens of a microscope you will see how exquisitely these little fellows are fashioned: a pair of tiny shells, the counterpart of those of the maturer oyster, encloses the yet rudimentary organs, while affixed to the mantle is a kind of tiny coronet, composed of minute hair-like appendages (cilia). The violent and ceaseless vibration of these paddles serves to row the infant oyster rapidly from place to place. Should it be the destiny of one of these fragile beings to become a steady, well-behaved oyster, it finally settles itself fast—no one very clearly knows how—by the under-valve or shell. The bristle like oars or cilia, no longer of any utility, disappear, and now a permanent fixture, the baby oyster begins to grow. At about a fortnight old it is not much bigger than a fair sized pin's-head, and at three months about that of a split pea. Having attained a year's growth under favorable conditions, the young oyster will have become as big as an ordinary half-penny; while at four years' growth they are considered marketable.—Philadelphia Press.

A Big Dinner.

A couple of flat-boatmen on the Mississippi river, having made an extraordinarily good speculation—made, in fact, six hundred dollars, a large sum to that kind of folk, twenty years ago—concluded that while they were in New Orleans they would for once in their lives see what it was to have a real first-class hotel dinner. They could afford it, and they would just like to see how it would go. So they went to the St. Charles Hotel and ordered the very best dinner that establishment could afford. When they had eaten to their complete and entire satisfaction (and the probable astonishment of the waiters) they called for their bill. The waiter in attendance misunderstanding them, and supposing they wanted the bill of fare, laid it before them with the wine list uppermost.

"Whew, Bill!" said Jerry, "here's a bill! Just look at it! Here, you add up one side and I'll add up the other, and we'll see what the old thing comes to."

So Bill added up the prices of wines on one side of the list and Jerry added them up on the other, and they made the sum total $584.

"Wh—ew, Bill!" said Jerry, "that's nigh all we've got! What are we a goin' to do about it?"

"We can't pay that," said Bill, "it 'ud clean us right out. The waiter ain't here now, let's jump out of the window and put!"

"No, sir-ee," said Jerry, "I'd never do sich a mean thing as that. Let's pay the bill and then go down stairs and shoot the landlord."

Opium Eaters.

The habit of opium eating is undoubtedly gaining ground in America. Druggists tell of long lists of regular customers who come to their shops for the fascinating intoxicant, and it is a well known and lamentable fact that there are scores of men of letters, in the ranks of the clergy, the legal and medical professions, who do the greater part of their work under the influence of the seductive drug. To meet the demand, the importation of opium is constantly increasing, and last year's statistics show that of the 560,000 pounds sent out from Smyrna, the United States took 280,000. When we add to this the importations from other less important ports, and the very considerable quantity produced in California, and mostly used at home, we may well fear that time will bring us that enervation that is sure to ultimately characterize an opium-eating people.—Boston Globe

Proposed New Style of School Books.

A paper out West wants modern improvements worked into school reading books, and offers the following as an example that would be up to the spirit of the age:

Here is a man. He is a fireman. He belongs to No. 10. If you are a good boy, you will some day be an angel like that fireman. They sometimes get their heads broken.

Do you see that small boy? He is a good boy and supports his mother by selling newspapers. His father don't have to work any more now.

Here is the picture of a young widow. See how sad she looks. Her husband could not pay her dry goods bill, and so he—died. Do you think she will get another man? She will try hard.

Here is the face of a reporter. See how joyful he looks. He has just heard that a man has cut his own throat, and he is going for the item. Should you like to be a reporter, and get licked on dark nights, and see dead persons, and climb up four pairs of stairs?

The Persian Famine.

Many harrowing facts have been given of the late dreadful famine in Petsia, but one incident is now related so intensely horrible as to almost surpass all belief, although seriously mentioned in The Levant Times. In the Persian city of Flamatan, two famishing women, aided by seven others, stole three children and ate them. They were arrested and the bones of the dead children found partially concealed in their clothes. The Grand Vizier condemned the two women to the gibbet and their companions in guilt to be starved to death in prison. At the end of a week five of these seven wretches were found dead in prison, after having devoured the other two.

Railroads.

The railroad from Watsonville is pushing into the Salinas Valley with speed, 700 hands being employed thereon. The camps of the Bantas and Oakland road engineers have been re-established, which is an evidence that that road, now graded from Bantas to Antioch, will be finished in due time. The Vallejo road is now undergoing proper repairs and is expected to be in operation by the first of the coming month—while there is every prospect that the narrow guage road proposed from Maine Prairie, Solano county, to Cache Creek Canon, will be undertaken this Fall and perhaps completed. In regard to the San Francisco railroad hubbub, it is probable that Stanford and the Committee of One Hundred will effect a compromise, the terms of which are substantially, that the Central Pacific will abandon definitely the proposition to secure Goat Island and proceed to build the Ravenswood bridge, and construct the road along the water front to Mission Bay, by which to bring in the Southern Pacific, Central Pacific and San Joaquin Valley Railroads, and as soon as authorized by law to run a track through the city to North Beach, and deliver goods without extra charge along the line of the city, in turn to give a subsidy of two and a half millions in six per cent bonds, and consent to the modification of surveys in Mission Bay.

Another Gold Note Bank.

Edgar Mills, of the firm of D. O. Mills & Co., Sacramento, has been to Washington to make arrangements for establishing a gold note bank in that city. The notes will be in Sacramento within two or three days, and the bank will open on the gold note basis as soon as practicable after the arrival of the notes.

Roller Skating.

Woodward, him of the celebrated gardens down at San Francisco, has arranged a grand roller skating tournament, to transpire at his rink on August 31st, for a prize of a diamond eagle medal, open to all amateur skaters who have resided on the coast one year. We acknowledge the receipt of complimentary tickets.

Withdrawn.

The Matter.

The Jesuits whom Bismarck is so anxious to expel from Germany number less than 1,000, all told. It is stated that the Order throughout the world does not exceed 5,000. It is the brains of the Jesuits and not their numbers that make them feared by civil rulers.

THE PIONEERS OF INYO.

With a well-conceived idea of perpetuating the memories and associations of early life in California, Pioneer Societies are organized and exist in many localities of the State. In the East the same objects meet furtherance in organizations under the name of Historical Societies, and through these mediums come everything of historical interest concerning the early days of pioneer life, vicissitude and adventure.

No one of the particular counties which thus preserve their historical annals have a past so fraught with times of vivid interest as this, and yet we still have among us a respectable minority of the actors concerned in the excitements and events which go to make up the unwritten history of Owens River. But they are few, and in the natural course of affairs they will grow still less in numbers—these hardy pioneers, whose life in Inyo has been contemporary with the ups and downs and the lights and shades of the county from a period long before its organization up to the present peaceful and prosperous days.

To this class we would direct our remarks, and can hardly seem too earnest in urging upon them the importance and necessity of promptly and properly organizing themselves into a Pioneer Society, for the preservation of such official records and documents as may be in possession of some of them, and for the general welfare and social enjoyment of its members. In no other manner, save by due system and organization, can there be so easily attained, accurate and trustworthy reports of the interesting events and episodes which have transpired in our local history, covering the earliest discoveries and settlement, the Indian troubles throughout, from the White Mountains down to Little Lake, the rise, fall and great expectations of the embryotic cities along the river, the exodus of the whites, the collective and individual daring and adventure of the brave few who remained, not omitting mention of some of the comical scares, the re-populating and the successive changes of interest as it centered upon the discovery and opening of new districts, the experience of exploring parties, the introduction of troops, etc., etc.,—the details of all of which would be brought out and go to make a page of intensely interesting narrative.

The county's present and somewhat unenviable notoriety, can only eventually result in attracting the attention of the world to its wonderful natural features, including its varied mineral wealth. Commercial writers will report upon our bullion product, scientists will write of the geological structure of the country, and artists will portray upon canvas the rugged scenery of the mountains. In short, the country producing every precious metal, an inexhaustible valley of salt, a dead sea, and having within its limits the highest as well as the lowest land in the United States, will become famous—and a society of pioneers who shall first commence a history will entitle themselves to the gratitude of the multitudes to follow in their wake and figure upon the scenes when the discoverers have passed away.

Organize now, enjoy yourselves over the social board and in the lyceum while you revel amid the recollections of early days, collate the substance of your history and industrious historians will commit them to print. As time rolls along accessions to your ranks by later comers will be in order, and eventually those who "stood in" "Before the Earthquake" may with propriety join you. In the good time coming when the reverberation of the locomotive whistle awakes the valley, and the din and roar of hoisting works and mills resound on the mountains, you will rejoice that the dim past is linked to the busy future in imperishable records. Set the ball rolling, so that we may shortly chronicle the fact that something has been done toward the organization of a society of Inyo Pioneers.

Quick Work in Peru.

We have news from Peru by way of Jamaica, that Gutierrez had proclaimed himself Dictator, inaugurated a revolution and assassinated President Balta; that the people revolted with horror against the Dictator, seized and killed him, and that Col. Prado (President some years ago) has been inaugurated President of the Republic, which ends the revolution.

Timely Caution.

The Financier, a reliable money journal published in New York, cautions the people of San Francisco against the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company, and calls it a monstrous job.

Pacific Coast Advertiser.

This valuable sheet, published in San Francisco by Boyce & Co, has entered upon its second volume.

North Carolina Elections.

The dispatches concerning the late election in the old North State contain the statement that "the Secretary of North Carolina will give a certificate of election for the Governorship to Merrimon instead of Caldwell, on account of alleged irregularities." Our Eastern exchanges come teeming with long details of frauds, the perusal of which is well calculated to disgust an honest citizen and to raise in his mind very serious doubts of the justice or efficacy for good of that policy which invested the whole negro population of the South with the elective franchise. W. H. Saunders, a colored voter of Greeley sympathies, who has just returned from North Carolina, whose statements are endorsed by George W. Hatton and Walter Sorrell, two other colored men, gives an account of the manner in which the election was carried, from which we quote the following:

At least ten thousand colored voters were imported from Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia, and cast their votes in solid phalanx for Grant. They will now return to their own states to do likewise. Every effort was made to intimidate colored Greeley voters, but numbers of them went to the polls and took the consequences of their action. A number of the colonized voters, too, were prevented by the determined stand made by the Greeley canvassers, and the desperate plight the Grant men were in is proved by the means they resorted to.

Exactly.

Horace, the sage philosopher of Chappaqua, occasionally gives some well heeded advice. He furnishes the following as a sure means of destroying the prosperity of the most promising town, and the prescription is sometimes accurately followed:

If you want to keep a town from thriving, don't put up any more buildings than you can conveniently occupy yourself. If you should accidently have an empty building and any one should want to rent it, ask three times the value of it. Demand a Shylock price for every spot of ground that God has given you stewardship over. Turn a cold shoulder to every mechanic and business man seeking a home with you. Look at every newcomer with a scowl. Run down the work of every new workman. Go abroad for wares rather than deal with those who seek to do business in your midst. Fail to advertise, or in any other way to support your paper, so that people abroad may know whether any business is going on in that town or not. Wrap yourselves up within yourselves, with a coat of impervious selfishness. There is no more effectual way to retard the growth of a town than actions like those enumerated, and there are people in every town who are pursuing the same course every day of their lives, and to whom the above remarks are respectfully offered for their consideration."

Too Much Noise.

A bill to regulate the use of steam whistles in manufactories has recently been introduced in the British House of Lords. Their Lordships have of late become so annoyed by the unceasing tuning of steam whistles that they now seem determined to abate the nuisance of summoning and dismissing workman by steam lung power. The London Echo, which, as it name implies, derives its chief sustenance from the reverberation of various sounds, ridicules this measure. It insists upon embracing in the act a prohibition of bell ringing, the firing of cannon and the pounding of dinner gongs. People who desire to sleep nights, which for the British aristocracy usually continues until about noon, object to having their nervous system shocked. But what would a great manufacturing city do without steam whistles and their various orchestral accompaniments?

Fish Culture.

The last Congress appropriated the sum of $18,000 to aid in the introduction and propagation of fish in American waters. In pursuance of this project the Agricultural Department has sent to this coast Mr. Livingstone Stone, a noted pisciculturist of New Hampshire, to examine our fishes, make collections of species for preservation in the Department, and to raise a few thousand dozen young salmon to be taken East for distribution in the principal rivers there.

Suicide.

George Downey, a well-known citizen, for years a police officer and detective of Virginia City, took poison on the 14th inst., from the effects of which he died on the following day. Causes assigned for this rash act are losses in stocks and by fire. He leaves a wife and six children to suffer under the troubles he dare not face.

Branch Railroad.

A subscription paper for the building of a branch railroad to this place is in circulation. The first person it was presented to subscribed $5,000, and it is thought the movement will succeed. The intention is to incorporate, and for the people of the town to own the whole thing.—Visalia Delta.

We have taken the liberty of changing The Delta's spelling in one particular in the above item.

Bakersfield, Los Angeles and the Owens River Trade.

[From The Los Angeles News, August 17.]

The Kern County Courier announces the completion of the road from Bakersfield to the Tehechepi Pass, which has been built expressly for the purpose of diverting the Owens River trade from the channel through which it flows to this city and conducting it to San Francisco via Bakersfield and Visalia. The Courier believes this road will greatly facilitate the passage of freight to and from Owens River, and feels confident that the large freight teams engaged in that trade will no longer come to this city. Although we feel convinced that unless we become the market of the Owens River country by purchasing its bullion and selling its merchandise, we shall be compelled to relinquish the lucrative business we now enjoy, we fail to recognize that the day of such relinquishment has yet arrived, notwithstanding the completion of a wagon road via Bakersfield to the southern terminus of the San Joaquin Valley railroad. So long as the present high freight tariff prevails on the railroad, and while there is no competition to it a change in that respect cannot be looked for, so long will Los Angeles retain the carrying trade of Owens river. Although the distance is much greater from Owens River to San Francisco via this city, the actual land travel for teams is only about twenty miles greater than via Bakersfield, while the difference in the freight charges by steamer from this point to San Francisco compared with the freight charges from Visalia to San Francisco by rail are in favor of this route, and there are no prospects for any change to take place in that respect. There is a little light merchandise requiring rapid transportation which we may possibly lose, but we can safely calculate upon retaining the heavy freighting for years to come. In the meantime, our capitalists may take steps to permanently secure it in the face of competition.

Our Earthquakes Versus Eastern Sunstrokes.

[From The S. F. Alta.]

Excessive heat appears to be the order of the season in most cities, except those on the Pacific Coast, and if anything were wanting to prove the great superiority of our climate, it is presented in this particular. The fictitious importance with which trifles are invested, and the small significance attached to circumstances of more serious moment, are points forcibly demonstrated by the relative prominence given to earthquakes and sunstrokes by ignorance and prejudice. No sensible person will deny that the best criterion by which to judge of the disastous nature of any calamity is the effect it has on human life. Especially does this axiom hold good in reference to climatic advantages or otherwise. Considered in this equitable fashion, the earthquakes of California are no more to be compared, as a scourge, to the sunstrokes of the East than the breath of a zephyr is to the blast of a tornado, for to one death occasioned by the former at least a hundred are produced by the latter. Nevertheless, so unjust and bigoted is the vulgar opinion of New York and other Atlantic cities, that whenever a slight trembling of the earth is reported in this State, which, after all, is of rare occurrence and seldom attended by loss of life, the hue and cry is raised that this coast is unsafe for habitation, and the most horrible pictures are drawn of the distress and suffering in our midst, while all the time nothing of the sort exists. On the other hand, though scores of deaths by sunstrokes are acknowledged to take place in the very presence of those who are loudest in traducing our State, only a passing notice is given to the terrible loss of life, as if it were the merest bagatelle in the world. It is hard to believe that human judgment can become so miserably perverted, yet such is the fact.

Cotton on Alkali Soil.

In going over the fields of the Cotton Growers' Association, we have become impressed with the conviction that the cotton plant flourishes best in the soil most impregnated with alkali. Those portions of the crop that seem the most flourishing are invariably found on examination to be growing where the traces of alkali are most apparent. This adaptation of alkaline soils to the growing of cotton may be seen further exemplified at the farm of P. A. Stine. This gentleman planted some on ground so strongly alkaline as to be almost unproductive, and it is now covered with as fine a growth of cotton as was ever seen at this season, and is far in advance of that planted in the ordinary soil. This experiment will, if as successful as it now promises to be, indicate a valuable use to which large bodies of land in the southern part of the State, now almost worthless, may be put in the future.—Kern County Courier.

Races.

Stonewall Jackson made the three-quarters of a mile dash, at Agricultural Park in this city on Saturday, in 1:10, defeating Tom Atchison, Demoret, Mission Belle and three others. Jackson is a "cold-blood" horse, without one drop of thoroughbred blood in him, but he comes from Comet stock, and Comet was the fleetest 1,000-yards animal in the world.—Sac. Union Aug. 12.

The S. F. Chronicle.

A circular from the office of the San Francisco Chronicle announces a proposed enlargement of the paper, with new machinery, type and a $30,000 press. The success of the lively and enterprising Chronicle must be a thorn in the sides of many of the older Bay papers.

Jab Jab.

A daily evening Chinese paper is published in San Francisco and distributed regularly to subscribers by carriers. The reporter of The Oakland News says it is called "The San Francisco Daily Evening Jab Jab."

Double Suicide.

[From the Gold Hill News, August 17.]

Two women of the town committed suicide at Rose Benjamin's place, corner D street and Sutton Avenue, Virginia, yesterday afternoon. They were known as Mrs. Thompson and Hattie Willis. They had evidently formed the resolution to die together, and thus get rid of all their worldly troubles, and to this end they procured what is thought to have been a mixture of morphine and laudanum and chloroform, and retiring to a lower room of the house, where they would not likely be disturbed, took the fatal dose. Both have attempted suicide before on one or two occasions, but were saved through prompt treatment. This time, however, they were determined that nothing should prevent them. The following note was found in the bedroom of Mrs. Thompson:

I hope we have made a sure thing of it this time, as we are tired of living. Good bye, everybody. HATTIE WILLIS, KATIE THOMPSON.

An unusual noise proceeding from the room where they were, attracted the attention of the other occupants of the house, resulting in their being found a little after 2 P. M., lying upon the floor, apparently just as they had fallen when overpowered by the fatal poison. Abundant medical assistance was at once summoned, and the doctors did all that was possible to save the lives of the two unfortunates, but without success, for the youngest, Hattie Willis, died about 5 o'clock P. M. She was between 16 and 17 years of age, and came to Virginia from San Francisco a few months ago with the Amelia Dean Minstrel Troupe. Her real name is said to be Belle Bateman, from Utica, New York, where she has a brother residing. Mrs. Kate Thompson died about half past eleven o'clock. She was only 21 years of age, and was also an American woman. She is said to have had considerable trouble with her husband, and was two or three weeks ago employed waiting upon the tables and otherwise working at a boarding house on the Divide. Since then she has adopted the mode of life from which her sensitive soul sought and found relief at last in death. May the eternal rest and peace so earnestly sought by these two weary ones be kindly accorded to them in the great hereafter, through the infinite mercy of the Almighty Creator, their truest friend.

Impudence.

The inimitable George Francis Train, now "doing" San Francisco, at a recent "talk" in that city, flung the following into its teeth:

It is the most damnable impudence to have the American flag flying in a city that repudiated the national currency. You ought to be ashamed of yourself for your damnable ignorance in letting a lot of thieves sell your country and cheat you out of it for less than would buy a mess of English potash. Grant, Nye, Stewart and Kelley, and the banks, are the ledders in this movement to repudiate the national currency and perpetuate the Dent dynasty. Keley, the great Eastern orator, came here, and he fell into the hands of these erators and they trotted him out to speak of protection. Protection to what? Why protection to treason. He got his figures in regard to our imports at the Bank of California. You talk of about 175,000 people in this city. There ain't 100,000, even counting in Lone Mountain. [Laughter.] You talk about your enterprise and wealth. Pshaw! You are the poorest city on the continent. There are more of you broke, and there are more in this city who will strike a stranger for four bits than in any other city in the world. [Laughter.] Would Kelley, Sargent, Nye or Stewart dare to meet him on the platform and discuss these questions, and see whether he was a lunatic or not? All in favor of that say Aye. [A vigorous affirmative response.] Well, then, trot out your men. I am on it.

The Railroad.

We learn from Mr. Yerington, Superintendent of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, that although the track will be completed through from Steamboat to Carson by the 25th instant, so that construction trains can pass over the entire length of the road, yet no freight or passenger trains will be run through until the 15th or 20th of next month, inasmuch as a good portion of the road running through Washoe Valley passes over a spongy and loamy soil, which will require that length of time, with a large force of men to tamp or ballast the road bed. If this necessary precaution was left unattended to, the road would become useless in the Winter season. A very large force of men is employed on the road, the company using every effort possible tending to its speedy completion. Somewhere about the 15th or 20th of next month, we may reasonably expect the road to be ready for permanent business—both passenger and freight.—Carson Register.

Good Condition.

The Sacramento Bee says that the financial condition of California was never better, and its health is excellent. Good crops and plenty of employment for all willing hands, are the basis of all real prosperity, and these California is now blessed with.

Returned.

Judge E. R. Calvin, returned from a trip to Mono and Inyo counties on Tuesday. He reports the Sonora and Mono road in fine condition. Old Tuolumneites that have settled in and around Bishop Creek, are pleased with that location and are having an easy time with good prospects for the future.—Tuolumne Democrat, Aug. 17.

Havilah.

The word Havilah is a Bible term and signifies the land of gold.—Havilah Miner.

Has that anything to do with spelling it Haivlah in the heading of your paper?

The Eastern Boundary of California.

The party of Prof. Davidson, of the United States Coast Survey, has completed the astronomical and geodetic observations for the determination of the One Hundred and Twentieth Meridian. The initial point selected was on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, near Verdi, 4,900 feet above the sea. Through the courtesy of the officers of the Railroad and those of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, the line was placed at the service of Prof. Davidson, for the determination of the difference of longitude between the Coast Survey observatories at San Francisco and Verdi. The full computation of these observations show very close agreement, and indicate that the boundary line between California and Nevada must be moved to the eastward; and that the determination of the One Hundred and Twentieth Meridian, by late observations is fully two miles in error.

After the determination of the One Hundred and Twentieth Meridian, the geodetic work of connecting it with the old boundary marks was conducted with the utmost Coast Survey precision, that no doubt might exist; and the tentative results are very close.

This work has no connection with that contracted for by Col. A. W. Von Schmidt, and was undertaken at the request of the State Geologist and the Surveyor of the Fortieth Parallel Survey.

In consequence of our boundary being moved to the eastward, it behooves the Governor of California to make special and official request for the results obtained by Prof. Davidson, as they must be considered final and unalterable.—S. F. Alta.

—There is an old gentleman in Houston county, Ga., who says he never had a pair of shoes until after he was grown and had determined to join the Methodist church.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

A Chance for the Charitable.

We are in possession of letters written by Mrs. Steele, wife of Samuel Steele, who was killed by a cave in the Buena Suerte mine, Cerro Gordo, a few weeks since, which show that she is in circumstances appealing to the charitable for consideration and aid. She seems completely heart-broken, and almost in despair of preserving her home. Her letter shows a spirit of sincere thankfulness to the noble miners who paid her deceased husband the rites of decent and proper burial, and expresses the utmost anxiety to accomplish the removal of his remains to Santa Barbara. We would suggest that the miners and citizens of Cerro Gordo, who knew Mr. Steele as a good and true man, take the matter in hand and see what can be done for the poor woman and family. Mr. Hunter, Dr. Gould or Judge Fox would doubtless interest themselves in the matter.

The Eclipse.

The jumpers are now in actual possession of the Eclipse mine, and we believe, are working it. We think it singular that the Company should permit such proceedings, but it is possible they have no objection to others doing some of the work, and will interfere when the proper time arrives. The Mining Journal, of London, of July 29, contains an announcement that the Eclipse Company have made a "call" of 5s per share of the capital stock, consisting of 100,000 shares. Since the foregoing was in type, we hear that Manning and party are not nor have they been in possession of the Eclipse's old works, but are sinking a shaft some distance from the old incline. The above fight is nobody's funeral except those interested, but we have our opinions all the same.

Bierstadt.

Bierstadt, the distinguished artist, who enjoys fame as the most celebrated landscape painter of the day, is now a guest of the officers at the post. He came across the Sierras through a pass north of Aurora, sketching the scenery as he came. His easel has been successively occupied with numbers of outlined pictures, doubtless to be completed at his studio in San Francisco. We understand that he awaits Clarence King, who is expected to join him at this post; and also that the renowned Professor Agassiz, the great naturalist and geologist, will also join him here—the whole forming a coterie of celebrities not often congregated on one expedition.

How High It is.

Mr. J. B. Hiskey, with his fine instruments, has been taking barometrical observations of the altitudes of different points in the Deep Spring country, and makes them as follows: Hight of Lida Valley above the level of the sea, 7,994 feet; summit where the road crosses from Fish Lake Valley to Lida, 9,386 feet; Palmetto Mill, 7,990 feet; mouth of Cotton Wood Creek or where it debouches into the valley, 6,837 feet; Deep Spring, 6,111 feet. The altitude of this valley, at Camp Independence, is 4,598 feet.

A Treat.

By the last stage from the north came a treat to all hands of The Independent office in the shape of a supply of musk melons and water melons, accompanied with some fresh oysters in the shell, per Harry Wright and B. L. Brown, the agent of the line. The oysters were large, fine fellows and came through in fine order from Carson, while the melons, raised upon Watson's place, Big Pine, were of the best quality. Wright is a brick.

Court House.

A petition is being circulated praying the Board of Supervisors to rescind their resolution to build the new Court House on the ground occupied by the old one, and place it on a lot donated for the purpose at the head of Market street. Aside from the interests of some property owners on the principal street, the new location proposed is beyond all doubt very much the best for every reason.

Reward.

If any animal of the genus homo will some night take the trouble to perforate the head of a certain black and white yelping cur dog, holding forth not far from The Independent office, which makes the night hideous by his infernal howlings, the genus homo referred to will incur the lasting gratitude of many citizens, and be blessed as a benefactor.

Gone Away.

Mr. John Shedd, ex-Supervisor and a good man generally, has sold his farm near town and gone over in the Stockton neighborhood with his family, with the intention of purchasing a place there and making that his future home. We will stake our reputation as a prophet on the statement that he will return in less than a year.

The Ball.

On Friday evening next occurs the ball given in aid of the Blaney orphans, at the new Exchange Hotel Building. The main hall will be in splendid condition for dancing, the upper story being, on the occasion, converted into a supper room. Surely no one will neglect to take one or more tickets, whether attending the dance or not.

Lumber Yard.

The Black Rock Saw Mill, the lumber yard of which is presided over by our young friend Childs, is doing a rushing business in the way of supplying the demand for lumber. That furnished this establishment, in particular, is of much better quality than we supposed attainable in this country.

Cold Nights.

During the greater portion of last week the nights attained an almost Winter temperature, entailing great fears for the growing corn. However, things have moderated somewhat and now look satisfactory to the farmer.

Jeweler Shop.

Mr. George Burkhardt, of Lone Pine, has leased his saloon business and is making preparations to re-supply himself with all necessary fixtures for a complete jeweler and watch making shop.

Swansea.

The furnaces of the Owens Silver Lead Co. are being entirely rebuilt, with new cupalos, galmadores, etc. throughout, in replacement of those worn out. A steady run, extending over months of time, will follow.

Water Tanks.

Smith & Engle have an order for 20,000 feet of lumber from V. Beaudry, Cerro Gordo, for the purpose of putting up tanks for water.

Opening Out.

Messrs. Harris & Rhine will be in their new store and out with a new "ad." next week.

Wallapai.

Mr. Nadeau, from Los Angeles, brings word that a gentleman of undoubted veracity had arrived at that point bringing news that the smelting furnace of Mr. Elder is in successful operation, producing from 40 to 50 bars of bullion per day. The metal is much richer than the best produced in Cerro Gordo, and the final success of Mr. Elder may now be considered a certainty. After hearing so many contradictory reports, our citizens will be glad to hear positively that Mr. Elder has succeeded.

Odd Fellows.

We hear that a movement is under way to organize a lodge of Odd Fellows in town, to meet in the masonic building. This is very commendable, and we hope that a lodge of the order will be established. See Notice.

May's Corner.

May's old saloon presents the appearance of a worse ruin than produced by the earthquake, under the hands of the carpenters. The new building will be commenced next week.

Annoying.

We hear many complaints from families residing in town about the loss, by chicken thieves, of numbers of their poultry. Shot guns!

Land Register.

Mr. T. W. Dexter has removed from Aurora, leaving Charley Baldwin attending to his duties in the Land Office as Deputy Receiver.

Removal.

Mr. James Brady has transferred his base from this place to Big Pine, a point more convenient to his operations in Waucoba.

Rampagous.

Drunken crowd in town the other night who brandished deringers and six-shooters like a set of cussed idiots.

Hogs.

By referring to the advertisement will be seen a chance to invest in some fine porkers.

VARIETIES.

—A German "bolt"—Humboldt.

—A Rhode Island lad, under examination by a Connecticut schoolmaster, being asked, "How many Gods are there?" the boy, after scratching his head some time, replied: "I don't know how many you've got in Connecticut, but we have none in Rhode Island."

—Mrs. Long, of New Madrid county, Ill., lifted the top of her stepson's skull off with a fire-shovel, and then swore that he was kicked by a mule. After looking at the corpse, the Coroner said that she had better be locked up, as the job was too bungling for a mule.

—"Greeley Bitters," is the name of the latest bowel disturber. Only four drinks are necessary to cause the victim's pants to climb into his boots, while six make his necktie slip around beneath his left ear, and his hat assume the real Grecian shape.

—The editor of The New York Independent was congratulating himself on the increased tone of circus morality on account of the large number of copies of his paper taken by that class. But he destroyed the editorial he was writing on the subject when he learned that it was for the pasting over hoops and making balloons that the wicked showmen used the sheets.

—Old Mrs. Smith, a lady of whom no word of reproach was ever uttered before, while in bathing at Long Branch the other day, in white hat and spectacles, was mistaken for Horace Greeley, and surrounded by a large crowd, which so alarmed her that she dare not come out of the water for over two hours, thinking some part of her bathing tackle had become ruptured.

—Mr. Walker (colored), who was legally choked to death in Georgia on the 24th of July, cheered his poor old mother, who was standing at the foot of the gallows, by informing her if she did not "mend her ways, she would go to h--l a howling." This high-toned son then signified his willingness to be an angel, and was let down through the floor.

—A Memphis man who was found with both arms and one leg missing, thinks something must have happened him, and though he is confident some one has a grudge against him, he won't tell who he thinks it was, but is going to wait and see if anything fresh will turn up that will warrant him in "taking the law on to his assailants."

—A good-natured traveler fell asleep in a train and was carried a few miles beyond his destination. "Pretty good joke, this, isn't it?" said he to his fellow passenger. "Yes, but a little too far-fetched," was the rejoinder.

—A Michigan schoolmaster writes: "i will spell enny man, woomun or child in the hull State, for a dickshunary, or kash priez of $100 (one hundred) dollars a side, the money too bee awardid by a kommittee of clergymen or skoel direcktors. There has been a darned site of blowin in this district about mi spellin, now i want them to put up or shet up. i wont be put down by a passel of ignoramusses because i differ with noah webster's stile of spellin.

—It is reported that Geo. C. Gorham brought with him from the East the other day the sum of $750,000, furnished by the corruption ring at Washington, to be expended in carrying California for Grant.—Stockton Republican.

—A smart lad in San Antonio, Texas, recently took his stand by the side of a blind organist, and, hat in hand, solicited alms. When the tile was nearly filled by the sympathetic passers-by, he walked off, leaving the organist grinding away utterly ignorant of the whole transaction.

—A German has been found at Memphis with both arms and a leg missing. He says it was done by blows with an axe which were intended for his head. So the injury inflicted seems to have been wholly unintentional, and although he knows who did it with his little hatchet, he says he "shan't tell."

—Since that Warren county (Iowa) girl was saved from the attack of a bull-snake by the timely aid of two gallant hogs, pet-porkers have become all the rage, and no young lady of any standing now takes a walk without a pretty pig prancing along by her side, his tail neatly tied up with a pink ribbon.

—A Connecticut Shakeress shook the dust of the community off from her feet recently and married a young Shaker. When questioned by a worldly man as to her reasons for "going back" on Mother Ann and her doctrines, she replied archly, "Thee knows how the old thing works thyself."

—To resuscitate a drowned Englishman, place a piece of roast beef under his nose; an Irishman, a gill of poteen; a Scotchman, a half-penny; a Welshman, a few leeks; a Frenchman, a pinch of snuff; a Spaniard, some fresh blood; an old maid, an offer of marriage; and a Yankee, make an attempt to pick his pocket.

—A man in Massachusetts had an unreasonable grudge against the minister that lasted twenty-five years. But at last the hand of death knocked at the door of the parishioner, and he sent for the pastor. The good man hastily obeyed the summons with a solemn delight, as his being thus called showed a mellowing of the heart of the dying man which promised reconciliation both with heaven and himself. "You sent for me?" he said as he approached the bedside. "Yes," answered the dying man, whose breath was now short and difficult, "I have but a few—a few hours to live, and I sent—sent for you to say that—that this is your last—your last chance to apologize!"

ONLY.

Only a poisonous drop from the cup,
But it gave a thirst for more,
And awoke a craving that wrecked a life
On a barren, desert shore.

'Twas only a glance, but a scornful glance,
And it fanned a dreadful flame.
It was only a kind, beseeching look,
But it won a heart from shame.

It was only a dying mother's kiss
On a fair, pale girlish face,
But always the thought of that sacred touch
Drew her from evil apace.

'Twas only a draught from the limpid stream,
But it saved the hunter's life.
'Twas only the husband's familiar step,
Yet it cheered the gloomy wife.

It was only a smile—a pleading smile—
But it reached a hardened heart,
And roused a desire and an earnest will
To perform a nobler part.

It was only a tear—a pearly tear—
That stood on the maiden's cheek,
Yet it spoke a sweeter good-bye than words
Have ever essayed to speak.

It was only a word—one single word—
But sweet as the summer's breath,
And it touched the spring of a thoughtless mind
And rescued a soul from death.

Sitting Down on a Cat.

I found the cherished face of Maria Ann wreathed in smiles the other evening, when I returned from my arduous daily toil. (I am engaged as a standing man at a saloon. So many candidates are treating that the saloon-keeper hires six of us to be treated. We all drink with every candidate that comes in, and it makes business pretty brisk.)

Said my chosen one: "Joshua, I am afraid you don't always find me an angel in disposition."

Said I, "that's so—hic—my dear, I don't seldom find you an angel in—any thing."

"And," she added, "you are not always the most pleasant man in the world."

I did not feel called on to reply.

She had cut an item from the columns of some paper wherein a demented writer told about some impassible woman, who, being troubled with a bad temper, counted twenty-five every time she got provoked, and thus became a sweet, amiable, and dearly beloved ornament of the house of her delighted husband. I read the article as well as the condition of my head would allow, and remarked "bosh."

Maria Ann paid no attention to me, but unfolded her plan. She said that every time I got mad I should count twenty-five, and every time she got mad she would count twenty-five. I asked her who she thought would pay the rent while we sat and counted twenty-five, over and over all day long. Then she said I was raising objections to her plans for our mutual improvement, and I said I was not, and she said I was enough to try the patience of a saint, and I said she was too, and she came for me, and I told her to count twenty-five, but she forgot all about that, and just tallied one on my left eye.

Then I was going to remonstrate with the poker, and she told me to count twenty-five, and I said I would not; but I did before she had pulled half my hair out. Then she made me count twenty-five over and over, until I was out of breath and felt real good natured and pleasant. So we went to supper. Now, the cat was curled up in my chair, but I did not see it until I sat down; and I did not see it then, but I was pretty sure it was there, in fact I knew it was there as well as I wanted to, and more too. I felt inclined to rise up suddenly, but as I gathered to spring, she gathered the tea-pot, and murmured: "Joshua, your temper is rising, count twenty-five or I'll break your head," and the cat was drawing a map of the Tenth Ward with her claws around behind me with the streets and boundaries marked in my blood. I rose to explain, and said, "My dear—I—" but she caromed my head with a well shot tea cup, and sprinkled my face with a quart of hot tea, and I sat down and counted twenty-five, but it killed the cat. The old fellow died hard, though I could feel him settle as his nine lives went out one by one.

A few days practice of this rule, under the loving instruction of Maria Ann, has enabled me to conquer my temper completely. Nobody can get me mad now; I am in a state of perpetual calm, and I want to see the man that wrote that story. I want to fit him for the undertaker, and make a demand for mourning goods among his friends. Then I can die happy—counting twenty-five.

Spiritualistic Phenomena.

[From The Salt Lake Tribune, August 8th.]

Last evening we spent an hour and a half with Mr. West, test medium, from Chicago. He certainly performed some wonderful things. For instance, a small piece of slate pencil was broken off, not as large as the head of a pin, and placed on the surface of a common school slate. The slate was then held by its frame with one hand by the operator close up under the top of a walnut table, while the thumb rested on the upper side of the table top, acting with the same mechanical effect as a vice pin cushion; at the same time a young lady pressed the slate still tighter to the underside of the table top by placing her hand flat on the underside of the slate, precluding the possibility of any physical hand operating the upper surface of the slate. While in this position, probably not more than a minute, a message was written in a clear hand, so that any person with an ordinary education could read it without the least difficulty. The writing, however, changed as other "spirits" assumed control. Another phase of his mediumistic powers consisted in any number of persons writing a question each on a slip of paper, then folding it once on its breadth, and once on its length, mixing them all up in one pile, so that it was impossible for the writer even to tell on which slip of paper he or she had written, the medium being absent from the room during the writing of the questions, while seated in an outside room, one question at a time was taken by different individuals and placed between the left thumb and finger of the operator, who held his arm extended from his body, and his right hand nearly resting on his right knee in an opposite direction. While in this position, and without paying any attention to the left hand which held the paper, he read the answer supernaturally on the back of his right hand, which answers wers decidedly to the point when the question was clear, when it was not so stated by the medium, and the difficulty explained correctly without looking at the paper. Local asked a question according to the old Mormon rule of swearing, retaining one half as a mental reservation. Of course he does not pretend to say by what power it was done, but there is the phenomenon. The public must explain it.

A Crazy Editor.

One Homer H. Frazier, editor of The Independent Republican at Montrose, Penn., has recently developed several little eccentricities or solecisms of conduct, like the following: He persistently avers that he is a woman and insists upon a Grecian bend and a Dolly Varden hat. He goes out barefoot and is so firmly convinced that he has twelve toes that he attacks with violence any one who tries to persuade him otherwise. The other day he attempted to cut off what he regards as his redundant members, but was prevented by his wife. He thinks that he owns the whole of Susquehanna county, and proposes to give President Grant a warrantee deed of it—but there is method in this. From such trifling reasons as the above, the impression seems to have taken hold of the minds of his neighbors that Mr. Frazier is not altogether in his right mind, and it has been actually suggested that he be sent to the insane asylum!

Alida Valley Mines.

A private letter from an old miner in the Alida Valley District, Esmeraida county, speaks in the most flattering terms of the mining outlook in that region. The letter writer and another man recently commenced to sink a shaft fifteen feet deep on a new claim for half of the ground. He coolly continues: "We havn't done well enough to tell much about it yet, only we put in two blasts and threw out some very fine ore, one assay going $100 in gold and $68 in silver, and another showing some very fine chloride, which assays $2,001 in silver and $58 in gold to the ton. The ledge appears to be six or seven feet wide." All the miners in the camp are busy and full of hope, knowing that with milling facilities they have fortunes in sight.—Virginia Chronicle.

A Musical Monkey.

A surprising fact, which it would be difficult to credit were it not enunciated by a trustworthy witness, is disclosed by the musical chroniqueur of The Paris Temps: "I was invited," says he "by M. Milne Edwards to hear a monkey of the Paris Zoological Gardens, possessing a remarkable tenor voice. The monkey is a gibbon of Anam, and not more than seventy five centimetres in hight. He seems to have great satisfaction in showing his vocal powers. The sound was at first rather hollow, and then burst forth on the 'si.' He has a chest voice which many brilliant tenors of the opera might envy, and his falsetto is not disagreeable. When a visitor gives him a piece of bread he takes it and asks for more, expressing himself in loud notes, well expressed and modulated. Another monkey attempts to contend with him, but his powers are less remarkable than those of his rival." It would be indeed amusing if, in the present demand for tenors, operatic empresarii should be compelled to seek their stars in Zoological gardens.

—A joint affair with but a single party to it—Rheumatism.

A Boston Sensation.

A Boston correspondent of The Portsmouth Times has the following story of the exploits of a female forger, and says that the source of his information is a reliable one. The lady is the wife of a well known Bostonian, and by a bold forgery she succeeded in obtaining a large sum of money from one of the banks in this city. The particulars, without going into details, are as follows:

About two months ago a very beautiful, ladylike and accomplished woman arrived in San Francisco by the overland railroad and booked her name at one of the fashionable hotels as Mrs. Geraldine, from Boston, Massachusetts. She had a large amount of baggage and was supposed to be the wife of a millionaire, as she represented that she expected to meet her husband in San Francisco, who had been a successful merchant in China for several years. She stated that although he had not met her as she expected, she had received letters from him informing her that business delayed him in China, and he had instructed her to enjoy herself until his arrival, as became her fortune. She attended balls and parties and received very polite attention from some of the "first families." Things went on hummingly until a few days ago, when a detective made his appearance upon the scene, and informed her that he had a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. ——, of Boston, and that she, the pretended Mrs. Geraldine, was the identical person he was after. He told her that it was his duty to arrest her for the crime of forgery. She stoutly denied the soft impeachment, but when she was informed that her husband had instructed the officer, if she would quietly go to Boston with him and return the money, she should not be exposed, she admitted that she had obtained $9,000 on a check to which she had forged her husband's name, and had fled to California to meet a lover who had been in China. She gave the officer $7,500, which she had in her trunk, and returned to her eastern home. It is said she is now very repentant, and with tears asks to be forgiven.—Boston Herald.

Marriage in Hungary.

Among the mountains in the eastern part of Hungary a fair of marriageble youths and maidens is held every year. To the plain of Kalinoas, parents repair with their sons and daughters from a large extent of country. They bring with them such cattle, furniture and money as they expect to give as marriage portions. When the tents are pitched or the wagons ranged in order, the match-making begins. The girls dressed in their best are seated among their treasures. The young men walk around to see what strikes their fancy. The fathers and mothers are more interested in prying into the value of the property that is to go with the several maidens. Every article is examined in order that its defects may be noticed. If the respective parents are satisfied with the property that is to be given, the young people are brought together to see how they like the selection that has been made. If they are pleased with each other, a priest is called, who marries the couple, chants a hymn and says a prayer. The bride kisses her parents, says good-bye to her old friends and starts out with her husband she never saw before. We like this frankness and lack of sham. Americans do substantially the same things in order to perfect eligible matches, but are at a good deal of pains to cover up their intentions.

How Ladies Should Ride Horseback.

A recent number of Appleton's Journal contains an amusing article on the subject of horseback riding among ladies, in which the writer advocates the entire abolition of the side saddle and the adoption by ladies of the custom of riding astride. Anne of Bohemia, consort of King Richard II, of England, is said to have first introduced the custom of ladies riding sideways in Europe, which, since her time, has been almost universally followed. In Sicily, however, it appears that even in modern times the ladies adhere to the ancient mode of riding astride, and among the Tartar women, and also those of Peru, the practice is maintained. The Bloomer costume is recommended by the writer as the most appropriate dress for ladies who desire to venture upon the new mode of riding.

Old Newspapers.

Many people take newspapers, but few preserve them, yet the most interesting reading imaginable is the old file of newspapers. It brings up the very age, with all its bustle and every day affairs, and marks its genius and its spirit more than the labored description of the historian. Who can take a paper, dated half a century ago, without the thought that almost every name there printed is now cut upon a tombstone at the head of an epitaph.

It is easy to preserve newspapers, and they will well repay the trouble, for like that of wine their value increases with their years.

—A reporter upon a western paper, speaking of a certain fair creature, remarked that the profusion and color of her hair would lead one to look upon it as though it was spun by the nimble fingers of the easy hours as they glided through the bright June days, whose many sunny rays of light had caught in the meshes, and were content to go no farther. This is better than saying the girl's hair was red.

How a Spider Spins.

Few things are more wonderful than the spinning apparatus of the spider. On the under side of the creature's body are placed four or six little knobs, each not larger than the point of a pin. These are outlets of certain receptacles within the abdomen, where the silk is prepared. When the spider wishes to spin a thread it presses the knobs, or spinnerets, with one of its legs, and forthwith there issues from each, not one, but a thousand fibres, of such exquisite fineness, that it is only when the products of all the spinnerets are united that they become visible to the naked eye. The "thread" of the spider is thus a tiny rope of four or six thousand strands. The twisting into one cord is performed by the hindmost pair of legs, which, like the rest, are furnished with three claws apiece. Using these claws as fingers, the little rope maker twists her groups of thread into one with surprising rapidity.

THOSE COMMISSIONS.

The arbitrators appointed at the last meeting of Board of Supervisors in the case of the alleged defalcation of ex-Tax Collector Elder have been delivered of a report. It is a remarkable document to the effect that the Commission failed to find any deficiency after the date of the filing of Elder's bond, November 7th, 1871, and the implication is that they took no trouble to ascertain whether there was any before that time or not. According to a purely legal standpoint, and perhaps in accordance with the agreement by which the matter was left to the decision of this commission, their finding in the matter may be correct, but there are some considerations which make out the whole action a farce upon a comedy—a burlesque upon original nonsense.

In the first instance, no one supposed that Mr. Elder himself was intentionally a defaulter to the amount of one cent—proven by the fact that he left money here to cover any errors which might have been made. Secondly, when the matter was agitated by the District Attorney, Mr. Elder's lawyer proffered the county full reimbursement for every deficiency, undoubtedly in the full knowledge that the bonds were worthless except for about two weeks of the whole time which Mr. Elder was collector. Had the Board acted with due diligence in the premises they would have known these points themselves, and upon their own investigation taken the sum they might find to cover the deficit. But they chose otherwise and appointed an attorney to represent the county—forgetting the District Attorney and d--ning the expense—in the proposed Board of Arbitrators. A report is returned, in which the county's interest is ignored. We believe that had even a minority report set forth the real facts and the amount of deficiency the same would have been paid; these commissioners might at least have told us whether there was any defalcation or not, either before or after the filing of bonds, after having gone to the expense of examining witnesses from distant portions of the county. If their present report is absolutely correct, what was the necessity of going to the expense referred to?

It might be a good thing for the coming Grand Jury to inquire into matters and things, and among the rest find out whether it is possible to make an official bond worth more than the paper it is written on.

Measuring Furnace Heat.

An instrument has been invented in Germany which will measure with perfect accuracy the heat of the hottest furnace. It is based on the principle that the resistance of pure metals to the electric current increases with the temperature in a very simple ratio. A platinum wire of known resistance is coiled around a cylinder of fine clay, and covered with a tube of the same material. The test is a Daniells battery, of two cells, and with a resistance measurer, and placed in the furnace whose temperature is to be ascertained.

Just So.

John W. Forney, in his late speech in San Francisco, eulogized Scott, expressed the greatest admiration of California, and dwelt upon the difference between the old time methods of travel across the continent and that in vogue at the present time; and he thought that such a favored State as California, and one like it free from debt, should be able to build a road of its own.

Ivory.

Walrus ivory, which is brought to San Francisco in considerable quantity by the whale fleet each year, sells at from 40 to 60 cents per pound, chiefly to the cutlers. Mammoth ivory, the tusks of the extinct mammoth, commands $1 50 per pound. The rarer elephant tusks realize $3 50 to $3 60 per pound.

PROF. WHITNEY'S REPORT.

The September number of The Overland Monthly is at hand, containing the second paper or "General Conclusions" of Prof. J. D. Whitney's report of the "Owens Valley Earthquake." The author writes guardedly, and clearly with the intention of correctly representing his general observations and ideas of earthquakes, without setting up claims of having made a very thorough investigation of the one of March 26, the violence of which seemed expended in this region. The article is of too great a length for a full reproduction in these columns, though we extract a good portion. We are agreeably disappointed to find that the learned gentleman argues for no special or preconceived theory of his own, yet are almost equally impressed by the vagueness or rather the lack of any positive deductions. He devotes some space to the consideration of "seismic explosions," the "focus" of which are fifty miles from the surface, yet evolves, also, the substance of the contraction or "radiation" theory promulgated by our correspondent "Optimist," leaving the reader in doubt as to the writer's views of the cause of the disturbances. We were expecting an essay on the "thinness" of the earth's crust in this region, but an indefinite hint is the only reference in that direction.

In one instance the Professor's premises are exactly the reverse of facts, i. e., his statements that the shocks were not felt in the mines and were very heavy at the axis of the disturbance, the High Sierras surrounding the lofty peak bearing the author's name. Numbers of competent witnesses aver that there is not the slightest trace of any description whatever to indicate that there was a shock on the summit of the mountains, while in the deepest mine in the county the noise, the shaking and moving of the earth and timbers is described as terrific. The idea that the great shocks in Virginia city some years since were unfelt in the deep mines is also a very fallacious one.

Neither can we discern the aptness of the writer's explanation of the cause of the noises generally accompanying temblors, which, he says, are due to the breaking and falling of rocks in the mountains. These reports occur in varied forms--sometimes loudest when first heard, at other times increasing in volume as the "shake" approaches, and frequently without being accompanied by even a tremble of the earth, and so far as all testimony goes at present, the mountains nowhere exhibit any evidence of rocks having fallen in quantities sufficient to produce the sounds.

The oracle has spoken; the Academy of Sciences have doubtless received their report, but the world is very little the wiser of earthquakes. Following is the gist of the Professor's article, and in giving it we hope to have done with the shaky subject for all time:

As before remarked, the fact that the whole of the higher portion of the Sierra, from Silver Mountain south, is entirely uninhabited, and even unvisited, except in Summer, is sufficient reason why we have no date from the higher portion of that chain with reference to the severity of the shock. No doubt that it was very heavy, and especially in the high Sierra at the head of Kern and King's rivers. Indeed, the reports of terrific noises of falling rocks heard in the direction of the crest of the range by settlers in the foothills east of Visalia appear to be well authenticated, and indicate great disturbances of the surface in that region. The shock was felt severely in the Yosemite Valley, at an elevation of 4,000 feet above the sea, and large quantities of rock are said to have been thrown from the cliffs by which it is surrounded. Farther north, where settlements extend to the summit of the Sierra—as at Silver Mountain, the Placerville Pass, and on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad—the shock seems to have been felt less severely than it was lower down on the flanks of the range. Indeed, there are several reasons for believing that the axis of the shock was not exactly coincident with the axis of the Sierra, but slightly oblique to it, inclining to the west as it is traced north, and also leaving the Sierra to the south, and passing off eastward.

That the wave of the shock emerged from under the Sierra, in the region between Owen's Lake and Bishop Creek, in a line nearly parallel with the axis of the chain, is sufficiently established by a consideration of the position of the fissures in the soil and rocks, and of the direction which objects were thrown by it. As the wave entered the valley, its advancing edge was probably somewhat convex to the east, and a portion of it was deflected from its normal course and forced to expand itself toward the north and the south, perhaps undergoing several reflections from one wall of the valley across to the other, and thus complicating the disturbance and adding seriously to the destructive character of the shock.

Of the depth of which the impulse started by which this disturbance was produced, we have no precise statement to offer. The want of self-registering instruments, the perishable and crumbling character of the buildings overthrown or partially demolished, the limited area occupied by them—these are the circumstances which entirely prevent any accurate deductions being made in regard to the distance from the surface of the seismic focus. There can be no hesitation, however, in saying, that this depth was very great—probably not less than fifty miles. This we infer from a variety of circumstances connected with the effects of the shock: such as the position of the cracks in the various buildings examined, indicating the emergence of the wave at a very steep angle on both sides of the Sierra; the great extent of the areas affected by the shock; the synchronous occurrence of the disturbance at points so very distant from each other, and the very great velocity with which the wave progressed on the surface, which could only have happened from the giving of the impulse at great depth. No shallow wave could have affected so extensive a region almost synchronously. Indeed, it is safe to affirm, that, wherever very wide areas of territory are shaken, the cause must be a deep-seated one. The wave must die out within a limited area, if propagated only from the surface, or from a point but little beneath it. In this light we may compare, in respect to the destructive effect produced, the deep-seated earthquake and the superficial explosion like that of nitro-glycerine factory near San Francisco, to which reference has already been made. The nearer the surface, the more violent the effects of the explosion, but over a proportionally lessened area. A ton of nitro-glycerine, exploded at a depth of twenty-five or fifty feet beneath the surface, would probably tear everything to pieces, and destroy all living things, within a radius of a few hundred feet; if buried a thousand feet deep and then exploded, the destructive effect on the surface would probably be almost null, although the ground would almost certainly be perceptibly shaken for many miles in all directions.

Considerations like these indicate how stupendous the force must be, which, starting from such great depths beneath the surface, yet produces a destructive effect over so wide an area, and perceptibly moves a mass of material the superficial extent of which is to be measured by hundreds of thousands of square miles. And it must be remembered that it is not the surface only which moves, but the whole mass of the earth underlying the disturbed area, down to the seismic focus itself. It would be useless to compute the number of cubic yards of material moved by one of these great convulsions of Nature, for the figures would be almost too great for comprehension.

The nature of the force which originates the impulse, the results of which are manifested in the form of the earthquake, remains to be considered. What this is has already been indicated when showing that the phenomena of earthquakes are intimately connected with those of volcanoes, mountain-building, and continental upheaval. Earthquakes, then, are simple jars in the crust of the earth occasioned while this is undergoing those changes of level of which we see the results in the mountain chains which encircle the globe, and the continental areas and oceanic depressions by which its surface is diversified. There are abundant reasons for believing, and most geologists do therefore believe, that the earth was once a mass of molten matter, and that it has been for unnumbered ages cooling down to its present condition. They infer that the inequalities of its surface have come into existence during the progress of this cooling, and chiefly as the result of the effort of the consolidated crust to adapt itself to the still shrinking nucleus; in the course of which operation this crust has been broken in various places, portions of it pushed up on one side or the other of the fissure, other portions bent, or even folded together, and, in short, all the varied forms of mountain chains developed, as we now see them. Neither must it be forgotten, in this connection, that it has often happened that the molten material of the interior has found its way to the surface through these fissures, thus giving rise to the complicated phenomena of volcanic outbreaks and lava-flows, and of mountain chains with axes of eruptive and crystalline rock. It is certain that the mountain passes like the Himalaya or the Andes have not been lifted five miles vertically above the sea-level without prodigious exertions of force; and there are abundant reasons for believing that this force has acted in such a manner as to make itself sensible in the earthquake, as one of its manifestations.

On the usually adopted theory of mountain-building, the crust must be, in places, in a condition of tension, and in others, of compression. Tension or compression accumulates, until the cohesion of the material is no longer capable of resisting the pressure, and the rocks give way, a fissure is suddenly formed, and a powerful impulse communicated to the superincumbent mass. A wave of motion is thus started, spreading in all directions, and becoming manifest when it reaches the surface. Just as when a number of balls of ivory, or other elastic material, are suspended in juxtaposition with each other, and one is drawn back and then let go, so as to strike on the next to it, which receives the impulse and transmits it to the next, without itself perceptibly moving, and so on, until the last or outside one of the row is reached, which then flies off—thus proving that the motion has been transmitted from one ball to the next so the wave of motion is transmitted through the crust, which shows no change after the transmission, provided the material be homogeneous, all the effects being displayed upon the surface, when the wave passes out into the atmosphere. Thus we see how it is that earthquakes are so little felt in mines, especially in deep ones; and also, why the effects of the shocks are chiefly perceptible on the surface where there is a break in the geological formations—as in Owen's Valley, where the sage-brush slope joined the alluvial soil, the dry abutting against the wet material. At such points the rate of motion of the wave is changed, in consequence of the change in the density and elasticity of the material through which it is passing; and here a disturbance necessarily ensues.

There is reason to believe that the portion of the Sierra which lies in the vicinity of Owen's Valley is in a rather unstable condition of equilibrium, such as the geological conditions of the regions, as has already been suggested, would lead us to expect. This stupendous mass of rocks, deeply intersected by canyons with almost vertical walls, and situated between two ranges of different geological ages, would seem to be an excellent field for geological disturbances, and especially for such as might have their origin in the compression exercised by an enormous weight of material raised to a vertical hight of two or three miles above the surrounding country. We were informed, on an entirely reliable authority, that the region at the head of Kern River—deep in the recesses of the Sierra, and near the line where the Hackett trail from Visalia to Owen's Lake crosses that stream—is the scene of almost incessant earthquake shocks, which are accompanied by loud, explosive sounds, and frequently by the noise and crash of falling rocks. These disturbances have been repeatedly felt by parties going up from Owen's Valley to hunt and fish in that region, and in some cases they have been so alarming as to cause the visitors to take rapid flight from the disturbed district. Similar stories are told about the country at the head of Kaweah River, but of these we have no positive authentication. For how long a time these shocks and noises have been felt in the High Sierra, we have no means of ascertaining. Certainly they have been experienced there for three or four years. It is worthy of notice, in this connection, that there are several well-formed cones in this part of the range, indicating, by their appearance, a quite recent cessation of volcanic activity.

A few words may be added in reference to the sounds heard in connection with the vibrations of the surface during and after the great shock of March 26th. At the time of the occurrence of the first throe, by which all the damage was effected, and which was far heavier than the succeeding ones, noises were heard, which are described as having been terrific, resembling repeated discharges of heavy artillery, accompanied by a rolling fire of musketry. These sounds continued for some time; but whether they lasted longer than the heaviest vibrations did, we were unable to ascertain. That they were caused by the actual tearing asunder of the rocks, there is little reason to doubt; and they were heard in a succession of crashing reports, continued for a considerable time, because the fissures produced were along a line of great extent, the extremities of which were many miles distant from any one point in the valley. Hence, the sound necessarily reached the ear at different intervals of time, according to the distance which it had to traverse. The explosive reports heard by our party just before noticing the light vibrations of the surface which were felt while we were in Owen's Valley, were not actual explosions, such as would be produced by the ignition of detonating gases; for there is nothing in the character of the rocks of that region to warrant any such supposition as that there was anywhere a disengagement of explosive substances from them. The mass of the mountains is of granite, which can not by any possibility be made to give off anything of an explosive nature. The volcanic rocks of this region are equally inert in themselves; and no signs of active volcanism in the region were discovered. All these sounds seem to be due to one and the same cause: namely, the cracking and rending of the rocks, in their prolonged efforts to get themselves in a position of equilibrium. They were produced near the surface, and hence were heard and felt over only a comparatively small area. They were heard as coming from the direction of the Sierra, in all cases, and evidently by sound-waves borne through the atmosphere and not through the earth. The detrital mass which fills the bottom of the valley and extends high up on the flanks of the Sierra, is made up of loose fragments of rock, of all sizes, mixed with gravel and sand, and would seem to be a material eminently ill-fitted for the propagation of the waves of sound. These must have emerged into the atmosphere, high up in the mountains, where the rock is bare of detritus, and have thence been borne to the ear through the air.

LETTER FROM CHANGO COUNTY

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

EDITORS INDEPENDENT:—In answer to your anxious inquiry, I will inform you that Chango county, of which mention has been made by several of your correspondents, is situated about 7,000 feet above San Francisco; not directly above, but obliquely to the eastward of that village. It is bounded on the bottom by New Zealand, on the top by sage brush and boulders, and on all other sides by the United States of North America.

The first white discoverer of Chango county was a person who, when at home, was called Smartman, but after crossing the plains and discovering this lovely country, he changed his appellation and called himself A. Nass.

Having a speck in his eye Mr. Nass was unable to see the advantages of Chango county, so he drove his bull team on to Death Valley, where he settled and became happy. There is no doubt however that the country was previously known to certain members of the Lo family, and many of the white settlers have since became very low themselves. It is not, however, a low country, properly speaking, on the contrary it is considered by most foreigners who visit it as a high old place.

The name of Chango county seems, at first view, rather inappropriate, as does also that of Mono county, the words Chango and Mono meaning respectively monkey and ape—parties whose known sagacity forbids the supposition that they ever resided in either of these regions. The inconsistency however disappears when we consider the habits of the aboriginees, who, in many respects, resemble the ape family notably in the fact of subsisting chiefly on nuts and insects: the first of which they catch and eat alive, while the insects are found growing on the sage brush, and ripen in June.

The climate of this country is considered healthy, though it disagrees with some, especially doctors and editors. The principal disease which prevails among all classes, but is seldom fatal, is remittent, intermittent and continued laziness; it is most severe when the weather is either very warm or very cold. The weather is always very warm or very cold in Chango county. Nobody ever dies here unless somebody else takes the trouble to kill him, and although it is considered a good place to go away from, very few go away, on account of the great exertion required to get up and git.

The mineral resources of this region promise to become important as soon as the B. B. mill resumes operations.

Chango county has three capital cities, Breechclout, the county seat of honor; Beantown, remarkable for the possession of a very high tower, not a leaning tower like that of Pisa, but standing firmly on extremely broad foundations, and the ancient city of Farcewick, so called from the numerous farces which have been exhibited there. This place has latterly been called Mackenburg, and is now under the dominion of Bismarck.

The country is chiefly remarkable for the absence of anything interesting, unless to a stonefood, though the California Academy of Sciences might find in it matter for exploteration when bugs are scarce. NICK.

Beantown, Chango Co., Aug. 24, 1872.

Editorial Call.

P. A. Chalfant, one of the proprietors and editor-in-chief of that sprightly paper, THE INYO INDEPENDENT, is in the city, and called at our sanctum this morning. We are pleased to learn from Mr. Chalfant that the mining and other industries and businesses of Inyo are looking up, and that the people of that region are enjoying greater prosperity than at any period since the country was settled. Inyo offers greater inducements for the investment of capital than any other mining region this side the Sierras, and a part of the business which called Mr. Chalfant to this city was to make offers to capitalists that it will be difficult for them to resist.—Virginia Chronicle, August 21st.

Charles O'Conor, in a late interview, declined to state whether he would accept the Louisville nomination, but should vote for the nominees. A Japanese vessel, flying the flag of that nation, manned by a Japanese crew and commanded by a Japanese Captain, brought a cargo of teas to San Francisco August 23d; the first vessel of that kind that ever came into an American port.

Downey's Suicide.

The Eureka Sentinel thinks it probable that the late George Downey was driven to commit suicide by remorse for his supposed participation or passive acquiescence in the hanging of Kirk by the Virginia Vigilantes. We knew George Downey in California for many years, and from our knowledge of his nature we are led to believe that our neighbor is in error. Though a rough customer, there are many worse men in the world than Downey was; but he was not the sort of man to allow his conscience to be disturbed by the actions of Vigilance Committees. Whisky and pecuniary troubles were doubtless the cause.—Reese River Reveille.

Why don't the Virginia papers tell the truth at once? Downey killed himself about a prostitute, on whom he has been lavishing money, to the neglect of his family, for years.

The Championship.

According to the telegraph, Mace and O'Baldwin, with a couple of hundred roughs and sports, arrived at Collier's Valley, near the State line between Pennsylvania and Virginia. Mace was first to enter, and won the toss for corners, but after hours of deliberation the men could not agree upon a referee, and that ended the fight amid much dissatisfaction. Another meeting was postponed for the 22d instant.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

A New Paper.

It is authoratively stated that parties will shortly commence the publication of a new paper in Cerro Gordo, and that the projector having met with the remarkable (?) success of obtaining 183 names as promised subscribers, has gone below for the material. Some of the details of the venture indicate that matters are getting mixed or that "a change has come over the spirit of the dreams" of the Belshaw family—for it is understood that that gentleman denotes a house and water free for a year to the institution! The idea of Belshaw having anything but enmity to offer a newspaper is exceedingly rich. Possibly, however, they've made money enough and want to sell out, in which case the new organ will be in excellent position for reporting upon all the solid, mining information of the county, and can, if ably conducted, work a great deal of good. We are satisfied that the originators of this venture have not the remotest idea of the money, muscle and brains required to run a newspaper; but we would urge a hearty support for it, in the hope that it may possess all these, and consequently be a good one.

A Successful Surgical Operation.

On the 10th instant, at his blacksmith shop in Swansea, Mr. A. B. Davis, better known as "Jeff," met with a singular and severe accident. It seems that he was shoeing a wild, rantankerous mustang, and had the animal's fore leg strapped up. Davis had caught hold of the bridle when the brute gave a plunge and struck him directly on the point of the shoulder with his bended leg, displacing the shoulder blade and forcing inward and downward the humerus, or principal bone of the arm. After some hours, Dr. Columber, of Lone Pine, visited the sufferer, but only succeeded in replacing the collar-bone, or clavicle. The arm hung useless until Thursday last, when it was set by Dr. White, of the Post, with his assistants. Davis was chloroformed, and some idea may be had of the force used when we state that it required two men upon the pulley rope to draw the disjointed member into place. Jeff is all right now, but he is everlastingly "prejuced" against mustangs.

Early Crocusses.

A correspondent says: "In order to raise early crocusses, you should plant your young roosters late in the Fall, three in a hill, with their toes up. If they do not crow 'when the Spring time comes Gentle Annie,' put an old and experienced female hen to work on the hills. If the little cusses don't crow then, you may reasonably conclude that the seed was bad and had better wait another year before renewing the experiment. Whoever does not believe this to be the best method, is a liar, a thief, a cutthroat, a villifier of honest men, a rebel and properly belongs to the Democratic party. —H. G."

Robbery.

On the 23d instant, while lying asleep in his store near the Post, Joseph Harris was relieved of some $30 in coin, it being taken from his pocket. From circumstances not necessary to detail, Private Schofield, of the company at Camp Independence, was charged with the crime and arrested by Sheriff Mulkey on the Sunday night following. On Monday he was brought before Justice Gunnison for examination and discharged from custody, the complaining witness failing to appear against him.

Change of Programme.

The annual celebration of the Mexican and Chilian residents in the lower portion of the county, announced to come off at Rancho de Olancha, on the 16th, 17th and 18th of September, has been changed to Lone Pine, and will take place at that town. All the national amusements will be indulged in, including the barbarism of bull-fighting.

That Other "Commission."

The commission to whom was delegated power to investigate and report upon Belshaw's toll road, by the Board of Supervisors, has failed to come to time. They seem to doubt their authority in the premises, notwithstanding the "great discretionary powers" of the Board.

The County Court

Convenes on Monday next, for the impannelment of a Grand Jury and transaction of general business. We believe there is but one criminal case to dispose of—that of Frank, the Mexican charged with horse stealing, who has been an inmate of the County Jail for some months.

How Is It!

Many citizens of Lone Pine, who have patiently waited for a long time, are getting somewhat anxious to read the "full report" which was to be forthcoming from the Relief Committee, showing different items of receipts and disbursements of that body. We will be pleased to give it at any time the statement is furnished us.

Livery Stable.

By reference to advertisement it will be seen that Wm. B. Hutchings has opened out a new livery business in town, at Hamilton's old stand. He fully sabes the business, proposes to go light on charges, and has some good outfits.

More Improvements.

We learn that Messrs. Wood & Cohen are about building a new storeroom near the corner formerly occupied by J. S. Rothschild & Co. The Broders will also replace their butcher shop near the same place with a large, frame building.

Notatorial.

P. Reddy, Esq., has received, from Governor Booth, the appointment of Notary Public for Inyo county, in continuation of the term for which he was appointed by Governor Haight.

Thanks.

We are under obligations to Col. Stevens, of Cottonwood, for some fine samples of melons and tomatoes. The latter were of the largest and finest description.

New Brewery.

George Horn is fitting up a new brewery in Lone Pine, in Burkhardt's building. It will be in operation about the last of next month.

Going Away.

Charley Grannis, of Lone Pine, is about pulling up stakes and migrating to a lower climate, on account of his health.

Saloon.

Dan Williams is fitting up and will open out Stewart's new building in Lone Pine as a saloon.

The Ball.

The ball given last evening at the Exchange Hotel, in the newly completed portion thereof (which has been built by the executors for the heirs of the Blaney estate) may be considered a success—on the general average. The elegant supper, furnished gratuitously by the ladies of Independence, was the theme of general praise, and the details of its arrangement on the tables seems to have fallen into very tasty and evidently experienced hands. A handsome sum was realized from the sale of tickets, a great number having been sold beside those represented by parties in attendance. We had an idea of reporting the affair in full, a la Jenkins, but found that our province was properly that of a looker-on—since a seedy-looking individual occupying one corner was engaged in itemizing everything in detail, and if appearances go for anything was preparing a full report for the press, rendering any work of ours one of superogation. We interviewed the interviewer, with a result panning out somewhat thisly:

Lokleitems—"Excuse the interruption, but you seem to be preparing a report for the press."

High Toned City Reporter—"I should say so, love."

L.—"Under what system do you write shorthand, the old stenographic or the modern Graham phonography?"

H. T. C. R. "I give it up."

L.—"Permit me to examine your notes; perhaps I can tell."

H. T. C. R.—"There's nothing in it."

L.—"You doubtless understand French terms in the description of dress?"

H. T. C. R.—"Too thin. The ladies are all dressed, but I'll give the huskeys h—."

L.—"In what paper does your report appear?"

H. T. C. R.—"It's a standoff between The Sacramento Union and The Examiner."

L.—"Under a regular salary?"

H. T. C. R.—"I get fifty broad pieces for the commune.; tickets cost ten splitters."

L.—"Will you go out and indulge in some stimulants?"

H. T. C. R.—"That's what I'm on; I'm in if you have a half that's never been spent, or can spar."

Arriving at a neighboring bar, our lively acquaintance with the Grecian features and Bohemian make-up called for some "Fenian dew drops," and we left.

Bell's Flouring Mill.

We recently paid a visit of inspection to the flouring mill of Bell Bros. just west of Camp Independence, and were not a little surprised to observe the completeness and near approach to perfection of the entire establishment. It is situated upon the site of the original one, which was erected in the Winter of 1866-7, and destroyed by fire April 12th, 1870. It had been built at a venture, at a cost of $6,000, when there was scarcely a half dozen farms in the valley. However, it was immediately rebuilt, at an outlay of about $7,000. It consists of a run of burrs for wheat and a set for corn and barley, to which have been added all the modern appliances and fixtures of a first class flouring mill. The power, a Jonville 18-inch wheel, is supplied with water from a 30-foot head; the producing capacity of the mill being from 40 to 50 barrels of flour per 24 hours. As giving an idea of the importance of the industry we may state that the grain ground during the past year amounted to 444,000 pounds. We left impressed with the value and completeness of the institution, and with the hospitality of the member of the firm in active management—A. N. Bell, Esq.

Personal.

A. O. Thoms, the new stage man, is around town, engaged in looking after the interests of his Cerro Gordo and Los Angeles line. John W. Ullrick, of the northern line, also paid the place a visit during the past week.

Masonic.

The attention of Masons is directed to the call for attendance at the regular communication at the Hall on Saturday evening, September 14th, published elsewhere, by order of Acting Master Bell.

The Belfast Riots.

There is great excitement over the bloody riots in Belfast. The latest accounts show criminal neglect on the part of the authorities, who held the troops in check and permitted the work of burning and butchering to go on before their eyes. Thomson's bank, where the navvies are employed, the County Down railway station on York street and the Boyne bridge have been the scenes of the hardest fighting. The Orangemen have only been charged by the military, and the Catholics complain of favoritism being shown. Several of the soldiers and police were shot while attempting to separate the combatants. Houses have been burned, and it is feared that several Catholic institutions will be given to the flames. A policeman named Moore was killed, and a number of other casualties occurred. The mob, when not engaged in wrecking houses, assaulted and shamefully treated persons, including Benjin, editor of The Northern Star, a Catholic Journal. All the schools and most of the mills are closed. Some thirty rioters were arrested and lodged in prison. London specials give heartrending accounts of the Belfast riots. The city has been declared under martial law, and the military called out; but the riot still continues. Large numbers of men, women and children have been killed. At Boyne bridge, over a dozen men were shot. The troops have repeatedly charged on the rioters, but they would speedily rally and resume fighting. The hospitals are filled with dead and wounded. All business is stopped, and a scene of panic prevails.

"Hassler" Surveying Expedition.

Our dispatches announce the arrival at San Diego of the U. S. Survey Steamer Hassler with Professor Agassiz and party on board. Our readers will remember that the Hassler sailed from the East some months since, mainly for the survey of the Pacific Coast, but on her way here, along the east and west coasts of South America, the scientific portion of the expedition has contributed largely to the interests of science, by deep sea explorations made under the supervision of Professor Agassiz. Our dispatches also state that on the passage of the vessel from Panama to San Diego, a survey was made of the shoals off Acapulco. In a few days the Hassler sails for San Francisco, so that Professor Agassiz may shortly be expected amongst us, and we doubt not that the learned naturalist and scientist will receive from California the hearty reception his merits so richly deserve. —*S. VARIETIES.

—Farmers are like fowls—neither will get full crops without industry.

—A water privilege—attending a temperance picnic.

—An odd sort of a ship—Courtship, which has two mates but no captain.

—A Detroit baby has swallowed a brass watch. It has stopped and that created difficulty.

—A dumb man recently went to law with a deaf man. The latter of course was the deaf-endant.

—There are two things in this world that are not safe to trifle with—a woman's opinion and the business end of a wasp.

—"She isn't all that fancy painted her" exclaimed a rejected lover, "and worse than that she isn't all that she paints herself."

—On a man who recently died it is said, "His name will be remembered wherever his deeds and mortgages are known."

—A young gentleman recently created quite a sensation while reading to a circle of young ladies a poetic effusion "To a Beautiful Belle," by pronouncing the last word in two syllables.

—A young girl at Lee, Mass., whose hair reached almost to the ground, sold it recently to a Pittsfield hair-dealer for $50. Hight of the girl not given.

—Massa Christopher Columbus was a queer man, said a negro orator; a notion crossed him one day and then he crossed an ocean.

—A Janesville (Wis.) Alderman was asked to estimate the damage a cow had done in a front yard. He did so, and did it liberally. He was then introduced to his own cow as the mother of the mischief. He paid and promised not to tell.

—It is said that in anticipation of the Fat Men's Convention, to be held at Put-in Bay, the inhabitants are becoming alarmed, and that cork, wood and bladders are in great demand, to tie around the edge of the island to keep it from sinking.

—A countryman stopped an express train on the Kentucky Short Line road by waving his hat. The conductor checked up, and was disgusted to see him deliberately proceed to shoot a squirrel out of a tree. That conductor did up as complete a job of Greeleying as was ever heard in the dark and bloody commonwealth.

—Captain Mike Hoy, Chief of the Minneapolis Police, went out to chase the pinnated grouse over the plains, and his pointer came to a dead stand on something in the grass. The Captain advanced to flush the covey, but they wouldn't flush. The Captain don't wear the same clothes he went out with. They are buried, and he declines to shake hands across the bloody chasm.

—A Cincinnati bridegroom fainted away during the ceremony last week, and was only revived after being vigorously fanned by the officiating clergyman's boot. He said he never felt so but twice before—once when he was blown up at "Fort Hell," in front of Petersburg; and again, when he asked a hotel clerk to give him a comfortable bed without goslins on the pillows.

—Among the curious things connected with the codfish is the frequency with which large stones are found in the stomachs. These are of various sizes, sometimes, in large fish, weighing many pounds, and it is a popular belief among fishermen that these are taken in just before a storm for the purpose of anchoring themselves during the expected swell of the sea. This is corroborated by the fact (if it be true) that all the fish taken before a storm agree in this peculiarity, whereas at ordinary times nothing of the kind can be detected.

—The Eugene City (Oregon) Guardian of Saturday, says: "On Friday of last week a farmer came in from the country with a load of wool, but before he had sold it he was informed that there was a case of small-pox in town. He immediately went for his team and started home on the double quick. While going up Ninth street one of the bales fell off the wagon, and his attention was called to the fact by a pedestrian. The excited wool-owner shouted back, as he applied the lash to his team, 'Wool be d—d! You've got the small-pox.'"

—A man sold a farm the other day as "perfectly level." The buyer went to look at it, and found a mountain on it. "But," said the man, "the land will be perfectly level—after you take the mountain away; I sell you the land underneath, and throw in the mountain."

—A young gentleman of Morristown, N. J., was playing at hay-making with a rural Maud Muller, and rather liked it until a swarm of yellow jackets crawled up his nankeen trousers. Maud laughed heartily at the Irish jig he danced, until she got "some of it in her'n."

WAITING FOR CAPITAL.

[from The Scientific Press.]

One of the most serious drawbacks to the development of mining industry on this Coast, and to the interests of miners themselves, is the prevalence of the evil of "waiting for capital." This is more particularly noticeable in newly discovered districts, although its influence extends all over the country. We know very well that lode mining requires some considerable outlay to be made profitable, that is, where mills or furnaces are considered necessary adjuncts to the property of the mine; where the ore is worked at custom mills, however, there is no reason why individuals cannot develop their mines to a certain extent without forming an incorporated company with the names of capitalists as trustees. If the value of all the time lost in waiting for these individuals to turn up, were compared with the actual assistance they render when they are found, no miner would consider the percentage in his favor, in the long run, worth spending an hour to gain.

The existing evil is, no doubt, engendered by the very natural desire for sudden wealth with little effort, which is a recognized characteristic of a large proportion of our mining population; nevertheless that class should bear in mind that instances of that sort are few and far between, and the larger proportion of those who realize fortunes in the mines are the men whose energy and perseverance has led them to develop their property to such an extent that it is a desirable one for capitalists to invest in. There are many hard working men scattered over the mining regions who have partially developed their mines and sold them at low figures and then hunted up others and sold them in turn. That is all very well, for then they have the advantage of the capitalist for knowing, (or supposing they know, which is all the same) where to find others equally as good as the claims they sell. That is legitimate enough; these miners do not waste valuable time, but are paid a certain price for the developments they have made. What we refer to particularly is the prospecting miner who makes a discovery, stakes off a claim, gets a hole in the ground ten or fifteen feet deep, which he calls a shaft, and then sits down or rides away his time around the camp, "waiting for capital" to come and buy him out. This class of people expect the representative of some English or American company to offer them many thousand dollars for property which has little else than prospective value to recommend it. They are not content with a fair equivalent for their time and labor. They may be morally certain that the whole thing is not worth more than $1,000, but let some man representing a company make inquiries as to its value, and they immediately, by means of strong imaginations, become possessed with the idea that they are millionaires, like "Mark Twain," and ask an outrageous price for it. Sometimes they are successful, but not so often now-a-days as in times gone by. Hard experience has opened the eyes of capitalists and when they put money in a hole in the ground they want to put it in a big one and want to know what is at the bottom of it too.

Not only the loss of time alluded to should be taken into consideration but the question should be looked at in a moral point of view. Idle men as a general thing, will drink, play cards etc., and the class who are always seen around a mining camp who seem to have nothing particular to do are generally those who are waiting "for something to turn up."

The advantages in favor of individual miners are daily increasing, as are also the chances to realize profit by development rather than by selling out. Railroads are being built or projected all over the country. There has been a reduction in price of freight on ore along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad; smelting works and mills are being erected at many new points; and so much attention is being turned to mining matters that it is always easy to dispose of ore which is worth shipping. It is a mistake to suppose that the bulk of the bullion product of this coast comes from prominent incorporated mines. The greater proportion of it is extracted by co-operative associations of laborers, or by single individuals who hire assistance. This is however, more the case with gold than silver mines.

The time is really at hand when a mine is as good for the miner to own as for capital to buy, and the object of this article is to impress this fact upon the miners, encourage them to stability of purpose and a direct prosecution of labor to a legitimate end—making money out of their mines. It is readily admitted that a certain amount of money is required to develop a mine, but the new mining laws in which a title in fee can be acquired with little expense by the discoverer gives such a property a legitimate negotiable value for the purpose of security on necessary loans and gives impecunious individuals a chance for a start. If a man has a ledge upon which he considers himself justified in expending his labor, he will seldom find it difficult to get some one to aid him for an interest in it, and it is much better to dispose of a part of it in this manner than to hold on to it to no purpose. This is a co-operative feature which should be encouraged, having, as it does, a legitimate business in view. Most of the more important mining has been done in this manner by men with more energy than capital.

Another evil brought about and encouraged by the practice of waiting for capital is the system of "bonding" mines, which retards mineral development more than many of us are aware of. A certain person obtains a bond from the owner of a mine for which he agrees to pay a certain sum within a stated time for a deed of said mine. These bonded mines are generally only partially developed and the middle men who bond them for small sums of course expect to dispose of them to third parties at a large advance, which they sometimes do, but most often don't. This business is not carried on to so great extent as formerly still it is unfortunate that the sales cannot be effected without the assistance of these brokers. The trouble about the system is that after the mine has been bonded, the owners, relying on the representations of the middle men that the property will be sold at a certain time, always make it an excuse to be idle until such time expires. If the ledge shows ore they are afraid to go ahead for fear of losing it and as in any case they will get no more than the specified amount, there is no inducement for them to work, so they "wait for capital." Extensions of time are often asked, and granted, and much time is consumed and development retarded. While the system has advantages, it is more than probable that they are overbalanced by the effect it has on making idle men. Of course where a mine is in close proximity to a mine thoroughly developed, one which shows rich or large bodies of ore, it requires a certain prospective value which may warrant the owners in waiting to sell out; but even in such cases why should they not go on and prove actual value and realize still larger sums. Those who undergo danger and privation in developing the mines should surely be the ones to reap the rewards.

There is no class of men on this coast whose prospects are so bright for acquiring a competence as our hard fisted miners, will they but adopt a judicious plan of development and seek the wealth from their own property rather than from the purses of others. The extent of country prospected on this coast is immense, and that yet undeveloped of mild grander scope, but we need but legitimate mining to render it available. We must look for actual, not ideal wealth. A miner with a claim and a $1,000 gold bar is far richer than he with fifty ledges who imagines he has millions of wealth to pan out. The former is by far the most useful man to the community. He is a producer, and an important one. It should be the effort of every individual, and the press particularly, to bring about a proper state of affairs in this connection, encourage industry and open all the avenues possible for the miner to realize his wealth out of his own property, and destroy the illusions of prospective wealth to be gained by "waiting for capital."

Serious Warning to Parents.

In Detroit, a child about four years old had always slept with his parents, but for some reason the father made up his mind that he must sleep alone. Making some disturbance, and saying he was afraid of bears and wolves, the father became irritated, and shut him in a dark room. The boy screamed at the top of his voice for a few minutes, beat on the door, and entreated to be taken out, but the father was unrelenting as a rock. The wails gradually died away, the lad ceased to shout, and after half an hour the door was opened. He was not found asleep as expected, but he was crouched down in a corner, his feet drawn up under him, and it took only a moment to convince the parent that the boy had been rendered a lunatic or an idiot. He laughed and talked to himself, did not reply to a question, gave no one any notice, and every effort made to bring the boy's reason back failed. He would not speak, gave the other children no notice, but wanted to roll around on the floor and play with spools and sticks. The boy's reason had been affected by his fright, and he may be an idiot for the rest of his days.

—"Tell the mistress that I have torn a sheet," said a gentleman lodger to a domestic. "Very well, sir, mistress will put it down as rent."

Sham Champagne.

[From the Sacramento Record.]

An immense amount of so-called champagne is drank in this country. No less than 107,000 baskets of this wine have been landed in New York alone during the first seven months of the current year, while 12,050 dozen have been imported at Boston. The total annual importation is estimated at 200,000 dozen at the very least, or 2,400,000 bottles. If it be enquired how much of this is first quality wine, the reply must be perhaps a hundredth part, and of the remainder probably three-fourths is a spurious and unwholesome mess, made up for exportation from drugs and spoiled wines. As for the quantity of champagne that finds its way into the market branded "Veuve Clicquot" it would be a tolerably safe assumption that not one dozen of the genuine brand ever reaches the United States. In the first place the vineyard is a small one. In the second place two-thirds of the whole vintage is secured by contract for the court of Russia. In the third place the other sovereigns of Europe and the wealthy aristocracy compete for the remaining one-third. It is evident that under the circumstances very little of this wine can find its way across the Atlantic. But this makes no difference, since nothing is easier to make bogus champagne, unless it be to sell it. The unbounded, indeed almost sublime credulity, with which the lovers of good living smack their lips over detestable doctored mixtures, and go into ecstatic reveries while pondering the label, is worthy of admiration. Adulteration is a profitable business with all imported wines, but champagne affords the widest field for this branch of commercial enterprise, and it is fully availed of. The celebrated "Champagne Charley" probably never drank anything rarer than the product of the fragrant turnip or the Jersey apple, to which sugar candy, the aerating machine, and sundry well known recipes from the drug store, impart that volatile and sparkling appearance and that capacity for evolving excruciating headaches, which are generally supposed to be the infallible concomitants of the genuine article. The champagne of commerce would, as a rule, be dear at twenty-five cents a bottle—we were nearly saying, a dozen—but it readily brings from two and a half to five dollars, and the higher the price asked the more faith is usually reposed in the brand. And while there can be no possible objection to a taste for turnip juice, which is a harmless, though not perhaps an exhilarating beverage, it is scarcely worth while to disburse coins of considerable value upon decoctions of turnip juice plus the ingredients of a headache and a bilious attack, and nothing else. However, mundus vult decipi: which being interpreted means that the public will drink bogus champagne at the rate of 2,500,000 bottles a year, and if it is no good for themselves, the benefits accruing to the medical profession prove the truth of the proverb that it is an "ill wind that blows nobody good."

Molasses Candy.

BY JOSH BILLINGS.

There is a grate deal of human nature in a stick of molasses kandy. I judge this becaus my little grandson is awfull reddy tew invest his only penny in it. I don't know as I want tew blame him for this, for mony a man has bored clear thru, and let all the ile run out at the bottom. Success don't consist in never making blunders, but in never the same one the second time. He who trusts tew luck for his happiness will be lucky when he gits it. While we are poor the necessarys of life are the luxurys; ever we git rich, the luxurys are the necessarys. Death is an arrow, shot into the crowd; the only reason why it hit another is becaus it missed us. When a man does a good turn, just for the plain of the thing, he has got a grater deal more virtew in him than he is aware ov. As a general thing, we envy in others no what we aint got, but what we have less than others. The only thing about a man that sins haz not and can not pervert is his conshence. Just so far as popularity is a man undertakes tew make a reputashun by his personal appearance, just in that proportion he is a dead beat. Early geese is like early cabbage; it don't head well. Mony a man haz lost a good position in this world by letting go tew pitch on his hands. The man who is always bragging of his wife in public does it more out ov pride ov himself than luv for her. If a man haz got 80 thousand dollars at interest, and owns the house he lives in, it ain't much trouble to be a fil sofer. The hardest man in this world to cheat is the man who is alway honest with himself. Life ain't long enough for enny man tew know himself. Virtew don't consist in the absence ov pashuns but in the control ov them; a man without enny pashuns is simply as virtew uses a graven image. Don't forget one thing yung man: There is no accomplishment so easy to acquire as politeness, and none more profitable. There are a grate menny excuses that are wuss than the offence. A man you can trust with a secret you can trust with eunything. Common Sense is the favorite dawter of Reason, and altho there are many other wimmen more attractive for a time, there is nothing but death can rob common sense of her luv. Opinyons should be formed with grate caushen, and changed with grater. Silence is one ov the hardest arguments to refute.

Life in Mexico.

If you belong to a wealthy family in the city of Mexico now a days, and drive into the country a few miles from the capital, you will be gobbled up by guerillas, who will send the cheering intelligence to your friends that they want $2,000 or $6,000, and if it is not forthcoming in so many hours you will be shot. The funeral over, you a few days later, when your body is found by the roadside, horribly mutilated, will be very impressive. Mexico is a more healthy country for poor people at this time.

HOME AGAIN.

After an absence of little over three weeks on a pasear to the northward we, (that is to say, the senior), arrived home very early on Wednesday morning last, and reported for duty soon after. Truthfully speaking, we can't say that the trip has tended much to the invigoration of either mind or body, and for that reason, if no other, we shall, for the present, spare our readers an extended account of our experiences and observations, but shall take occasion soon to refer to some of the latter in relation to the way they do things in our neighboring State of Nevada, Virginia and Carson cities, particularly. To the news paper men of these cities, Bean & Ginn of The Evening Chronicle, Alf Dotin of The Gold Hill News and John Booth of The Carson Register, we return our sincere thanks for their kind attentions to ourself and good wishes for the "shaky" region we were supposed to represent. These gentlemen all seem, rightfully enough, to consider our section, though belonging to another State, as part of their own bailiwick, and consequently feel a lively interest and keep pretty well posted in our affairs. Outside of the newspaper "rings," however, the people up that way, with few exceptions, are woefully ignorant of this, the finest, and some day to be the wealthiest portion of the Great Basin. Our great earthquake, in one respect, was a failure. It failed to impress the name of our county, or its geographical locality rather, upon their memories. For instance, some one would inquire "Where are you from?" "Inyo county." "Is that in this State?" "No, it's in California; it's the earthquake country." "Oh, yes, I know now; it's down south, on this side of these mountains where so many people were killed by the earthquake." And then, with some little interest, would remark: "you got some of it too, did you?" "Plenty of it, I thank you," would be the answer and the end of the geography lesson.

Another Disaster at Sea.

The steamer Metis, which left New York, August 29th, was run into by the schooner Nettie Cushing, off Montauk Lighthouse, R. I., and soon after went down. The crew and passengers numbered 155, and of them 70 are missing. It is supposed that a number of these may yet be found alive, but as 27 bodies have already washed ashore it is probable that most of the others have perished. The Metis was used as an extra vessel on the line between New York and Providence, R. I., and was valued at about $170,000. Her commander, Capt. Burton, and Mr. Hill, one of the officers, receive great praise from the survivors for their coolness and bravery in their endeavors to save their passengers.

In Bad Odor.

Col. Alphabetical Kewen, Democratic nominee for Congress in this District, is now in very bad odor with the people of Los Angeles, because he pronounces the breakwater there a "bilk." If the wishes of the people of this section had been consulted some other then played out political hacks would have received the nominations in both parties. Evidently this District was hard up for Congressional timber when the nominations were made.

Complimentary.

The Gold Hill (Nevada) Daily News, of the 27th ultimo, pays our little country sheet the following well-timed compliment and expression of good wishes:

THE INYO INDEPENDENT of Saturday, comes to us this morning unusually clean and nice, and decidedly improved in appearance. Good paper, clean type, new roller, or something of the kind, has happened to it. THE INDEPENDENT looks well editorially as well as otherwise. May its prosperity never be less.

Arizona.

The Prescott Miner, in a long article concerning the diamond excitement, says:

Well, let them come on, this Territory is a very large one; yes, large enough to hold ship loads of precious stones. But, we reassert, do not come here at our invitation, to fill your sacks and purses with diamonds and such, for we are not prepared to say, positively, that such gems do exist here, although we rather think they do.

Luttrell for Congress.

J. K. Luttrell, of Siskiyou, was nominated for Congress at the Democratic Convention held at Marysville August 22d. The Sacramento Union strongly declares itself in his favor in preference to Coghlan.

THE NEVADA SENATORSHIP.

The withdrawal of Mr. Sharon as a candidate for the United States Senatorship from the State of Nevada, seems to have left many of the politicians in that State all at sea. It has taken the wind out of the sails of all of them, (and their name is legion) who were opposed to him; for now they have nobody to growl at—nobody to hit, though they want to fight very bad; while on the other hand, his supporters are no better off, because they have no available substitute. J. P. Jones, the opposing candidate, is quite sure to have it all his own way, notwithstanding the bitter opposition of the Bank and railroad rings. "Anything to beat Jones" is the word with these rings (or ring rather, for the Bank and V. & T. and C. P. railroads are pretty much one and the same in this fight), and to this end they will devote millions of money if there is any hope of accomplishing it. Though a Republican fight, it is thought by some of the local papers, that the "rings" will not stickle at party lines for a moment if thereby they can effect the desired object. First in the programme, they will sustain Nye, the present incumbent, whose pliancy suits them exactly, so long as there is a hope of his election, but when that hope is gone they will coalese with the other party and elect a Democrat. At least three Republican legislators have declared their intention to vote for a Democrat in preference to Nye, and taking all the facts together, it would not be surprising that Sharon's withdrawal would yet result in the election of a Democratic Senator. Certain it is, the Democratic men entertain strong hopes that Kendall, the present Democratic Representative in the Lower House, will receive the Sharon influence in case Nye should prove unavailable. So far as the popular feeling is concerned Nye stands no show whatever, and if he succeeds in beating Jones it will be by sheer force of dollars. Kendall is, personally, very popular, is not recognized as a strong partisan, and to the great mass of Republicans would be less objectionable than any other Democrat that has yet been named. Though he is not identified with the "rings," they would much prefer his election to that of Jones, who has the nerve, means and will to fight them to the bitter end, and is certain to do it. If it is a possible thing, they are going to beat him by fair means or foul, but, notwithstanding their best efforts, so far there is not the slightest prospect for them to do so, except by making the above combination. Jones' friends are very sanguine that no combination can defeat him, and claim that his prospects to-day are better than at any time since the contest began.

THE TAX LEVY.

According to The San Francisco Bulletin the tax levy for State purposes for the present fiscal year will be 30 cents on each $100, which is about one third the rate under the old tax law. The total taxable values of the State will foot up about $700,000,000. The whole sum for State purposes to be raised by taxes is $2,122,000, distributed among the different funds as follows:

General Fund	$1,190,000
School Fund	240,000
Interest and Sinking Fund of 1857	140,000
Interest and Sinking Fund of 1860	9,000
State Capitol Fund	200,000
Military Fund	60,000
Soldiers' County Interest and Sinking Fund	43,000
Soldiers' Relief Interest and Sinking Fund	25,000
Pacific Railroad Fund	105,000
State Normal School Fund	75,000
Capitol Bonds Interest and Sinking Fund	35,000
Total	$2,122,000

Destruction of a Valuable Quartz Mill.

The Eberhardt & Aurora Mining Company's Mill, White Pine, was totally destroyed by fire August 31. This entails a loss of over $300,000 on the insurance companies, and not less than $200,000 more on the company owning it, the mill being worth that much more than the amount of the insurance. The English companies will bear the brunt of this loss, though the San Francisco companies come in for more than they conviently stand. We have no account of the origin of the fire, but presume it was accident.

A Steamer Burned at Sea.

The steamer Bienville from New York to Aspinwall was burnt at sea on the 15th of August. A large number of the passengers including women and children lost their lives. At least 34 persons are known to be missing, many of whom, it is certain, were drowned. Eighty-six of the passengers and crew escaped in the boats, saving nothing but the clothes they had on when the alarm was given.

To Stop at Wilmington.

The Los Angeles Star, of the 31st ultimo, rejoices over the positive announcement that the Pacific Mail Steamship Co.'s steamers will make Wilmington a regular stopping place on and after the 17th instant, which will be to the great advantage of Los Angeles and surrounding country.

A RAILROAD SOUTH.

[From The Gold Hill News, August 27th.]

But few of our readers have any real conception of the vast amount of mineral wealth known to exist in that portion of this State lying along the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada, and extending, on the same line, through to the southern boundary of California. Owing, in the main, to the advantages of railroad communication, the attention of miners and capitalists has hitherto been directed to the eastward, along the line of the Central Pacific road; although we have here, in the section above alluded to, and much more conveniently located in other respects, a vast mining region, inferior in no particular to any in Eastern Nevada or in Utah Territory.

Included within a strip of, say 100 miles in width and 250 long, north and south, we have a large number of mining camps or towns, in nearly every one of which mining operations are being extensively and profitably carried on, notwithstanding the great disadvantages under which they labor by reason of their isolation, or lack of cheap and speedy communication with the business center of the coast. Of these we will mention Pine Grove, Aurora, Bodie, Columbus, Silver Peak, Lida Valley, and Montezuma districts, in Nevada, and on the same general line southward, with but a few miles intervening, Benton or Hot Springs, Deep Spring Valley, Waucoba, Kearsarge, and Cerro Gordo in California. In all of these camps there are mines or ledges of silver, gold or galena ores of extraordinary richness, to say nothing of hundreds of inferior grade that might be worked to fair profit under favorable circumstances. Under present conditions none of a less assay value than $100 per ton can be profitably worked in any of these districts, and in consequence, hundreds and thousands of tons of ore, varying from $20 to $100 per ton, assay value, are cast aside as being practically worthless. We are assured by parties well acquainted with that country, that the number of ledges to be found carrying ore of these grades, to say nothing of those that are worked yielding away up into the hundreds, are simply incalculable. They believe that almost the only condition necessary to make all this vast wealth available to the world, would be afforded by a railroad. That is the grand desideratum of the residents of that region. They well know that it is an essential condition to the proper development of their country, and, furthermore, firmly believe that such a road would now be a paying investment for its builders. Every ten mile station for at least 250 miles of the route would be a freight depot, a condition of things not at all improbable when it is understood that a rich mining country at least 100 miles wide for the whole distance, would be tributary to it. In addition to its minerals, this country possesses a large agricultural area, capable of sustaining a large population, which would contribute largely to the business of the road.

For a distance of nearly 400 miles from the Central Pacific to the Southern Pacific Railroad routes, there is no other practical route across the mountains to reach San Francisco, and any railroad to connect those two, running through the chain of valleys along the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, would inevitably command a profitable business and a commanding position in reference to the overland routes, to either one of which it could become a feeder. At the present time at least nine tenths of all the freighting in the extensive region south of Aurora is done via the Southern or Los Angeles route, although that route offers no advantage in point of distance. The freight tonnage of Cerro Gordo alone is but little less than 500 tons per month, notwithstanding the great expense or drawback of 275 miles of wagon transportation over a very heavy road. This, though the principal, is the business of one district only in a dozen or more. With the impetus that a railroad would give to all the interests of the country throughout its length, the present amount of freighting would be of the merest insignificance compared to what it would then be. An extension of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad of less than 150 miles, would command the whole of this business, and in various ways make it contribute something to the advantage of our own section of the State. Otherwise we lose all benefit from the trade and freighting business, not only of Southeastern California, but all of the Southern portion of our own State as well. It is in the power of the energetic projectors of the Virginia and Truckee Road to control the whole of this, if they commence in time, thus forestalling a branch road which will surely be built north from either the Atlantic and Pacific, or the Southern Pacific overland roads, and which we have good reason to believe will be commenced as soon as either of them reach the eastern foot of the Sierra Nevada. We mention these things in the hope that our own railroad men, now that they have one important link in the chain complete, will not rest until they give this matter a thorough investigation, and if then deemed advisable, to extend their road in time to head off one from the south. The counties through which the road whould pass should, and of course would, give ample encouragement and assistance. It is an important project, and one which commends itself to the attention of all interested in the development of the true resources of our young and thriving State. It would be not only vastly beneficial to the section developed by it, but also to this, as bringing all lucrative trade and travel directly into and through our very midst.

Typographic Errors.

One of the best hits we have seen caused by a typographical error, is that wherein a cotemporary, speaking of the "great reduction works in course of erection in Utah," let an "s" slip into the place of an "r," so that the item reads: "The great seduction works in course of erection in Utah."—Virginia Chronicle.

LETTER FROM WALLAPAI.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

CERBAT, ARIZONA TER., Aug. 18, 1872.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT:—After a long time I write you a few hasty lines from this place. Not that it is a point of great importance at present, but of great future prospects. As far as prospected there never has been found in all the world an equal for the above named camp; the surface-showing far surpasses anything ever seen by miners since the discovery of gold, silver and lead, and not only is the surface good, but the deepest mines here show the best and do produce the best ores. The Cupel and Little Tiger have few equals and no superiors. At the depth of 87 feet the Cupel gives plenty of ore, the assay value ranging from $375 to $500 per ton, while the sample from ten and a half tons of Little Tiger give $381 42 at a depth of 70 feet. The Champion produces ore from surface as far as prospected—67 feet, and the average from wall to wall (three feet) is sixty oz silver and forty-five per cent lead. The two last named mines belong to W. H. Raymond and C. Martin Smith, two gentlemen that have invested in this camp more than $80,000 in gold, and still they buy when an opportunity suits. They have or will in a short time make money. They have not as yet erected any machinery here, although they have hundreds of tons of the finest of ores already on their dumps. Raymond says, "get out ore and develope the mine by the time the 35th parallel railroad gets here," which comes within six miles of this place. The truth is, Raymond of Raymond & Ely, and E. Martin Smith, have the country. A. B. Elder and P. Reddy have a smelting furnace here which has done some thing for the country, but Elder has been out of money over two months, and he says the machine will not produce much bullion until money comes from somewhere. He says that he can smelt the ore of this camp as easy as churning it if he has a show. Thus far he has made something over one hundred bars at $86 each. I saw a young fellow here, formerly from Lone Pine, who is in charge of some goods shipped here by Mr. Reddy of your place, and appears to be well to do in the world, as he offers to draw for $9,000 that he has in San Francisco; two years ago he did not have a splitter. He says he likes this country and he has brought plenty of good wine for his own table; and a man that has any use for a table in this camp is ahead of the older residenters; for there has been a constant famine here since the discovery of the comet, two years since—men often riding to Prescott (160 miles) for a sack of flour to save the mess from starving, and one thing not unusual is that the camp has never been out of whisky once since its discovery, as Dan H. Williams and W. T. Grant can testify—the land marks are no doubt still visible on their noses. We are almost solely dependent on the Colorado S. N. Co for the transportation of freight from S. F., and there is no telling anything about when they will get here. There being no opposition, consequently no accommodation in the above Co.

On the 8th ult. we had a sprinkle of rain here that wet up things generally, destroying roads at a desperate rate. I had no way of measuring the quantity of water that fell, but a mackerel keg or kit sat on fair ground and in six hours the keg was full. Some say that 12 inches of water must have fallen. The sprinkle was quite general and done a vast amount of good, causing the grass to spring up where twenty days since naught but a desert was to be found.

Tulare Items.

The Tulare Times, of the 31st ultimo, comes out decidedly improved in appearance and general style, with a "new dress" of new type. We extract the following items of interest:

It is said that Professor Agassiz, the most noted naturalist and paleontologist in the world, who recently arrived in San Francisco, in the brig Hassler, from his submarine explorations in the South Seas, under the auspices of the United States Government, will return here next week with Mr. Bierstadt, the great artist, and join him in his trip to the mountains eastward. Professor Clarence King, who wrote up Mt. Whitney in the Atlantic Monthly, and established the height of that peak, is said to be keeping camp at the present time somewhere in the vicinity of the south fork of King's river, awaiting the return of Bierstadt and Agassiz.

Mr. S. B. Rumford, an esteemed citizen of Plano, met with a most shocking death on the 23d ult., by falling into a well on his place. He had been down in the well and as he was being hoisted out, the rope broke and he fell to the bottom, a distance of not less than eigty-five feet. It was fully an hour and a half before men and ropes were procured to take him out. He was still alive but suffering terribly when hauled up. Dr George was in attendance, and on examination found his right thigh broken in two places, the femoral artery ruptured and his whole body mashed up. Mr. Rumford lived an hour and a half after the doctor arrived. He was a very intelligent and enterprising gentlemen, and his terrible taking off is greatly to be lamented.

In another column we quote an item from THE INYO INDEPENDENT, in which the operations and explorations of Bierstadt, the great artist, are alluded to. Since the article was in type Mr. Bierstadt returned to Visalia, leaving Thursday morning for San Francisco, were he will stay but a few days on business, and then come back to Visalia, and renew his summer campaign in the mountains. We did not have a conversation with Mr. Bierstadt ourselves, but the gentlemen at the hotel inform us that he reports making some astonishing discoveries. He says the scenery surpasses anything in California or the world, and that its merits are almost or entirely unknown by our own people. He tells of a fall which appears to be on Kings river, which is over 2,000 feet in hight perpendicularly, far exceeding the Yosemite Falls in grandeur and beauty, while he says they are much easier of access. He thinks that in time the region he describes will be one of the most noted places of resort on the globe. This appreciation of our scenery by the greatest landscape painter in the world, is decidedly complimentary to its excellence. We hope that means of access may ere long be provided to this terra incognitia of wonders, so that their beauties may be unfolded to the eyes of man, and not wholly devoted to the admiration of kindred but exclusive Nature, as in the ages gone by.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

The Grand Jury.

This honorable body has been in session all week with a fair prospect of one or two weeks more work before them. An unusually large number of indictments and presentments have been laid before them, with what result will appear in the final report. This jury evinces a very laudable desire to complete their work in the most effective manner, and seemed determined to do it though it takes all Summer. In this respect this is the best and, we believe, about the only first rate Grand Jury we have ever had in the County. It is evident to all that our County affairs are considerably muddled, and it will take nerve, patience and ability, to say nothing of the expense, to strengthen them out. Among other things, it is proposed to have the County books, almost, if not quite from the beginning, examined by an expert if one such, competent and willing to undertake the herculanean task, can be found. This is just what ought to have been done long ago, but having been deferred so long we much doubt whether the gain in the present instance will equal the cost. However, if done at all do it thoroughly, we say. If former or present officials come short in their accounts or are incompetent, shut them up. There should be no "fooling" in matters of this kind.

The Northern Route.

We take pleasure in commending this route to travelers from this section going to San Francisco or the East. Messrs. Ullrick & Wright and W. F. Wilson, the proprietors of the connecting lines from here to Carson City, will put you through "on time" to that place, where, since the completion of the V. & T. Railroad, you will take the cars and go through to San Francisco without a change. At least, we were informed the railroad company intend to put on a sleeping car to run through without a change, and, in any case, the old time staging between Carson and Reno is now done away with—an advantage that will be fully appreciated by the traveler who has staged it two days and nights previously. The drivers on the Northern route are the most accommodating set of boys we have yet found. They don't lavish their attentions exclusively on the "widders," but do their best for all their passengers, which is saying a good deal.

Pleads Guilty.

A. Sepulveda, the young Mexican who has been taking his ease in our County pig pen, yclept a jail, so long, under a charge of grand larceny, told Judge Hannah of the County Court that he was guilty of the charge, and was willing to appear next Saturday and have the preliminaries arranged for a lengthened sojourn at San Quentin. In the County of Los Angeles there are three indictments standing against the same gentleman for similar offences committed in that county. This expert thief says he is constitutionally honest, but there is something wrong with his head and he can't control it. It would seem a little that way, that's a fact.

Enormous, if True.

Newspapers on the other side are reporting an immensely rich strike of quartz at Gold Mountain District, which seems to be one of the greatest importance. But it remains for our correspondent at Lida to give a report of the matter which is calculated to startle the most unexcitable. The gentleman, a thoroughly reliable man, says: The strike at Gold Mountain is said to excel anything ever seen in the United States of America for richness and size. The ledge is said to be nine feet thick and worth sixty four thousand dollars per ton. The finder, Mr. George Ayer (one of the owners of the Lida Bell at Lida) is in luck.

Fine Printing.

The bills of lading, receipts and other forms being printed at this office for the forwarding agents of the steamer Bessie Brady, include some of the handsomest specimens of plain typography imaginable. Very many of our other business men could do well to follow the example set by these gentlemen, for we have no hesitation in saying that much finer and better printing is done here than on any hap-hazard orders sent to the Bay.

Bullion Shipment.

On the 25th day of August, 1872, there were shipped from the mill of Hiskey & Walker, (extracted from Lida Valley ore), ten bars of bullion, weighing 3,645 ounces, valued at $4,000; also, on the 1st day of September, three bars of bullion, weighing 1,031 ounces, valued at $1,000.

Water-Spout.

A heavy cloudburst or water-spout occurred in Palmetto Canyon on the 28th ult. Our informant states that the water came out of two gulches into the main one like a wave four feet high, sweeping everything before it; the volume being equal to that flowing in Owens River.

Assessment.

The Silver Sprout Company have levied an assessment of 50 cents per share, delinquent October 8th. There being 50,000 shares of stock, the assessment amounts to $25,000. George Hearst, the noted mining expert, is one of the owners in the Sprout, and is expected here in the course of a few days.

Frost.

A light frost visited this locality a few nights ago, but except lightly nipping a few tomato vines, done no damage. A heavy frost any time within the next three weeks would be quite disastrous to many fields of unripened corn, as well as some other crops.

Personal.

Messrs. B. Maloon & Son, of the Pacific (Oakland) Bridge Co., are in town on the lookout for contract work on some of our county structures. They come endorsed by their company and are doubtless fully competent for any work they may undertake.

Owner Wanted.

On Thursday last a gentleman of our acquaintance picked up a fine saddle, which was thrown from a loose or runaway horse. The owner can hear of its whereabouts by calling at this office.

Proposals.

Thursday, the 12th instant, is the last day on which bids or proposals for the building of the Court House and bridges can be filed.

Dignified Court Proceedings.

A correspondent, N. Eikwa, furnishes us the following account of an incident which occurred not long ago, which he entitles "A Chinese Court in Session." We think it possible that the Court and spectators referred to were not Chinamen, in the strictest sense of the word:

Passing along a street I saw an open door, and hearing a commotion within I entered what seemed to be a court and cigar store combined. The court was in session and presided over by a dignified looking Mandarin with smooth shaved head, or as was suggested by a "gentlemanly reporter at my left," bald head. The case on hand was that of a man who had been arrested for making threats against life. It seems the prisoner had had the effrontery to state to "His Honor"—the Court—that he was not guilty of the crime for which he had been arrested. At the time of my entrance the prisoner was asking permission to introduce some five or six respectable witnesses, by whom, I was informed, it was well known to the "Honorable Court" could be proven the entire innocence of the prisoner; and at the same time establish a strong case of conspiracy and attempt to levy black mail on the part of the two prosecuting witnesses. The dignified dealer in cigars and terrible dispenser of unadulterated justice, arose very majestically, and holding aloft with one hand the jack of spades and ace of diamonds, and with the other clutching a trident, (cribbage board), shouted in a tone of voice, well calculated to strike terror to the prisoner's guilty soul, "You can't bring any witnesses in here to contradict anything the witnesses for the prosecution have testified to. It can't and shan't be done; not in this county, sir! not in this county! Understand sir, the prosecution are men of means, sir. They are my friends; they have trusted me with this business; and I will not betray that trust nor allow the free institutions of our growing town to be trampled upon by admitting testimony that may damage the character of my friends that I have known for ten years. Yes sir, they are all my friends, and your motion is a contempt of court, and if argued further I shall commit you to jail. Fall to your knees sir and beg mercy or it may——"

There is no telling to what length "His Honor" might have gone in defining his position had he not been interrupted by the prisoner objecting to the ruling of the court, and that in such a violent manner as to create the wildest confusion among spectators, and quite upset and overwhelm the dignity of the court. At this juncture, another dignitary, (apparently a retired Mandarin), made his appearance and suggested as a compromise that all hands play a game of cards for cigars. That, so far as I observed, was the close of the trial, and which goes to show that our Celestial brothers are not much behind Americans in the slippery ways of judicial tact, especially in adapting decisions to circumstances.

Moving In.

Messrs. Harris & Rhine are busily engaged in moving their goods into their new store building, which, by the way, is the finest and most roomy of any in all this great interior. We propose to give an extended description of it soon after it receives the finishing touches, which will require a week or two yet.

Around Again.

Ex Sheriff A. B. Elder, operating in Wallapai, is in town for a few days. It looks rather natural to see him around town as of yore.

Politics and Speculation.

[From The S. F. Bulletin, August 30.]

Several of the Nevada journals assert that Sharon's withdrawal from the contest for United States Senator in that State was brought about by the pressure of capital, bank and railroad influences, and that the same influences are at work to compel John P. Jones to withdraw, leaving the field clear to Nye, who is said to be the choice of of the railroad ring. It is believed in San Francisco, and commonly asserted, that the late heavy bearing operations in Washoe stocks were incited by a purpose to so cripple Jones, financially, that he would be obliged to withdraw; and thus we would seem to have stock speculators joining with railroad monopoly influences to control the politics of Nevada and California, two States as intimately related by business and political sympathy as the Siamese twins. If the question was left to the decision of the Republican voters of Nevada, there is no doubt that Jones would be their choice for Senator in place of Nye, who is one of those Senators who have done most to embarrass President Grant and to afford a pretext for Republican opposition to his reelection. Nevada, as much as California, needs an independent, vigorous man in the Senate who will represent her people and not her mining and railroad rings. Jones has been thought to be such a man, and if he stays in the field on a truly independent platform, there is every reason to believe he can be elected over a railroad candidate, if the people will only bestir themselves to nominate and elect legislators who will not betray them. If the railroad, banking and mining rings, recently in such intimate alliance in California and Nevada, are allowed to make the Senatorial candidate, the Nevada Republicans will have very hard work to carry their State for Grant.

Diamonds in Nevada.

Parties who have been out working some forty-five miles from this city, have discovered what appear to be diamonds. The stones, though small, appear to be good, and were found in the species of gravel peculiar to diamond producing countries. The gentlemen who made the discovery are some of our most prominent and reliable citizens. This discovery confirms an opinion expressed to us some years ago by J. R. Murphy, late State Assayer General of Nevada, that diamonds existed in this country, and that in time his predictions would prove true. Baron Von Humboldt expressed the same opinion some years previously. —Reese River Reveille, August 26.

That Comet.

We understand that a Vigilance Committee has waited upon Messrs. Plantamour and Bockh, the two astronomers who predicted the recent comet which failed to connect, and notified them to quit all further prognostications of the kind, on pain of being rammed down their big telescope and shot off at the moon. They are frauds of the first water, and should be held to strict account for the disgraceful failure of this comet.—Gold Hill News.

Stocks.

[From The San Francisco Chronicle, Sept. 1.]

Yesterday closed an exciting week in the stock market—one in which Goddess Fortune has played many pranks; left some of her votaries stranded high on the beach of ruin; left others frightened to death among the quicksands and floated others upward and onward on the swift tide of prosperity. The early part of the week saw ruin and despair upon many countenances; the latter part saw occasional glimpses of happiness darting through the fog and cloud. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the bears carried everything before them and knocked the bulls out of time. On Thursday and Friday the bulls recovered somewhat and dealt the bears severe blows, but did not recover all the ground lost. Yesterday was although both sides struggled manfully for the mastery. Here and there the bears were defeated, and hauled off temporarily for repairs; then returned, and with renewed strength attacked the bulls and carried some of their strongholds. The "panicky" feeling in the early part of the week was assisted, if not chiefly brought about, by certain prominent brokers, who, with singular magnanimity, are always ready to carry stocks "on call" for customers who are wanting in ready cash. When stocks are up those generous brokers readily carry stocks on a

FIFTY PER CENT MARGIN,

at from three to five per cent. interest, needy borrowers or holders readily paying such ruinous rates on the hopes of their "great expectations." Suddenly, apparently without concert, the money market becomes tight and banks begin to squeeze their customers. "No have money—no can give. Very sorry—some other time. Pleasant weather. Going to the races? Splendid horses—those of Stanford and Hayward; fast time. Good morning." Then comes a polite note from the Shylock brokers, couched in about

THE FOLLOWING TERMS:

"We are obliged to call in our money to meet pressing obligations. Please take up your stocks by 11 A. M. to-morrow, or we shall be compelled to sell same, etc., etc." Well, the holders can't raise the money, and next morning the market is flooded, and a "panicky" feeling comes over the small holders and they rush to sell small lots they hold for cash. More demoralization, and in a few days stocks have depreciated without any apparent cause, fifty per cent. Then steps in and buys 'em up very quietly. A dozen brokers are doing his business, and he loads up again at the low prices, and the market gradually advancing he is ready to "accommodate" people who want stocks carried. There is plenty of money in the community, but it is very easily locked up until the bottom has been reached in the stock market, and the various rings have unloaded and loaded up again. There is no other way to account reasonably for the

OUR GENEROUS BROKER

in the stock market, and the only person who operates sensibly is he who can afford to buy for cash and hold as long as the ring operators. "Buyer 30" and "carrying" are the rocks upon which every operator splits sooner or later. And yet people will gamble in that way. They are drawn in the vortex by an irresistible fascination, and hope on against hope, even while their pockets are being drained of margins. Nearly all the brokers have gone back on the buyer 30 business or a margin of twenty per cent. They find it doesn't pay, especially when stocks drop that much at a single Board and customers don't come up with "mud." Consequently the brokers have a placard pasted up in their lairs on which appears in letters of living light (print) the following words:

"NO TIME PURCHASES FOR ANYBODY, OR
FORTY PER CENT. REQUIRED ON TIME PURCHASES."

and not very anxious for them at these rates. Work is being actively prosecuted in all the Comstocks, and many months cannot elapse before the great ledge is thoroughly proved. The continued argument "if they have such immense bodies of ore in Belcher and Crown Point, why not in Jacket, Caledonia, Hale & Norcross, or Gould & Curry?" is plausible, but after a while as they go deeper and deeper into the bowels of the earth and encounter only porphyry and "sich like" it will lose its force and prices go down. Hope deferred maketh the heart sick, and the hearts of stock operators are as sensible as those of people who don't gamble.

YESTERDAY'S MARKET.

shows a continued firmness in the leading Washoes, and a falling off in some of the Elyites. Pioche has dropped from $34 Friday to $30 yesterday, and the bears mark a much lower price next week. Eureka Consolidated is stiff; and so is Meadow Valley, which the bulls mark as $40 for the coming week. Chief of the Hill has marched up from $5 to $10 during the week—which the same is fishy.

VARIETIES.

—A Cincinnati man thought he had got religion, but after calling in a minister and the working Christians of another church, he ascertained that it was only cholera morbus. He is a Greeley man, and says he is satisfied as it is, for he can't go through the campaign without swearing at Grant. His neighbors think he is sacgreeleygious.

—A sharper was lately before one of the London Police Courts for obtaining money under false pretences by sending out women to collect money for alleged charitable objects. One of these women was a witness against him. She said he instructed her to go about looking as meek as she could, and not with a single knock, but with a rat tat tat.

—The average Californian likes nothing so well as what he calls a "square meal." At Los Angeles, lately, a poor man, tired of life, bought a substantial luncheon and a bottle of claret, went to an unoccupied building, ate and drank his fill, then, shooting himself through the head, went into the next world comfortably.

—A venerable dame in Virginia, aged 96 years, recently cut a new set of teeth. She was splitting kindling wood, when the teeth—which were worth $60—fell out of her mouth, and the ax chopped on them. Her husband says it will be a great many years before she gets another set to cut.

—In consequence of the very high price of meat in England, meetings have been held in different parts of the kingdom, and resolutions pledging the meeting to abstain from the use of butcher's meat for a certain time have been carried. Australian tinned beef and mutton are used instead.

—During the past six months an anti-tobacco league has been formed in France, whose members are taking very active steps against the use of tobacco on the ground of its having greatly contributed to the degeneracy of Frenchmen, and their consequent failure in the last campaign.

—A good story is told of a clergyman who forgot his notes on Sunday morning and it was too late to send for them. He said to his audience, by way of apology, "this morning he would have to depend upon the Lord for what he might say, but in the afternoon he would come better prepared."

—"Henrietta," said a landlady to her new girl, "when there's bad news, particularly private affliction, always let the boarders know it before dinner. It may seem strange to you, Henrietta, but such things make a great difference in the eating in the course of a year."

—Miss Drummond, the Quaker preacher, was asked whether the spirit ever inspired her with the thought of getting married." "No, friend," she said, "but the flesh has."

—The word love in the Indian language is "Schemlendamourtchwager." How nicely it would sound, whispered softly in a lady's ear, "I schemlendamourtchwager you!"

Silent Endurance.

Silent endurance appeals to us from beast and bird. Prof. Silliman, the younger, tells of his capture of a wild bird upon one of the islands of the Pacific. The forests were deep and dark and the birds never having learned to fear man, were so wild that they were perfectly tame. He selected a white one of lustrous plumage, and, breaking its feathers pressed his little lancet down towards its heart. The bird quivered and its soft eye looked into his, as a drop of blood stood upon its snowy breast. Not a motion, not a noise, and for the moment he turned away, overcome by his feelings. Had it screamed or fought, he would have pierced its breast without care. It was silent endurance that touched him.

The Railroad.

We learn on good authority that the work of extending the railroad will be resumed on or about the 1st of September. It was suspended on account of the extreme heat of the weather. It was found that until a lower temperature became prevalent, men could not work on the arid, shadeless plains. When the work is resumed, it will be pushed vigorously, and it is thought Kern River will be reached some time in October. The road is now ballasted and in good running order to Tipton, forty-five miles from this place.—Kern Co. Courier.

Sudden Death.

Thomas Nunn, who had a precarious life around town for a long series of years was admitted to the County Hospital on Monday, and died within a few minutes after his entrance. When he came in the Doctor asked him what was the matter. He replied that he had been on a spree two weeks, the Doctor said, "Tom this is your last spree;" Tom replied, "I know it," and was dead immediately.—Tuolumne Democrat. August 24th.

SAXE ON THE SEX.

Saratoga society,
What endless variety!
What pinks of propriety!
What gems of sobriety!
What garrulous old folks,
What shy folks and bold folks,
And warm folks and cold folks!
Such curious dressing,
And tender caressing,
(Of course, that is guessing.)
Such sharp Yankee Doodles,
And dandified noodles,
And other pet poodles!
Such very loud patterns,
(Worn often by slatterns!)
Such straight necks and bow necks,
Such dark necks and snow necks,
And high necks and low necks!
With this sort and that sort,
The lean sort and fat sort,
The bright and the flat sort—
Saratoga is crammed full,
And rammed full, and jammed full,
Not to say d——l full.

A FACT.

I know a woman, pale and slight,
With heart in hopeless mood,
Who often toils throughout the night
To earn her husband's food.

While he, in strength of manhood's power,
Some gay saloon will seek,
And spend more money in an hour
Than she earns in a week.

Measurement of Earthquake Waves.

[George Forbes in The Popular Science Monthly.]

While the scientific world and his own countrymen are rivals in doing honor to Prof. Palmieri for his zeal in remaining at his post in spite of all danger, it may be interesting to examine in some detail the work done at the Observatory of Mount Vesuvius. We know wonderfully little about the origin and mutual dependence of volcanic phenomena. This is due to a want of accurate observations. For the complete investigation we require first to know at what dates earthquakes and eruptions occur at different parts of the earth. Next we must have observations of the direction and exact hour at which a wave of disturbance passed different places whose positions are known. This gives us the velocity of the wave, and helps to determine the position, under the earth's surface, of the center of disturbance; or, if a wave be propagated over the sea, we obtain a means of estimating the average depth of the intervening ocean; for the velocity of the wave increases with the depth of the sea. This method gives one of the best determinations we possess of the depth of the Pacific Ocean. But beyond this we must have observations made systematically at some place subject to earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. No place in Europe is more suitable for this than the neighborhood of Mount Vesuvius; and it was for such observations that an observatory was established there.

Every one knows that Mount Vesuvius consists of a vast cone of lava and ashes, at the top of which is the great crater. On the northern side, separated from it by the deep valley called the Atrio del Cavallo, rises the precipitous and semicircular Monte Somma. This once formed the crater of the volcano, and the present cone seems to have been formed inside that great crater at the time when Pompeii was overwhelmed. On a spur of rock, a mile or two in length, running down from the Atrio del Cavallo, the Observatory is placed. It is close to the well known "Hermitage," or half-way house, in the ascent of the mountain. Being raised on this ridge above the surrounding country, it is comparatively safe from the molten lava that flows at times on either side of it.

The building itself is handsome; in fact it is to be regretted that so much money should have been devoted to the masonry instead of to additional instruments. On the ground floor are the inhabited rooms, all scantily furnished; but the pursuers of science cannot always expect bodily comfort. On the first floor we find the Museum, with a fine collection of minerals found on the mountain. Perhaps it may be as well here to correct the common mistake as to the nature of the yellow substance found about the craters, whose brilliant colors remind one so much of the Solfatara. This substance is not sulphur, but copper. The most interesting objects in the Museum are the "fumerolles," or smoke-holes. Occasionally at the end of an eruption you may see at the bottom of the crater a small cone of lava, with a hole in its top, through which the steam pours with a hissing noise like a wave breaking on a pebbly beach, or like a blast-furnace, or, as Pliny has it, like the grinding of a saw; the intensity of the sound varying with your position. These small cones are the fumerolles; they are a foot or two high; and Palmieri has actually had several of these natural chimneys cut off and transported to the Museum.

We now pass on to the Observing Room. There are solid piers carried up from the ground to support the instruments. First comes the elegant seismograph, an instrument for the automatic registration of earthquake shocks. The object of this instrument is twofold: first, to measure the direction and intensity of the shock; and, second, to write down a history of the earthquake. The shock may be either vertical or horizontal, or partly vertical and partly horizontal. For the vertical shocks a fine metallic point is suspended by a coil of wire over a cup of mercury. The coil of wire acts as a spring, and the slightest upward motion of the earth is sufficient to cause the point to dip into the cup of mercury. This completes a galvanic circuit, which stops a clock at the exact half second at which the shock occurred, and rings a bell to call the observer, and also does other work which we shall speak of again. There are three or four helices of wire of different strengths, which support small magnets above a cup of iron filings. When a vertical shock occurs, some of these magnets dip into the iron filings. To one of these a light index is attached for measuring the intensity of the shock.

For horizontal shocks there are four glass tubes. Each of them is bent twice at right angles, so as to form a U-tube. One arm of this tube has more than double the diameter of the other, and is shorter. The four tubes point in the directions of the four cardinal points. Each tube has a certain quantity of mercury poured into it, and on the surface of the mercury, within the narrow arm of the tube, there rests a small weight attached to a silk fibre, which passes over a delicate ivory pulley, and has a counterpoise attached to the other end. Each pulley has an index and circular scale to mark the angle turned through. The extremity of a wire is fixed at a small distance above the surface of the mercury in each tube. If, then, a horizontal shock occur, the mercury rises in the corresponding tube; but it rises higher in that one which has its long arm to the north. The pulley is turned through a certain angle, which is measured by the index, and at the same time the mercury in rising comes in contact with the fixed wire, and so completes a galvanic circuit which rings a bell, and stops the clock at the exact half second when the shock occured. If the shock comes from some intermediate point, two of the indices will be moved, and the direction and intensity can be measured by observing both of them. We have seen up to this point that the instrument will measure the direction and intensity of a shock, will mark the time at which a shock occurred, and will ring a bell to attract the attention of the observer on duty, who may register succeeding shocks, or, if the earthquake has ceased, may reset the apparatus. But this is not all. The galvanic circuit, which is completed the moment a shock occurs, releases at the same instant the pendulum of a second clock, which has been held out of the vertical by means of a detent. This clock allows a roll of paper to be unwound off a drum, as in any registering telegraph, at the rate of three metres an hour. A pencil rests nearly in contact with the strip of paper. It is connected with one arm of a lever, the other arm of which is slightly distant from an electro-magnet. As often as the current passes, this end of the lever is attracted to the magnet, and the pencil in consequence is made to press on the paper, to be released only when the current ceases. By this means, then, a continuous history of the earth's trembling is registered, a pencil mark corresponding to the time of trembling, and a blank space to a period of cessation.

This instrument is extremely delicate, and registers motions of the earth which are too slight to be perceptible to the human frame. When we examined it, some one happened accidentally to touch the casing of the instrument. The alarm was immediatele given by the bell, and the two clocks were respectively checked and put in motion by the galvanic current.

In the same room there is an apparatus for detecting and measuring atmospheric electricity. A gold leaf electroscope and a bifilar electrometer are observed regularly. These are successively put in connection with the conductor. This consists of a disk of metal above the roof of the house connected with an insulated metallic rod, supported vertically, and capable of being rapidly raised by means of a cord passing over a pulley. When not in use this rod is in connection with the ground. In making an observation, the rod with the disk attached is quickly raised, thereby disconnecting it from the ground. The electricity of the atmosphere at the point where the disk is fixed affects the electroscope and electrometer. Prof. Palmieri prefers the conductor above described, to a conducting point or flame, because he considers that these do not give comparable results, an objection which is not supported by all observers. He considers the same to be true of the method of dropping water.

After having made careful observations on atmospheric electricity for about a quarter of century in a country where meteorological changes are more regular and less capricious than in our own island, there is no one whose deductions are more deserving of our attention; the more so as he considers that he has combined his researches into a definite law. His first fact is this; If within a distance of about fifty miles there is no shower of rain, hail or snow, the electricity is always positive. The single exception is during the projection of ashes from the crater of Vesuvius. During a shower he finds the following law universally to hold good: At the place of the shower there is a strong development of positive electricity; round this is a zone of negative, and beyond this again positive. The nature of the electricity observed depends upon the position of the observer with respect to the shower, and the phenomena will change according to the direction in which the shower is moving. Sometimes negative electricity may be observed during a shower; this is always due to a more powerful shower farther off. These conclusions have been supported by means of telegraphic communication with neighboring districts. It appears, then, that except when the moisture of the air is being condensed, there is no unusual development of electricity. These results are in accordance with the experiments of Palmieri and others, which show that aqueous vapor in condensing develops positive electricity. No unusual development of electricity has ever yet been detected by him in a cloud when no rain is falling.

The above results, though falling short of what has to be done to complete the theory, are yet definite, and hence valuable, the more so if supported by other observers placed in equally favorable situations. But of the variations in intensity of positive or negative electricity nothing has been said.

Besides the fixed instruments at the Observatory, others are used on the mountain. Gases are collected from cracks in the earth's crust, tubes being let down into them, and the gas sucked up by a kind of bellows, to be examined at leisure. A portable spectroschope is also used during eruptions, and there is a larger one by Hoffman in the Observatory. From this Observatory we have received valuable information, and it is much to be regretted that equally efficient observatories have not been established in different parts of the world. Many portable and cheap instruments have been invented, most of which are described by Mr. Mallet in the "Admiralty Manual of Scientific Inquiry," but there ought to be three or four as delicate as that on Mount Vesuvius." It is a pity that no observatory has ever replaced the ancient one of Empedocles, near the summit of Etna, or even at Nicolosi, where the valuable services of Dr. Gemellaro might have been obtained. This would have been the more interesting, as Palmieri can detect shocks caused by that volcano, though the distance is enormous. With a third observatory, say in the Philippine Islands, we could not fail to increase our knowledge wonderfully.

From long practice Palmieri is able to predict eruptions. We remember well, when we were enjoying his hospitality at the beginning of last year, how he said, "This is a small eruption, but there is going to be a great one; I do not say it will be soon, it may be a year, but it will come." In almost exactly a year the great eruption did come.

The 31th of October.

A funny scene occurred in the Hocking County Court of Common Pleas some years ago, Judge E presiding.

A man had been arrested for horse-stealing, and set up an alibi in defense. The defendant's main witness was an old farmer named Buchanan.

He claimed the witness was in his employ at the time the horse was stolen, nearly a hundred miles distant, and consequently he could not be guilty.

The stealing was done on the 29th of October, and Buchanan had his "book" of accounts in court to refresh his memory. Mr. S., who represented the State, knowing the witness was both unscrupulous and ignorant, concluded to test his knowledge of dates, and cross-examined in this wise:

Attorney S.—You say that Mr. Ellis plowed for you all day on the 29th of October?

Witness (referring to his book)—Yes.

S.—What did he do on the 30th?

W.—He chopped wood.

S.—On the 31st?

W.—That was Sunday, and we went a squirrel-hunting.

S—What did he do on the 32d?

W.—He harrowed in wheat that day.

S—What did he do on the 33d?

W.—It was raining, and he shaved out some axe-handles.

S.—What did he do on the 34th?

W.—He chopped cord-wood.

S.—What did he do on the—

But before the question could be finished Buchanan's wife cleared the railing in front of the Judge's seat, seized B. by the collar and whisked him outside of the "bar," yelling in his affrighted ear: "You blasted old fool, don't you know that there only thirty-one days in the month of October?"

A New Set of Seals Received by Secretary Melone.

The Secretary of State has received from Washington a set of standard weights for the use of State and county officers. According to Section 563, Art. XIV of the Political Code, all county sealers (County Clerks) must keep in their offices the standard of weights and measures for their respective counties, and these standards are to be furnished to them by the State Sealer. All County Clerks are ex-officio sealers, and the fees of officers for sealing weights are as follows: For sealing and marking every beam, 75 cents; for sealing and marking every measure of extension, at the rate of 40 cents a yard, not to exceed $150 for any one measure; for sealing and marking every weight, 25 cents; for sealing and marking liquid and dry measures, if the same are of the capacity of a gallon or more, 40 cents; if less than a gallon, 20 cents. The set of State seals will be on exhibition at the next State Fair. The set of weights is very extensive, ranging from the massive brass yard measure to the smallest dry and liquid measure known, and from ponderous fifty and hundred pound weights down to the smallest of wire weights.

The Louisville Convention.

The Louisville Convention came off at the appointed time, and the programme was carried out under the auspices of the straight-out Democracy from nearly every State in the Union. Charles O'Conor and John Quincy Adams were nominated—the former by acclamation; and the latter on the third ballot. Mr. O'Conor was notified of the result and immediately telegraphed the chairman of the Convention that it would be impossible for him to accept the nomination. His letter to the Convention, however, and also his telegram declining the nomination, shows he fully sympathizes with the Louisville movement, and will do all he can in its support. The Convention finally resolved to make no other nominations and to stand by O'Conor and Adams, whether the former will accept the nomination or not, and soon after the passage of this resolution adjourned sine die.

Nellie Grant.

A London dispatch of Sept. 7th says: There is a report in the fashionable circles in this city and the continent which is said to be well founded, that Miss Nellie Grant, now in this city on a visit to the family of the American Minister, will be united in marriage at an early day to Duvergere Saane, Jr., a wealthy and influential gentlemen. The wedding, it is said, will take place in Washington early in the coming Winter. The announcement creates quite a sensation in fashionable circles, both here and elsewhere. Miss Grant will return to America during the latter part of the present month, and will probably be accompanied by her future husband and his mother.

The L. A. & S. P. Railroad.

The annual report of the Los Angeles & San Pedro Railroad Company was recently presented to the Common Council of Los Angeles. The little road is doing a very extensive and lucrative business. The gross receipts of the year have been set down at somewhat more than $218,700, of which sum a net income of $96,200 remains with the company. This amount has been pretty thoroughly expended in improvements, new material for the road, rolling stock, etc. The cars make two trips daily, remaining at San Pedro over night.

Buried at Sea.

By a private letter from London to a friend in this place we learn that Mrs. Tregelles buried her infant at sea while on her return from this place to her home in England. It will be remembered that this, the only child of the bereaved mother, was born shortly after the great calamity in which the father, Capt. Tregellas of the Eclipse Co. lost his life.

Convention of Assessors.

The State Board of Equalization has called a Convention of the Assessors of the several counties of the State, to meet in Sacramento on the 24th of September. The object sought to be attained is an interchange of views on matters connected with the assessment of the several classes of property in the State.

THE LEARNED PROFESSORS AND OBSERVATORIES.

On the outside page of this issue will be found a very interesting article concerning earthquake causes, etc. The history of the operations and discoveries concerning those wonderful phenomena made by the brave old Professor Palmieri in his observatory on a quaking mountain in the midst of fire, smoke and destruction, is both valuable and interesting. It shows what a little determined effort may accomplish, and leads us to hope that the time is not far distant when vague and unsatisfactory theories as to the cause of these most alarming and least understood of all natural phenomena, must give way to absolute knowledge, and to some extent, at least, result in the means of averting many of the evils attending these convulsions.

Our own scientists do not seem to have the pluck, determination or knowledge sufficient to inaugurate or carry out any systematic elucidation of the great mystery, but content themselves with vague theories, conclusive or satisfactory in nothing. It is a shame upon these men or the scientific societies they are supposed to represent that they should have permitted the best opportunity ever yet offered within our own territory for long continued scientific observations upon the phenomena of earthquakes, such as has been presented in this county, to pass almost totally unimproved. It is true Professor Whitney, a man of great scientific attainments, has presented the world with a well written statement of his views and theories concerning it, but it is equally true that the whole was based upon a very limited personal investigation, unaided by instruments or any scientific means other than that afforded by books. With all deference to the learned Professor we do not see that the world is one whit wiser from his efforts at elucidating earthquake causes; on the other hand we feel a positive assurance, from personal knowledge of the earthquake occurrences in and during the whole of the past six months, and judging from well known causes and effects, that the Professor's deductions as to the causes of the accompanying sounds are wholly in error. We have alluded to this point before, and certainly do not propose to go into a review of either Professor Whitney's nor Professor Palmieri's observations, but simply to urge the propriety of establishing a complete, well-fitted earthquake observatory at some convenient point on the coast. This ought to be done by the Government, if it cannot be undertaken by some scientific society alone or in connection. The Government is about to establish a large astronomical observatory upon some of the high peaks near the line of the Central Pacific Railroad. Now we propose, that instead of locating it there, that the large telescope being built for it, together with a full set of earthquake instruments, be located upon the top of Mount Whitney. It is one of the highest peaks in the United Stases: the view from its summit is very rarely obstructed by clouds or any similar cause, as it would be in the mountains further north; it is perfectly accessible to horsemen to its very apex; it stands in the midst of the most grand and picturesque scenery of the continent, if not of the world, and being of easy access from the great San Joaquin Valley on the one side as well as the large Valley of the Owens River on the other, such an institution could be about as cheaply maintained there as at any other point on the Sierra Nevadas. We certainly hope that the claims of Mount Whitney as a candidate for the location of this observatory, whether single or combined, may be fully considered before it is decided to put it elsewhere.

For Congress.

Paschal Coggins, of Sacramento, an old and able newspaper writer, was nominated for Congress by the Democrats and Liberal Republicans of the Second Congressional District, September 3d. The Sacramento Union speaks of it "as a good and strong nomination." The Virginia Chronicle says, "There is no better or truer man in the State of California than Paschal Coggins, and we hope to see him elected. He has been tried upon the railroad question, having been a member of the Assembly, and was found to be eminently sound."

The Award.

The Geneva Arbitrators brought their deliberations to a close at midnight September 6th. They decide that England is to pay to the United States Government the sum of $17,500,000 in gold coin within a stated period. The question of interest which at one time threatened to delay the settlement indefinitely, was finally waived by the American members, and the above sum is agreed upon.

—They continue to increase the number of employees at Mare Island.

THE NEW MINING LAWS FOR CERRO GORDO.

The miners of Cerro Gordo District, feeling the necessity for a revision of the local laws by which they have been governed heretofore, issued a call some time since in due form calling a mass meeting for that purpose, to take place August 24th. The meeting was held accordingly, and in order to meet the requirements of the somewhat cosmopolitan mining population of that District, a Revision Committee, consisting of seven persons, each of a different nationality, was appointed to report August 31st, to which date the meeting adjourned. At this adjourned meeting the Committee reported a code of laws which were adopted. As it is a matter of some importance, both to residents and many non-residents as well, of the District, we publish these laws in full.

It will be seen on examination of Sec. 2 of this code that the name of the District has been changed and is hereafter to be known as "Cerro Gordo Minining District." Previously it bore the name of "Lone Pine Mining District." The original boundaries have been greatly circumscribed, and, besides the convenience of having a smaller district, is intended to exclude all agricultural ground, so as to leave the settlement of mining questions pertaining to the District exclusively to the miners themselves.

That portion of this law relating to the size of claims is the same as the present law of the United States on the same subject. In answer to a query on the subject we will state here that in accordance with our reading of this law of Congress, the original claim holds the exclusive right to the whole of the surface embraced within the prescribed limits fixed by law. In order that this may be fully understood, we give in full Section 3 of the law of Congress, passed May 11th, 1872:

That the locators of all mining locations heretofore made, or which shall hereafter be made, on any mineral vein, lode or ledge, situated on the public domain, their heirs and assigns, where no adverse claim exists at the passage of this Act, so long as they comply with the laws of the United States, State, Territorial and local regulations not in conflict with said laws of the United States governing their possessory title, shall have the exclusive right of possession and enjoyment of all the surface included within the lines of their locations, and of all veins, lodes and ledges throughout their entire depth, the top or apex of which lies inside of such surface lines extended downward vertically, although such veins, lodes or ledges may so far depart from a perpendicular in their course downward as to extend outside the vertical side lines of said surface locations; Provided, that their right of possession to such outside parts of said veins or ledges shall be confined to such portions thereof as lie between vertical planes drawn downward as aforesaid, through the end lines of their locations, so continued in their own direction that such planes will intersect such exterior parts of said veins or ledges; And provided further, that nothing in this section shall authorize the locator or possessor of a vein or lode which extends in its downward course beyond the vertical lines of his claim to enter upon the surface of a claim owned or possessed by another.

That portion of the local law referring to the manner and amount of work to be done is the pith and the best part of the whole, though we are a little fearful it is not sufficiently explicit in not stating precisely the exact amount of work to be none to prevent a forfeiture at the end of six months. It is doubtless intended that where regular work is not entered upon at the time another $200 worth of work shall be done; but, at the same time, by the reading of the portion referred to it is possible under a quibble of law, one day's work at the end of the given time may be sufficient to prevent a forfeiture. If so, the best part of the new law is a nullity. Its main object is to prevent the dog-in-the-manger style of holding mining ground which heretofore has done so much to prevent the development of the district. The object is to make holders of mining ground prove their faith by their works, or else get out of the way, and let some one else do it. Under the old regulations there was, practically, no limit to the amount of ground a man might locate; and, to the exclusion of all others, hold for an indefinite time, and yet practically do nothing whatever towards the development of any portion of it. This loose system of defining boundaries that has prevailed heretofore, but now happily done away with, has been the means of a great amount of litigation and needless expense. Under the old rule it was scarcely possible for a new comer to make an attempt to the development of a new location anywhere near an older one without becoming involved in a contest of some sort. This was almost invariably the result whenever the new location proved to be valuable. Men would record claims in some indefinite manner, and then set down to await "capital," or worse still, to "lay for" some more energetic individual to open up a claim somewhere in the vicinity, which, by virtue of the looseness of the first locator's record of boundaries and process of law, might easily be gobbled up.

Both by the Congressional and the new local law boundary lines must be plainly marked and recorded, and no lode can be recorded or recognized until the lode or vein has actually been discovered, so that wild cat claims will hereafter have no legal existence. As an example of how the old laws and local regulations have worked to the great injury of the mining interests generally, we find in Cerro Gordo less than twenty claims in process of development, while there are not less than 2800 staring the new comer in the face when he examines the Recorder's books. Probably not one tenth of these could be found by the records, and yet no new location could be made and worked without it being made to appear as trenching upon an older right. It was high time that Congress should pass some general mining law to obviate the endless troubles on this account, and in the present instance the miners of Cerro Gordo have acted wisely and well in adding still further restrictions looking to the prevention of these indirect swindles on both individuals and the community at large. As usual, however, there are a number of individuals, or soreheads, who feel injured and outraged by the new code, just as Boss Tweed and his gang of Tammany thieves felt aggrieved at having their "rights" interfered with by law, and these soreheads now propose to call another meeting and have the new code set aside, and the old one reinstated.

School Funds.

Following is the apportionment of State and county school monies. The apportionment from the State was made by the State Superintendent on the census of last year, and our County Superintendent, Mr. Symmes, does not know of any law giving him the right to change it:

Benton.

Our advertising columns are this week enlivened by a general resume of the different branches of business carried on by Geo. Hightower & Co., Benton, who have just opened out a new storeroom. In connection with the general mercantile business, they run a saloon, blacksmith shop and livery stable. George also attends to gunsmithing and repairing jewelry, though no mention is made thereof, nor of his saw mill. No portion of the business is carried on in a one-horse manner, and taken altogether the firm is a big team. See the advertisement.

Trout Raising.

J. W. McMurry, Esq., of Fish Springs, informs us that he is about to engage in experimental pisciculture—an important enterprise, and one to which we have frequently made reference. About two dozen small trout were taken in Kern river and transported to his place, where they will be placed in large tanks or reservoirs prepared for the purpose. There is little doubt of the ultimate success of the venture, and it is to be hoped that others, located convenient to the mountain streams, will also go into the business.

The Black Rock Saw Mill.

By reference to a notice elsewhere it will be seen that Jas. W. Smith is now the sole proprietor of the Black Rock Saw Mill property, Chris. Engle having withdrawn. Owing to its convenient location, together with the superior quality of the lumber furnished, this mill is always crowded with orders, but by hook or crook the boys have managed to fill them in due time. Jim Smith, with all his energy and "get up," will have his hands full.

$32,000.

We were yesterday favored with an exhibit, by County Treasurer Isaacs, of certificates of deposit issued by Wells' Fargo & Co., of San Francisco, for $32,000 gold, the proceeds of the sale of the $40,000 Court House and Bridge bonds, at 80 cents. Had the county a fire and burglar proof vault, this plan of depositing in San Francisco would be somewhat objectionable, but under the circumstances the method adopted is undoubtedly the safest and best.

Off for the Fair.

Judge Theron Reed, who has been paying us a short, non-judicial visit, sailed out last Monday for his circuit northward. He is accompanied by P. W. Bennett, and both will spend a few days at the fair in Sacramento. Judge Fox, of Cerro Gordo, ex-Sheriff Elder and Col. Putney have also started out for a trip below.

Rebuilding.

Both of the Cerro Gordo furnaces are shut down for the purpose of being repaired. The Belshaw furnace stopped to patch up a defective boiler, and Beaudry's to repair smoke stack, etc. Both will start up in a very few days.

Rebuilding Commenced.

The rebuilding of Camp Independence is about to commence in earnest, under the supervision of the officers them selves. Four hundred thousand feet of lumber has been ordered from the Black Rock Saw Mill for the purpose.

Cerro Gordo.

The O. L. S. L. Company are taking out large quantities of ore, and their mines are looking splendidly.

Steam Hoisting Works.

The Union Mining Company at Cerro Gordo are now putting in steam hoisting works on their valuable mine.

Not So.

The statement that a Grand Juror at this term "throbbed so" that he couldn't attend to biz, is pronounced a canard.

Stage for Deep Spring.

D. Campbell, Jr., of Big Pine, has commenced running a weekly stage across the Inyo range to Deep Spring

Preaching.

There will be preaching in the school house at this place to-morrow at half past 10 o'clock, A. M.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Board met Thursday, September 12, in adjourned session. Full Board present.

The following proposals for building Court House and bridges as per advertisement, were received and considered:

Firestine & Stecker bid for the Court House $17,650. Same firm for three bridges, $14,500.

Maloon & Son, Court House, $15,250; bridges at $37 per lineal foot for 80 foot span, and $20 per lineal foot for approaches. These proposals were rejected as being mere estimates not in conformity with the advertisement.

J. Alexander, Bend City bridge: Main span $2,400; approaches, $16 per lineal foot. Big Pine bridge, $2,300, main span; approaches, $14 per lineal foot. Lone Pine bridge, main span, $2,650; appreaches, $18 per lineal foot.

E. Chaquette, Lone Pine bridge, main span, $5,000; approaches $12 50 per lineal foot. Bend City bridge, main span, $4,000; approaches, $20 per lineal foot. Big Pine bridge, same as last. Court House, $15,900.

Bids signed by J. Earl for building Court House, $13,850, and all the bridges for $3,750 for each span or truss of 80 feet, and $28 per lineal foot of tressle work.

After due consideration J. Alexander was awarded the contract as per bid for building the three bridges. Bonds fixed at $18,000 and time given until Tuesday next for filing same.

The Board took a vote to decide to whom the Court House contract should be awarded. Hutchinson and Bell voting for E. Chaquette, and Simpson for Maloon & Son as being the lowest bidder. Thereupon the contract was awarded to Chaquette, the bonds being fixed at $20,000, the same to be filed on or before Tuesday next.

Deed from County of Inyo to Thomas Edwards for certain lots acknowledged.

Three months salary of County Clerk, $187 50, ordered paid out of General Fund.

Petition, (the old one with a few additional names) asking for an election to remove the County Seat, presented by J. Alexander.

Mr. Vanderbilt asked and was granted leave to withdraw the bid presented by him in the name of J. Earl.

Returned.

As noted by us two weeks since the M. E. Conference, which assembled in Sierraville, August 15, has returned the Rev. E. H. Orne to this district Mr. Orne with his family and accompanied by a young sister of our popular school teacher, Mr. Hardy, arrived at home the present week and will at once enter upon his regular duties. Mr Orne is continued on trial, as we learn by a copy of the minutes of the Conference which he kindly presented us. Did space permit we should publish the larger portion of these minutes, knowing they would be received with interest by many of readers. We note, among other things, that A. F. Hitchcock was expelled the ministry "for gross and immoral conduct." The next Conference, the ninth annual, will be held at the town of Truckee.

The County Books.

As intimated last week the Grand Jury decided to have the County books overhauled, and accordingly employed David Love of Bishop Creek for the purpose. Dave is equal to almost any knotty question, but says truly enough that to perform this herculean task thoroughly, at least two months work will be required. He has now spent four days at the work and has accomplished enough to make an approximate of the monies received and expended during the administration of Mr. Elder, which report will be handed to and acted on by the Grand Jury to-day. We have used the word "approximate" above for reasons that will appear when the Grand Jury's report is made public.

Rebuilding.

Mr. Jacob Vagt, whose adobe building was destroyed during the great earthquake with such sad results, has been engaged for sometime past in replacing it with a wooden building which, when completed, will be 28 by 40 feet outside dimensions, and as near earthquake proof as nails and timber will make it. Mr. Vagt's vineyard, we may mention, is loaded with fruit, for about a peck of which he will please accept our thanks.

Kearsarge.

A meeting of the creditors of the Kearsarge Company, bankrupt, is called to take place in San Francisco on Monday next. A part of the business to be transacted consists in determining the percentage to be paid upon the proven claims against the company, though we fancy there will be but little left after paying the preferred claims of employees and expenses of the case. Each creditor will be duly notified of the amount to which he is entitled.

Probable Suicide.

We hear that May Merritt, alias the Fenian, in Lone Pine yesterday, took poison with the intention of committing suicide, and at last accounts the unfortunate woman was lying very low, with small prospects of recovery. Comments as to the cause of the "rash act" in this case would be superfluous.

The Celebration.

Great preparations are being made in Lone Pine for the annual Mexican and Chillican celebration, which begins there on Monday next, a large hall having been crected for permanent use on such occasions.

Completed their Labors.

The Grand Jury will to-day complete their labors and adjourned sine die.

REVISED CODE OF MINING LAWS

Of Lone Pine Mining District, henceforth to be Known as Laws and Regulations of Cerro Gordo Mining District.

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States have, in their wisdom, accorded to the miners of the various mining districts throughout the United States the right to provide such laws for the protection and regulation of mining claims and mining property as may seem to them just and equitable and calculated to effect the greatest good to the greatest number:

Therefore, The miners of Cerro Gordo in public meeting assembled do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That this mining district shall be known as the Cerro Gordo Mining District, and bounded as follows: Commencing at a point on the eastern shore of Owens Lake where the Coso trail intersects the Lake, thence due east to Coso Canyon, thence in a northerly direction down said canyon to where it enters Salinas Valley, thence due west into Owens River, thence southerly down said river to its mouth, thence in a southerly direction along the eastern shore of Owens Lake to the point of commencement.

SEC. 2. There shall be elected a mining Recorder who shall be a resident of the District. He shall hold office for one year unless sooner removed by a new election, which must be ordered by a written call, signed at least by fifty claim owners, giving notice of a new election, and which notice shall be posted in at least three public places in the District for twenty days.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the Recorder to keep a book, or set of books, and to record therein a full and truthful report of all public meetings. He shall also place upon record all claims brought to him for that purpose, when such shall not interfere or affect the rights of others. He shall record the same in the order of their date; for which service he shall receive twenty-five cents for each 100 feet recorded. It shall be the duty of the Recorder to keep his books open at all times to the inspection of the public.

SEC. 4. All examinations of the records must be made in the presence of the Recorder or his deputy.

SEC. 5. The Recorder may have power to appoint a deputy to act in his stead for whose official acts he shall be held responsible. It shall also be the duty of the Recorder to deliver to his successor in office all books, records, papers, etc. belonging to or appertaining to his office.

SEC. 6. It is hereby made the duty of the Mining Recorder, upon the written application of twenty-five miners, to call a meeting of the miners of the District, by publishing a notice ten days previous in some newspaper published in Inyo county, which notice shall state the object of the meeting and the place and time of holding the same.

SEC. 7. Any person or persons entitled by the laws of the United States may locate fifteen hundred feet upon any lode, ledge or vein, together with 300 feet on each side (where the same does not affect the rights of others) with all the timber and minerals therein contained. This shall not be construed to mean any distinct or parallel lodes or ledges within the six hundred feet, other than the one originally discovered or located.

SEC. 8. All locations shall be made by a written notice, posted upon the ground and boundaries described, and claimant's name written in full on the notice.

SEC. 9. Every claim, whether by individual or company located, shall be recorded within ten days after the date of location.

SEC. 10. All locators or owners of mining claims in this District, shall place and maintain there a good and substantial monument or stake, at least three feet in hight, together with a notice thereon of the name of the claim, the names of the locators, date of location, record, and extent of claim.

SEC. 11. Any person or company locating a claim shall within the term of ninety days from the date of location, sink a shaft twenty feet in depth on their vein or lode so claimed. And the existence of the vein being ascertained, one of the claim owners shall report the same to the Recorder or his deputy, who shall with one disinterested miner examine said shaft, vein or lode, and if the shaft or amount of work conforms to the regulations of this section, he shall enter the same upon the Record book with a certificate of the same to the owners of said claim or claims, for which service he shall receive two dollars and a half.

SEC. 12. Work done for the purpose of developing a mine, such as running in an open cut or tunnel, shall be considered as work done on the vein or lode. And in such cases the labor of one man being equivalent to four dollars per day, he or they shall expend two hundred dollars, which shall be equivalent to sinking a shaft twenty feet deep, and the Recorder will act as provided in Sec. 11.

SEC. 13. Any person disabled by illness for any length of time, shall not lose his right in consequence of not working his claim during such illness.

SEC. 14. Any person or company claiming a lode or vein in this District, either by location or purchase, who does not within ninety days from the adoption of these laws work or cause the same to be worked shall forfeit his or their right and title to the same.

SEC. 15. If, during the above named days, any person should assert a right to the claim or claims thus neglected, a brief hearing shall be granted him before the Recorder and two disinterested miners, and judgment given for possession in favor of him who best proves his right. However, if such claim be made subsequently to the expiration of the Winter days, the new claimant shall not be heard.

SEC. 16. By a compliance with the laws above mentioned, the claimants right holds good for six months from date of notice.

SEC. 17. A failure to comply with said laws, deprives the claimants of the right to hold a mining claim in this District as against a subsequent claimant who complies therewith.

SEC. 18. The laws heretofore known as those of the Lone Pine Mining District are hereby repealed.

SEC. 19. These laws shall take effect on and after the 4th day of September, 1872.

THOSE COMMISSIONS.

[COMMUNICATED.]

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In your issue of August 31 you take occasion to comment somewhat slightingly, by implication at least, upon the report (or award, rather) submitted by the commission appointed to inquire into the official acts of A. B. Elder, ex-Sheriff and Tax Collector. I am sure you were laboring under a misapprehension of the facts in the case in thus casting blame upon the gentlemen composing the commission. They made the only award possible under the limitations under which their appointment was given. A simple statement of facts will render this clear:

The Board of Supervisors had good reason to believe there was a deficit in the late Tax Collector's accounts with the county of Inyo, and, as in duty bound, were anxious to ascertain its nature and extent. The only practical way of doing this was by the appointment of a Board of Arbitrators, and it was furthermore decided that the Board should consist of members of the legal profession. Mr. T. Laspeyre was appointed on the part of the county and Judge Snelling by Mr. Elder's counsel, Mr. Reddy. The latter gentleman positively refused to correct any errors or defalcations on Mr. Elder's part while acting as Sheriff simply, but held himself pecuniarily responsible for his acts or shortcomings, if any should be ascertained, during the period he (Elder) was the legal Tax Collector of the county. By the terms of the agreement, signed by the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors on the part of the county and Mr. Reddy, Elder's counsel, the arbitrators were to confine their report exclusively to the acts of Elder not as Sheriff, but as Tax Collecter. He was legally Tax Collecter only from and after the date of the filing of his bonds as such, viz: from the 7th of November, 1871, to the date of his resignation of the office of Sheriff. As before stated, the terms of the agreement did not permit these arbitrators to report upon Elder's acts as Sheriff, in which capacity he had, though illegally, acted as Tax Collector for so many months. Their report must be confined strictly to the period when he was the legal Tax Collector, and no other would have been received. The offices of Sheriff and Tax Collector, though exercised by the same indvidual, are separate and distinct, and has been so declared by the Supreme Court of the State, and in accordance with this it is clear that the bond-men of Elder as Sheriff are in no legal sense responsible for the acts of Elder as Tax Collector, and it is equally clear that under the terms of the agreement the arbitrators could make no award or report concerning any defalcations they might discover in the acts of the Sheriff. I make this statement as a simple act of justice to the gentlemen of the commission, who otherwise might be considered as having purposely neglected a very important part of their supposed duty. JUSTICE.

[We give place to the foregoing for the reason stated in the last sentence, but without further explanation or comment we pass the whole matter for the present, and until the pending investigations into the acts of the late Sheriff are ended and reported upon by the Grand Jury.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

The Loss.

The burning of the Pacific Mail steamship America, at Yokahama, involves the loss of treasure, as follows: Bank of California, $535,795 53; London and San Francisco Bank, $368,356 96; Cross & Co., $238,096; James de Eremery & Co., $102,648 15; other shippers, $299,230 86. Total, $1,434,031 50. The money was inclosed in strong iron vaults, or boxes, and as the vessel sank near shore, the prospect is that it will be all recovered, and the companies suffer no loss, excepting the necessary expenditures for salvage. The loss to her owners is estimated at $1,000,000.

Another Bidder.

The Omaha Refining Works has sent an agent, C. B. Ruskin, to Eureka and other base metal districts in Eastern Nevada, for the purpose of making arrangements for the shipment of base bullion to the East. This competition will be a good thing for the Base Metal Rangers.

Another Fight.

The Virginia Chronicle says that another of those outrages upon civilization, a prize fight, is proposed between Chatham and Williams for $5,000—the fight to come off near Virginia City immediately after Greeley is elected President.

VARIETIES.

—A man tried in Dumfries, Scotland, before the Sheriff and a jury, accused of stealing some garments from a farmyard, was defended by a local practitioner with so much success that the jury rendered a verdict of "Not proven." To the surprise of his agent, the prisoner seemed by no means in a hurry to quit the dock after the verdict was rendered. The man of law went up to him, informed him that he had been acquitted, and was at liberty to go away, but still the fellow kept his seat. A second time he was reminded that he was no longer a prisoner, but he remained immovable. At length, as the court was nearly emptied of the people who had been present during the trial, including the witnesses in the case, the prisoner whispered to his counsel: "The fact is, mon, I durst na gang sooner; I have on the pair of trowsers that was stolen."

—Two women lately entered a Pennsylvania bar room, where their their needlegun cocktails, and made the scene quite enjoyable for a few minutes. They broke tumblers, upset tables, rammed their fists through the bottom of a tin pitcher, threw a cat into the cider barrel and put kerosene in the whisky, after which they took their husbands by the nose and led them home. Such is the result of the Sixteenth Amendment.

—A clergyman at Newman, Ga., lately lost his wife, and was almost inconsolable for a time, but suddenly recovered his spirits. He says that his wife now visits him constantly, is visible to his eye, and converses with him. She comes in the night preceeded by heavenly music. "I am neither insane nor superstitious," says he, "yet I would as soon doubt my own existence as the truth and reality of what I say."

—An Illinois editor thus sarcastically speaks of the marriage of a professional brother in Indiana: "He stepped upon the hymenial platform, and adjusted the fatal noose, and was swung off into that unsilent bourne, whence he can never return, save by the Indianapolis and connecting lines."

—An exchange speaks of the house-cleaning season as that time when "divine woman has her way at the house, while the 'old man' takes his solemn repast from the top of a flour barrel, and in sleeping enjoys the interval between the bedroom and the front fence. It is a season of meditation, whitewash and calm, unimpassioned profanity.

—A young lady who let her lids drop on being spoken to tenderly by a young gentleman, is anxious to recover them, and offers a handsome reward for their restoration. A nautical gentleman of her acquaintance assures her that they could not have been properly lashed, or they would not have been lost.

—At Syracuse recently a gentleman was reclining on a lounge, when his little daughter playfully threw a peach stone at him. It lodged in his ear, whence it required a surgical operation to extract it. The moral is obvious. A fellow with ears like that should fold them over the top of his head.

—A fellow in Norwich was bitten by a dog. As soon as he recovered from his fright, he declared he would kill the animal. "But the dog isn't mad," said the owner. "Mad!" shouted the victim exasperatingly, "what in thunder has he got to be mad about?" He evidently misconstrued the explanation.

—A witness, in describing certain events, said "The person I saw at the head of the stairs was a man with one eye named Jacob Wilkins." "What was the name of his other eye?" spitefully asked the opposing counsel. The witness was disgusted at the levity of the audience.

—That was a very tender-hearted man near Pittsburgh, who, on being told that his wife, who had left the house only an hour before, was drowned, and that her body was found a mile or two below, said, "She must have floated down right lively!"

—A plumber had a lad in his employ, and one day having occasion for a piece of zinc, ordered him to get one twelve inches square. "Yes, sir," said Pat, "twelve inches square; but how long?"

—A New York judge has decided that signs and banners across the street are illegal obstructions, as a street is not the mere surface of the earth, but embraces also the light and air above it.

—"My son," said a man of doubtful morals, putting his hand upon the head of a young urchin. "I think Satan has got hold of you." "I think so too!" replied the boy.

—They have an Indian girl at Caughuawaga so beautiful that every man who catches a glimpse of her face is at once smitten with the wildest love.

—A female shop-lifter, seventy-two years old, has just been released from Sing Sing. She intends to make an honest tuck and begin life anew.

—A much needed contrivance has been invented by a Cincinnati mechanic, by which cars may be coupled without the necessity of going between them.

—Barnum's gorilla was heard to remark recently, that "he'd be blamed if he'd wear a hair overcoat much longer this hot weather for $10 a week."

"Can you change a $2 bill?" said an impecunious drinker to the bartender. "Yes." "Well, when I get a $2 bill I'll bring it in."

—The first locomotive ever constructed in Nova Scotia has recently been sent to the Inter-Colonial Railway.

—A power of evil—A power of attorney.

—A Massachusetts woman warns all young girls through the columns of her daily paper, to avoid trusting her husband, as he has proven himself a dangerous man.

Eclipse Gold Mining Company.

[From The London Mining Journal.]

The following is a report from Capt. John Tamblyn, who has recently returned from the mines:

SIR:—You will confer a favor on me by inserting the following remarks in your valuable journal. Having just returned from California, I find on reading the reports of Mr. Jones, who is now the manager of the Eclipse Gold Mine, that through misrepresentation he has tried to injure the good name of the late manager (Mr. Henry Tregellas), who has been called away by Him who giveth life and taketh it again. I am well acquainted with the Eclipse Mine, and the way it was managed under the supervision of Mr. Tregellas, being the mining captain from the time he (Mr. Tregellas) took the management up to the time of his death. I was hired by him at San Francisco to go as mining captain to the Eclipse mine, and went in company with himself and Capt. H. D. Scoones, the clerk of the mine, where we arrived January 1, 1871. The Eclipse Mine is located on the western slope of the Inyo mountain range. About 3½ miles from Owens River, Owens Valley, near this river, stands the Eclipse Mill.

Remarks of Mr. Jones on the property: "I have," said he, in his report of May 8, "briefly recapitulated the principal features of this property, and beg to say the entire management here has been of the most extravagant and non-practical description I have ever met with during my mining experience of 40 years." I think Mr. Jones would have done well to point out the extravagance, knowing there has been more than one manager there since the mine started. When the late manager (Mr. Tregellas) went to the Eclipse mine, January 1, 1871, he found the parties then in charge erecting an atmospheric mill; that mill proved a failure. I know that everything was done that could be done to make it a success, but it was impossible; it could not be worked to a profit in Owens Valley. Mr. Jones might have made reference to this when he spoke of extravagance; if so, it cannot be laid to the late manager. The atmospheric mill proving a failure, a new mill was wanted, and accordingly built. This new mill is worked by water-power, a ditch being dug for five miles in length. This ditch was dug very cheaply, as the books will show. It was let on contract, and I think it would be impossible to get the same amount of work done again in that valley for the same amount of money. I can not see anything extravagant about the ditch.

The mill has 30 stamps, with foundation graded for 15 more, and for which the mortars and timbers are on the ground; and a 12-stamp mill, purchased by the late manager known as the Ida mill, is only a quarter of a mile away. Mr. Jones may call this extravagance but I can not see it. If a 30 stamp mill is wanted a 50 is, for the Eclipse mine will supply a 50-stamp mill as well as a 30.

"The position of the mill is good," said Mr Jones in his report; "but," said he, "I regret to say that the greatest essential to a good mill is wanting here—a good foundation. The foundations have not been excavated to a sufficient depth, the timbers for the foundations having been placed on a pile of sand; a little water, which it is impossible to prevent, has percolated through the foundations, and the consequence is a shaky fabric." By these remarks Mr. Jones would try to make the public believe that this was bad management in the late manager, for he says the foundations have not been excavated to a sufficient depth. No man in Owens Valley, endowed with common sense and good will to men, would make such a remark. Almost every building in Owens Valley has the same kind of foundation. It was impossible to get a better one. We had a proof of this in sinking the shaft for the turbine; that shaft was sunk 20 feet through sandy clay; at the depth of 18 feet water was struck, consequently a better foundation could not be got by sinking deeper.

Blanket concentration, pan grinding and amalgamation have been the principles adopted for the saving of the gold, said Mr Jones. The result has been, he remarks, a great loss of gold from imperfect concentration. No one will deny that, but it could not be avoided; no other man could have done better. The first two runs the weather was fine, and the blankets could be washed often, which was done. From that time up to near the time of the fearful calamity the weather was unfavorable for blanket concentration; for weeks together they were frozen up from 6 o'clock in the evening until noon the next day. But the late manager was careful to save all the sand, which he intended to concentrate with circular buddles. These buddles, which are considered the best machines ever invented for concentrating, would have been working in November last, if the material could have been got; the lumber was ordered in September last, but was not delivered until the following March, nor could it be got sooner.

Mr. Jones may call this extravagance, but I am satisfied had Mr. Tregellas lived to carry out his plans in concentration, and then extracting the gold by chlorine gas, he would have made it a grand success, with little cost. Chlorination has never failed in California, when properly worked. I know what it will do. I have seen it tested by pan process and chlorine gas; the result was that one ton of concentrated sand produced $10 by pan process, and and $60 by chlorine. The concentrated sand at the Eclipse mill is worth $90 per ton per assay. From 90 to 95 per cent. can be extracted by the chlorine process, and it can be put through the whole process for $12 per ton. Taking this into consideration, I see no extravagance on this point.

The tramway: Here again Mr. Jones has shown his prejudice and want of good principles. The length of tramroad from mill to mine when completed will be a little over three miles. Three-fourths of this distance, said Mr. Jones, has been laid in a very loose and imperfect way, and the greater portion of which must be relaid. He might just as well have said that all the houses that fell in the valley during the severe earth shock were built in a very loose and imperfect manner. It would have been a greater credit to Mr. Jones if he had told the truth. I say the tramroad before the earth shock was a good one. To prove this three mules used to draw nine and ten cars at a time to the mill, with one ton to one ton and a quarter in each car. Mr. Jones said that the ores, after leaving the mine, as per present arrangement, required to be handled over four different times. This is nothing new for the public. All who read the late manager's reports are acquainted with this. To obviate this expense a tramroad was graded and laid around the mountain. There were also runners and all the necessary lumber for laying the incline to connect with the road below, but instead of Mr Jones doing this, which would not take more than three weeks, and then convey quartz from mine to mill for 50 cents per ton, he commenced repairing the old incline, which will cost by taking quartz by the old route from $2 50 to $3 per ton, and yet he speaks of extravagance and non-practical management in the late manager.

The mines: When the late manager, Mr. Henry Tregellas, took charge of the Eclipse mine, Haymen's shaft was down to the depth of 220 feet. The tunnel at that depth was 9 feet from shaft, and during his management the shaft was sunk 120 feet, making it 40 feet below the 300 foot tunnel, and which said tunnel was driven from shaft 108 feet, in a lode from 5 to 7 feet in width. The above 220 foot tunnel was driven by him 87 feet in a lode varying from 5 to 7 feet. The 160 foot tunnel was driven from shaft by his predecessors 130 feet. Since then it has been driven 114 feet, making the whole distance from shaft 244 feet. The 100 foot tunnel has been driven from shaft 75 feet. This was done before the present company purchased the mine. I find in Mr. Jones' report that the whole of the ground between and above those tunnels is said to have been stoped away. This I cannot understand. It must be a great mistake, if not something worse, and I am almost led to believe the latter. About 300 tons of quartz have been taken away from the stopes in the back of the 300 foot tunnel, and there are still thousands of tons of good quartz standing between this tunnel and that above ready to be taken away, in fact enough to supply the present mill from six to twelve months.

From the 220 to the 160 tunnel not more than 100 tons have been taken away; here, again, are thousands of tons of quartz that ought to pay well in the mill. From the 160 to 100 foot tunnel there have been about 150 tons taken, 50 tons in the last working and about 100 since the water mill started. In the back of this 160 foot tunnel there is a good lode standing, from 70 to 80 feet in length, and as the mountain rises going north, there must be from 200 to 300 feet of backstanding; so that it will be seen the mine's reserves consist in thousands of tons of good milling rock, sufficient to supply the present mill for years without opening up any new ground. What Mr. Jones meant by saying on May 8 that the whole of the ground between and above those tunnels had been stoped away I cannot tell. One thing I can say, it was a false statement, and a proof of which he has himself supplied us with, as in his report of June 15 he says the mine is of a cheering character, and the stopes looking well. How could these stopes have been opened up if he had not found them in existence, as in the same report he acknowledges the fact that up to that time he had not employed a single man in extending the tunnels, but should, he said, resume the driving of them on the following Monday? Even had he done so the work accomplished in so short a time would have been too little to open up any available fresh stopes, as all who are acquainted with mining ground must well know. I can not account for Mr. Jones' statement in May otherwise than by supposing he allowed his prejudice to overcome his better judgment.

Silver: A tunnel has been driven thirty feet through good silver rock. I can not tell how extensive this rock is, but it opened out well, and was looking well when I left. This tunnel is driven south of Haymen's shaft, between the 160 and 220 foot tunnels. Besides this there is silver in many other points of the mine. At the 220 foot tunnel there is, or was when I left, a branch of silver ore from 6 to 18 inches in width, and over fifty feet in length; also from the 100 foot level many tons of silver ore have been taken away, and I have no doubt when the tunnels are extended, and the mine more extensively opened, greater returns of silver will be realized than many look for; for it must be remembered that the Eclipse mine is in the Inyo range, and which is celebrated as a silver bearing district. There were at the furnace when I left about 150 tons of silver ore, worth, as per Mr. Polkinghorne's assays, $138 per ton; but a superior person, and one who has proved himself to be a first class assayer, in San Francisco informed me it is worth more than that. If nothing had happened by the time they had worked the ores at the furnace into bullion, just as many tons would again be in readiness; and if the silver continued as it did while working on it, and there were no indications of its failing, it would be kept on at the same rate.

Mr. Henry Haymen, who is the chairman of the board of directors, in his report to the shareholders at their general meeting, after his return from California, said: "With regard to the silver, all I can say is I can not understand how the telegram or the letters confirming the telegram, ever came to be sent to the company." He goes on to say: "The amount of silver ore at surface when I visited the mines certainly would not justify, as far as I was able to see, any such telegrams." Mr. Haymen might just as well have said that he could not see anything that would justify building the mills, as, if Mr. Jones' word is to be relied on, Mr. Haymen never saw the Eclipse mine. I saw Mr. Haymen and Mr Jones on their way to the Eclipse mill, and was at the town of Independence on their return, when Mr. Jones told me that he (Mr. Haymen) did not go to the mine. It must be remembered that the Eclipse mill and furnace are over three miles from the mine, and the public will judge if Mr. Haymen should not have visited the mine and satisfied himself as to its for resources for silver, before condemning the sending of the afore mentioned telegram. Mr. Jones also, in respect to silver, said in his report of 8th May: "A roasting and blast furnace has been partially erected, but I fear they will not be much wanted, as I cannot find much silver ore here, and the little that is here is principally chloride, which is much better milled and amalgamated." Since then he has reported: "We have completed the blast furnace for smelting the argentiferous ores." Now, if there were very little silver ore to be found there, and that little better for the mill than the furnace, why go to the expense in erecting the furnace? The only conclusion I can come to is that Mr. Jones in his first report tried to condemn everything the late manager advanced. The turbine then erecting as a motive power for driving the fan blast was condemned, and therefore removed, and a new over-shot wheel is now being built for that purpose. I hesitate not to say Mr. Jones does not possess a good knowledge of the power of turbines, and one is almost led to wonder why he did not also condemn the one which most admirably drives the stamping mill. Whatever Mr. Jones or any other man may say about the extravagance and non-practical management of the late superintendent, there are many prominent citizens in Owens Valley, who have had many years experience in gold and silver mines in that country, can testify with me to the truth, that Mr. Tregellas, the late manager at the Eclipse mine, was a man of extraordinary ability, a good mining engineer, and an honest, hard-working man, one who knew how to, and did, put every dollar to the furthest for the company's benefit.

I have not seen any returns from the last clean up, a few days after the earth shock. In Capt. Scoones' letter, dated March 29, I find that a small amount of amalgam was procured with other valuables. This small amount was really 25 pounds of amalgam, and was delivered to Capt. Scoones, who, in turn, delivered it to Mr. Polkinghorne to be retorted and melted, which should have yielded at least 50 ounces of bullion, worth from $7 to $8 per ounce.

In conclusion, I beg to say, as I have always said, the Eclipse mine is a good one, and with proper treatment of the ores and good management it is my decided opinion that it can be made one of the best paying mines on the Pacific Coast. JOHN TAMBLYN.

Maloon & Son's Bid.

Various opinions have been expressed in regard to the correctness of the action of the Board in reference to Maloon & Son's bid on the bridges. We can only briefly refer to the main points: In the purported proposals the word "estimate" was used in place of "propose," leaving its meaning so ambiguous that if the bidders themselves had not have been on hand to explain its intent and also to declare their willingness to amend by substituting the proper word, it of course could not have been received as a legitimate bid. Supervisor Simpson held that as this was a mere preliminary, the binding obligation depending wholly upon the terms of the contract to be subsequently drawn up and supported by good and sufficient bonds, and that as the parties stood ready to perform their part in this they should have the award. The majority took the opposite view and decided to reject the bid. After Alexander failed to fill his bonds on his bid, the question came up the second time --Maloon & Son's being then the lowest standing bid. Twenty days were asked to file the final bonds, though a temporary one was presented as a guarantee that the final ones would be forthcoming in due time. This, of itself, was a legal cause for the rejection of the bid, as the terms asked for was more than could be granted. Considered in this light alone the majority were correct in their action, but in the other matter we think Mr. Simpson was in the right and that the bid should not have been rejected on that point. We are sorry that this bid had to be rejected for two reasons: First, because the bidders were strangers and secondly, because its acceptance would have saved several thousand dollars in the work. The award was finally made to E. Chaquette who gives bonds in the sum of $25,000 to complete the work. In order that this matter may be better understood we will add that in substance these words were used: "We estimate the cost of your work as per plans," etc., while in a different form another proposition was submitted in these words: "We propose to build you bridges on the plan of the Smith Truss pattern for" so and so. Plans of a different kind being already adopted of course this last could not be entertained though the cheapest and possibly the best.

The Grand Jury's Report

Will be found in full in another column. Circumstances imperatively prohibit an extended notice at this time. We can only say that this jury have done themselves credit in their endeavor to do their whole duty, but owing to the incompetency as it appears of their legal adviser their efforts are bootless, except as to the moral effect following such a determined, though costly, attempt to comply with the letter of the law as well as public desire. We are pained to have to state the fact, in consideration of our kindly feelings towards the District Attorney, but it appears from his bungling manner of drawing up the indictments found, every one of them, thirteen in number, have been quashed almost on sight, and in consequence of this manifest unfitness for his responsible position one of his bondsmen felt impelled to withdraw as such. To some parts in this report we shall probably refer next week.

Important Mail.

We notice that a contract has been let for carrying the mail from Austin to Lida. This means business. The Austin people, by their energy, public spirit, and perseverance, have succeeded in getting a route established over a desert country, a distance of over two hundred miles, and not a station on the way; while the business men and farmers of Owens Valley have been waiting for something to turn up, not so much as providing a crossing at Big Pine and getting a mail route of sixty miles. Result: the Austin people have turned up this something, but to their own account.

Indignation Meeting.

Passing events and apparent facts may appear to be a suitable provocation for another ebullition of the chronic indignants of Lone Pine. If so and they are short of a competent presiding officer we would recommend the great Bishop Creeker, Garrettson. He would be pleased to preside over the carcass of a dead mule, if nothing better offered, so long as the birds of carrion around would do him reverence.

THAT PETITION AND WHAT BECAME OF IT.

On Friday last our Honorable Board of Supervisors were again refreshed with a sight of the regular old petition from "citizens of Inyo county," asking, indirectly, however, that the town of Lone Pine shall be made the capital of said county. Owing to a press of other matters the petition was not taken up until the next morning. P. Reddy, Esq., appeared as the advocate of the rights of the people, not of the town of Independence only, but of the whole county, and for the able manner in which he sustained his views as set forth in the course of a two hours' speech, together with the fact that he undertook the whole thing solely on his own responsibility and not as a paid counsel, he done himself infinite credit. He objected to the admission of this particular petition:--First. Because it was identically the same formerly presented, and having once been presented and fulfilled the purpose intended by the original signers it should not as a legal right nor in justice to those signers be brought forward and again presented as a true expression of their wishes. It was a violation of an implied if not a direct compact to again use their names in this way; for it good now, such a petition would be equally good ten years hence.

Secondly, He proved by sworn testimony that the said petition was a fraud on its face, inasmuch as many names appeared upon it wholly without the knowledge or consent of the individuals they represented. Several persons whose names thus appeared came forward and swore that they never had so much as seen the petition, much less to sign it.

Thirdly, That a number of the signers whose names were probably forged were not now nor never had been citizens of this county, while others, since signing the original petition had died or left the country with the avowed intention of never returning, and in consequence ordered their names canceled upon the Great Register of the county, and of course had or claimed no right to a voice in the county affairs. He proved by the written evidence before him that so anxious were the manipulators of this scheme for the aggrandizement of a few individuals, that they had even gone so far as to include the names of females and of duplicating others in the hope, doubtless, that the honorable Board were too ignorant to detect the cheat! A large number of the names were also written by the same person without any evidence to show that it was done by the consent of the owners; others were signed without initials or in such an illegible manner as to lead to the belief that the parties doing it were ashamed of the business they were engaged in. He further showed that from the very wording of the petition itself it was a fraud--a false pretense, designed to impose upon those not fully conversant with the past history of the county. It did not ask for the removal of the county seat from its present location to Lone Pine or elsewhere, but merely for an election to locate it, carrying the impression that no legal location had ever been made, and totally ignoring the fact, susceptible of proof if any one questions it, that the present is the legal and rightful location from and by an act of the Legislature and a vote of the people of Inyo county. The said petition was a lie on its face, based on the flimsy pretext that because the Supervisors had entertained a proposition to abandon the old site on the main street of the town of Independence for another but a short distance removed in the same town, that therefore that no legal location of the county seat had ever been made. Under the specious pretext that this important matter of definitely and legally locating the county seat before any more expense was incurred in county buildings many individuals were induced to sign this document who otherwise would not have done so under any circumstances. In proof of this he produced the withdrawal of a number of the signers of the original petition who had been mislead on this point and who declared they had no desire to effect a removal, and should in no case vote for it if it came to that useless and expensive test. He further charged that the most active instigator of this swindle upon his neighbors was one J. L. Garrettson of Bishop Creek who circulated and actively worked for this petition and had procured many of his friends to sign by wilful misrepresentation of its aim and intent, viz:--That the said petition was not designed to effect a removal of the county seat to Lone Pine, nor be presented to induce the ordering of an election even, but merely intended as a scarecrow to compel the business men, particularly one firm of Independence, to come out with a six or ten thousand bonus towards putting up the new Court House. Incidentally, he went further and showed up this man Garrettson in no enviable light and proved to our satisfaction, whatever his neighbors, whom he is trying to deceive, may think, that he is either a knave or a fool, or a tincture of both. That, fearful that his great importance might not be duly appreciated he, as well as some others, had each signed this petition twice. That whether on his own responsibility solely or which is more likely, as the tool of others, he had entered into a collusion with certain parties in the other end of the county to perpetrate this fraud upon his neighbors and the public generally. We shall take occasion to refer to some of his doings and sophistries of Mr. Garrettson elsewhere in this issue and hereafter also.

In the foregoing we have merely attempted an outline of Mr. Reddy's arguments and the facts as presented, and of necessity have to leave many things connected therewith that would be of interest did space permit their reproduction. We have no reason to assume that the Board would have admitted this petition in any case, for it would appear that there was enough to condemn it without Mr. Reddy's expose, but with it it is needless to say that the petition was rejected without the necessity of counting the legitimate names it appeared to bear. We do not suppose, however, that its signers, especially this Garrettson, will permit this thing to pass without another effort, and knowing now what they will do in order to effect their desired object we propose to devote a few words in another column and in subsequent issues, on the merits of the case, as we are determined that so far as lies in our power this thing shall not be carried by deception. We take this occasion to say emphatically once and for all time that we do not wish to deprive the people of Lone Pine from pressing their claims, nor do we nor the people of this place entertain the slightest ill feeling towards them for doing so in a legitimate and proper manner, but when parties elsewhere offer aid and comfort to the undeniable injury of their own section as well as ourselves and the entire county, whether they are actuated by petty malice or force of money it matters not, we do have some feeling on the subject and intend to make that feeling manifest, at least, until these men can show one good and substantial reason for their action. Mr. Garrettson nor none of his kind shall be permitted to quietly inflict an injury of this character upon an entire community through underhand means or otherwise merely to vent his spleen upon individuals, not if we can help it. Not much.

THE REASONS FOR IT.

As it is pretty evident that the county seat question is "not dead but sleepeth" merely we propose to devote a little space to its consideration. As the decision of the matter rests mainly, if not wholly, with the citizens of Bishop Creek, we present these remarks for their consideration.

Viewing things as they now are, no argument or presentment of facts is needed to convince the most obtuse that the contemplated removal of the county seat must inevitably result in the great disadvantage of every man, without exception, living north of its present location. It is easy to demonstrate by facts and figures that the extra expense that this change would entail upon such a large proportion of our citizens in money and time, to say nothing of the labor, would soon amount to a sum equal to their present taxation. Yet there are some who appear to think that the simple privilege of going 18 or 20 miles further to reach the Court House must in some indefinite way tend toward a reduction of this burden of which they complain. We have tried repeatedly and in vain to elicit one single substantial reason for this insane financial self-abnegation on the part of these individuals. Not a living man has advanced or can name any semblance of such a reason. It is easy enough to understand why Lone Pine should desire this change, but totally beyond our comprehension why Bishop Creek is desirous of tendering it. No one, not even Alexander or Garrettson, with all their underhanded operations, says it is to the interest or desire of the majority. Do the citizens of Swansea and Cerro Gordo, who hold the same relation to the lower end of the county that Bishop Creek does to the northern, ever ask this thing? Not a bit of it. On the contrary, we know of our own personal knowledge that some of the principal business men there are dead opposed to it, and will not support it under any circumstances, and we have good reason to believe that such is the feeling of a very large majority of both of those localities. If it is not to divide advantages with those people who do not ask anything of the sort then in whose interest is it done? We will tell you. It is to aid and comfort a few individuals in the town of Lone Pine, the active manipulators of this fraud, and some of whom are the very men who have done, and are this day doing, more to ruin the fair fame and financial standing of this county than any other men that was ever in it. It was to compass their selfish ends that the Inyo county bonds fell dead on the market and necessitated the rightful expenditure of $2,050 to turn them into the much needed cash upon any terms. We charge this result directly to these men, and yet they now come forward and enjoin the payment of this money and entail an expensive lawsuit upon the county without a hope of winning it. They file a protest against the letting of bridge contracts and thereby attempt to delay the construction of these imperatively needed structures and entail more expense. They file another absurd protest against the action of the Board in reference to that fraud of a petition. And what is all this done for? Certainly not in the hope of sustaining a single one of these actions, but in the mere expectation of attaching odium to the town of Independence to her prejudice in this fight. These are the parties who are to receive a benefit at the expense of the entire people.

Do the people of Bishop Creek propose to sacrifice their own interests and rights merely to please such men as these, for at the utmost stretch they cannot sustain their claim on any other ground than purely personal preferences? Admitting that the people of Independence are thieves and tricksters and that the transaction of the public business cannot be safely carried on in their midst—that this place is responsible for the alleged maladministration of public affairs (which allegation we take this occasion to deny most emphatically)—admitting all this and any other mean charge, how long would it be till the same difficulties would be encountered in the new locality? Not long, we apprehend, if the future can be prognosticated by certain operations of the past.

But we deny all this; we deny that this place any more than Lone Pine or Cerro Gordo is responsible for the fact that Bishop Creek has but one official upon the county calender—that she is responsible for the assumed slights upon the upper end of the county—that she has ever asked or received an undue, or even a legitimate, share of county offices—for the acts, whether good or bad, of the county officials—for the earthquake, or the "Inyo County Relief Committee," or Col. Whipple, or C. D. Begole, J. Alexander or J. L. Garrettson and our consequent low standing abroad—for the high rates of taxation—for the frequent calls for jurors to try criminals from other places—we deny each and all of these allegations, and can sustain the denial by all necessary proof. Perhaps some one may think we are overdrawing this thing in assuming that such responsibilities are charged to influence votes and opinions? Except one or two points, perhaps, we do nothing of the kind. We might go still further and name more absurd arguments (?) than even these that are being used by Mr. Garrettson, for instance, to deceive and injure his neighbors through this movement. He appears to be desirous to vent his spite in some manner, though in doing so he may reduce Inyo county to dismemberment and as near bankruptcy as he assisted to do for Mono. And the beauty of the whole thing seems to be that in carrying out his grand scheme, (which, when fully understood will be seen to be the most chimerical that even this great man ever advanced), he has entered into a sort of a compact with some of the reliable Lone Piners in which it is understood that if he will now do what he can towards selling out his own section in regard to the county seat, they will hereafter do the same in regard to their own by dismembering the county for the purpose of creating a new one or re-attaching Bishop Creek to Mono. What gives this arrangement such a plausible and sensible air is the apparent fact that he places any reliance in the promises of these men, or to suppose that if even they tried to make them good as individuals that they could control enough of other citizens in any part of the county to compass their nefarious object of making a poor county still poorer by dismembering it; or to suppose that such a scheme can be accomplised at all. Does he suppose that the people in any part of this county will consent to such a thing when the only gain would be the personal aggrandisement of a very few individuals so far as the advantage of the county capital business would tend to that result? That is all there is in this whole thing. It is not to satisfy a general desiire. Everybody in the county knows full well that the present county seat is as near the center of population as it is possible to put it, and it is no less certain that on a square vote, according to locality strictly, the question of removal would be negatived by a considerable majority. This is why these schemers make Bishop Creek the battle ground, and by appealing to his pique and vanity have set Mr. Garrettson to work in an attempt to sell out his own locality. His ostensible object, as outlined above, looks so extremely foolish and visionary considering the time required to accomplish it which, at his age would be so great that he would be compelled to receive his reward in the next world, (in just which portion we don't undertake to say), that we are forced to conclude that the said Garrettson has secured a portion of his remuneration in advance. If he has not he knows less than we have supposed.

—A thorn in the bush is worth two in the hand.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

TO THE HONORABLE COUNTY COURT OF INYO COUNTY AND STATE OF CALIFORNIA:—The Grand Jury impanneled on the second day of September A. D. 1872, beg leave to present the following report:

We have employed D. Love and through his assistance have made an examination of the public records, a report of which is hereunto appended.

We have received a statement of the County Physician, which is hereunto appended and made a part of this report.

The County Jail has been examined by us, and but one prisoner was found therein. His statement to us was that the Sheriff treated him well. The jail is certainly very warm and unhealthy, although clean. We are satisfied that, under existing circumstances, it is impossible to do any better at present.

We have found eleven (11) true bills of indictment, and two (2) presentments. Four charges were ignored.

We recommend that the Board of Supervisors will make an appropriation for the establishment of a County Hospital, to be located some place near the county seat of Inyo county. That we believe from the report of the County Physician hereto appended that it would be more economical for the county than the present system.

	$112.50

[Medical attendance charges cannot now be estimate.]

I have the honor to state that, since the earthquake, I have thought it best to remove the county patients from the hospital at Camp Independence (adobe building in ruins), to a frame building, three miles above Camp on the road to Fish Springs, where the water is good; and they are cared for by a citizen I hire to cook for and attend upon them.

In my last report I named $198 as due for board of indigent sick, as "outstanding;" the present report is made at a shorter interval after a settlement, and leaves "due for board," to date, $112.50.

The prostration of business this year has increased sick charges on the county—the bills for similar periods last year were:

Feb. to May 1, 1871, board, lodging and nursing	$244
Feb. to May 1, 1871, Medical attendance, medicines and liquors	225
	$469
May 1 to Aug. 7, 1871, board, lodging and nursing	$142
May 1 to Aug. 7, 1871, Medical attendance and medicines	110
	$252

Feb. 5 to Aug. 8, 1871. Total expense for county sick $711

Beginning with February 5 last, a higher charge for board was made, a change I found necessary in justice to myself; the present charge of $1.50 per diem for board and lodging includes nursing, except in extraordinary cases, such as insanity, delirium, capital injuries or operations, and the Supervisors have agreed to pay not to exceed $1 per diem for medical and surgical attendance.

There are, at present, three sick men under treatment as county charges. One of them, James Mallon, is a chronic case and unfavorably affected by our light and dry atmosphere. I intend to suggest to the Supervisors the propriety of trying to return him to his old home, near Memphis, Tenn.

Very respectfully submitted,

C. B. WHITE, M. D.,
County Physician.

HON GRAND JURY OF INYO CO., CAL.—GENTLEMEN: With your instructions we have gone through the public records of Inyo county as thoroughly as we possibly could do in the short space of four days.

Two or three months would be required to make a thorough investigation of said books in order to show the exact condition of the county finances. And then it could only be approximated, for the reason that many witnesses who ought to be examined have left the county and State, as appears by marginal notes on the duplicate assessment rolls for the years 1870 and 1871. One case will be sufficient to illustrate this point: On the delinquent list for the year 1871, A. Terrill is marked delinquent, and from the best evidence we can get he paid his taxes at the time he was assessed. If he did not pay his taxes at that time the inference must remain that he did, because the law presumes that every officer strictly performs his duty; and in the case above cited the taxes ($58.95) are unsupported by real estate, and should have been collected at the time of the assessment, according to law. The above is only one instance of many which appear on the delinquent lists of 1870 and 1871. Here, then, lies the prominent and potent reasons why it is almost impossible to balance the different officers' books and strike a balance sheet showing how much money should be on hand.

We find also that in the two delinquent lists to which we have here referred that the total amount of delinquent taxes due and owing to Inyo county on personal property unsupported by real estate, amounts to the sum of $923.52. This, if not collected at the time of the assessment, is properly a charge against the Collector and his sureties.

We also find that the delinquent lists for the years 1870 and 1871 are illegal and void in many respects.

1st. There is no heading or caption to show that they are the delinquent lists of Inyo county, Mono or Kern, or any county at all.

2. In many places no heading is used to show what property is charged.

3. No dollar marks are used as required by law.

4. In many places it is marked paid in the margin without giving any date of the payment, or stating to whom paid.

5. In the column marked "Total Taxes" there is no addition of Poll Tax or School Tax or Dog Tax, rendering it impossible to determine, without a long and tedious process, whether these taxes have been paid or entirely overlooked.

6. In some instances on the Delinquent List for the year 1871, where the parties are charged with real estate, the marginal note is "Earthquake," without stating whether the real estate had been submerged by that great calamity, or that the Board of Supervisors had humanely remitted their taxes.

The above are a few of the facts at which we have arrived to show that it was almost futile for the District Attorney to bring suits on the Delinquent Lists for the year 1870-71.

The following is the only statement we are able to make in the finances of the county, and it is well to state the mode of arriving at these figures which, of course, for the reasons above stated, are not strictly correct.

We have taken the total amount of revenue from all sources, and from the gross amount for the two years, we have deducted the delinquents; also deducted the percentage on the amount paid in from all sources:

Total amount which should have been derived from all sources for the year 1870-71	$42,536.81
Total amount paid into Treasury	40,581.77
	$1,955.04
Percentage deducted	1,028.14
Balance due Treasury	927.20
Add the amount of personal property not supported by real estate	923.59
	$1,850.79

The above statement is not as clear and succinct as we would desire to make it, but the short time to which we limited ourselves renders it impossible to make a better statement. On examination of the record of the Board of Supervisors of this (Inyo) county, we discovered that no bonds had been filed by the Tax Collector of said county for the years 1870 and 1871 until November 7, 1871. After that date we found no delinquents. The law evidently requires the Tax Collector to give bonds as such Collector separate from the bonds of Sheriff. See case of People vs. Ross, 38th Cal. Reports, page 79. If he were required to give such bonds, as he evidently is, the people should know where the responsibility lies. We are not required to give any legal opinion, but if the Tax Collector was not responsible, then we find that the District Attorney and Board of Supervisors for said county during the years 1870 and 1871 were derelict in their duty, and if they were an investigation will show it, and they ought to be held on their bonds.

We also find that on the 18th day of June, 1872, the following bill was allowed:

JUNE 18TH, 1872.

Inyo County, To Harris & Rhine.

May 15. To cash advanced to Jacobs & Harrison, revision of bonds	$25.00
To cash advanced for lithographing bonds	90.00
Express freight on same	5.25
Copy of Bond Act	13.50
	$133.75

$133.75 coin in scrip @ 70 cents on dollar on General Fund $191.07

Indorsed as follows:

Supervisors
Bill of Harris & Rhine.

Filed June 18th, 1872.

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

Allowed, payable out of the General Fund.

(Signed) T. K. HUTCHISON, President.

The above account we find allowed as stated, although not verified as required by law.

We also find that in the above bill for the sum of $133.75, $191.07 was allowed.

We also find the following bill of Nathan Rhine (one of the firm of Harris & Rhine) filed and allowed by the Board of Supervisors of said county on the 7th day of August, 1872:

INDEPENDENCE, August 6, 1872.

Inyo County, State of California,
To NATHAN RHINE, Dr.

To drawing designs of bonds to be issued by Inyo county, and to making contract with lithographer and printer for executing same	$1,000.00
Expenses for two trips to San Francisco	1,050.00

(Signed) NATHAN RHINE.

The proper jurat is to this bill.

Indorsed—

Filed August 7th, 1872.

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

Allowed, payable out of General Fund.

T. K. HUTCHISON, President.

The above bills may be for two separate and distinct accounts for services rendered to Inyo county, but there is no record to show that the two bills are not for the same service. For instance, the following order appears on the record of the Board of Supervisors, for August 7, 1872:

"Ordered, that the bonds of Inyo county, sold on the 17th day of June, A. D. 1872, to Nathan Rhine, Esq., be and are hereby issued as follows, to wit:"

Here follows a list of bonds issued to Nathan Rhine, Esq., to the amount of $32,000.

There is a close connection between the above order, or rather the statement there made in regard to the time said bonds were lithographed, to-wit: May 15, 1872, and the date of sale as per above order, to-wit: June 17, 1872. The first bill above referred to ($191.07) appears to be a personal commensation, and is evidently a correct bill, but why it is again charged for lithographing and printing on the 6th day of August 1872 $1,000, needs some explanation.

There is also charged on second bill the sum of $1,050 for expenses for two trips to San Francisco.

If Mr. Rhine purchased the bonds of Inyo county, and the record shows that he did, and that they are in his name, then we find that after deducting the first bill ($191.07) which is correct, then we find that the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Inyo county have given Mr. Nathan Rhine a bonus of $1,758.93 for purchasing said bonds at the lowest figure which the law allows.

In conclusion allow us to say that for the above statement of facts we are much indebted to the County Clerk, who has shown a laudable desire to assist us all he had the leisure to do. It has been a time when he has been much crowded with business, and we have not had a chance to make that thorough examination of his books which we desired, but from what we did examine in the office we are satisfied that the accounts are kept in a business like manner.

We have been able to make a more thorough examination of the Treasurer's books. The Treasurer, Mr. H. M. Isaacs, has treated every one on this investigation, in the politest and most courteous manner, and his books showing all the different funds belonging to the county, may be considered a model of perfection.

To the Hon. District Attorney and to your Hon. Body we return our thanks for the great assistance you have rendered us. All which is most respectfully submitted this 13th day of September, A. D. 1872.

JOSEPH W. INMAN,
Foreman.

Telescope District.

Parties who have recently been out examing the mines of Telescope District give the most favorable reports of their richness and extent, and we are gratified to know that something of importance is likely to transpire in the way of their development. The district is situated on a spur of the Panamint range of mountains, which border Death Valley on the west. It is about 115 miles south east from Lone Pine, and 50 in a direct line, over a perfect natural road, from Cayote Holes, on the Los Angeles road. The mines were located some three years since, by Fuller, Ingram, Wofford and Milligan, but are now controled by Mr. W. H. Creighton. The ores are of the same general character as those of Cerro Gordo, including lead and silver—assays from the only one opened to any extent—the Gunsight—give $626 silver and $247 gold. Immediately surrounding the mines is a vast body of pinyon timber, while there is water in sufficient quantity for all ordinary uses. It is said that the ore is of the best character for easy smelting, exist in every variety, and are contiguous to all necessary adjuncts for reduction, including that of a superior article of fire-clay.

Fire.

About 4 o'clock on the evening of the 14th instant, the large wooden building belonging to George Shedd, at Fish Springs, was discovered to be on fire, and in a few moments was entirely destroyed. The house was used as a storeroom and lodging place—the loss, including contents, not being less than $300. Our correspondent concludes a report of the affair as follows: Fire Marshal McM. was immediately on hand, his loud orders being heard above the din of the roaring flames. It was thought at one time that the entire city would perish, but thanks to the timely arrival of the fire department (two pails of water and a blanket), under command of Foreman James D., the fire was confined to the original building. In the confusion, a young lady attempted to cross the creek, but missed her footing and fell into the stream. She was immediately fished out by a noble Piute, who bathed her head in coal oil. Mr James D. and the hostler of the stage line were badly burned, but by skillful nursing they are expected to recover.

Good Yield.

We are always pleased to chronicle any fact, however trivial, tending to show the real capacity of our lands for the production of good crops. People in general hardly realize its value in this respect. In point of fact, the average yield of staple crops, taking one year with another, is rarely excelled by any portion of the coast, and taking into consideration the advanced prices they always command, our farmers have good reason to congratulate themselves on the advantages they possess. As an instance in point respecting the yield, we may mention that the growing corn on I. W. Clanton's place, George's Creek, stands much of it, fully eighteen feet high, many of the stalks producing two good ears each, and from 135 pounds of seed sown on the same place 2,500 pounds of clean oats were produced after considerable of it had been allowed to go to waste by being allowed to stand after it was ready to cut.

Mining Cave.

A correspondent at Fish Springs gives the following report of a cave which occurred in one of the mines of that district, on the 15th instant:—As the men were coming up out of the mine to-day for dinner they started to follow one of the cars, which was loaded with a ton of dirt, when the rope broke; the car began to descend at a fearful rate—one of the men having presence of mind enough, placed a stone upon the track, which threw the car off, knocking the walls down and completely burying the miners alive. On the cook going to call them for dinner, he discovered the situation, and summoning help soon succeeded in extricating them from their perilous position, more scared than hurt.

Shooting at Lida.

Fred Shafer, while on a drunk during the night of the 9th inst., at Lida, attempted to force his way through the door of a restaurant, owned and kept by G. Eckler. He, not seeing the propriety of having his door forced open, sent a six shooter ball in search of the intruder, which passing through the door struck the middle finger and badly shattered the bones of the hand, and may cause the loss of the whole or part of the hand.

Married.

By a notice (which by some means has been mislaid), received this week we learn that S. W. Blasdel and Miss Lucinda Shuey, both formerly of this county, were lately married at the residence of the bride's father, in Hayward's, Alameda county. Success and long life to the estimable couple.

Crowded Out.

Owing to an unusual press of local matter, such as it is, all the outside news as well as some home affairs, including a new advertisement or two, are of necessity crowded out.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Saturday, September 14th, 1872—Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Petition asking for an election to locate the County Seat, taken up and considered at length, and in detail, P. Reddy appeared as volunteer advocate for the people opposed to the intent of the petition. [The main points of Mr. Reddy's argument, together with the testimony taken and all other matters connected with the consideration of the petition, are spread upon the minutes in detail, but as we have given the substance an other place in this issue we shall not repeat them here, except to touch upon some points not mentioned there.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.] Mr. J. Alexander appeared in behalf of the petitioners and asserted that it was fairly and honestly gotten up; that it contained the required number of names of legal voters, and if on examination the contrary appeared he was willing and intended to let the matter rest without further prosecution. Knowing that it was right he desired and demanded the Board to grant the prayer of the said petitioners. Supervisors Hutchinson and Bell held that as this identical petition or the greater part thereof had once before been acted upon by this Board, and furthermore, that from testimoy sworn to in presence of this Board and other facts apparent, that it was a fraud and gotten up under a false pretense, and therefore should be rejected. Supervisor Simpson dissented from this view, claiming that it should not be rejected if it proposed the requisite number of names of legal voters, which could be ascertained by comparison with the Great Register. By a majority vote the petition was rejected.

September 16th—Petition of certain citizens of the town of Independence praying the erection of a bridge across the creek in said town was rejected.

September 17th—Report of Road Master Cook accepted—Resignation of Road Master Cook tended and accepted.

Report of Road Master McDonough rejected for not showing details of expenditure of funds collected by him.

Report of Arbitrators Lasepeyre and Snelling in the matter of the county against ex-Tax Collector Elder was accepted.

Petition in regard to Swansea and Cerro Gordo toll road laid over till the next regular term.—Board then adjourned till

September 18th—Additional time, viz: from September 16th till 2 o'clock P. M. September 19th, extended to J. Alexander to file bonds as bridge contractor. Board adjourned till September 19th—J. Alexander failing to appear at the appointed time, and it appearing by statement of his counsel, F. K. Miller, Esq., that the said J. Alexander would not give the required bonds. By motion of Supervisor Simpson the award to said Alexander was rescinded.

On motion of President Hutchinson the contract was awarded to E. Chaquette in accordance with proposal filed September 18th. Said Chaquette being the next lowest bidder. Motion carried by a majority vote—Supervisor Simpson voting in the negative. Time extended till Friday, September 20th, for Chaquette to file a bond in the sum of $25,000 for the proper fulfillment of his contract. Board adjourned till Friday.

The following bills were allowed:

ON THE GENERAL FUND.

David Love, services to G'd J'y	$ 60 00
C. Mulkey, Sheriff's fees	13 90
" " "	247 20
" " "	75 90
" Guarding prisoner	525 30
" " Jail	82 50
R. L. Peterson, services to Board of Arbitration	10 00
W. C. Snodgrass, D'p. Sheriff	57 50
J. W. Symmes, Sup't. Schools, Salary	169 75
T. J. Noland, office rent	100 00
Dr. W. C. Columber, services at Coroner's inquest	50 00
Chalfant & Parker, C'ty P'ting	293 00
P. Reddy, legal services	100 00

Stage Matters.

Mr. Tooms, the popular stage man, is in town. We understand that an arrangement has been effected between him and Mr. Earl, so that hereafter the latter will take the mails and passengers at Lone Pine both for Cerro Gordo and this place. Mr. Thoms drawing off from these routes. Between the Northern and Southern line together we now have five mails per week. The Southern line being a tri-weekly, as the Northern ought, and we believe soon will be.

Still Lives.

Notwithstanding the fact that their somewhat modest little building, comparatively speaking, is considerably overshadowed by their big neighbor across the street, Rothschild & Co. still keep as good a stock of goods and sell them as cheap as anybody. Call and see 'em at the old stand and see if what we say is not true.

Gone to the Bay.

H. M. Isaacs, County Treasurer, has gone to the Bay on important business connected with the Masonic Lodge of this place, of which he has recently been elected W. M. He will be absent about four weeks, Mr. Rhine meantime acting as Deputy County Treasurer.

Notice to Teamsters.

Tim Lewis offers employment for a large number of teams in hauling lumber from his mill to this place and along the river, a distance of about sixty miles. Some Los Angeles freighters might find it to their advantage to give him a call.

The Best Yet.

J. W. Symmes gave us a number of watermelons which are the largest and best we have yet seen. He attributes their superior flavor to the fact that they were raised without irrigation.

COUNTY COURT.

J. A. Hannah, Judge.

In pursuance of an order made July 8, for the drawing of 30 Grand Jurors, a venire was issued and returned August 31. The following names were called and answered:

J. W. Inman, S. Pinchchower, Geo. Collins, J. N. Newland, J. Shippley, A. P. Hitchcock, G. W. Norton, John Blair, A. M. Copeland, John Lucas, W. G. Squires, A. H. Johnson, Thos. Williams, T. F. A. Connolly, I. P. Rittgers, Thos. Williams and J. B. White. The last two were excused and the others sworn in.

F. Sepulveda, on commitment for horse stealing from M. S. Clark, J. P., to await the action of the Grand Jury, and having no counsel the Court appointed R. B. Snelling, Esq., as counsel for same. On his examination of the Grand Jury, he excepted to John Blair, for opinions expressed, and J. W. Inman was appointed foreman of jury.

Thos. Laspeyre was on this day admitted to the practice of law as attorney and counselor in this Court. No further business was transacted in Court until

Thursday, September 5, when the Grand Jury presented the following indictments:

F. Sepulveda, grand larceny; Frank Debeeny, Frank Dupret, W. T. Davis, Sam. Lee and Jacob Dense for misdemeanors, and bench warrants ordered issued for those not in custody.

On arraignment F. Supelveda plead guilty.

September 6. Jacob Dense plead not guilty to the charge of misdemeanor, and F. Dupret and F. Debeeny, arrested on the same charge, were allowed until Saturday the 7th to enter a plea.

September 7. On motion of P. W. Bennett, Geo. F. Haswell was admitted to practice as an attorney in this Court. W. T. Davis plead guilty to the charge of misdemeanor and give bonds in the sum of $200 to appear for trial September 17. P. Reddy then came into court and asked leave for the last named defendant to withdraw his plea of guilty. Leave granted, and plea of not guilty entered.

The indictments against F. Dupret and F. Debeeny were both set aside, a motion to re-submit to the Grand Jury having been overruled.

P. Reddy, counsel for defendants, moved the Court to enter judgment in favor of defendants, which motion was denied, and the matter left optional with the Grand Jury.

F. Sepulveda, accompanied by his counsel, R. B. Snelling, appeared in Court. The defendant having no legal cause to show why sentence should not be pronounced against him, he was sentenced to three years in the State Prison on conviction of the crime of horse stealing. In the case of W. T. Davis a demurrer was filed, and sustained by the Court, and the defendant re-committed to await the action of the Grand Jury. The defendant was then released on his own recognizance.

Awaiting the report of the Grand Jury, no other business was transacted in Court until September 14, when the Grand Jury presented the following additional indictments:

J. W. McMurry, selling whisky to the Indians; E. Chaquette damaging highway by allowing water to overflow it.

James Brady, M. W. and J. L. Belshaw, for having issued and circulated certain written orders as money; Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, for having ordered paid a certain bill of Harris & Rhine, said bill not having been properly sworn to; John Bodle presented for neglecting his duties as Road Overseer. The report of the Grand Jury (which we give elsewhere in full) was presented and accepted, and Court adjourned to September 16

Monday, September 16th—Report of Grand Jury ordered printed in THE INYO INDEPENDENT. Bench Warrants for parties under indictment ordered issued, returnable September 20th

The drawing for thirty trial jurors to serve for the remainder of the term ordered, and venire issued returnable September 19th.

James Brady appeared and asked to be arraigned under the indictment standing against him for issuing money orders. Request granted. Defendant's counsel, P. Reddy, demanded that the indictment be laid a-side, by reason of the names of witnesses not being indorsed thereon. Granted and the case dismissed.

September 19th—Demurrer in the case of Jacob Dens sustained and the indictment ordered dismissed.

On motion of T. Laspeyre R. B. Snelling was admitted to practice as an attorney in this Court.

Venire for trial jurors returned.

Board of Supervisors, through their counsel, P. Reddy, appeared and asked to be arraigned under the indictment pending against them. Plea of not guilty entered and demurrer filed. Defendant's counsel asked that the indictment be set aside for the reason that no criminal or corrupt intent is charged in the matter complained of, and on the admission of the District Attorney that no such intent was intended by the indictment the demurrer was sustained and action dismissed.

In the case of the indictment against J. W. McMurry, defendant's counsel, P. Reddy, entered a plea of not guilty and filed a demurrer, which was sustained and action dismissed

The indictment against M. W. and J. T. Belshaw for issuing money orders was quashed, on motion of counsel, P. Reddy, for the reason that the names of the witnesses were not attached to said indictment as required by law.

In the case of E. Chaquette a trial by jury was had and a verdict of not guilty rendered. In consideration of this verdict District Attorney Van Decar moved a nolle prosequi in the two remaining cases, viz: J. Earl and John Bodle indicted for a similar offence to that of Chaquette. The motion after being reduced to writing by order of the Court was allowed and action dismissed. Adjourned till Saturday September 20th.

THE GLORIOUS 16TH OF MEXICO.

How they Celebrate in Inyo County—Processions, Balls, Bull Fights, Etc.—Water Melons Rampant.

MESSRS EDITORS:—According to programme the 16th of September was duly celebrated in Lone Pine. As everybody knows, or ought to know, the 16th of September is to the Mexican what the Fourth of July is to the American, and to state that the Mexican population of Inyo county are not patriotic and do not turn out and do their level best, would be to state an unblushing falsehood. They will starve themselves, or any one belonging to them, beg, borrow or steal from their wives' relations or any other man's wife's relations, in order to raise funds to enthusiastically carry out what they consider due to this great occasion, on which they fondly believe they obtained their liberty (?).

The procession was formed at 3:30 P. M., the band taking the precedence, then some three or four wagons containing the higher functionaries, after which came the triumphal car with the Goddesses, and, oh, ye Gods, what Goddesses! To paint their charms would be superfluous; suffice it to say that they all belonged to the type Diana, being dark, and some might say rather dismal. After the car came a promiscuous assemblage of Americanos y Mexicanos, those having linen coats being assigned the honorable position of following and being nearest the Goddesses. Spotted coats next; vests third; shirts and pants, straight, fourth, and the rear guard composed of celebrites, or celebrators, decked in garments which no pen has point enough to describe. This incongruous mass after leaving the Mexican settlement (which had been built especially for the occasion) solemnly, and with the determination so characteristic of such assemblages, marched to the city of Lone Pine, where with much pomp, to say nothing of the contingent panoply of war, which be it understood means revolvers and knives of manifold dimensions conspicuously arrayed to terrify the sage brush or any other audacious enemy that might feel inclined to obstruct their triumphal journey around the flag pole, which said flag pole they were bound to, and did most majestically surround and everlastingly walk around. After doing the above and not having been in the slightest degree interfered with, the procession, with renewed courage and vigor born of the idea that nobody dare question the dignity and importance of the business in hand, solemnly retraced their steps until, alas! for all human plans, they passed, or tried to pass a point where, unluckily, there suddenly appeared a drunken blacksmith—the dignity and solemnity of the entire arrangement was, in a second, knocked galley-west. His first remark put a reluctant but undisguiseable smile on the countenance of every man, woman and child in that patriotic assemblage. The second time he shot his mouth off everybody followed suit, and in the laugh that ensued, dignity, solemnity, propriety and all former efforts were thrown to the winds and a more jovial procession was never seen from that time forth until they arrived back at the Mexican quarters, where in the evening took place

THE BALL.

Now, balls have been so often described and the beauty and fascination of the females so often treated that it would be a work of supererogation for us to go through their many charms, and the only remark we have to make is that it would be well and a credit to the American population if they would conduct affairs as quietly and sensibly as their Mexican compatriots. Everything passed off pleasantly, nobody had the slightest cause to regret attending what may be classed the most jovial ball of the season.

THE BULL FIGHT.

"In the fight that ensued I did not take a hand,"
But the bull he was brought from the sage-brush and sand,
And really looked very peculiar.

If the Mexican man who says, Boys I can—get away with that bull and you knows this
Will be willing to pan and put four bits in my han'!
I'll cry and sing 'taury pro vobis'"*

* Which means "bully for you."

Yours Truly,

OLE BULL HIMSELF.

Correction.

In Section 15 of the Cerro Gordo Mining Laws as published by us last week, the word "Winter" is used instead of the word "ninety" in connection with "days" in speaking of the term wherein certain improvements on a mining claim shall be made. This was simply a typographical error such as is liable to occur with any manuscript however plain, unless the precaution is taken, as it always should be, of giving the corresponding numeral in parenthesis. As a meeting has already been called to revise the new mining law referred to we will have an opportunity of making a correction by publishing or republishing the whole as revised in full, and this we propose to do on receipt of copy.

Exciting Scene at a Railway Depot.

An exciting spectacle was recently witnessed at the Yorkshire station of the Metropolitan Railway, near London, during a thunder storm. The station is in a deep cutting, and the fall of rain was so heavy that a large amount of water had accumulated, extending for a considerable distance. As soon as the 6:18 train from Barnet, which was filled with passengers, emerged from the tunnel, the water had reached such a hight that it put the engine fires out, and the train was consequently brought to a stand-still. It was found that the points would not work, and that owing to the storm the wires of the electric telegraph could not be used. The latter misfortune was all the more important, inasmuch as the express at the time was overdue. Another engine was procured by the officials, and chains were attached to the train. Every effort, however, in this direction was unsuccessful, owing probably to the sleepers floating about in all directions. The excitement at this period was painful in the extreme. The majority of the passengers were unable to leave the carriages, owing to the depth of the water which was making down the line in a perfect torrent; women were fainting, and even the servants of the company seemed paralyzed with fear, being totally unable to prevent what threatened to be a terrible disaster. A few of the passengers, by dint of the greatest exertions, had been removed from the train, when suddenly a shout announced that the express was coming, and a huge wave was seen issuing from the tunnel as the train approached. The same cause, however, which had placed the Barnet train in its terrible position, proved its salvation, for water also put out the fires in the other engine and stopped the train just in time to prevent a terrible accident.

Rather Strong Minded.

A Paris newspaper, The Figaro, tells of a wonderful Patagonian young lady. Miss Lydia Cunningham, whe was performing with a live boa constrictor in a circus company, at Manchester, England. One day before commencing her task one of the audience stepped forward, and going up to she leader of the circus, John Mahoney, asked him whether Miss Lpdia was really a Patagonian. "Patagonian and Princess," replied John, imperturbably, "who has been good enough to leave her country to break stones on my stomach and charm the serpents of my menagerie." The performance continued, but John noticed that Miss Lydia hit him harder than usual with the stones. When the time came to show off the serpents, Miss Lydia whistled, and the obedient reptile wound itself around her. Suddenly she blew a seoond and more peculiar whistle, and the boa immediately sprang upon John, who grew pale and struggled; and upon a third signal the bones of the unfortunate man weae heard to crack under the serpent's embrace. The Patagonian then cooly asked tp see the man who had doubted her nationality, and recognized him as her father, from whom she had been stolen in infancy. "I know you! Wait for me at the Star and Garter," cried see, while the public fled in horror at the spectacle of the boa devouring Mahoney.

Successor to Brigham Young Appointed.

It is reliably reported that L. Kohab is to succeed Brigham Young in the Presidency of the Church. The coming chief of Zion enjoys immense popularity with the faithful, and has a standing second to no other in the priesthood. Brigham has been requested to resign the government of the "kingdom" into the hands of his more competent successor, which it is thought he will not hesitate to do, but in the event of his refusing, the High Council will declare a decheance and in the interregnum elevate the favorite to power. Thus by a peaceable revolution the dignity of the sacred edifice will be revived in the person of a capable ruler and the people of Zion be made glad. We hardly know whether to congratulate our Mormon friends or not in this important change in their affairs, but their selection shows a wisdom not common to this perverse generation.—Corinne Reporter.

Beans for One.

A short time ago a couple of Boston runners entered a restaurant in Portland and ordered dinner. One was pleased to order a plate of baked beans. When he came to settle he asked the price, and was informed that forty cents would be satisfactory. The runner was astounded and exclaimed: "Isn't that a devil of a price for beans?" The man of grub got mad, and said that was the price and that it must be paid. The runner re-uttered the same pious exclamation of astonishment several times, and paid the scot. On going out of the door he turned and yelled it again, but the bean man was silent. The next day the restaurant man received a dispatch, and paid the telegraph boy forty cents. Judge of his utter disgust when upon opening it he read, "Isn't that a devil of a price for beans?"

—The international money order system has gone into effect. Money can be transmitted at the risk of the United States, upon the payment of a small fee, to nearly all parts of the world upon the same plan that has been so successful within the limits of the country itself. One dollar and fifty cents is the charge for every fifty dollars transmitted. Upon making this payment the sender is given a receipt guaranteeing the safe transmission of the amount or a full equivalent for it if lost.

And if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take default against you, and apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Sinbad the Sailor.

NEW VERSION BY THE "FAT CONTRIBUTOR."

Sinbad the sailor was born in Bagdad about the year —, and it is singular how many people of whom we read were born about the same year. His father was a bag-man—a bag-dad if you will—that is to say a "drummer" for a hardware house. He at length drummed up quite a respectable fortune, and then Sinbad went to work to spend it. Having bagged every other man of means in Bagdad, he tried to bag his dad, which was an exceedingly bad sin on the part of Sinbad.

Young man, let this be a lesson to you. "Beat" your old grandfather, don't spare a rich maiden aunt who has ducats, go for a rich uncle, but don't Bag-dad.

Suddenly recollecting himself when his father's money was spent, and filled with remorse—because there wasn't any more of it—Sinbad went to sea (how it was himself). One day as they were sailing pleasantly along, making about a knot an hour, which was knot an hour too much, considering the expense they were at, they were suddenly becalmed close to a green island, as they suppose, although nothing but an exceedingly green island would be caught out in the wide ocean so far from land. The captain ordered the sails to be furled and allowed the sailors to go ashore and "gambol on the green," as they hadn't seen a faro bank since they left home, and wouldn't, probably, until they came to the banks of New Foundland.

No sooner had they landed, however, than the supposed island began to tremble and shake violently, as though it had accidently swallowed an earthquake and it had gone down the wrong way. The captain shouted to them to re-embark, as what they had taken for an island was only the back of a prodigious fish! It was scaly business staying there, so they jumped into the sea and swam to the ship. Sinbad, who had stopped to see if there was anything about that fish to "hook," was carried down as that monster dove into the sea. He came up again, however, for Sinbad was a man who couldn't be kept under, and by means of a spar he found floating on the water, he was enabled to sustain himself, until at length he made land, which was the first thing he made since he left Bagdad.

Looking about carefully to satisfy himself there was nothing fishy about that island, he proceeded toward the interior, and fell into the hands of some men who proved to be the servants of the king of the island. They took him to their master, who enriched him and sent him and sent him home by the first Bagdad steamer that touched there. Sinbad got home with ten thousands sequins, which fully justified him in going abroad, and afforded him a fine sequence to his adventure.

He then thought he would settle at home, but he found so many debts at home to settle, that he changed his mind and went to sea again.

Islands seem to have been the bane of Sinbad's life. He was continually getting left on islands. And how often we have seen our friends "get left" on Ile-an-so-forth. On this his second voyage, he visited an island with his shipmates, went to sleep in a charming grove, and awoke in time to see his ship sailing away, which seems to have been a way his ships had of sailing.

Knowing by former experience how useless it was to repine, he set about examining his island home. He came upon a large, white body about the size of a two-story house in a good neighborhood, furnished or unfurnished. He tried to climb it, but couldn't, climbing being unknown in that clime. Suddenly the sky became dark, and looking up he saw an immense bird preparing to settle (something, by the way, he never was prepared to do). He then knew that the bird was a roc, and the smooth white thing as big as a house was a roc, egg. Placing his back against the egg he drew his jack-knife and waved it with a theatrical air around his head, exclaiming:

"Come one, come all! This 'roc' shall fly
From her goose egg as soon as I!"

The bird alighted without paying any attention to Sinbad or his jack-knife, and sat on the egg as little George Washington went after the cherry tree, to hatch it.

Sinbad thouhgt of a capital plan for getting away from the island. He tied himself to the roc, and when she got tired of setting and took wing, she took Sinbad too. Sinbad declared afterward that he never was so carried away with a bird in all his life. He was so tickled to escape from the island that he nearly split with laughter. If he had that bird would have been spoken of by his s rrowing friends as "the roc on which he split."

When the bird alighted Sinbad hurriedly untied the knot, and she flew away again, including in her bill a large serpent. Sinbad was terribly alarmed to find himself (it was bad enough to stay in such a place without being compelled to "find himself") in a deep valley peopled mainly by serpents.

He thought at first he had been drinking hard; but immediately recollecting that it was the easiest thing in the world for him to drink he knew these snakes were not confined to his boots. They kept him awake all night and nearly hissed him off the stage, a calamity that never happened to Lydia Thompson when she played the character. When daylight appeared the snakes retired, out of deference to th roc, who was still hovering around. Sinbad discovered that the valley was knee-deep with diamonds. He tried to get away with the biggest of them—the ace of diamonds, as one might say—but he wasn't the trump to take it.

He laid down to sleep, but was awakened by a great piece of meat falling close to him. (This he considered as the most remarkable event in his travels, as meat is constantly going up and never falls.) He saw other pieces falling, and then he recollected the stories he had read about the valley of diamonds—although he knew very little about the valley of diamonds himself—how merchants, in order to get these diamonds, threw huge pieces of meat down into the valley, into which the diamonds became imbedded. Then when the eagles convey these pieces of meat to their nest to feed their young, the merchants frighten away the old bird and the diamonds become their meat. Sometimes an eagle ($10) is worth $10,000 in diamonds. If an eaglet had any sense at all, after accumulating such a fine nest egg as that, we should see Mr. Eaglet let it out at good interest, retiring from business on a competency.

Sinbad wanted to get away—that is, he wanted to get away with as many diamonds as he could—so he filled his pockets with the precious cargo, and lying down on his face, an eagle came along, and picking him up by the seat of his trowsers, soared away to her nest, thus affording him a fine view of the outspreading country, which he could not otherwise obtain. The merchants were on hand for their dollar jewelry, and Sinbad was released on depositing his diamonds as collateral.

Space will not allow us to follow Sinbad in his adventures. He made six voyages in all, returning home each time with more wealth and bigger stories. He tells about finding a camphor tree, which had only to be tapped to fill every "camfire bottle" in creation. We have been to war and heard many big stories told about the camp fire, but the yarns Sinbad tells about that "camfire" beats all we ever heard.

He fell into the hands of a giant one day, a tremendous black fellow, as high as a tall palm tree. He had one eye in the center of his forehead, teeth like those in a two horse drag, and ten-penny nails on his fingers. He desired to have Sinbad cooked for dinner, but considering him too lean, turned him out to pasture, which gave Sinbad an opportunity to lean for home.

Most people are familiar with Sinbad's adventure with "The Old Man of the Sea." He has been referred to occasionally by writers and speakers. He wasn't a very good figure, but he has been used a great many times as a figure of speech. Sinbad met him in one of his wanderings among unknown lands, and the old gentlemen, who appeared to be feeble, asked to ride on his shoulders. Sinbad complied, and like a great many others who have taken a load on themselves that didn't really belong to them, found it impossible to "shake" the old man off. He accomplished it, however, by getting the old fellow tight on some soft shell crabs he stumbled on, when he fell off.

Sinbad saved enough from his voyages (he was very saving of everything, especially the truth) to pass his old age in ease and affluence, amusing himself by telling the biggest kind of stories to his neighbors and grandchildren.

A Remarkable Case.

The case of a woman who resides in Tennessee, is one of the most remarkable on record. Her inclination, disease, or whatever it may be called, for sleep is contrary to anything ever before known, and baffles all the attempts of medical inquiry to explain it. The Louisville Courier-Journal tells the story and vouches for its correctness—otherwise it might be taken for a piece of romance, incredible even to the possibility of truth. The age of the woman is thirty-one years. Up to the age of eighteen she was a sprightly girl, when she was stricken and has ever since—for thirteen years—been most of the time in a sleep trance. She is awake thirteen times in the twenty-four hours, remaining awake only seven minutes each time, and no power on earth can force her to remain awake one second longer. She breathes only at intervals of five minutes, and at such times seems to do so with great difficulty, only drawing two or three respirations, then falling back as though she were dead. While awake she eats, drinks and talks for a few minutes. She is as white as the whitest marble, and is perfectly beautiful. A fortnight ago she was on exhibition at the Southern Hotel, in Union City, Obion county, Tennessee.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A TRAMP.

[COMMUNICATED.]

The road from Columbus to Silver Peak is not very interesting. At the Peak there are a few men. The population is variously estimated at two to three—one watchman, one salesman and bookkeeper. The camp will soon be the scene of active operations again, as the Montezuma mill is to be moved here. There is an abundance of good ore here and all that is required to make this a promising camp is the facilities for its reduction. The road from here to

LIDA VALLEY

Is a passable one, plenty of water, (if you carry it with you,) and wood is plenty. I pass over a small range of mountains into a valley. Here I find three well-stocked stores, bakery and eating-house and a goodly number of dwelling houses. There are many springs in and around this valley. The miners here all seem to be busy during the day—but few people are seen. But in the morning can be seen men going in every direction with their mining tools; their steps and mein would remind one of bustle and hurry of the miners of 1851 and 1852, which would indicate that they had struck it rich. A visit to the mines convinced me that this must be a good camp. I did not have time to visit all the mines, but from inquiry I find that among the most prominent ones are the Lida Bell, the Blue Dick, Martin & Henly on the west side of the valley; on the east side we find the Lida Hill, Brown's, Hope, and Bennett mines, and a number of others the names of which I do not recollect. I also saw some very fine lead ores. The Mexicans have a small furnace through which they run or smelt this lead ore. John Frost of the Combination Co., at Austin, is here, with a view, it is supposed, of buying mines and erecting a mill. Hisky & Walker are also making preparations for building a mill this season. On Jim Fitzgerrald's Bar can be seen one of the finest gold specimens in this county; it weighs about forty pounds and is studded with gold being distributed well through the quartz. The sight of this started me to

GOLD MOUNTAIN,

Where I find a lively camp of forty or fifty men. There is a scarcity of water here, but mines without end. It would be useless to attempt to give the names of them, but will say that the State Line mine, without exception, is the finest mine (excepting the Comstock) in the State, but this is not the only one; there are many, both gold and silver mines here, that if they were in White Pine or Salt Lake would sell for large amounts of money, and in fact would lay the best of White Pine and Salt Lake mines in the shade. All that this camp requires is capital, and capital would certainly find profitable investment here. No doubt that it will soon find its way here as one of the latest discoveries here will soon cause an inquiry to be made where does all this gold bullion come from, and people will find that this county down here can produce as well as some others. From the prospects in this section, and taking Columbus, Silver Peak, Lida and Gold Mountain it seems to us that they will deprive Aurora of the County Seat, and that soon. These people have already the presumption to talk about county seats, and they mean it.

If I should pass through here again you may hear from me. Good-bye.

CORRUPTION.

As a sort of an offset to the Tammany frauds The New York Sun is ventilating the Credit Mobilier or Union Pacific Railroad swindle. A suit is now pending in one of the Pennsylvania courts, in which Col. McComb, one of the incorporators of the Union Pacific Railroad company, is plaintiff and the Credit Mobilier defendant; in the course of this suit the testimony of McComb, and letters in the handwriting of Oakes Ames, prove beyond controversy that a large number of the most prominent men in Congress were bribed by issues of stock in the Credit Mobilier. In 1867 Oliver and Oakes Ames were the leading spirits in the the Credit Mobilier, and additional legislation being wanted from Congress, Oakes being a member, that business was intrusted to him. The ring desired an act passed allowing the Union Pacific Railroad Company to issue first mortgage bonds, with the interest guaranteed by the government, to an amount equal to those issued by the Government. But the Government held a first mortgage on the road bed and franchise of the company, and this must be retired and the Government made to accept a second mortgage. This Ames managed; but it required a liberal distribution of Credit Mobilier stock to the leading Senators and Representatives in Congress. Of these with the number of shares given to each. The Sun gives the following list:

Blame of Maine, 3,000; Patterson of New Hampshire, 3,000; Wilson of Massachusetts, 2,000; Painter (Rep.) for Quigley, 3,000; S. Colfax, Speaker, 2,000; Schofield and Kelly of Pennsylvania, 2,000 each; Elliott of Massachusetts, 2,000; Fowler of Tennessee, 2,000; Boutwell of Massachusetts, 2,000; Bingham and Garfield of Ohio, 2,000 each. Endorsed: Oakes Ames, January 30, 1868.

The Sun says that the above list of those bribed by Ames is not complete. A member of the legal firm employed in the suit says McComb has documents to show that shares were issued to Congressmen James Brooks, of New York, R. C. Schenck, of Ohio, and B. M. Boyer, of Pennsylvania; and Senators Pomeroy, Chandler, Cameron, Nye, Stewart, Sherman and Morton.

Party or no party these, men must clear themselves of being parties to that Credit Mobilier swindle, or be disgraced and forever retired from public service.

Indian Affairs.

Mr. B. O. Whiting, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for this District, arrived at the Post about two weeks since, and after remaining a few days started back again. We did not see Mr. Whiting himself, but understand that in pursuance of his duties he came here to look after our Los and see what they wanted the great father to do for them. It is proposed, we believe, to establish a Reservation somewhere east of the Inyo range, which is to be used as a home and place of instruction in agriculture and other civilized callings for all those not able to provide for themselves. All the Indians in this section here and to the eastward will be required to report at the Reservation semi-occasionally, although it is not designed to put any restraint upon their actions so long as they behave themselves as well as those resident in this valley have done of late. As generally carried out we are opposed to the Reservation system, but under the new regime it is possible to make this a great benefit to these Indians in various ways. They are certainly as worthy objects for the attention of the Department as any we know of, provided these attentions come in the right shape.

Grain Down.

Grain took a very sudden fall on the 16th instant, some 6,000 tons falling into the bay at Vallejo at that time. This was caused by the fall of the elevator there, the only one on the Pacific coast; the immense weight of grain being too much for it. The loss will be about $200,000, the most of it falling upon Isaac Friedlander, the wheat monopolist, who is just as able to stand it as anybody. By obtaining control of all the wheat ships, Friedlander has managed to reduce the price of wheat very materially, thereby causing the growers to come short several thousand dollars, and on this account their grief on account of his loss is not entirely unassuageable.

Its Forty-fourth.

The Sacramento Union, the leading newspaper of the coast, entered upon its forty-fourth volume September 19

THIS SIDE AND THAT.

We herewith publish quite a lengthy communication from a Lone Pine correspondent in reference to certain local affairs therein set forth. He discusses these matters with ability and, we would say with fairness, were it not that, lawyer like, he stops short in the evidence and facts when he thinks he has made out his own case, and further, in attempting to sustain it by negative proofs.

First, in regard to Mr. Rhine's bill: Its allowance was just, equitable and strictly legal. The bond sale was at the minimum price allowed by the law authorizing their issuance, and the full proceeds paid into the county treasury. Does anyone mean to say that the Supervisors had no authority to pay all necessary expenses in effecting this sale? A sale at 79½ cents or less would not have been legal, but any figure from 80 cents, the price received, and upwards, was legal, but whether at the minimum or any other price certain expenses were involved, among which were advertising, engraving, etc., which had to be provided for by the Board, and in equal amount, though indirectly, actually bringing the total proceeds that much less than the minimum allowed by law, but in conformity therewith nevertheless. This only goes to prove the legal right of the Board to allow for, and pay all necessary expenses attending the disposal of the bonds. It has been contended by several who object to both the advisablity and legality of what was done, that as bidders did not stand ready to take them as per advertisement they should have been put in the hands of a broker. If one plan was legal, of which we have no doubt, the other was. A regular broker, as we shall presently show, could not have sold them under the peculiar circumstances at all, but if it could have been done in that way his per centage would have doubled the expense actually incurred.

No one will deny but that there was an absolute and imperative need for the contemplated structures, nor the fact that the wherewith had to be raised by some means. In the possible contingency that the bonds would not answer the purpose, the law authorizing their issuance provided for a 40 cent tax in lieu thereof. Supposing the latter plan had been adopted as advocated by our correspondent, how does it foot up? The tax would, in round numbers, have yielded $6,000 per annum. The bids, of necessity, would have been on a scrip basis, and under no circumstances at a higher rate than 50 cents on the dollar. Most likely it would not have exceeded 30 cents, but at the highest how would the account stand? The aggregate first cost in scrip bearing 10 per cent. interest would not have been a dollar less than $75,000! The total receipts from the special tax, allowing for no increase in taxable property, would lack $1,500 of meeting the annual interest. For years to come this scrip would be bandied about at less than 10 cents on the dollar—nearly or quite as low as Supervisor Garrettson's Mono county funds. It would not have ended there. The value of present outstanding liabilities would have been similarly affected. We are obliged to touch upon these points very briefly.

Now, what saved us this vast expense?—for, be it understood, our work is now done on a cash basis at an annual cost of only $4,000. We answer, Nathan Rhine and the Board of Supervisors in this very act for which they have been so extensively damned. Under the circumstances it was the very best act for the welfare of the county they could have done. We will explain. The bonds were offered for sale in due form and as per notice; not a bona fide bid was made or received. Why? Our own capitalists preferred to reserve both their money and the right to growl, no matter what was done. Owing to Col. Whipple's foolish acts and misrepresentations, especially as given in The Vallejo Chronicle, and his continued re-indorsement by the Lone Pine Relief Committee—owing to these facts as much as to the great calamity itself, Inyo county securities were perfectly valueless in the San Francisco market. We want to be just in this matter, and will say, that in our opinion the effects of the calamity would have been experienced to some extent in this respect if this committee or Whipple had never existed, but most assuredly not to the same extent. To re-advertise the bonds involved both delay and expense, and promised no better results. The bridges and Court House must be built, and to accept bids, as would have been necessary, on a scrip basis was not to be thought of for reasons already given. At this juncture Nathan Rhine stepped forward, and being wholly unable, owing to his losses by the earthquake (which we may say here, was a large share of capital he had brought to, but not made in the county)—owing to this fact he could not himself become the purchaser nor did not, only on these conditions: That the sale was bona fide to him only as a broker or the county's agent to negotiate a final sale to other parties. This formality covered all the legal requirements of the case, but involved some expense, but which could in no case equal or be in excess of that under any other plan. He went to San Francisco, but utterly failed in the desired object. In consequence further action in regard to the structures was delayed for months; temporary bridges and offices were used that much longer, involving an extra outlay of about $2,000. A second trip was undertaken by Mr. Rhine, and in San Francisco Mr. Rothschild and others told him that in consequence of the earthquake reports it was absurd for him to attempt to negotiate the bonds. But, notwithstanding this, and more as a personal favor to himself than as good investment (as they wrongly believed), his friends did take the bonds at the minimum price, every cent of which was placed at the county's disposal, and in return the county could do no less than to allow him a reasonable compensation for actual outlays in time and money, which in scrip was placed at $2,050, the coin value being $1,435, which, if charged against the proceeds of the sale, left the net per cent received at 76¼ instead of 74½ as stated by our correspondent.

We make these statements wholly on our own responsibility, never having passed one word on the subject with any of the principal actors. We believe that no other man in this county could have as cheaply compassed the desired object. This very act which has been so severely animadverted upon, has saved the county thousands of dollars, and the same object could not have been attained, so far as we can see, in any better way. For this great crime (?) these officers are to be arraigned before the bar of justice as well as public opinion!

If David Love, Garrettson and others did sign that petition in duplicate believing it to be separate and distinct, it shows that they thought the first had performed its office; and then to use them as one and the same, as was done, was a fraud upon the innocent signers, and an attemped fraud upon the Board and the public. He proves further that this man Garrettson, when he procured their signatures, knew that he was deceiving his neighbors by thus misrepresenting the facts and intents.

The last petition stands recorded, as "L. P. Pauper" admits, as rejected, which record covers all legal grounds as to the fact. That it was not placed on file shows carelessness, but did not justify its use for the same purpose the second time within two months any more than if held back and then used years afterwhrds.

The petition was a fraud on its face in its wording and implied meaning, and signers in some cases were deceived thereby

No explanation is offered in this communication for the appearance of Bridget Mahoney's name as one of the petitioners; for the illegible character of others; for the mere surname without the initials of others or proof given of the authenticity of many more, all written by the same person, nor of the "gentleman of the same nationality's" right to sign Mr. M——'s name, nor any statement of the object or amount of reward Mr. Garrettson has in view, or is to receive, or anything of the kind.

In regard to those contracts: Mr. Alexander was awarded the contract on his own terms and condition of bonds and time, and the latter for the filing of the bonds, was extended days beyond any legal obligation for the reason that the Board were anxious for him to come to time, otherwise the contract must be awarded to the "Independence favorite," whose bid was much higher than the Board were desirious of accepting if they could consistently avoid it. They laid themselves liable by thus repeatedly extending the time of Alexander for more "protests" from the other bidders had he at last succeeded in filling his bonds and cutting them out thereby.

In regard to Maloon & Son's bid the fact is studiously ignored that on the same sheet of paper in which the "estimate," as quoted by "L. P. Pauper," was given, there was a direct proposition in due form and caption for building bridges under a plan totally different from the one adopted. The manner in which this proposition was drawn clearly shows that the form of the other was not a mistake of a word merely. The rejection of the purported bid was due to that fact more than any other in the first place, and in the second place, to to give them twenty days additional in which to file their final bonds was to jeopardize the entire business, as would have been the case had Alexander's proposition for six months in which to complete his work been acceded to. We know that the Board hesitated long before making the final award on account of the additional expense. We are necessarily obliged to leave further reference to these matters until next week.

Fearful Devastation by Cholera.

Information of a very alarming character is being received from Bokhara. Dispatches state that the cholera is making terrible havoc among the inhabitants. No less than 1,000 deaths are occurring daily. The greatest consternation prevails. Those not already stricken down are fleeing the country in all directions.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M; Friday.

Harris & Rhine's New Store.

As Messrs. Harris & Rhine display in this issue an entirely new advertisement telling of their new stock and store we propose to give a description of the latter. It is the largest and best for the purpose for which it is designed of any we know of on the coast. This firm have gone to a heavy expense in preparing for a permanent business, and having thus proved their faith in the country by their works we certainly hope they may receive patronage in due proportion. The main building is 47 by 60 feet; attached to this is the office adding 22 feet more to the side front, giving that a total length on Market street of 82 feet. The full hight of the whole building, including the office, is 24 feet, the top being surrounded by a heavy dentil cornice. The front finish is to be triplet circles with four pedestals with pointers. One of the finest features of the building, and which is due to H. Muller, we believe, is the style of roof. It is a truss, covered with tin, requiring no supports any where on the broad expanse of the floor. The main front has five large circle head doors; the side front has a single door with side lights and transom, and one large show window looking into the office. The entire frame is of the most substantial character, and is covered with redwood rustic siding, the inside, sides and top, being ceiled with the same kind of wood. The corners are all finished with quoins. A line of verands, with ornamental border, 137 feet in length surrounds the two fronts. The main room is 14 feet from floor to ceiling and has a floor surface of 2,820 feet; office, 484 feet more, making a total floor surface of 3,304 feet. The whole interior is finished in the best manner and most modern style, having heavy cornices, pilasters and cappings. The office is of the same hight as the main building, into which it opens with an elipsis circle. It is finished with pilasters and cappings, and fitted with a hardwood counter 25 feet long, desks, etc. The work was all done under the supervision of M. Vanderbilt, and would be hard to beat by anybody.

Most Drowned.

Tuesday last while Tom Hamilton was assisting John Broder in getting some cattle across the river opposite this place, he got into some deep water, and having on a heavy pair of Mexican spurs, though afoot, they became entangled in the brush, and Tom couldn't get loose at all, until the current had dipped him under so many times that he thought his sins would all be washed away—in which case people living further down the river, and perhaps a short distance above, would have had to discontinue the use of the water entirely until it became purified, which would have required some time. Tom got out wetter and, may be, some wiser.

Southern Stage Line.

Superintendent A. O. Thoms, of the Telegraph Stage Line, plying between Lone Pine, Bakersfield, Visalia and Los Angeles, connecting with Earl's lines to Cerro Gordo and Independence, this week places in our columns the time table and rates of fare of his well known line. Mr. Thoms is an energetic and experienced stage man, and will doubtless meet with his usual success in the conduct of this extensive line. It will be seen that the various agents are the same as those of the Northern Line, and there appears to be no clashing of interests between the two.

J. S. Rothschild & Co.

Our home readers will not fail to duly note the advertisement of the well known and old stand-by firm of J. S. Rothschild & Co., elsewhere. It is a characteristic effusion from the junior of that house, and means about what he wants it to, i. e.—that they propose selling unlimited quantities of goods, at very reasonable rates, for the sake of their fair profits. Having a resident partner in San Francisco to attend to the purchasing, their goods and wares are procured on the best of terms and are exactly suited to this market.

The Cats and the Flax.

John Alexander has another scheme on foot now. He is going to bust out the Chaquette contract. We don't know what his confrere, Garrettson, is doing, but presume its something nice, and that both will effect about as much and be as successful in their operations as was the Missouri girl when she violated one of the fixed rules of her mam's house, and then tried to impose the belief on the old lady that it was cats. They will succeed in spoiling a little flax, and that's all.

Wir machen unsere geehrten deutschen Leser besonders aufmerksam auf die neue Anzeige der Herren Harris & Rhine, durch die man jetzt Gelder und Vollmachten in's In- und Ausland auf's promptestc besorgen kann.

Improvements.

Notwithstanding Mr. Garrettson's disinterested (?) efforts to bust out our town we note that very substantial improvements are being made all the time. Besides Harris & Rhine's store, a description of which is given elsewhere, the carpenter work upon the Exchange Hotel is nearly completed. This building is 26x44 feet, two stories high and thoroughly built throughout. Firestone & Stecker were the contractors, and also for Tom May's building and John Broder's butcher shop. The former of these is 36x50 feet, one 12-foot story and the work well advanced; the latter is not yet begun, is to be two stories high, 24x30 feet. Adjoining this, Messrs. Wood & Cohen are preparing to put up a store 24x40 feet. The new office for THE INDEPENDENT, with a floor surface of 750 feet, is about finished and will be occupied next week. A number of other similar improvements will be undertaken as soon as the material and help, both of which are scarce, can be obtained. Main G. will please go ahead and we'll have a city after awhile.

Board of Equalization

Our County Supervisors meet October 7th, for the purpose of fixing the rate of taxation for county purposes, and also to order distinct school taxes.

Notice.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Our report of last week was up to Thursday. On Friday, September 20th, F. K. Miller laid his protest, filed the day previous before the Board, protesting against the order of refusing to order an election to locate the county seat.

Also, by the same party, two protests, viz: one against the rejection of Maloon & Son's bid and the other against awarding the court house contract to E. Chaquette.

E. Chaquette filed his bonds on his bid to build three county bridges, which was accepted. Contract was signed and sealed, against which action and on the ground that it was not the lowest bid, Supervisor Simpson notes a protest. The same action was also taken in reference to court house bid and contract. On Saturday, September 20th—An order was made to the effect that the office rent of the District Attorney be paid direct to the owner, and warrants drawn accordingly.

Commissioners to locate the several bridges were respectively appointed as follows: Big Pine—Stephen Gregg, W. A. Greenley and Supervisor Hutchison; Bend City—John A. Lack, John Broder and Supervisor Bell; Lone Pine—I. W. Hunt, F. H. Burroughs and Supervisor Simpson.

The following bills were ordered paid: T. Laspeyre, on the General Fund, services as arbitrator, $25; M. Vanderbilt, plans of bridges, $50. Bill of A. Stecker, for court house plans, was laid over.

Board adjourned for the term.

MISSING MAILS.

DEEP SPRING VALLEY,
September 12, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—It is strange that THE INDEPENDENT cannot be published regularly when Mr. Chalfant is absent from home. No papers for Deep Spring and Lida for the 7th. We know that the paper was not published, as the P. M. at Independence is prompt, and the P. M. at Big Pine is either prompt or—else he aint. We want an explanation. SUBSCRIBER.

It is very easy to give the required explanation, simple—very simple—carelessness on the part of one or the other of the P. M's. referred to, that's all. This carelessness would be very excusable if the packages were addressed in our usual illegible chirography, but knowing our weakness on that point, we print the address on every package, and they are always sent from this office on time.

The Eclipse Gold Mine.

In reply to the article republished by us last week from The London Mining Journal, a correspondent of the same journal says:

SIR—I observe in the supplement to last week's Journal a letter, in which the writer sadly traduces the reputation of the present respected manager, Mr. Jones—whom I have known for the last twenty years as an honest, truthful and industrious mining engineer. It is a great pity that Capt. Tamblyn did not address his remarks to the company from Independence, instead of traveling some 7,000 miles to do so—then he would have given Mr. Jones a fair chance of defending himself; but probably that would not have answered the end which Capt. Tamblyn had in view. He appears to preach a great deal on the doctrine of principle and good will towards men, but I must confess that I cannot see any in his letter. I trust that Mr Jones' friends will not take the remarks of Capt. Tamblyn for granted, without first hearing what Mr. Jones has to say in his own defense. FAIR PLAY.

The State Rate.

The tax levy for State purposes is fixed at 50 cents on each $100. Last year it was 86½ cents, showing quite a flattering reduction, especially as all license receipts, contrary to the rule heretofore, now go to the counties in which they are collected. From the above facts we should think our tax rate for all purposes ought to be considerably low than it was last year.

A LONE PINER ON CURRENT ISSUES.

[COMMUNICATED.]

LONE PINE, September 24th, 1872.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT:—In the issues of THE INDEPENDENT of last week three several attempts are made (on the second page of that issue, in a space of about four columns devoted to that purpose), to defend the action of the Board of Supervisors and their advisers in regard to matters therein stated. Your humble servant does not intend to deal in any personalities in handling the several subjects put in issue; but will handle the action of the Board of Supervisors with as great a degree of delicacy as the fragrant misdeeds of that Hon. body will permit.

First, Those county bonds. By an act of the Legislature, approved March 12th, 1872, the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county were authorized to issue and to sell at a minimum price of 80 cents on the dollar, not exceeding forty thousand dollars of said county bonds. In pursuance of said act the Board of Supervisors did issue forty thousand dollars worth of bonds and sold them to Nathan Rhine of the firm of Harris & Rhine of Independence, at the minimum price of eighty cents on the dollar, realizing thirty-two thousand dollars gross, at an expense (as per report of the Grand Jury,) of the following items:

JUNE 12th, 1872.

INYO COUNTY TO HARRIS & RHINE.

May 15th, to cash advanced to Jarbo & Harrison, revision of bonds, etc	$ 133 75
Independence, August 6th, 1872, Inyo County, State of California, To Nathan Rhine, Dr., To drawing designs of bonds, etc	1000 00
To expenses for two trips to San Francisco	1060 00
Amt	2193 75
Add to the above as counsel fee	100 00
For services rendered to Mr. Rhine in Bond Matter, (as your humble servant is informed,) and ordered paid by the Supervisors during the past week, and we have as a total loss to the county in this single transaction	$2,293 75

Deduct from the gross receipts, in the sale of the bonds, $32,000, the above $2,293 75, and we have as a net proceeds from sale of bonds $29,716 25, less than 74¼ per cent on the dollar.

But, says THE INDEPENDENT, $2,050 of the above rightful expense was entailed through "active manipulators of the Lone Pine (county seat) petition fraud. Some of whom have done and are doing more to ruin the county financially than any other men that were ever in it."

We suppose THE INDEPENDENT refers to the earthquake contributions, if so, then, for the sake of argument, we will admit all the evil effects to the county, financially, that our worst enemies attribute to us. Even then, we cannot understand why our county should have been so injured in the estimation of Mr. Nathan Rhine (who in a labored letter to The Atla endeavored to convey the idea to the public that there was no earthquake in Inyo county on the 26th day of March last, that no property had been injured or destroyed and that no one was killed or crippled on that eventful occasion), that the Board of Supervisors must pay Mr. Rhine a bonus of over $2,000 directly and indirectly for purchasing our bonds. Neither will the people of Inyo county be able to comprehend why the Hon. Board of Supervisors should pay out said $2,050 to Mr Rhine, thus indirectly reducing the price of said bonds to less than 75 cents on the dollar, when the tenth section of the bond act provides for the levying of a tax of forty cents on the dollar for the purpose of constructing the court house and bridges, provided the bonds or a sufficient amount thereof could be sold at the minimum price.

People will think the Board should have pursued the provisions of said section in lieu of violating the law, as they evidently have done.

Now for the petition fraud, against which one of the wise men of Independence so magnanimously defended the whole people of Inyo county. Oh! ye Gods, what a sacrifice, and what a valiant defense was made on that occasion. Get ye into the shades of oblivion, ye Spartan leader, who defended the Pass of Thermopylæ—your laurels are gone. Now, to a person not familiar with the facts connected with that petition, (which I am inclined to believe is the case with members of THE INDEPENDENT office), all that abuse in said issue directed against those gentlemen who are in favor of submitting the location of the county seat to a vote of the people, might have some degree of force. Therefore, to avoid a false impression on the subject I respectfully submit a history of that so-called fraudulent document:

Prior to the meeting of the Board of Supervisors in August last a petition asking the Board of Supervisors to order an election, submitting the location of the county seat to a vote of the qualified electors of the county. The petition was hastily circulated, and one hundred and ninety three names subscribed, some of whom were not registered, and two of whom, reconsidering their action, filed their withdrawal from the petition. The petition was taken into the office of the Board on the first day of their meeting in August, but not presented for filing. The President of the Board, T. K. Hutchinson, took the petition, counted the names on it, remarking when through, that as he knew some of the parties were not voters that there was not enough names to justify the ordering of an election, and passing the petition back to the party from whom he had received it said, that if the petitioners would procure a sufficient number of legal names the Board would order an election, adding, at the same time, that it would entail a useless expense on the county, as voters enough could not be procured to move the county seat from Independence.

The other members of the Board did not examine the petition, and no action was taken by the Board at that time, but passed on to other business. The minutes of the Board show that the petition was rejected, which is clearly a mistake, as the petition was not filed, nor any vote taken upon it while the petition was before them, besides one of the Board told your humble servant that no action was taken during that session by them in the premises.

The petition subsequently had some forty names or more added to it, and on the 12th inst. was duly presented to the Board of Supervisors. Now comes the grand farce. The enemies of the petition were on hand, and their highly judicial Honors, the Board, proceed under the instruction of him who rules all things in Inyo, to examine witnesses in regard to the fraudulent names supposed to have been forged. T. D. Lewis was called and testified that he had never seen the petition and never signed or authorized his name to be placed upon said petition, and that his name was put there without his consent. Lo and behold neither Mr. Lewis, the learned gentlemen who so heroically defended the people on that occasion, or the Supervisors, made the discovery that T. D. Lewis' name was not on it, that L. Lewis' name of Lone Pine had created the commotion.

Mr. E. Chaquette then mounts the stool and solemnly tells the Board that he is well acquainted with Mr. —— and Mr. ——'s names is not spelled properly, and that Mr. cannot write his name, therefore the learned Board concludes that Mr. ——'s name is a forgery. The facts are that Mr. —— requested a learned and elegant gentleman of this place who is of Mr. Chaquette's nationality to sign his, M ——, name for him, which was accordingly done.

The next witness placed upon the stand is Mr. James Manning, who tells the eminently judicial Supervisors that his name on said petition is a forgery. Now it appears that there is or was very recently another James Manning in the county (an American by nativity). Who knows but the latter party was the individual who signed the petition, in lieu of the gentleman from Erin who did the grand before the Hon. Board? The circulators of the petition don't remember, and certainly the presumption would be in favor of the American being a citizen and voter and not the other party.

Now for those duplicated names, about half a dozen of which appeared upon the petition. Mr. David Love was placed upon the stand and accounted for his name being in two places upon the petition in the following manner: That he had signed our petition, and some time after he saw another petition or supposed it to be another, and thinking the former had been disposed of, signed it (the latter). As the duplicated names appear on that portion of the petition, the north end of the county where Mr. Love resides, it is reasonable to suppose that they approved them for like reasons. No one of common intelligence will suppose that those gentlemen signed their names a second time with a fraudulent intent.

Here the testimony of the special pleaders and enemies of the petition closed (in an already prejudged case), followed by that masterly two hours defense by the self sacrificing volunteer champion of the "whole people" of Inyo county.

What a masterly mind it must be that can stand up and make an argument two hours long, based upon such evidence, and one simple sentence of common sense in the whole of it. However, the argument either did or did not have its effect upon the most worthy tribunal of auditors, who without comparing a single name on that petition of two hundred and forty eight signers with the Register, where only one hundred and ninety two were required, in a lengthy decision rejected the petition, during the inditing of which the Hon. Clerk wore out a favorite pair of "Anto Ojos." I was not there to witness the exultation of the victors, but can imagine what a thundering time they would have enjoyed had they been able to charter Joves' artillery for a short time.

From the forezoing subject I pass to the contracts for building the court house and three bridges:

Pursuant to notice given by the Board of Supervisors for the construction of the public works, said Board met on the 12th of the present month to canvass proposals for the building of any one or all of said works. The Board reserving the right in accordance with their notice to reject any or all bids.

The Supervisors failed to make any survey of the grounds upon which the bridges were to be constructed, as they should have done, thus leaving the number of lineal feet of each bridge (outside of the main span of eighty feet,) to be constructed entirely on conjecture, as even the point of location of each bridge was undefined. Hence parties desirous of building could not make their own surveys upon which to make estimates, but were left to grope their way in darkness. Several contestants, however, appeared and solicited the contracts, or portions thereof, among whom were B. Maloon & Son, J. Alexander and E. Chaquette. The proposals of B. Maloon & Son were in form as follows:

INDEPENDENCE, Sept. 12th, 1872.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Inyo county—Gentlemen:—Our estimate for building the county court house according to the plans and specifications now on file in the County Clerk's office is fifteen thousand two hundred and fifty dollars in U. S. gold coin. Signed

B. MALOON & SON,
Builders.

September 12th, 1872.

To the Honorable board of Supervisors of Inyo County—Gentlemen:—Our estimate for building the bridges and trestle work, as per plans and specifications now on file in the County Clerk's office, is $31 per lineal foot for the eighty feet spans, and $24 50 for the trestle work in U. S. gold coin.

Signed, B. MALOON & SON.

Some question arose as to the formality of the proposals of Mr. Maloon & Son, and these gentlemen were called in to explain and did explain, stating to the Board that they intended their estimates as bona fide bids, and if awarded the contracts would give the necessary bonds for the performance of the same. The learned "Solons" rejected the proposals however (maugre the explanation), as being no bids.

The aggregate cost of constructing the three main spans of said bridges, as per Maloon & Son's bid at $31 per lineal foot would have been $7,440. If we allow the aggregate number of feet outside of main span to be 600 feet to be constructed (which is far in excess of the real distance,) then we have for whole cost of trestle work as per Maloon & Son's estimate, 600 feet at $24 50 per foot, $14,700; total cost of bridges per Maloon & Son $22,140; court house bid $16,250. Total cost of all building $37,390.

Alexander's bid for bridges, main spans, aggregate cost, $7,350; approaches to bridges on the excessive basis of 600 lineal feet at $16 per foot, $9,600; total cost of bridges per Alexander $16,950. No bid for court house by Alexander.

E. Chaquette's bids for court house and bridges—main spans for bridges, aggregate $13,000; approaches to bridges on said 600 feet at an average of $17 50cts per foot, $10,500; total cost of bridges per E. Chaquette, $23,500; cost of court houses for Chaquette $15,900; total cost of buildings, $39,400.

The contract for bridges was awarded to John Alexander on the 13th inst.—time allowed to file bonds to 17th inst. Eighteenth inst. further time granted to Alexander to file bond to Thursday, 19th inst., 2 o'clock P. M. Thursday, 19th inst., F. K. Miller appeared for Alexander and stated to the Board in open session that Alexander could give bonds if the Board would grant five or six months to complete the contract in, that a number of our best business men had so informed him (Miller) to that effect.

The champion of the whole people of Inyo county again put in an appearance and argued that the Board (or people) could not grant respectively one hundred and fifty and one hundred and eighty days (in lieu of the ninety days they would have to give their favorite bidder, Mr. Chaquette,) that the Board were already at an expense of $100 per month to keep the Lone Pine bridge in repair, thus entailing an expense of $600 for said six months if Alexander's proposition was entertained.

F. K. Miller argued that a large sum of money would be saved to the taxpayers of the county, that the loss to the county in the case of Alexander over that of Chaquette would be only three hundred dollars—Chaquette being allowed three months to perform his work in. The Board, however, rejected the proposition of Alexander and then took the proposition of E. Chaquette's under consideration. Mr. B. Maloon & Son's bid was again urged in behalf of the tax-payers, but to no effect, the Board sternly refusing. The contract was then awarded to E. Chaquette. Against the action of the Board in letting court house and bridges to E. Chaquette, F. K. Miller protested as a tax payer and citizen—the Board refusing to allow the protests to be spread upon the minutes, thus necessitating the filing of written protests which for want of time could not be filed till the following day, Sept. 20th, at which time a protest was also filed against the action of the Board in regard to that so called fraudulent county-seat petition.

RECAPITULATION.

Bonds sold to Nathan Rhine for the gross sum of	$32,000 00
Virtually paid Mr. Rhine for purchasing the same	2,293 75
Net receipts from Bonds, being less than 74¼ cents on the dollar	29,716 25
Loss to county in Rhine matter	2,283 25
Difference between Chaquette and J. A. Alexander's bridge bids in favor of A. the lowest bidder	6,950 00
Difference between E. Chaquette and B. Maloon & Son on court house in favor of the latter as lowest bidder	650 00
Total loss to county in the above transactions	9,483 75

For protesting against the foregoing wrongs, the party doing it is accused of trying to throw discredit upon the elevated town of Independence. If such infamous transactions can bring any glory to Independence the people of the county will not envy her the laurels thus acquired.

In reply to such charges I have this to say, that the citizen who would stand by and knowingly witness the wilful perpetration of such wrongs upon the people without entering his solemn protest is an accessory and would deserve to be indicted, tried and sent to the State Prison for life.

Why the Board of Supervisors did not exercise their almost unlimited discretion and extend the time for Mr. Alexander to perform the contract, allow Mr. Maloon & Son to amend their bid by substituting the word propose or bid in place of the word estimate, or reject all bids and advertise again (which would require only thirty or forty days at most), all of which they had full power to do, will always be and remain a mystery to the people, unless it can be accounted for upon the hypothesis of a predetermination to give the contract to the Independence favorite.

Before closing this communication I will state that the highest meed of praise is due to Mr. John Simpson, a member of the Board, who manfully and single handed opposed the said nefarious schemes throughout their lengthy and tedious consideration.

Such transactions will speak for themselves and I leave the decision in the hands of the people and commend the perpetrators to their patron saints of Tammany, Tweed, Connolly & Co., and advise them to no longer "waste their fragrance on the desert air" of Inyo. Their sphere of action is too limited here for their capacities.

Hoping these few lines may find the victors and their friends clothed in humility and engaged in fervent prayer on account of their many misdeeds, I subscribe myself Yours, Respectfully,

L. P. PAUPER.

The State Fair.

The State Fair which began on the 19th instant and closes to-day, promises to be the greatest success of anything of the kind ever undertaken in this State, or any other, perhaps. With two exceptions (Basset and Longfellow) the fastest and finest racehorses in the United States are there. Among the rest are Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, brought from New York in a splendid palace car, for the purpose of "cleaning out" Gov. Stanford's famous horse, Occident. The race comes off to-day. It will be witnessed by people from all sections of the Union. Every county in the State except our own has asked for space to exhibit some production or other.

THE REGISTRY LAW.

As many of our readers are not aware of the necessity of having their names on the Great Register of the County immediately, if they wish to vote on the ensuing election, we will state that the law requires the clerk to place a copy of the register in the hands of the printer for printing by the fifth of October. In order that all may understand the requirements of the law, which is a decided improvement in many particulars upon the old one, we give its principal points:

The entry on the Great Register consists of, and must show—

1. The name at length.
2. The age, omitting the fractions of years.
3. The country of nativity.
4. The place of residence, giving the precinct.
5. If naturalized, the time and place of naturalization.
6. Each entry must be dated, and numbered in the order of entry.

No person's name can be entered on the Great Register, unless upon the affidavit of the party that he is an Elector of the county, which means that he has been six months a resident of the State and thirty days of the county, and to the facts required to be entered on the Great Register as specified above.

If he has been registered in another county, he must produce a certificate of registration in that county and make affidavit that he is an Elector of the county in which he seeks to be registered.

If a naturalized citizen, in addition to the process required of a native born citizen as above, he must produce his certificate of naturalization, or, in the event of its loss, the usual proof in such cases.

Application for registration must be made to the County Clerk, or the Assessor, or his deputies, who are empowered to enroll names for the purpose.

The Assessor is required to keep a roll of electors and he must enroll the name of any elector of the county making application to him for the purpose. Such enrollment must show the same facts as are required to be shown on the Great Register, and at the end of every month the Assessor must return to the County Clerk a certified copy of all the entries made upon the roll of electors during the month, and all affidavits made for the purpose of procuring such enrollment, which must be preserved by the Clerk.

Under the old law, County Clerks would place a name on the Great Register on the receipt of a Certificate of Registration. This document was deemed to furnish all the proof necessary, and was frequently sent them by mail when the parties found it inconvenient to attend in person. In other cases the personal presence of the persons interested was of course necessary. We make this statement, because we belive there are those who, unaware of any change, heve sent their certificates of registration to the County Clerk.

Inhuman Brutality.

Upon a train bound for Texas, passing through Southern Kansas, a lady was traveling with a little boy aged 7 years. The boy had been suffering with the ague, and while passing from one car to another fell off the platform. This was not discovered until the train had gone two miles, when the lady asked the conductor to back the train. This being refused she begged to be let off, but in spite of her tears and entreaties she was carried on to the next station, where she was compelled to remain all night. On her return next day to the scene of the accident the boy was found. He had crawled up the embankment among the grass, resting his curly head among the wild prairie flowers, and drenched with the terrific thunder storm of that night, was dead. If ever a little application of lynch law was justifiable, this beast in human form is a fit subject for a dose.

ECLIPSE GOLD MINE.

[COMMUNICATED.]

INYO CO., CAL., OCT. 3d, 1872.

H. ENGLISH, ESQ., EDITOR OF THE MINING JOURNAL—SIR:—The INYO INDEPENDENT, of the 21st September, contained the Rev. John Tamblyn's report on the Eclipse gold mines, copied from The London Mining Journal, in which he displays an unreasonable quantity of spleen and venom against Mr. Jones for having stated in one of his reports to the Company "that the Eclipse Mines' entire management has been of the most extravagant and non-practical description he ever met with during his mining experience of forty years," and the Reverend gentleman thinks Mr. Jones would have done well to point out the extravagance, knowing there had been more than one manager, that is, he would have Mr. Jones to say that the late Mr. Tregellas was a man of extraordinary ability, a good mining engineer, etc.; but Capt. B., his predecessor, was most extravagant, wasted the Company's funds and was careless and indifferent about the Company's property. But I infer by "entire management" that Mr. Jones means the whole management from the commencement to date of report. It is true that Captain B. erred in having the atmospheric stamps erected in a pit, and it is well known, and I verily believe true, that Mr. Tregellas was prejudiced against the said mill; but when the Rev. John Tamblyn asserts in public that he knows that everything was done that could be done to make it a success but it was impossible (surely he knows more than many individuals give him credit for). Before making such a positive assertion would it not have been better for him to have informed the public of the experience he has had in working atmospheric stamping mills and any other mills stamping gold ores, and then the particulars of the methods used or adopted to endeavor to make it a success. His Reverence I think believes in the motto "good will towards men," and no doubt, ere this, has informed Messrs Harvey & Co., the celebrated and eminent engineering firm, at Hayle, Cornwall, that the said mill was not erected in conformity to the plans and specifications supplied by them, that Mr. Tregellas had several alterations made, that he dispensed with the driving wheel on the engine shaft, and that the mill was driven with belting on the fly wheel (on the engine shaft), to driving wheel on mill crank, and the stonebreaker was driven with belting from the fly-wheel on the atmospheric mill shaft. The Reverend gentlemen would also do well to inform the patentees that all the large rock that could be rammed through the "pass" into the coffer was (passed through) with the "smalls," and, that if the manufacturers had made the pass wide enough to let through the largest rock, it would have been done and the stonebreaker might then have been dispensed with and placed alongside the unused fly-wheel as monuments of waste and extravagance. The Reverend gentlemen knowing all that was done to make it a success he will also inform both manufacturers and patentees that, whenever the grates were taken off, the coffer contained a mysterious quantity of old scrap iron, in addition to the amalgam, and that the atmospheric mill was better adapted for making old scrap iron than for crushing or stamping the Eclipse gold rock—nearly a wheelbarrow full having been taken out at a time. I used the word mysterious because myself and others often examined the rock without being able to discover the individual matter producing it. His Reverence goes on to say "the atmospheric mill proving a failure a new mill was wanted and accordingly built." True, but with how many alterations and improved failures in course of erection? How many drawings and plans from San Francisco (supplied gratuitously, no doubt)? Mr. Tregellas engaged the services of Mr. Harry Vivian, who he considered to be one of the best millwrights on the Pacific coast. He erected the mill and told me more than once that he (Mr. Tregellas) had three plans from San Francisco, and that he would not allow him to work by either, and that Mr. Tregellas was always having alterations and so-called improvements made, which delayed and impeded the progress of the work, and that he never saw such a waste of money in all his California experience. Whilst the mill was in course of erection, I often heard the remark "hold out old Eclipse Co.," and the reply—"must go soon, impossible to stand much longer; if they had the Bank of England to back them; must go, unless they had the mint too.' His Reverence correctly gives the particulars of the stamps, number of stampers, etc., and asserts that "the Eclipse Mine will supply a fifty stamp mill as well as a thirty." I ask with what? Most certainly not with paying rock in sight. His Reverence, no doubt, if asked would state that the first crushing at the new mill was the best, and averaged $22 per ton, and that the second averaged $17 per ton; but I am prepared to prove that the former did not average $10 per ton, and the latter not $7 per ton, and that the third crushing did not average $8, the next not $3 50, and the next only $3 01 per ton. The bullion obtained from the rock consists of battery bullion worth from $10 to $11 per oz. There is no mysterious iron about this mill. It never produced enough to make a wedge. His Reverence I hope has not forgotten (even if out of sight), that the dump contained some hundreds of tons of ores, assorted by Capt. Eudey's instructions before his Reverence was engaged at San Francisco to "boss the Eclipse Mines." Bearing this in mind, I would like to ask him if he knew where to find the th usands of tons of reserves, which he states there are in the mines, and why did he not display his ability and knowledge by setting the miners to work on the good paying rock instead of so much country rock and limestone. It is very evident by the yield obtained from the different "clean up" that the rock became beautifully less in value in proportion to the greater quantity of his Reverence's rock which got mixed with Eudey's in the dump. Good mixtures always work well, and as soon as Eudey's rock passed away to be seen no more his Reverence' srock yielded the magnificent sum of $3 01 per ton. This proves that either the thousands of tons of paying rock are not there, or that his "works show that he ought not to have been the "Eclipse bal boss," and that he might be better fixed in the pulpit to preach faith without works, and even in the fixing. I think, most of the audience would be better pleased with his passage from the pulpit to the vestry than they would by any passage he might quote from either of his week day Bibles (The New York Ledger and The Ladies Companion). It is also very evident that his chief work was calculating on and taking up the Company's dollars, and his faith that the Company would believe they had a good property and continue to him a further supply of their dollars.

We have already had a pretty good example that his works have not been very profitable to the Eclipse Gold Mining Co., and in order to prove his faith under existing circumstances, I think the Company might offer him a lease of the mine, material, machinery etc., at a fixed tribute, say 19s in the £. This ought to leave the Company a net profit of about $25,000 per annum; and secure the development of the mine in a superior manner. Before I go further it may be well to account or explain why the third crushing yielded a higher average than the second. In the bottom of the bottom level (300 feet) and about three fathoms from the main shaft there is a winze, which contained some (supposed to be) very rich rock. This rock was broken, bagged and hauled to the top of the dump and placed in a shute made for the express purpose and costing some hundreds of dollars—to convey this rich rock to the cars and thence to the mill. I ask is that mining with so many thousands of tons of paying rock in the back of this very level, and thousands of tons in the back of the 220, and an unlimited supply for years to come in the back of the 160, which he states "ought to pay well in the mill." In this we agree and I am sure the unfortunate shareholders do also—"ought to pay well!!" If this rock is so good and abundant why not have stoped some of it away? Why sink the winze in the bottom of the 300 and take so much care of $8 rock? Why was the mill so often idle and without rock to crush? From a memorandum I have beside me I give the following extracts, viz: November 3d, started ten stamps; 3 P. M. hung up. Nov. 9th, started with twenty stamps, hung up one battery three-quarters of an hour; received from mine 18 tons of rock; 15th, continued with twenty stamps, one head broke, set in one die, ran five stamps four hours, only received 15 tons of rock from mine. These must suffice for the present. But should Brother Tamblyn wish recorded particulars of the rock received at the mill he has only to ask and he shall receive. He computes the car load of quartz at at from one to one and a quarter tons. By taking the number of carloads and estimating them at 22½ cwt. per carload, there was 1,481 tons of quartz caushed from Nov. 3d to March 25th, both inclusive, or 90½ tons average per week, or three tons per head per week in a mine whose "reserves consists in thousands of tons" of good milling rock, sufficient to supply the present mill for years without opening up any new ground, and yet his Reverence sent down rock which yielded as before stated the enormous sum of three dollars and one cent per ton. He also writes that the Company's books will show that the ditch was dug very cheaply. No one will deny it, but why not state that in consequence of a deviation from the original survey, proposed by Mr. Polkinghome, after the contract was let for digging the said ditch, that the Company saved $14,000 in fluming. The ditch was certainly not very extravagant. The mill-pond, which was of no use whatever and fortunately destroyed by the earthquake, only cost several hundred doll rs in addition to the attention of two, three and sometimes four or more men whenever the wind blew strongly. Up to date of his Reverence's discharge there never was an average sample of the silver rock taken to my knowledge, I have assayed from time to time several pieces of the rock for my own satisfaction and could never have told him that the rock was worth $138 per ton.

I would not for a moment accuse him of stating an untruth, but unhesitatingly deny that there was even 100 tons of silver rock altogether brought from the mine. I weighed nearly the whole, and furnished the late Mr. Tregellas and our worthy secretary with the weights and the carrier was paid accordingly. Fully 40 tons of this rock was slagged in the galmadore before the earthquake. Surely he never saw 150 tons there after the earthquake. And his Reverence cannot personally know anything about my ability as an assayer whether good, bad or indifferent, and those who have had really a fair opportunity of judging would, I have reason to know, express a somewhat different opinion? Again, he goes on to say as follows, viz: I have not seen any returns from the last clean up a few days after the earthquake, and he says "In Capt. Scoones' (who, by the bye, is a gentleman and highly respected by every one who knows him in this valley) letter, dated March 29th, I find that a small amount of amalgam was procured with other valuables. This small amount was twenty five pounds of amalgam and delivered to Capt. Scoones, who in turn delivered it to Mr. Polkinghome to be retorted ond melted, which should have yielded at least 50 ozs. of bullion. It was delivered to me by Capt. Francis, who, with myself, weighed it. Weight, as follows, viz: amalgam from battery 8½ lbs., ditto from pans 16 lbs., total 24½ lbs., which according to his statement ought to have yielded 50 ozs. In the hands of the inferior assayer however, alluded to by him, it yielded 97 32 ozs, or nearly double the "ought to." This is a pretty strong proof that some people in endeavoring to display their superior knowledge expose their ignorance.

In conclusion I beg to state that I personally respected the late Mr. Henry Tregellas, he worked hard, but like very many others erred in judgment and was perhaps unduly biassed by the opinion of his Reverence, who has been the cause of this prolonged effusion. But I think sometime prior to his (Mr. Tregellas') most lamentable demise he became aware of this, as his actions here tended to show and which is also somewhat confirmed by a portion of his Reverence's letter to you.

Apologizing for encroaching so much on your valuable time, I am, Sir,

Your Obedient Servant,

JAMES POLKINGHOME.

Mountain Meadow Massacre.

We give below the affidavit of Philip Klingon Smith, one of the Bishops who obeyed the orders of Brigham in the butchery of Mountain Meadows. The fearful story requires no comment, nor does it admit of a doubt:

State of Nevada, County of Lincoln, ss:

Personally appeared before me, Peter B. Miller, Clerk of the Court of the Court of the Seventh Judicial District of the State of Nevada, Philip Klingon Smith, who being duly sworn, on his oath says: My name is Philip Klingon Smith; I reside in the county of Lincoln, in the State of Nevada; I resided at Cedar City in the county of Iron, in the Territory of Utah, from A. D. 1852 to A. D. 1859; I was residing at Cedar City at the time of the massacre at Mountain Meadows, in said Territory of Utah; I had heard that a company of emigrants were on their way from Salt Lake City, bound for California; said company arrived at Cedar City, tarried there one day, and passed on for California; after said company had left Cedar City, the militia was called out for the purpose of committing acts of hostility against them; said call was a regular militia call from the superior officers to the subordinate officers and privates of the regiment at Cedar City and vicinity, composing part of the militia of the Territory of Utah; I do not recollect the number of the regiment. I was at that time the Bishop of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, at Cedar City; Isaac C. Haight was President over said church at Cedar City and the southern settlements in said Territory; my position as Bishop is subordinate to that of said President. W. H. Dame was President of said church at Parowan, in Iron county. Said Dame was also Colonel of said regiment; and Isaac C. Haight was Lieutenant-Colonel of said regiment, and D. Lee, of Harmony, in said Iron county was Major. Said regiment was duly ordered to muster, armed and equipped as the law directs and prepared for field operations. I had no command or office in said regiment on the expedition which resulted in the said company's being massacred at the Mountain Meadows in said county of Iron. About four days after said company of emigrants had left Cedar City, that portion of said regiment then mustered at Cedar City took up its line of march in pursuit of them. About two days after said company had left Cedar City, Lieutenant-Colonel I. C. Haight expressed in my presence a desire that said company might be permitted to pass on their way in peace; but afterwards he told me that he had orders to kill all the said company of emigrants except the little children. I do not know whether said headquarters meant the regiment headquarters at Parowan or the headquarters of the commander-in-chief at Salt Lake City. When the said company got to Iron Creek, about twenty miles from Cedar City, Capt. Joel White started for the Pinto Creek settlement, through which the said company would pass, for the purpose of influencing the people to permit the said company to pass on their way in peace. I asked and obtained permission of the said White to go with him and aid him in trying to save life. When we got about three miles from Cedar City, we met Major J. D. Lee, who asked us where we were going. I replied that we were going to try to prevent the killing of the emigrants. Lee replied: "I have something to say about that." Lee was at that time on his way to Parowan, the headquarters of Col. Dame. Said White and I went to Pinto Creek, remained there one night, and the next day returned to Cedar City, meeting the said company of emigrants at Iron Creek. Before reaching Cedar City we met one Ira Allen, who told us that "the decree had passed devoting said company to destruction." After the fight had been going on three or four days a message from Major Lee reached Cedar City, which stated that the fight had not been altogether successful, upon which Lieut.-Col. Haight ordered out a reinforcement. At this time I was ordered out by Capt. John M. Higby, who ordered me to muster "armed and equipped as the law directs. It was a matter of life or death with me to muster or not, and I mustered with the reinforcing troops. It was at this time that Lieut.-Col. Haight said to me that it was the orders from headquarters that all but the little children of said company were to be killed. Said Haight had at that time just returned from headquarters at Parowan, where a military council had been held. There had been a like council held at Parowan previous to that, at which were present Col. Dame, Lieut. Col. I. C. Haight and Major John D. Lee. The result of this first council was the calling out of said regiment for the purpose already stated. The reinforcement aforesaid was marched to the Mountain Meadows, and there formed a junction with the main body. Major Lee massed all the troops at a spring and made a speech to them, saying that his orders from "headquarters were to kill the entire company except the small children." I was not in the ranks at the time, but on one side talking to a man by the name of Slade, and could not have seen a paper in Major Lee's hands. Said Lee then sent a flag of truce to the emigrant camp, offering said emigrants that "if they laid down their arms he would protect them." They accordingly laid down their arms, came out from their camp, and delivered themselves up to the said Lee. The women and children were then, by the order of said Lee, separated from the men and marched ahead of the men. After the said emigrants had marched about a half mile toward Cedar City the order was given to shoot them down. At the time said Lee was at the head of the column. I was in the rear. I did not hear Lee give the order to fire, but heard it from the under officers as it was passed down the column. The emigrants were then and there shot down, except seventeen little children which I immediately took into my charge. I do not know the total number of the said company as I did not stop to count the dead. I immediately put the little children in baggage wagons belonging to the regiment and took them to Hamlin's Ranch, and from there to Cedar City, and procured them homes among the people. J. Willis and S. Murdy assisted me in taking charge of said children. On the evening of the massacre W. H. Dame and Lieut. I. C. Haight came to Hamlin's where I had the said children, and fell into a dispute, in the course of which said Haight told Col. Dame that if he was going to report the killing of said emigrants he should not have ordered it done. I do not know when or where said troops were disbanded. About two weeks after said massacre occurred said Major Lee (who was also an Indian agent) went to Salt Lake City, and, as I believe, reported said fight to the Commander-in-Chief. I was not present at either of the before mentioned councils, nor at any council connected with the aforesaid military operations or with said company. I gave no orders except to those connected with the saving of the children, and those after the massacre had occurred, and said orders were given as Bishop and not in a military sense. At the time of the firing of the first volley I discharged my piece. I did not fire afterwards, though several subsequent volleys were fired. After the first fire was delivered I at once set about saving the children. I commenced to gather up the children before the firing had ceased. I have made the foregoing statements before the above entitled court for the reason that I believe that I would be assassinated should I attempt to make the same before any Court in the Territory of Utah. After said Lee returned from Salt Lake City, as aforesaid, said Lee told me that he had reported fully to the President, meaning the Commander-in-Chief, the fight at Mountain Meadows and the killing of said emigrants. Brigham Young was at that time Commander-in-Chief of the militia of the Territory of Utah, and further deponent saith not.

REMOVAL.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT is now snugly ensconced in its new quarters immediately adjoining the original building, on the ground floor. Our friends and patrons are invited to call in and examine the concern throughout—and those who may receive their accounts within the next few weeks will be especially welcomed.

A FAST FREIGHT.

It is much to be hoped that some enterprising individual or company will soon put on a fast freight line from one railroad or the other. That such a line carrying freights at half or less than half than that of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s present rates would pay is quite evident, considering all the facts. Thousands of small packages would be sent by such a line. Many such are constantly required by merchants, and in carrying on various kinds of business, but owing to the outrageous express charges they have to come by slow freight, which requires an order at least two months in advance, and in consequence often times have to be dispensed with altogether, as a cheaper plan than to pay the express charges, which are so high as to eat up all the profits on articles of merchandise and various other purposes, as we have frequently proven to our cost. The present stage lines on both routes surrender all their privileges in regard to this class of freight in consideration of the poorer privilege of carrying Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express. This company charge 25 cents a pound, which in these hard times is more than anybody can stand. A part of this difficulty is now obviated by the new post office rule referred to elsewhere, and the postal money order system in forwarding monies; but the main drawback still remains, and will continue to do so until somebody starts a fast freight. Our stage men had better give this matter a little consideration, for such a line will take a fair show of the passenger traffic as well.

Stage Robbed.

The Reese River Reveille of September 26th says that the Battle Mountain stage was robbed on the previous evening, about seven miles out of Austin, by three men, who took the express box containing $90 and six bars of fine bullion valued at $10,000. There were no passengers on the stage at the time. The same paper of three days later date says the prospects are that the robbers will get away with their booty unharmed, no traces of either having yet been discovered, although the bullion weighs between six and seven hundred pounds.

For State Senator.

Our old friend, Judge J. G. M'Clinton has received the Republican nomination for long term Senator from Esmeralda county, Nevada, and according to The Virginia Chronicle, feels confident that he will be elected. We would have been pleased to have given all the nominations for that county, but no report of them has ever met our attention, directly or indirectly. Where is our Aurora correspondent?

Occident.

Stanford's famous horse "Occident" has greatly delighted the California public by his unprecedented trotting performance last Saturday. He took his wagon around the track in 2:23½, said to be the best on record. He occupied the track between heats in the Goldsmith Maid and Lucy race, and was driven by "that thoroughly honest horseman," Jim Eoff.

Canada.

There is a strong league in New York whose object is the annexation of Canada to the United States. The annexation sentiment is reported to be steadily gaining strength among thoughtful people and business men, whose pecuniary interests are not promoted by British alliance.

The Cholera.

London specials state there is no abatement in the spread of cholera in Roumania. The nature of the plague is epidemic in the extreme, and it is feared it will spread over the entire country. Ten thousand are reported to have died from the disease.

Denies the Charge.

Vice-President Colfax, Speaker Blair and others implicated by the monopoly in the Credit Mobilier frauds deny the truth of the allegations positively and absolutely.

SOME MORE ON THE SAME SUBJECT.

Our Lone Pine correspondent has something more to say, this week, in regard to that terrible bond business. He still denounces it as both illegal and a "palpable injustice" to a docile and a suffering community. As he and his backers evince such an extraordinary desire to save the people's money they propose to put them to the expense of a lawsuit to test the truth of his first assumption, and growl a great deal because of their failure to obstruct the construction of the much-needed bridges. Now, if these men are so particularly anxious for a legal and economical administration of county affairs why do they display such a factious opposition to nearly everything looking to that end? The law does not assume that County Supervisors are to be learned in the law, but it does expect them to be provided with a properly qualified legal adviser. Admitting that this Board have transcended their legal rights in some instances, on whom ought the responsibility to fall? We should say their legal adviser was responsible, and if he, in this, and other expensive affairs (witness, the result of the late Grand Jury's proceedings) has proved himself such an unreliable legal adviser, why should those who deprecate so much the way things are going be the first to step forward and do a thing expressly calculated to keep them in the same channel? It is their right and privilege to sign bonds for whomsoever they please, and everybody else's right to speculate as to motives and consequences, so, in the present instance, it looks as though the motive was gratitude for the one hundred and ninety-third signature to "that petition," and that the consequences will be that the Board will have to spend more of the people's money in procuring suitable counsel on every legal proposition by which they are to be governed, and especially in defending actions that may be brought against them, it may be, by reason of this very lack of efficient counsel in the first place. It may be all perfectly right and proper, Mister Furguson, but—why didn't they go on John Alec.'s bonds, too? According to the figures we have been favored with, it would have saved us many thousands of dollars and much talk. If others could perform the work in three months why give him six? Had the Board any better assurance that the bonds would be filled on his six months' proposition than on the original? And supposing they had taken the chances and those bonds been filed previous to adjourning for the term, wouldn't there have been a large amount of growling down below here at such a picayune policy which might have deferred the completion of the Lone Pine bridge to the end of the six months? Of course it would have been the first one finished, but it might not, especially if some one down that way happened to tramp the contractor's pet corn just at the wrong time. The Board would then have received many sulphury blessings, not about the corn particularly, but for their stupidity in trying to save a few dollars on the one hand at the expense of the traveling public on the other! In fact it strikes us it matters not what they did do or did not do it would be wrong, anyhow, so far as the constitutional growlers are concerned.

The impression which "Pauper" tries to make upon the public mind in regard to the bond transaction is as unjust and false as that relating to Alexander's bid. As to the legal rights involved in the former we have, pending its investigation by the Court, but this to say: The Board of Supervisors have a large discretion, under the law and their oath of office, in the matter of allowing bills, properly verified, for services rendered the county, mattering but little if at all as to the nature so it was an actual and properly authorized service. They are sworn to take care of the county's interests and property to the best of their knowledge and ability. The law does not specially designate that they are to furnish a fire and burglar proof safe in which to secure the county treasure, yet if it was lost through their neglect to make some provisions of the kind on account of the expense, it would be a violation of their oath of office. On the same principle the law neither specifically gave nor expressly prohibited the payment of brokerage or auctioneers fees where circumstances made either essentially necessary in effecting a sale of county property. It did not especially provide for the payment of advertising or engraving these bonds nor express charges on stationery or county money and other similar and necessary expenses, yet such, and almost every other kind at the discretion of these sworn guardians of the public interests, are incurred and paid for.

That the service alluded to may have cost a few dollars more than it should have done may or may not have been the case, but certainly it did not amount to as much by several hundred dollars as this writer has figured out, and he has utterly failed to show that the same end could have been accomplished by any better or cheaper method.

We are astonished that any man as well acquainted with the facts and circumstances as this writer should pronounce this transaction "a palpable injustice" to a people whom it has saved a very great future expense, at a comparitively small present outlay. We have shown the why and wherefore in a previous number, and shall not go over the same ground now, but will say that it was in that connection and bearing that we alluded to a subject which is as distasteful to us almost as to "Pauper," viz.: Col. Whipple's operations and that of his backers, of whom this writer was one. If these same parties had then had the public good as much at heart as they pretend to now, there would have been no such begging operation then, nor as a sequence, as we believe it to have been, for this alleged violation of the law. As to the buncombe about "suffering humanity," and the fling at the good intentions of the people of this miserable place, we shall pass as unworthy of serious notice.

As for those "important things people are desirous of knowing" we answer in order: First, that Wells, Fargo & Co.'s certificates of deposit to the full amount of $32,000 are now in the Treasurer's hands or rather locked up in Harris & Rhine's safe, the only place of security at the said Treasurer's command. That at the date of the Grand Jury's visit to that officer he informed them that those certificates would probably arrive the following morning, at which time they did arrive, and the Grand Jury were informed of the fact, but did not think it necessary to make another visit and consequently there was nothing said about it in their report. The fact was duly mentioned in this paper (to one of the proprietors of which these certificates were exhibited), at the time.

"Why was not the coin itself paid in?" For the simple reason that the Treasurer here was not willing to accept the care of so much coin with no means of his own nor of the county's to insure its safe keeping, particularly as these certificates are considered as valuable as the gold itself.

"Rhine's quondam friends" have the use of this gold the same as anybody else and no more so. They can get it by paying banking rates for it, provided it was not placed in Wells, Fargo & Co.'s hands, subject to payment without a certain number of days' notice, in which case that firm will charge Inyo county the usual rates of deposit. We are not acquainted with the terms of deposit but have good reason to believe they are as favorable in San Francisco as here, unless, indeed, the charitably disposed here might furnish it safe deposit for nothing, for the county itself could not do it.

An Eminent Preacher Dead.

Peter Cartwright, D. D., the pioneer of Methodism in the United States, born in Virginia in 1785, died at his home at Pleasant Plains, Illinois, a few days since. Shortly after his birth his parents removed to Kentucky, where, in 1802, Cartwright commenced his career as a preacher. In 1813 he was ordained Elder of the Green River district, in Tennessee. From that period down to the time of his death, his ministerial labors have been attended throughout the United States with results of the most successful and cheering character. He was an exemplary Christian and his death will be deplored by thousands of people in Illinois, where he has labored for nearly fifty years past.

Snow Sheds.

Passengers on the Union Pacific Railroad report immense works along the line to protect the track from snow. The Division Superintendent is confident there will be no blockade the coming Winter.

In Full Operation.

The Carson Register says passenger and freight trains are running regularly between Reno via Carson to Virginia City. Some twenty-two trains of all kinds will run over the road daily.

Death of Garrett Davis.

Hon. Garrett Davis, United States Senator from Kentucky, died at his residence in Paris, in that State, September 22d. He was seventy-two years of age.

Discharged.

Forrester, the alleged murderer of Benjamin Nathan, has been discharged for want of evidence to prove his guilt.

Those Diamonds.

Fifteen cents a bushel, with a downward tendency, is the latest quotation of those Arizona diamonds.

Scarce.

Seamen have become so scarce in San Francisco that $40 is paid as bounty.

The Postal Service—Packages by Mail.

By the new postal law, which went into operation July 1, many small packages which have heretofore been forwarded by express can be sent through the mails at a small cost. According to the new regulations packages of dry goods, hardware, drugs (except liquid drugs) and other merchandise not exceeding twelve ounces in weight can be mailed to any part of the United States at a charge of two cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces. Under this arrangement a twelve ounce package can be forwarded to San Francisco for twelve cents. For instance, a pair of boots, if neither weighs more than the specified twelve ounces, may be wrapped up in separate parcels, and sent across the continent for twenty-four cents; whereas, under the old plan transportation of goods of this kind would cost more than they were worth. Up to the present time the Post Office Department has lost money by this new system, simply because the general public has not taken advantage of it to such an extent as will make it remunerative. But it is confidently expected that when the advantages of the system are thoroughly appreciated, the scheme will prove as profitable to the government as it is beneficial to the public. It is in fact nothing more nor less than an adaption of the English parcel post, and although the charges in England are somewhat less than the rate adopted in this country, yet, when its remembered that the distances are as nothing when compared with those in this country, it will be seen that there is no cause for dissatisfaction.

The Death of Col. D. E. Avery.

This well known gentleman died of an apopletic fit, in Virginia City, Nevada, September 12th. His remains were embalmed and sent to his old home in the town of Aurora, New York. Col. Avery was a member of Gov. Bradley's staff. His funeral obsequies were performed on the 14th instant under the auspices of the First Division of the Nevada State Militia, and were said to be the most imposing ever seen in the city of Virginia. Many of our readers will remember that while returning from this place to Virginia about two years ago, Dexter's stage upset near Aurora by which accident the Colonel was severely injured. Before he had entirely recovered from the effects of this he was thrown from his own buggy in Gold Hill, breaking his shoulder and inflicting other injuries. He died in the prime of life, sincerely regretted by a host of friends and acquaintances.

In Trouble.

The German band that played at the Jubilee are having trouble in Berlin about the division of the money made in this country. Herr Saro, the leader, claims so large a portion as his share that the matter and the money are now in the hands of the authorities, with some prospect that the latter may appropriate the whole amount for the benefit of the public service.

Fireman's Convention.

A call has been issued for a National Convention of Firemen to be held in New York this Fall. It is proposed to send one delegate from every fire company in the United States to this convention. The association, if organized, will be of mutual benefit and co-operative character.

Its Increase.

The State of Missouri has increased over 1,100,000 by immigration since the war closed; while immigrants are pouring into Kansas at the rate of about 125,000 persons a year. This is what comes of cheap lands, cheap living, cheap freights and the absence of monopolies.

New Mail Routes.

We are pleased to announce the fact that a weekly mail has been estab- from Big Pine to Lida Valley; also one direct from Bakersfield to Cerro Gordo and another from Indian Wells to Wallapai, Arizona. These were obtained on Mr. Houghton's representations.

German Emigration.

Under the pretext of preventing the departure of persons owing military service, the Imperial Government of Germay is attempting to block the great exodus of the middle classes, who are preparing to find free homes in free America.

The "Bob Whites."

Eastern quail, which were turned oose on a farm near Cloverdale, Sonoma county, have so multiplied that their notes are heard over the adjacent foothills. It is supposed that there are some 200 or 300 of them.

Expensive for his Party.

George C. Gorham is billed for twenty-six speeches in California during the campaign, which little circumstance will cost the Republican party about as many hundred votes.

LONE PINER AGAIN.

LONE PINE, October 2, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—A few words will suffice to show that the Board of Supervisors acted without authority when they employed Nathan Rhine to negotiate the sale of the bonds in question. The bond act creates the Board of Supervisors a Board of Brokers to sell said bonds and prescribes the manner in which the same shall be effected. The general law under which our Supervisors work provides the amount of pay they shall receive for any and all services they may be called upon to perform.

The bond act does not empower the Board to appoint or employ agents to execute their official duties, entailed upon themselves by the law itself, much less to pay for such services, and at the same time receive pay for performing the same services, or rather for not performing them. The effort to sugar coat the Rhine bond matter and make it palatable to the credulity of the people is a vain effort. The transaction is too palpably an injustice, and the attempted arguments too effete of logic to meet with favor.

There seems to be a mania on the part of some parties to consider the bygone efforts of Col. Whipple and others in behalf of suffering humanity, a panacea and shield, to cure or cover up all the villainies of those philantrophic individuals who were a going to relieve the earthquake sufferers so munificently, but took good care to not contribute a cent.

Some things impertinent people want to know:

Where is the $32,000 that the bonds sold for, which the law provides shall be paid into the treasury? The Grand Jury seems to account for no more than $8,000. Echo answers, deposited in San Francisco to the credit of the county. What security has the county that said money will ever get into the treasury? Certainly the County Treasurer is not responsible till the money is paid into his office. If said money is safe in San Francisco, who is to pay for its safe deposit into the county treasury?

Does the money draw any interest for the county while idle, or does Mr. Rhine's quondam friends have the use of it until such time as the Hon. Board may see fit to call it in? The bonds draw 10 per cent. from the date of issuance, the proceeds should produce something. Want of time prevents me from writing more. Yours, etc.,

L. P. PAUPER.

A Flying Piece of Glass Cuts a Man's Throat.

The Omaha Bee, of September 25th, reports this singular accident:

A terrible accident occurred this morning, about half past seven o'clock, at the mineral water manufactory of G. Pomy, at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Leavenworth streets. A man named Abraham Knobel, about twenty-eight years of age, an employee of Mr. Pomy, was engaged in the factory in filling soda bottles from the machinery, and while thus occupied one of the bottles burst with a loud report, scattering the broken pieces of glass in every direction with terriffic force. One of them, about two and a half inches long, about half an inch thick, and in shape resembling that of an Indian arrow-head, being about an inch wide at the base, struck Mr. Knoble in the throat, just below the apple. The point entered the flesh to the depth of two inches, making a terrible wound. The report caused by the explosion was heard by Mr. Pomy, who rushed into the room from another part of the building and found Knoble lying upon the floor, bleeding terribly and with the arrow-shaped piece of glass sticking in his throat. He at once pulled it out, and tried for fifteen minutes to stop the flow of blood. In the meantime doctors had been sent for, and in a short time Drs. Tennent, Benjamin and Baumer arrived to attend upon the sufferer. They examined the wound and the opinion was expressed that he could not recover.

More about the Massacre.

Referring to this deed of infamy which would shame the Apaches themselves, The Salt Lake Miners' Journal says:

"The Mormon people as a community should not be held responsible for that crowning deed of treachery and murder; for they are innocent of it; but the leaders who instigated it and carried it out should be brought to condign and exemplary punishment at an early day. Too long have the uncoffined victims of that dreadful field called aloud in vain for vengeance. Man, not the Lord, should repay it."

And a Salt Lake dispatch of September 25th says:

"Affidavits were taken to-day concerning the Mountain Meadow Massacre, fully corroborating the testimony of Bishop Smith, and giving further details, showing still more positively the guilt of the Mormon leaders. Testimony was also obtained proving the identity of the assassins."

News of an Old Inyoite.

Gen. Heffernan, with a party of Chicago capitalists, started this morning for the Goose Creek mines, where they propose to put up a mill if they find the prospects favorable. There is a great rush to these newly discovered mines, and quite a camp will spring up there in a short time.—Salt Lake Journal.

Codes for Justices of the Peace.

The last Legislature omitted to make any provision for furnishing the codes to the Justices of the Peace throughout the State. The Boards of Supervisors of the several counties should make some arrangement by which these offices might be supplied.—Sacramento Union.

Improving.

The St. Louis Globe thinks Stanley's chances of veracity seem to be improving. The New York Herald has once more heard from Dr. Livingstone.

A Transgressor Arrived.

[From The Virginia Chronicle, Sept. 28th.]

Richard Moriarty arrived this morning in charge of officers of Lincoln county, was delivered over to Sheriff Atkinson at Reno, and is now safely lodged in the Storey county jail. He was arrested in Pioche by Sheriff John Kane, of Lincoln county, on the strength of an indictment found by the Grand Jury of this county on the 27th day of November, 1868, charging him with murder in this, that he shot and killed John O'Tool in Niagara Hall, B street, on the 14th of November, 1868. The circumstances of the killing were about as follows: Dan Lyons had given a soiree, and at or after the dance, Moriarty stepped into the bar-room in front and called for a glass of port or some other wine. Pat Lyons (who was burned alive in the fire which destroyed Legate's restaurant and other property nearly two years ago) was keeping bar and had been drinking some. In passing out the drink called for he made a mistake in the bottle and gave Moriarty whisky instead of wine. The latter made some remarks about the matter, when Lyons told him "that it was good enough for him anyway," or words to that effect. Moriarty took offense at the remark and made a demonstration as if to strike Lyons, when John O'Tool, who was in the act of drinking at the time, drew up his glass and told Moriarty that if he struck Lyons he (O'Tool) would strike him. The bar-room was filled with men at the time, and Moriarty, drawing his pistol and pointing it at the crowd, backed out of the house, and when outside fired through a pane of glass and killed O'Tool. It was understood at the time that Moriarty claimed that O'Tool had thrown the glass at him. The murderer made his escape, and was never heard of as Richard Moriarty.

On the 8th of June last Morgan Courtney shot and killed James Sullivan in front of Clancy's saloon, on Main street, Pioche. The account of the affair, as given by The Pioche Record of next morning, was to this effect: Courtney was asked by Sullivan to drink, but declined, when Sullivan said he had not asked him to drink, and Courtney said he had. Sullivan repeated his statement, and Courtney saying, "Well, that's enough," or something to that effect, drank at the bar and left the saloon. After five or ten minutes had elapsed, Sullivan went to the door, where he found Courtney and, according to Courtney's version of the affair, Sullivan approached him and proposed to give or sell him an interest in the American Flag Mine, or something of the kind, but he (Courtney) declined to have anything to do with it, whereupon Sullivan made a motion as if to draw a knife, at the same time saying, "You d—n s—n of a b—h, I'll kill you yet." Courtney sidled off from Sullivan two or three steps, drew his pistol, and said: "Take that back, or I'll kill you;" to which Sullivan replied that he would take nothing back. Courtney, who by this time had separated 25 or 30 feet from Sullivan, fired the fatal shot. Courtney was acquitted of this crime in the District Court of Lincoln county on Sunday morning last, and was immediately arrested by Sheriff Kane as Richard Moriarty, the murderer of John O'Tool. Morgan Courtney and Richard Moriarty are one and the same person.

Pioche and Bullionville Railroad.

We learn by telegraph from Salt Lake that the rails and other material for this road will be shipped immediately for Pioche. This road will prove of great advantage to this camp at once, and in the not remote future it will unite with the Utah Southern, and so place our city in railroad communication with all parts of the country east and west.—Pioche Record.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Distinguished Arrivals.

Mr. Albert Bierstadt, the artist, and Mr. Clarence King, the explorer and geologist, arrived at the Post, by Sunday morning's stage, having crossed the Sierra via Yosemite Valley and joined the Northern stage at Adobe Meadows. They left on Tuesday for the high Sierras west of camp, intending to sketch and investigate through Onion valley and the Kearsarge trail, afterwards looking up the falls of King's river, and when the storms should drive them out, crossing to the San Joaquin valley. They expect to visit our valley again during the coming Winter, to remain longer. We learn that Mr. King is a merry-faced, keen-eyed young gentleman, who modestly disclaims any extra credit for his explorations, and the genial book he wrote thereafter, and who declares that when he next writes of adventures in the Sierras he will find it safer to write fiction rather than fact, as some of the "Pikers" object to having their little peculiarities shown up. It is a fact perhaps not generally known, that some of the latter way over in Tulare, were about making that county dangerous for Mr. King's personal safety, on account of the little articles referred to.

The Wrong Man.

In our issue of September 27 was a statement to the effect that Fred Shafer, while drunk, attempted to force his way into G. Eckler's house, in Lida Valley, when the latter fired at and shot him through the hand. We gave the statement as we received it, and as it also appeared in the Lida Valley correspondence of The Reese River Reveille. It now appears that the statement does Shafer great injustice, inasmuch as he was neither drunk nor trying to force his way into the house at all. He was not mixed up in the affair further than a mere spectator, and received the shot intended for some one else. Mr. Shafer is now on Bishop Creek suffering greatly from his wound, which is likely to terminate in the loss of his hand, we are sorry to state.

Died.

Mr. Bennett, who died in Kern county, September 25th, while on his way to San Francisco, had long been ailing with liver and kidney disease, and during September a dropsy consequent thereon made his breathing so short and himself otherwise so uncomfortable in our dry and light air that his friends in Cerro Gordo determined to send him to the sea coast in hopes of improvement. Probably the dropsy extended suddenly to the membranes surrounding the heart, for he died only two days after starting on the journey. He was highly respected as an industrious workman and a cordial friend.

Arrested.

At the request of the Sheriff of Kern county, Under-Sheriff Moore yesterday arrested a man named James Baker, charged with having robbed a teamster named Turman, a few days since at Walker's Pass. He got $28, and acknowledge the soft impeachment, but says it was in a drunken spree. He had came into Lone Pine and gone to work there. The Under-Sheriff brought him and lodged him in our very nice jail, but wishes Kern county to prove property, pay charges and take him away as soon as possible. Baker was one of the Los Angeles rioters, and claims to be well acquainted with handcuffs.

Personal.

Messrs. A. J. Gould and Martin Mee, of Cerro Gordo, are now in this place, both suffering considerably from the effects of lead poison. Mr. Mee was underground foreman and Mr. Gould weigher for the Union mine, and it would not appear that in the performance of their respective duties they would incur any risk of getting leaded, but there seems to be no positive immunity from that danger anywhere in the vicinity of the furnaces.

Owner Wanted.

In this issue, under the head of "Found," a gold breast pin is advertised for which an owner is wanted. This pin was sent to us from Bishop Creek by Mr. I. P. Yaney, who received it from a Piute, the latter stating he had paid 25 cents to another Piute in Independence for it. "Any lady wots lost sich a buzzum pin" can have this by proving property and paying charges.

Not a Partner.

Mr. John Broder wishes us to state that he is not a partner in the Cerro Gordo butcher shop, the advertisement to that effect not having been authorized in any manner by him. We were ordered through a third party, whom we considered perfectly reliable authority, to change the original advertisement, and substitute "Broder & Diaz" as the name of the new firm.

A Bridge.

A huge pile of rock now lying on either side of the creek which crosses Main street in town is an indication that something is going to be done in the direction of bridging that stream. We understand the bridge is to be a very substantial culvert, extending entirely across the street—the expenses being defrayed by the owners of the surrounding property.

Those Deserters.

We have hitherto neglected to report upon the sentencing of the seven deserters recently tried by General Court Martial at Camp Independence. By General Orders No. 25, issued at San Francisco, September 2d, it appears that the findings in the case of the deserters—Privates James Callahan, Patrick Dougherty, Thomas A. Osborne, John A. Diver, Peter J. Glynn, Albert D. Clifford and Nelson Cheeseman, of Co. "B," 12th Infantry—all were sentenced "To forfeit to the United States all pay and allowances now due or may become due, except twenty-five dollars, to be paid on release from confinement; to be dishonorably discharged of such date as may be fixed by the reviewing authority; and to be confined at hard labor in charge of the guard, at such place as may be fixed by the same authority, for two years, wearing a twelve pound ball attached to left leg by a chain six feet long." The punishment is the same with all except Dougherty, who got three years. Alcatraz was selected as the place of carrying the sentence into effect. On Thursday last, just prior to the time they were to be started out on the northern stage for their destination at Alcatraz, three of them made an attempt to escape. It seems that they were being taken to the creek for washing, when they slipped their irons (which had been previously filed) and started to run. The guard, instead of firing at them, took an unknown length of time in which to inform the officers of the occurrence. The guardsman is now guarded, while two of the escapers were at large last night—one having returned and given himself up, being injured from an accidental fall.

Old Inyoites.

From a letter from Fred Fink, now in Salt Lake, we learn that the writer is laid up at that place with an attack of the rheumatism, but is recovering. Fred says that is a poor country for laboring men, but speaks well of the mines and his prospects therein. He reports Matt. Gisborn as having refused $100,000 for his mine in Dry Canyon; says Gen. Heffernan's furnace at Corrinne is a failure, but that Senter and Belshaw have one there. Fred adds: "Billy Lake was here recently. Sam Bell got killed by falling off a cliff near Alta City. Tommy Jones is working for Gisborn; is the same old Tommy. Old Howard is here—his $3.000 are gone up the flume." With the exception of Lake, the parties referred to are all old Cerro Gordoites.

The Benton Mill.

A private letter informs us that the new mill at Benton, built by W. N. Leete and superintended by our old "pard," Mr. D. P. Pierce, has been in successful operation for a short time, but is now closed down for alterations in the barrels. These works are pronounced perfect in their every appointment, and of their success there is not the slightest doubt. The mill will again start up on the 10th instant, and there is in the district sufficient rich ore on the dumps to keep it constantly running for a year to come, without further mining.

Mining Sale.

On the 28th ultimo James Brady, Emily Brady and John Simpson sold to Wm. H. Van Arsdale the Front mine, Omega tunnel, Omega No. 2, the Potosi tunnel, and the Alpha, Franklin and Omega ledges, Cerro Gordo, for the sum of $21,276 coin, and other considerations specified in an agreement between the parties. This leaves the selling parties free to prosecute their operations in Waucoba, to which point we presume they will now turn their exclusive attention.

Change of Time.

The Northern stages now leave at 5 o'clock P. M. on each Sunday and Thursday, instead of 6 as heretofore—the mail closing at 4:30. This change is rendered necessary in order to make proper connection with the trains of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad at Carson, which are now running on regular time between Reno and that point.

Rafting.

A heavy raft of lumber, placed in the river so long ago as June 10th last, is still wending its tortuous way toward Lone Pine, to be used in the construction of a large school-house at that place. We believe it is now under the direction of I. W. Hunt, in behalf of the bondsmen of John Alexander, the contractor.

Building.

C. Meysan is building a fine, large storeroom at Lone Pine, for the accommodation of his merchandising business. If this general construction of buildings keep on both Lone Pine and Independence will, in the matter of appearances, make a hundred times better show, because of the earthquake, than they ever would have done without it.

Dr. H. W. Gould,

Of Cerro Gordo, writes that he will pay a professsional visit to our burg about the 8th or 9th of this month. He will remain a week, during which time parties in need of his professional services here will do well to avail themselves of the opportunity.

All Full.

One of the most cheering signs of the times is the fact that all of the various stage lines are constantly loaded with passengers each way. It is to be hoped that we will, however, at an early day get a through daily line on one or both of the routes.

Notary.

September 14th, Mr. James Kays was appointed Notary Public for this county, to reside in Cerro Gordo, vice Judge Hannah, whose term has expired.

Musical.

Some ten or a dozen jovial denizens of Cerro Gordo have organized themselves into a minstrel club or band, and are nightly practicing music. Several good musicians are included in the number, and being supplied with a good leader and a full complement of instruments, there is little doubt but that they will prove a success as a musical combination. When they get a good ready on we hope too see and hear them in the towns of the valley.

The Great Register.

The Great Begister of Inyo county for this year of our Lord is now in the hands of the printers of this establishment, and will be issued complete by the 20th instant, as required by law. Its form and style will be a great improvement on previous ones, and is so arranged as to entirely supersede the old poll lists.

Waucoba.

It is rumored that a number of the most important mines of Waucoba district are to be consolidated as the property of one large company, and incorporated. This, in the hands of our local capitalists, is a move in the right direction, and one which we are glad to note.

New Stock.

Messrs. C. & M. Cohn, of the Opposition Store, at Lone Pine, are now receiving large additions to their fine stock of merchandise. They are doing a good business, and are determined to keep up with the times.

Returned.

We are glad to chronicle the return of Dr. P. G. Gelcich, of Lone Pine, to his old location. He is accompanied with his household gods, and a very large stock of drugs and merchandise, together with lumber for the erection of a storeroom. Success to the Doctor.

Apologetic.

An apology is due from us to some of our patrons whose orders for jobs have been unavoidably delayed on account of the unusual labor of moving, etc. Well, they know how it is themselves.

Business Change.

B. L. Brown has sold his interest in the Pioneer Livery Stables, of this place, to John B. White, his former partner.

Gone to Independence.

Our esteemed friend, V. G. Thompson bid his numerous friends farewell on Thursday last. He departed from here for Independence, where he contemplates establishing himself in the hotel business. We trust that our friends at Independence will extend to him a most hospitable welcome, and will find him as we have always found him a thorough public-spirited, genial gentleman. A host of friends wish him the most unbounded success in his new home.—Havilah Miner, Sept 28th.

THE HERALD-STANLEY-LIVINGSTONE-EXPEDITION.

[From The Proof Sheet for July and September.]

Two names have suddenly been linked with the most extraordinary and enduring triumph of journalism. The conveyance of the news of the result of the battle of Waterloo to the London Times, hours before official dispatches were received by the British Government, the Crimean correspondence of Russell the Solferino correspondence of Raymond, and the Gravelotte cable telegrams of The Tribune all pale into insignificance when contrasted with the achievements of the James Gordon Bennett—formerly known as James Gordon Bennett, Jr.—who has proved his right to rank as the worthy scion of an enterprising sire, and Henry M. Stanley, whose best claim to distinction up to a recent date was based on the fact that he had exhibited such enterprise, dash, and celerity in reporting the incidents of the war in Abyssinia, in 1868, for The New York Herald, that the British Government received important intelligence through his dispatches, in advance of its transmission to London by official couriers.

We suspect that this hit in Abyssinia led up to the Stanley-Livingstone expedition. The qualities that commanded success in a field comparatively near to the scene of the late journalistic triumph naturally suggested that Stanley was the man to find Livingstone, if The Herald demanded the search. Abyssinia being disposed of, and no other work of marked importance demanding attention in that quarter of the globe, the intense popular and scientific interest in Livingstone's fate, and in the vexed problem of the sources of the Nile, suggested the grand idea that the bounteous means of a great newspaper might be worthily and perhaps advantageously employed in the humanitarian, scientific, and intellectual, but exceedingly difficult, dangerous, and expensive, task of discovering the great African discoverer.

Whether we are right or wrong in this conjecture, it is known that sometime in 1869—three years ago—James Gordon Bennett, Jr., sent a dispatch to Henry M. Stanley (then sojourning at Madrid, and engaged in the service of The Herald as a correspondent from Spain), summoning him to the Grand Hotel, at Paris, and that, after a brief colloquy, a roving commission was given to Stanley to interview Livingstone regardless of expense. Twenty thousand dollars were placed at his disposal, and it appears from the subsequent statements of the African explorer to the British authorities, that it cost that sum to insure the success of the expedition.

The first newspaper fruit of this project was a long letter from Stanley, dated at Zanzibar (an island on the eastern coast of africa, a few degrees below the equator), in the Autumn of 1869, and published in The New York Herald. It contained a resume of the career of Livingstone, enumerated some of the difficulties likely to be encountered in the search for him, and announced an intention to prosecute that enterprise zealously and fearlessly. It also gave an intimation of the plan of operations. This contemplated—what was soon after set on foot—two Herald expeditions, so that if Livingstone escaped one determined newspaper emissary he would fall into the hands of the other.

The problem that Livingstone had undertaken to solve being the discovery of the sources of the Nile, the expedition with which Stanley was not immediately connected set sail from a point near the mouth of that river, and at last accounts it was wending its way southward; so that if the great African explorer was fully successful, and undertook to sail triumphantly to Cairo, he would be intercepted before he reached the domains of civilization, and The Herald would share the glory of his discovery. This is called The Herald Up-Nile Expedition; its expenses are borne in part by The Herald and in part by the Khedive of Egypt. Though it may turn out in the end that it will render to civilization, or, possibly, even to Livingstone himself, very important service, we dismiss it from further consideration here, our chief object in referring to it being to indicate the completeness and extent of the arrangements made to accomplish the novel and gigantic task assumed by The Herald.

From the Autumn of 1869 to the spring of 1871, Stanley was busy in making appropriate preparations for his great enterprise; helping to organize the Up Nile Expedition; gaining valuable information; laying in a stock of supplies; studying the country into which he was about to plunge, and the untrustworthy men who were to become his associates in difficulty and danger.

For nearly three years The Herald obtained a very scant return in news for its lavish expenditures. The fact was very well understood that it had set an expedition on foot, but the chances of success in a field where so many others had failed were few; the prospects of discovering a lost man, who was probably dead, were desperate; and that small portion of the public who thought at all of this enterprise, deemed it either a downright humbug or a piece of foolish extravagance. Even now, after all that has been accomplished, we cannot see how a lame and impotent conclusion could have been avoided if Bennett had not backed the undertaking with extraordinary liberality, and if Stanley had not been one of the rare living exemplars of the hopeful doctrine that in the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail.

Space will not permit us to recapitulate even the salient points of the matter which has constituted so large a portion of the contents of The Herald since the first of July, and furnished copy for all the newspapers of the world. It consists of a succession of cable telegrams; correspondence from Stanley; letters from Livingstone to Bennett, to Earl Granville, and to various distinguished friends; together with comments of the press, huge maps of Africa, government dispatches, denials of the authenticity of Stanley's reports, and proofs of their substantial correctness so plain and irrefutable that no intelligent and unprejudiced person can read them without being thoroughly convinced that the bold correspondent found, saw, and relieved the intrepid African explorer.

The story, as a whole, embraces glowing descriptions of thrilling incidents, a record of important scientific discoveries, the revelation of great possibilities for human advancement, and the origination of a plan for the annihilation of a remnant of the terrible African slave trade.

Many of the elements that gave intense interest to the memorable voyage of Columbus, to the story of Robinson Crusoe, to Fremont's explorations, to the search for Sir John Franklin and to early African explorations, are united in the combined story of Stanley's search for Livingstone, their intercourse with each other, and Livingstone's account of his untiring labors, sufferings, dangers, and discoveries during the years that he was shut off from intercourse with the civilized world. It is more like a romance than a reality of the nineteenth century.

The scene of operations comprises a vast territory, extending over from ten to fifteen degrees of latitude south of the equator, and trending west far from ten to fifteen degrees of longitude from the eastern coast of Africa. Into this region Livingstone plunged in 1866, and he has been steadily at work ever since, with a fair prospect of demonstrating that he is the real discoverer of the true sources of the Nile, and that they are located about two thousand six hundred miles, (in a direct line) below the mouth of that river. A district close to the equator, extending over a distance from one to two hundred miles, remains to be explored, however, before all the mysteries of the Nile can be fully cleared up. After having tracked its tributaries (as he thinks) for a distance of six hundred miles, Livingstone is not the man to abandon his task before it is completed—since he received such unexpected and ample succour in the hour of his direst extremity.

Independent of this herculean labor Livingstone penetrated the central point of supply for the slave trade maintained on the eastern coast of Africa, and having been baffled sorely by its agents on account of their fear that he would expose their iniquities, a feeling of justindignation for his personal wrongs, joined to commiseration for the unhappy people who are stolen from their peaceful homes, prompts him to declare that the suppression of the slave trade is infinitely more important than any geographical discoveries he can make; and there are good grounds for the belief that the intelligence he sent, through Stanley, to the British Government, will soon lead to the overthrow of the diabolical system which now causes the capture of eighty thousand native Africans annually, three-fourths of whom are slaughtered or perish by famine or disease, while one-fourth are sent as slaves to Zanzibar, and thence to Asiatic markets.

In arriving at these results, Livingstone, during six dreadful years, was exposed to the worst forms of disease and danger during his wanderings in the land of elephants, gorillas and cannibals. The story of his struggles, discoveries, sorrows, and triumphs, is one of the most thrilling that was ever written.

Stanley's own relief trip contains ample material for a large book. Starting from Zanzibar, on the eastern coast of Africa, in the Spring of 1871, with an expedition he had organized of about one hundred and forty men, made up of soldiers, and of porters who were necessary to carry bulky goods into the interior, he surmounted difficulties sufficient to appal the stoutest heart. The point he aimed at was Ujiji, about one thousand miles from the coast, which was chosen because it was the place Livingstone had selected for the delivery of supplies forwarded by his English friends.

During the journey, sickness, desertion, revolt, open and desperate war with one native chief, and extortions from many others, cast terrible shadows of danger upon the path of the young explorer; but he bravely surmounted them, and on the 10th of November, 1871, triumphantly entered Ujiji, with the American flag flying at the head of the tattered expedition, to become one of the heroes of the historic scene in which, walking up to a "pale-looking, gray-bearded white man, in a red woolen jacket, who had upon his head a naval cap with a faded gold band," Stanley said: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" and received the laconic but triumph-assuring answer, "Yes!"

To understand fully why the Herald-Stanley Livingstone Expedition has resulted in the most extraordinary literary success of the age, the reader must become familiar with a variety of details which cannot be compressed within the restricted limits of this article. This sort of knowledge is even necessary, with some minds, to remove doubts of the authenticity of Stanley's reports; but it is evident that those who regard his statements as a traveler's idle tale are in utter ignorance of the weight of the conclusive evidence by which all the essential features of his world-moving story have been substantiated.

The cynical reader may ask, "What, after all, has this Herald Expedition accomplished?" To sum up results in the briefest manner, we reply: It has not only discovered Dr. Livingstone, after he had been spending six years in the wilds of Africa, but it has supplied him with all things necessary for the continued prosecution of his scientific and humanitarian labors to a successful conclusion; and it has brought back to civilization the written accounts of all that he has discovered and accomplished, so that if the enterprise upon which he is now engaged proves fatal, the fruits of his herculean labors from 1866 to 1872 will not perish. The Herald can justly claim a large share in the glory of rescuing the record of Livingstone's toils; for he repeatedly complains, in his letters to the British government, of the unreliability of the channels of communication he had previously tried; and there are good reasons for the belief that if his correspondence or papers had fallen into the hands of the traders who usually convey intelligence from Ujiji to the coast, they would have been destroyed. If the information of which Stanley was the bearer had not reached the confines of civilization, the world might have remained, for centuries to come, in ignorance of many important facts bearing upon the old problem of the sources of the Nile; in ignorance of the existence of a fertile and healthy country which may become the future home of many Europeans and Asiatic emigrants; and in ignorance of the cruelties of a barbaric slave trade, which the United States, Great Britain and France are at this moment endeavoring to destroy, in consequence of the information furnished by Livingstone through Stanley.

These solid triumphs are worthy of the best genius of American Journalism.

Return of an Exploring Party from the Diamond Fields.

[From The San Francisco Bulletin, October 7th.]

About the 20th of August a party of fifteen men left this city to explore the diamond fields of Arizona, about which there was at the time a furore of excitement. The party went overland and were well armed and equipped for the expedition. Amongst them were the following well known gentlemen: G. D. Roberts, General John W. Bost, surveyor; M. G. King, engineer; M. G. Gillette, Alfred Ruberry, John F. Boyd, Dr. C. Cleveland, B. M. Fry, Chauncey Fairfield and Charles G. Meyers. The members of the expedition returned last evening. They experienced no trouble with the Indians, but had a very tedious and laborious march to the "fields" and thence home. The heads of the party declare that their explorations more than confirmed the original report by Janin of the extent and richness of the deposits, and they exhibit specimens which they say they secured by their own exertions and with but small labor. This party went out merely to explore and prospect the country where the diamonds and rubies were said to abound, and not for the purpose of working. They say that active operations could not be carried on when they were there as the altitude is great and the ground frozen and covered with snow. The specimens which were brought back are similar to those first exhibited in this city, and they number altogether 288 diamonds of various sizes from that of a drop of water to a marrowfat pea. Mr. Roberts declares that if anybody has been deceived they are the worst deceived and cheated. They surveyed 3,000 acres of land, and propose to keep secret the exact locality till they shall have succeeded in obtaining a Government patent. The implements used by them were ordinary jack knives—an improvement on the boot heels of the original party. If so much wealth can be turned up by such primitive means, what cannot be accomplished with shovels and pickaxes? The return of the party and the reports which they brought back revived the excitement, and little else was talked about on California street to-day but Arizona diamonds and rubies. A meeting of the trustees of the company was called for 2 P. M., and further developments will be awaited with interest. A fact so easily demonstrated as the existence of diamonds in that country ought not to be much longer one of doubt and suspicion.

OFFICIAL APPOINTMENT.

On the 28th of September THE INYO INDEPENDENT was, by Commissioner Willis Drummond, of the General Land Office at Washington, D. C., designated as the official paper for the Aurora Land District, in which all notices relative to application for mining patents, lands, matters, etc., must be published. The district comprises the counties of Esmeralda, Nevada, and Mono and Inyo, in this State—and of course includes all the mining districts within the limits of the counties named. For this distinguished consideration we are indebted to the friendship of Wilson Butler, Register of this Land District, at Aurora—a gentleman who has, by his efficiency and untiring efforts in behalf of the people of this section having business with the land office, rendered himself the most respected and popular official in it. The appointment continues at will, and of course all matters of importance relative to land affairs will be given as they may transpire.

THE LATE ELECTIONS.

The result of the State elections which took place on the 8th, have been looked for by politicians with almost as much anxiety as though it were the Presidential election itself. Public attention has centered upon Pennsylvania particularly, as it is conceded that "as goes the 'Keystone State' so goes the Union." So far, that State has never lost an Electoral vote, which fact adds force to this popular adage. It would seem from the tone of our political exchanges that that State was counted as pretty sure for the Democrats, while Ohio and Indiana, the former especially, was considered especially sure for the Republicans. The result appears to be that Pennsylvania has gone about 30,000 Republican, Ohio but 8,000 on Republican general ticket, with Supreme Judges in doubt as yet, while Indiana elects a Democratic Governor (Hendricks) by a small majority. The Republicans have a majority in the Legislature. Nebraska has also gone Republican, and the total result has been very discouraging to the Liberals, although the latter have made some gains in Ohio and Indiana. Leading Republican papers consider Greeley's defeat as assured, but many of the Liberal papers contend that his chances are as good as ever. Perhaps they are, but they never were very good.

Occident and Goldsmith Maid

The great race between these famous flyers was to take place in Sacramento on Wednesday last, and on next Wednesday Occident is to trot against Lucy in Oakland. If Occident don't beat them both public expectation will be terribly and disastrously disappointed. Many Californians believe that he can go in 2:15, and it is said for a fact that Budd Doble actually offered Gov. Stanford $75,000 for him immediately after his big trot at the fair. Notwithstanding all this we would bet our cash on the Maid.

Kearsarge Bankruptcy Case.

On Monday last, in the United States District Court of San Francisco, the matter of the bankruptcy of the Kearsarge Mining Company was referred to Judge W. P. Daingerfield to take testimony upon the objections of J. S. Rothschild & Co. to the claims of John B. Winters and Charles H. Van Gorder.

Won the Case.

Mrs Fair won her suit against her mother, and, in consequence, the latter tried to commit suicide by taking poison that was pumped out in time to save her life, but not from a fate nearly as bad as if the poison had been allowed to finish its work—she had to undergo an "interview" by a Chronicle reporter.

General Banks.

This distinguished gentleman telegraphs from Massachusetts that he leaves immediately for California, to stump the Pacific Coast for Greeley. We see that the Liberal Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District of Massachusetts have nominated him for Congress.

Not a Candidate, No how.

Charles O'Conor has written a letter to James Lyon of Richmond, in which he says he has not indicated any alteration in his resolve not to be a candidate as set forth in his communication to the Louisville Convention.

PAID ADVOCATES.

The Gilroy Advocate, an independent paper, having recently come out and pronounced in favor of Houghton for Congressman in preference to Kewen The Los Angeles Star, a rabid and unscrupulous partisan paper, accuses it of having been actuated in taking this position by the force of a sum of money, to-wit.: Two hundred and fifty dollars.

We know nothing as to the facts of the case, farther than that such accusations are strictly in keeping with such partisan journals as The Star. Other independent newspapers, among which we include THE INDEPENDENT, have expressed a similar preference between these two candidates, of which no man dare intimate that they thereby court favor or reward, or attribute to them other motives than that they believe the local interests, which they represent will be best subserved by returning that man to Congress whose standing and influence therein enables him to accomplish the greatest good for his own district. In the present instance, Mr. Houghton is, without doubt, the man who holds this advantage. We find this sort of cross firing obtaining even among ordinarily strict partisans, both journals and individuals, to a greater extent in this than any preceding general election. One National platform might be substituted for another and the difference would scarcely be remarked, and for that reason the ties of party consist only in the name, which of itself is not sufficiently binding, in many cases, to keep even party papers in the traces, much less of force enough to compel independent papers to keep perfectly quiet for fear of offending those who hold to strict party legends.

In the contest for Congressman in this district the question consists not in the merely nominal political differences of the two candidates but in individual preference between the two, which preference is governed, so far as this paper is concerned, by purely local interests. We have no doubt whatever but Mr. Houghton, as Congressman, can and will accomplish more for the good of this section than Mr. Kewen, even though the latter was equally as willing and able, which may or may not be the case.

A GREAT MAN DEAD.

Wm. H. Seward, the greatest of American statesmen, died at his home, in Auburn, at 2 o'clock P. M., on the 10th instant. He commenced life as a school teacher, afterward studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1822. In 1827 he was elected State Senator, which position he filled with great credit to himself and honor to his constituency. In 1838 he was elected Governor of New York, and during his administration imprisonment for debt was abolished and the anti-Rent disturbances quelled. In 1849 he was elected United States Senator, which position he held until he entered the Cabinet of President Lincoln as Secretary of State. During the civil war he rendered invaluable services to his country by his able, adroit and skillful diplomacy, thereby saving us a war with England, which would probably have resulted in the disruption of our confederacy. Our space will not permit us to enter into details of his most honorable career; suffice it to say that no man stood higher in the estimation of the American people than the Hon. William H. Seward.

Tammany Hall nominates Abraham R. Lawrence for Mayor of New York.

FAST FREIGHT TO OWENS RIVER.

We infer from the following, which we clip from THE INYO INDEPENDENT of the 5th inst., that the people of that section are becoming alive to the fact that their business would be facilitated by faster freights. We can inform them they can gain that advantage, with a very material alleviation in charges, by hereafter ordering their goods by way of the Southern Pacific Railroad and this place. There are plenty of teams hereabouts ready to deliver freight, at a moment's notice, from the Railroad terminus at Tipton to any part of the Owens River country:

The above is from The Bakersfield Courier of October 12th, and following it is given the article from this paper referring to a fast freight line. Since the date of that article we have had additional reasons for believing that the establishment of such a line would meet with general favor and a fair patronage from the start. An important item in the carrying business of such a line would be the large quantities of fresh fruit which, at reasonable rates, would meet with extensive sale here. Bakersfield would doubtless be the best point from which to connect with the railroad. In order to establish that as a shipping point for Owens River freights, as proposed in the above extract, some forwarding firms there should take the proper course to let their names be known, so that shippers here might know in whose care to mark their goods. Of course this will avail nothing unless it is also understood that some reliable means are at hand to forward goods at once, and whether in large or small quantities. A fast freight line is just what is needed to do all the people of Owens River and of Bakersfield require to inaugurate this freighting business in the right channel.

Opinion on the Ballots.

Judge S. W. Sanderson takes issue with Creed Haymond on the question of the right to print the designations of the political parties at the head of the tickets. It does look a little unreasonable that the name of the ticket should be barred off, particularly as it could and should be printed on it in the same type with the names of the candidates, so that it need not betray the character of the ticket when folded up, as the law denotes it should be when it is voted. This would not be contrary to the code which it provides that the ticket must be "free from every mark, character, or device or thing that would enable any person to distinguish it by the back, or, when folded, from any other legal ticket or ballot."

Mrs. Fair and Her Mother.

The San Francisco correspondent of The Virginia Chronicle writes as follows concerning Miss Fair and her maternal progenitor, Mrs. Lane:

Laura D. Fair is before the public again in the character of martyr, the cruel persecutor being her own mother. The fuss is about money—when Laura was in jail under sentence of death she concluded to settle all her worldly affairs, and so sent for Counselor Dudley to make her will. She left all her money to her mother in trust for her child. The coin was transferred to the mother, who made all the necessary disbursements for Mrs. Fair. Now Laura is free again, she wants all the money back; but Mrs Lane says some of it belongs to her by rights and she wants a fair "divy." So the matter comes up in Court. Mother and daughter sit near each other but never a word passes between them. They are as cold and distant to each other as the poles. The mother recently made overtures for a reconciliation, but "the soft, womanly heart of Mrs. Fair," to use Curtis' expression, rebelled at the idea of being friends with her mother, and so the suit goes on, and Laura gets on the stand, throws in a few artistic tears and will doubtless get another jury verdict in her favor. Quite a little excitement was created a few days since by the report that James L. Crittenden (or "Jimmy," as Mrs. Fair calls him) had attempted to kill her. I think Crittenden is about half crazy and perhaps he might kill her in a moment of frenzy. For the son of a murdered man to see his father's slayer coolly walk the streets is not pleasant. Crittenden says he wants her to leave town—that's all. But Laura is not to be intimidated. She won't go under compulsion, and so the matter rests. I should think she would want to leave under all the circumstances.

Fanny Fern.

Among the other notable deaths which it is our province to note this week is that of the popular and well-known lady writer, Mrs. Parton, better known under the nom de plume of "Fanny Fern," who died in New York city, at the residence of her husband, James Parton, the celebrated author, October 10th, at the age of sixty-one. Mrs. Parton was the daughter of Nathaniel Willis, the founder and editor of The Boston Recorder, a religious journal of considerable reputation. She was a sister to N. B. Willis, whose name, as well as her own, is a household word throughout the land.

Col. Whipple.

According to a late San Francisco paper, Col Whipple, "the superintendent of the late Inyo earthquake," was sojourning at the Russ House.

LIDA VALLEY.

A correspondent of The Reese River Reveille writing from the above locality speaks in glowing terms of its great mineral resources and prospective permanence. He finds some fault with the way Hiskey & Walker work and make returns on ores reduced at their mill in Deep Spring, and fondly hopes that other parties may be induced to put up a mill in the neighborhood of the mines. In speaking of the success of the district, he says:

The latter is assured beyond a doubt, and in proof we submit the figures, less the fractions, taken from certificates of pulp assays from ten different ledges, the ore having been worked at the Deep Spring mill, and challenge any mining district in the State to equal the product per ton from the same number of ledges:

Seward's Death.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.

The undersigned is charged by the President with the painful duty of announcing to the people of the United States the death of an illustrious citizen, William H. Seward. Distinguished for faithful and eminent services in varied public trusts during a long series of years, he died at Auburn, N. Y., October 10th. Charged with the administration of the Department of State at a most critical period in the history of our nation, Mr Seward brought to the duties of that office exalted industry. A grateful nation will revere his name and his memory. The several Executive Departments will cause appropriate honors to be rendered to the memory of the deceased statesman at home and abroad.

Rediscovery of an Ancient Mine.

The Montezuma mine in the Ivanpah region, in this county, is a mystery. It was discovered a few months ago by Mr. Mat Palen and another gentleman who are now its owners. It is auriferous, and bears unmistakable evidence of having been extensively wrought in bygone times. The vein is of eight feet thickness, and from the surface downwards for more than fifty feet has been displaced and the ore removed. The few pieces of quartz left clinging to the side wall of the aperture give evidence of exceedingly rich ore. Near or in the mine, not the slightest trace of machinery, tools, furnaces or any other signs have been found that would indicate the chronology of the work or race of men that did it. Nothing survives of these former miners except the open gaping crevice from which the quartz was excavated. The bottom of the crevice has not been found at a depth of fifty-three feet, owing to the great amount of rubbish which, in the course of centuries, has fallen into it from the walls and surface. Could a single mining implement left by its ancient owners be unearthed, the mystery as to who they were would be cleared up. After ineffectual attempts to find the bottom of the crevice, Mr. Palen and partner, thoroughly convinced of the excessive richness of the ore, have commenced tunneling so as to strike the vein two hundred feet or so below the apex of the ridge from which it cropped. From the examinations made there is the assurance that in a short time will be developed the richest auriferous "find" on the Pacific coast.—San Bernardino Guardian.

More Good News—Seventeen Apache Braves Killed.

Under the above caption, The Arizona Miner extra of October 1st, gives the following:

We have to thank God, Lieutenant Max Wessendorf, 21 enlisted men of Troop A, First Cavalry, and citizen John F Townsend, Lower Agua Fria valley, of this county, for another signal victory over Apache Indians, the particulars of which were related to us this (Tuesday) afternoon, by that gallant soldier, Thomas McGregor, Captain of the victorious Company, which particulars are as follows: Early Monday morning last, after the camp had found three recently deserted rancherias, and while Townsend was some distance ahead, following a fresh trail up Squaw Peak, about fifty miles from Prescott, he met an Indian coming toward him on the trail, whom he killed; the Cavalry then dashed forward, and with their pistols shot down seventeen able-bodied Indians and captured a woman. The Indians, who were in force, fled after they had fired some arrows. In the rancheria corn and other property stolen from whites was found, and papers showing that the Indians killed had recently drawn rations to the 26th of September at the Camp Verde reservation. Laus Deo.

Earthquake in Dakota.

A dispatch from Sioux City, Iowa, October 10th, says: At 9:50 P M, yesterday, this city and vicinity was visited by quite a severe shock of an earthquake. People rushed out-doors, and considerable excitement prevailed for a brief period. The shock only lasted about a minute and a half, but buildings were pretty well shaken. No serious damage is reported. At Fort Randall the shock was severe, and great excitement prevailed. At Yankton the shock was faint but distinct, doing no damage. Reports from other portions of Dakota show that none of the principal points escaped entirely.

Battle with the Apache-Mohave Indians.

[From The Prescott Miner, September 25th.]

Some ten days ago a friendly Hualapai Indian arrived at Camp Beale Springs, from a run into the Apache-Mohave country, and informed Captain Thomas Byrne, commander of the Post, that Auehece Hokora, Ocho-Calma and five other chiefs, with a large force of Indians, were camped between two mountain ranges near the Santa Maria river, and that the chiefs and Indians were very mad, and talked of going to the Colorado river to fight the Mohave Indians for the part their chief, Irataba and others of the tribe had taken in ferreting out the murderers of Loring Hamel, and others. Learning this by letter from Captain Byrne, General Crook, commanding this department, started for Camp Hualapai on Saturday last, and early on Sunday morning Companies K, B and C of the Fifth Cavalry, Captains J. W. Mason, R. H. Montgomery, and Emil Adams, with a force of between eighty and one hundred friendly Hualapai Indians, started out under command of Captain Mason, who gives the good results of hard marching and harder fighting, in the following concise communication, which was received at department headquarters on Thursday morning:

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE VICTORY.

General: I have the honor to inform you that my command struck the Apache-Mohave Indians about daybreak this morning, after a laborious march of eight miles on foot over a country literally cut up with deep canyons. Our surprise was a complete success; having attacked four rancherias simultaneously, killing forty Indians and wounding many more; also, capturing eight women and ten children. The rancherias were on the brow of a deep canyon, and to surround them was impossible, thus allowing some to escape who otherwise would have not. Our officers and men behaved splendidly, and I cannot speak too highly of our Hualapai scouts. Their scouting was excellent, and when the fight came off they were not a bit behind the soldiers. I congratulate the commanding General and the country in having secured so valuable an auxiliary. They are fully committed now. Guide Leaber did excellent service. Please inform me as soon as possible what disposition shall be made of the captured women and children. Four ponies were captured and turned over to the Indians. I return to Hualapai by easy marches to-morrow. The fearful foot marching has made us all foot sore. The Indians were found at the place designated in the accompanying letter, handed to me by you while at Hualapai. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

J. W. MASON,
Captain, Commanding.

THAT CONTROVERSY.

[COMMUNICATED.]

LONE PINE, Oct. 16th, 1872.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT:—You have given me an opportunity to reply to a communication which appeared in your last issue signed Patrick Reddy. I may be lacking in sensitiveness, but really I don't feel the least irritation, and if Pat gets any amusement out of that sort of thing, let him prattle away as long as he likes. In argument I never allow myself to descend to Billingsgate and I don't propose to do so in letter writing. Yours truly,

F. K. MILLER.

Robbery

On the 13th instant, at Cerro Gordo a man bearing the name of Nyles Nelson was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Snodgrass, on a charge of having stolen a lot of valuables from Lola Trevis, a noted conductress of a bawdy dance-house of that place—the property including $600 in orders, $200 in gold and a gold watch with some rings, etc., a portion of which was found in his possession. A rough skeleton-key was found in his pocket on his arrest. On examination before Justice Fox, he was held to answer in the sum of $2,000, in default of which he is now in the county jail. Nelson is a Swede, lately from Arizona, and has been both a soldier and a sailor. He denies the whole charge, and says that, being drunk at the time, he has no knowledge of how the articles came into his possession.

Off for Other Scenes

Supervisor John Simpson, representing the southern end of the county in our County Board, on Tuesday last sailed out for Calaveras county, intending to engage in extensive hydraulic mining at Mokelumne Hill, having resigned his official position. John has long been actively engaged in some of the heaviest mining operations of Cerro Gordo, and was the very first to open up the immense bodies of galena which have since made that place famous. A host of friends wish him unbounded success in his new field of operations. However, he proposes returning to Inyo in the course of a year or so.

Camp Burned.

Sheriff Mulkey, who last night returned from a trip over the Inyos to Waucoba, reports that one of the cabins or rancherias, belonging to I. S. Freeborn's camp had been destroyed by fire. The Indians say that a Mexican had passed the night at the cabin, and on the following morning the place was in ashes. Mr. Freeborn concludes that it was fired in order to cover the removal of a number of blankets, there being no remnants or traces of them left in the debris. The loss will foot up about $300.

Miners' Meeting

Recorder Hunter, of the Lone Pine (Cerro Gordo) mining district, gives notice that a general meeting of the miners and claim owners of Cerro Gordo is called for November 7th next, for the transaction of general business relative to the affairs of the district. It is now understood that the laws reported to have been adopted and as such published in this paper some weeks since were gotten up by a minority, and of course of no effect. Will our friends please forward us full reports of the final action in the premises?

The Political Tickets.

In our advertising columns will be found this week both the regular Presidential and State tickets, under the proper headings, by order of the respective County Central Committees. Every one should make special examination of the names of the electors in particular, in order to know exactly who they are voting for for Chief Magistrate.

Social Hop.

Messrs. Wood & Cohen announce that they will give a little social dance to their friends at their new storeroom, to-night. Mr. Cohen is still in San Francisco, but the institution will open out in full blast on Monday or Tuesday next, with a largely increased stock of goods of almost every description.

Purchased a Mine

P. W. Bennett, with Judge Theron Reed and Judge Colby of Havilah, has recently purchased the celebrated Jo. Walker mine, located some seven or eight miles from Havilah, in the foot hills surrounding Walker's Basin. We are not apprised of the sum paid. Mr. Bennett is expected here shortly, after which he will return to Havilah for a permanent residence.

Blooded Stock.

Last week Sheriff Mulkey arrived from below with a number of fine horses, belonging to himself and Mr. Bennett. The lot includes a two year old colt of the value of $1,000.

A Chance for a Shoemaker.

Mr. Lentell offers an opportunity for some boot and shoemaker to enter into a first-rate business at the old stand in this place. See advertisement.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the school-house in this place to-morrow, at 10½ o'clock A. M.

Blooded Stock.

J. H. Muller, of California, yesterday had at Keyser & Elrod's hay yard, in this city, a cow and bull of full blooded Durham stock. The animals arrived in town yesterday morning from Reno, and are en route for Inyo county, California. The heifer, "Tulip," is three years old, and weighs 1,540 pounds, and measures two feet and four inches across the hips. She is a spotted, white and brown color, and is as fine a looking specimen of her kind as we ever saw, being as gentle as a kitten. The bull, "Grand Turk," is a noble looking animal, brown in color, is but two years old, and weighs 1,695 pounds. He is gentle to a fault and can be handled by one acquainted with his ways without fear or hesitation. Mr. Muller purchased the stock at Oak Home, where they were raised, four miles from Stockton, California. The animals are very hardy and thrive well in most any country. They have not become reduced in flesh during their entire journey, and no doubt will arrive safe in Inyo. Mr. Muller paid a considerable sum of money for the two critters, but they are well worth the price paid, and will never be any ill store to the owner.—Carson Register, Oct 9th.

VARIETIES.

—Riflemen—Pickpockets.

—The rest of the week—Sunday.

—Minute men—Tom Thumb and Commodore Nutt.

—Texas is about to add canned turtle to its list of exports.

—Never undertake to fasten a door with a lock from your own head.

—Why is a calm man like a school teacher? Because he keeps cool.

—A man may not like the fashion of his nose although he follows it.

—The chieftain of the Creek nation is a thoroughbred negro.

—Many hands are employed in printing, but we have seen a foot print.

—When does a cow become landed property? When turned into a field.

—Why is a man's life safest in the last stages of dyspepsia? Because he can digest then.

—"I see through it," as the washer woman said when the bottom of the tub fell out.

—A vampire bat was caught in Napa, Cal., the other day. It measured eighteen inches from tip to tip.

—Mrs. John Shaw, of Bakerville, N. J., tore $3,400 in greenbacks to fragments, "because she wanted to."

—A furniture man is said to be the laziest member of society, because he keeps chairs and lounges about all day.

—William, who is an undersized clerk in a dry goods store, objects to being referred to as "that little dry goods Bill."

—Most people have heard of a dead wall, but a correspondent writes to say he has actually got a living room in his house.

—A lady wrote of her lover, who had become insane, that "he had gone out of his mind, but had never gone out of hers."

—A live baby was recently found floating in the Coosa (Ga.) river. If Coosa water will preserve babies, what's the use of soothing syrup any more?

—An old lady thinks the Bonds must be a family of strong religious instincts, because she hears of so many being converted.

—An old farmer said of his clergyman, whose sermon lacked point: "Ah! yes, he's a good man, but he will rake with the teeth upwards."

—Stockton, Cal., has a musical prodigy in the person of a five-year old boy who performs the most difficult music on a tiny violin with consummate skill and grace.

—Because a vessel sinks should be a good reason why she should not be destroyed by fire. Yet the schooner Bound Brook, laden with lime, ran ashore near Rockport, Me., recently, filled and burned up.

—It really requires more delicacy of touch, a better acquaintance with the inner emotions of the heart, and grander pathos of sentiment to make out a declaration of love than it does to put up a stove.

—Dr. McElroy, of New York, was about to marry his fourth wife. "Who is to perform the ceremony?" asked a friend. "I don't know," replied his daughter. "I presume it's Dr. Spring, though. He generally marries father."

—Great Britain is getting a trifle tired of "testing" her ships of war. She tested one by a voyage, a little while ago, and the unwieldy craft went to the bottom. Now she has tested another, the "Glattoir," by firing two shots at her. The cost of repairs will be $68,000.

—When you see an old gentleman of sixty, on a clear bright day, carrying a blue cotton umbrella, tied tightly about the waist with a shoe-string (the umbrella tied, not the old gentleman), you may look out for rain before night, but the probabilities are that you will not see it.

—Susan: "Oh, mim, please, my kitchen, mim; it do so swarm with beadles."

Mistress: "Beadles, Susan; don't you know that word is spelt with a 'l'?"

Susan: "Is't, mim? Well it's the first time I've ever heard 'em called teadles!"—Judy.

The "Minerva"—Saved from the Arctic Wreck.

[From The San Francisco Chronicle.]

On Saturday afternoon the bark Minerva, of six hundred tons burthen, the sole remnant of the forty-three whalers that were ice-bound and abandoned in the Arctic Ocean last season, was brought safely into this harbor and anchored off the north side of the long wharf at Oakland.

A Chronicle reporter boarded her at her moorings yesterday. She looks decidedly weather-beaten, having been in the ice nearly a year, but is still staunch and sound, leaking but little. She was first discovered by the Florence on the 25th of July, in Wainwright Inlet, fast stuck on a shoal, and nearly on her beam ends.

The Esquimaux had been attracted by the drift wood of other wrecked vessels, as well as the plunder to be obtained on board the Minerva, and about fifty of them had built a village of ten lodges, or snow huts, within three miles of her, and they had evidently visited her frequently. They had taken all the bread aboard, and every metallic and other article that they imagined would be of use to them. The salted meat they did not care for, but threw away, and the crew of the Florence found quantities of it all over the ice. They seemed to have been very ignorant of the combustible nature of the ship, for they had frequently built fires both in the fore and after part, between decks. The fire had evidently been smothered by them with snow as often as it began to spread too much.

As soon as enough snow, ice and oil had been removed from the Minerva, to lighten her off the shoal, she was towed out to deep water, pumped out dry and reloaded with bone purchased from the Esquimaux, and oil from the wrecks, that had floated in barrels and been thrown by the waves high and dry on the strand. When her cargo was completed her rigging was overhauled and found to be in tolerable order. All the sails left were in good condition, being nearly new, and only the for sail, jibs, spanker, and top-gallant sails were gone. The Esquimaux had taken a few of the smaller ropes, and had picked at the davits, masts, yards, and in fact had chipped away little pieces all over the ship, probably to ascertain of what she was composed. As soon as she was in sailing condition, ten men from the Florence and six men from the crew of the abandoned bark Helen Snow, who had come down the coast in an open whale boat, from a point northeast of Point Barrow, were put aboard, under command of E. Henderson, a mate of the Florence, and on the 12th of September the Minerva sailed from Plover Bay for this port, which she reached safely on Saturday afternoon.

When the Florence had seen her prize safely out to sea she started for another bonus, to be gotten from the flotsam and jetsam about her. She soon found the bark Seneca, and Captain T. W. Williams having rigged a rudder on her, struggled for twenty hours to tow her clear of the drift ice, but a gale rising, her cable parted, and she was blown high and dry ashore about ten miles northeast of Point Belcher.

As the season was getting late the Florence then completed her cargo of oil and whalebone and sailed for this port, arriving a few days ago.

There are a number of whalers still in the Arctic Sea. The custom with them is to go in rather early and remain until the ice begins to pack pretty solidly; the whales are then troubled to find breathing-room, so they move toward the open water of the South. It is then that the whalers are busiest, often securing a cargo of blubber in two weeks. As soon as they have secured enough blubber, they move toward the South, if not caught in the ice, and try out the oil as they go. Every year the whales are getting scarcer, and the whalers wait for them to come out from the ice-fields up to the last moment, and this is why whaling in these latter times is so much more dangerous than formerly.

The parties who sent the expedition up to the whaling grounds have struck it rich. The plan was projected by Captain T. W. Williams, an old and experienced whaler, and he was joined by Captain P. S. Wilcox and Michael Rees and Dr. Merritt. The value of the Minerva and of the bone and oil saved is about $20,000.

If there is really a current that passes around the Northern part of America, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, it must surely carry with it some debris from the forty-three whalers wrecked last season. So far, no such evidence has been discovered on the Atlantic side that was thought to have passed from the scene of the wreck through the great Northwest Passage, although the current that sets in from Point Barrow runs very swiftly toward the northeast.

A Western Tornado.

The following special dispatch to The Missouri Republican gives a startling account of the gale in Arkansas: The steamer Julia that came down last night raports a terrific tornado as having occurred ninety miles above here at Osceola, Arkansas. The storm struck the town, containing perhaps about 300 houses, about one o'clock, coming from the southwest, and before the citizens could realize its extent or before they could even get to their doors, it had burst upon them with unprecedented fury and violence, sweeping before it houses, trees, cattle, fences, and everything movable. Trees were carried by the wind like straws; cattle, horses and mules were blown about the streets, and becoming wild with fright, ran helter-skelter in all directions, and the air was literally thick with fragments of every imaginable thing. The cotton fields were completely riddled, and stalks torn up by the roots, and the lint blown from the balls. Fences were torn into kindling wood, houses taken up and carried entirely from their foundations, and roofs and parts of roofs were whirling in the air like Autumn leaves, and in less time than it has taken to write it, the town, once a beautiful place, was a mass of ruins. Three churches and six school-houses were blown down in a moment, and many of the heaviest timbers carried entirely away; and nearly every dwelling house in Osceola and its immediate vicinity was either blown down or unroofed. The mills and cotton gin belonging to Mr. Fellins, near town, were torn to fragments, and hardly a vestige left of the buildings to mark the spots where they stood. In all, eighteen persons were killed or badly wounded. Three, two men and a woman, are known to be killed outright, and others will die of their injuries. After spending its force, the tornado crossed the river and went directly up the stream ten miles, twisting large forest trees up by the roots and throwing some into the river, while others, not so large, were carried high in the air and lodged in the branches of larger ones. Its course is marked now by a barren waste on both sides of the river, entire cotton fields having been laid level with the earth, and all buildings in its course razed to the ground. When it left the river it took a northeasterly direction, sweeping everything in its course. Fortunately the steamer Julia barely missed it. Had she been in its course, the fate of her passengers would inevitably have been death, and the boat would have capsized and went to the bottom. A rough estimate of the loss to the town of Osceola places it at $200,000.

The Exploits of a Gifted Dog.

[Washington Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.]

There is a remarkable dog belonging to one of the steam fire engine companies in this city. The engine house is on Capitol Hill, and the company is noted for being one of the promptest, quickest and most effective in the country. The members are sober, peaceable, and very attentive to their duties. The engine is as clean and shiny as a new watch, and a cleaner lot of horses, harness and general equipments were never seen. The engine company is also celebrated for their dog. He is of the New Foundland breed, large and heavy built. His coat is full and shaggy and of a very dark brown. The face of the dog is amiable as Venus, his jaws are large and powerful, and his teeth sharp and long. Whenever an alarm of fire is sounded the dog listens attentively for a moment until the number of bells indicate the locality; he rushes, barking furiously, to the stable of the horses, which is the basement of the engine house, and by the time he gets there the horses are out, he takes his position at their head and runs to the engine. The fire has been lighted in the meantime, and in less than three minutes the engine is rushing through the streets as if hell had broken loose. What is wonderful about the dog is that the instant the driver mounts his seat and takes the reins in his hands the dog starts off at a fearful pace in the direction of the fire, barking loudly and keeping time with the bell of the engine, giving a bark for every stroke of the bell. How the dog knows where the fire is has been for months a mystery to me. The horses are close behind him, and seem to follow him. He turns corners, avoids the tracks of street cars, and leads the way, indeed to the scene of the fire. Can it be possible that the dog knows the system of alarms in this city?

A Case for Darwin.

A remarkable instance of the sagacity (is it not reason?) of a horse has come to our notice. Mr. John Fletcher, a Norwegian, owns an unbroken Cayuse mare, which runs in a pasture adjoining his house. The mare, which is very wild, has a young colt at her side. A few nights since, after Mr. Fletcher had retired, he was aroused by the mare coming to the window of his house, and pawing, neighing and in every way possible trying to get his attention. This continuing for some time, he got up and went out and drove her away, and returned to bed; but she immediately returned, and if possible increased her demonstrations; he again went out, when the mare went up to him and rubbed her nose against him, although always before she was very shy of allowing any one to come within reach of her, then ran on a few yards before him, continuing her neighing; then as he did not follow her, she returned to him and rubbed against him in the most demonstrative manner. He attempted to drive her off, struck her with a stick and followed her a few yards to frighten her away. As soon, however, as he turned toward the house she returned and tried every way to prevent him from doing so. He then remarked that her colt was not with her, a fact he had not noticed before, as it was quite dark. It occurred to him then to follow her, which he did. So soon as she saw he was doing so she ran off before him stopping every few yards, turning around to see that he was still following, then again running on, keeping up her calling, until she reached a distant part of the field, where she stopped at an old "prospect hole." On coming up with her she again commenced rubbing against him and drew his attention to the hole, where he soon discovered the colt. It appears it had slipped in and was unable to get out. Being unable to get it out alone, Mr. Fletcher went for some of his neighbors and with them returned. While they were taking the little fellow out, the mare manifested the most intense delight, and seemed beside herself with joy; and afterwards when the men had got out of the hole, she came up to Mr. F. and placing her nose on his shoulder, gave every sign that a human mother would do under similar circumstances. Who will say the horse does not reason?—Montanian.

Tempering Steel.

All sorts of mixtures and methods of tempering steel have been invented, and the sales of patent rights therefor have, in many cases, brought in fortunes to the patentees. One of the most promising, profitable, and apparently excellent of these patented processes is that of Garman & Siegfried, owned by the Steel Refining and Tempering Company, Boston, Mass. Congress has appropriated ten thousand dollars to pay for the right of use in the Government shops. It is said to impart an extraordinary hardness and durability to the poorest qualities of steel.

The following description of the process is from Siegfried's specification, patent of July 16th, 1872: "I first heat the steel to a cherry red in a clean smith's fire, and then cover the steel with chloride of sodium (common salt), purifying the fire also by throwing in salt. I work the steel in this condition and while subjected to this treatment, until it is brought into nearly its finished form. I then substitute for the salt a compound composed of the following ingredients and in about the following proportions: One part, by weight, of each of the following substances: chloride of sodium, sulphate of copper, sal ammoniac, and sal soda, together with one half part, by weight, of pure nitrate of potassa, said ingredients being pulverized and mixed. I alternately heat the steel and treat it by covering with this mixture and hammering until it is thoroughly refined and brought into its finished form. I then return it to the fire and heat it slowly to a cherry red, and then plunge it into a bath composed of the following ingredients in substantially the following proportions for the required quantity; of rain water, one gallon; of alum, one ounce and a half; of nitrate of potassa, one ounce; and of chloride of sodium, six ounces. These quantities and proportions are stated as being what I regard as practically the best, but it is manifest that they may be slightly changed without departing from the principle of my invention.

"What I claim as my improvement in the art of refining and tempering steel, and desire to secure my letters patent, is the successive processes or steps of the process, with the use of the materials or their equivalents, substantially as set forth.

Terrible Railroad Accident.

A frightful accident took place on the night of October 14th, on the Central Pacific Railroad, near the town of Truckee. While the eastward bound passenger train was running down the grade, and when within about three miles of the town the train became detached in some unknown manner from the two engines. The air brake, of course, became useless and the detached portion of the train now attained a frightful velocity, some say 100 miles an hour. Soon after flying across the Truckee bridge at this fearful speed the mail, baggage and express cars jumped the track and went down the embaukment where they were crushed to splinters, and killing instantly Van Warmer, the messenger of Wells, Fargo & Co; Captain Taylor, guard, and Mr. Houk, postal agent, whose head was terribly crushed, leaving nothing but the face. D. G. Marshall, conductor, was caught between the baggage car and sleepers, and his body nearly severed in twain. The bodies were taken to Sacramento for burial. Mr. Miner, brakeman, was also fatally injured, his right thigh being crushed in a terrible manner. The train-boy was slightly injured No passengers were injured. It was a terrible smash up and it is wonderful that no more persons were killed.

Celebrities.

Mr. J. A. Froude, the historian, one of the greatest thinkers and writers in England, is now in this country, and purposes to give a series of lectures on the relations of the English Government and people to the people of Ireland. There are also in this country Edmund Yates and George MacDonald, the novelists; Professor Tyndall, the scientist, after whom one of our neighboring lofty mountain peaks was named, and Emily Faithful, the philanthropist, all of whom are catering for American popularity. Since Mr. Thomas Hughes visited the United States two years ago, quite a large number of the authors and learned men of England have come to this country. George MacDonald who is now in Boston, will be a prominent lecturer the coming season. Professor Tyndall has brought with him all the necessary apparatus for repeating in America the popular scientific courses which he delivered in England. Miss Emily Faithful will also lecture on the opening of new and useful careers for women.

Railroad Tunnel Destroyed by Fire.

The long tunnel on the Virginia and Truckee railroad, a few miles south of American Flat, took fire a few days since, and despite the most strenuous exertions on the part of the railroad men and two fire companies, continued to burn until all the timbers were destroyed, when the earth caved in, filling the tunnel almost from one end to the other. This accident, of course, effectually blockades the road for the present and it will require at least ten days to put it in running order again. In the meantime a number of the large mills on the Carson will be compelled to shut down for want of ore All the railroad freight is now transferred to wagons at the Mound House, about six miles from Virginia City. The mines necessarily feel the effects, and the Crown Point has discharged one hundred workmen

Sale of a Newspaper.

A report is current in the East that Colonel Forney has disposed of the Philadelphia Press to a combination of politicians, who are thought to be more in earnest in the support of Grant than the founders of the newspaper. The price paid, although not given, is said to be very large, and that Cameron furnishes a good share of it.

Terrible Homicide.

On last Thursday morning a terrible homicide occurred three miles below Kingston, when Richard D. Brewer shot and instantly killed his partner W. J. Donaldson. It appears from all that we can gather at present that an altercation in regard to business matters occurred between them, and harsh words were exchanged on both sides, when, it is stated, Donaldson attempted to draw his revolver on Brewer, but was forestalled by the latter, who fired three shots in succession, at a distance of about six feet, hitting Donaldson each time, killing him on the spot Donaldson leaves a wife and one child. Brewer had his examination yesterday afternoon before Judge Bradley, but too late for our columns.—Tulare Times, Oct 17th.

—The Omaha Bee doesn't mean anything personal, but opines that if the Omaha postmaster would resign, "many persons would feel less anxious about their money-letters."

THE GREAT RACE.

California horsemen, as well as many others, are "muchly" down in the mouth;" their green and untried pet and pride, Occident, met his formidable and unequaled competitor, Goldsmith Maid, and fell an easy victim to her winning ways. People aren't mad because he didn't beat her, for they knew it was an unreasonable thing to expect this little brown and green horse in his first attempt to win a race from the fastest trotter that has ever yet made a track. That wasn't it; the misery was, he couldn't crowd her down to less than 2:20¼. Of course Occident was in bad condition, but not any worse, we fancy, than the pockets of those enthusiastic individuals (and their name is legion) who staked their coin on time bets of 2:18 and even less. The Maid got away with every heat and the purse of $7,500. The first half mile was made in 1:07¼, said to be the fastest ever made by any trotter in the world, and the mile in 2:20½; the next in 2:20¼ and the last in 2:22. Many false starts were made, nine in all, we believe. Jim Eoff, Occident's driver, was fined twice, $50 each time for not jogging up for the start a little quicker, and for talking saucy to the judge; and then he trotted in ahead of the Maid in the third heat and took the pole from her, which was all well enough, one would think, considering it on general principles, but Budd Doble, the other driver, couldn't see it in that light, and so he entered a charge, after the race, for foul driving, which charge was dismissed. Jackman, the manager of the mare, made it a personal matter and went for that "honest man and horseman," James Eoff. Jame was at home when he got there, and went to work very energetically to build a head on the said Jackman, but friends interfered so that no progress was made in this well intended architectural operation. The attendance at the race track of people of all sorts, sizes and shapes was never before equaled in this State in point of numbers, however it may have been in regard to respectability, and the excitement, in anticipation, was even greater than the crowd.

The Great Register.

Almost the entire force of this office have been steadily engaged for the past two weeks in getting out the Great Register for this county. Though the number of registries is not materially larger than it was last year, the new form adopted for it fully doubles the work, and on this account we have been compelled to neglect our paper in this and the preceding issue to a greater extent than is agreeable to our own desires, however it may be with our readers. Next week we design a somewhat extended notice of the Register—its peculiarities of names, occupations, etc.

The Supreme Power shorn of Civil Power.

A Washington special says a prominent Government officer traveling in Europe writes from Rome to a friend in this city as follows: "Speaking of the Pope, I must confess I was astonished to find his authority here so completely ignored. The people hate the priests, and have seconded all the movements of the King of Italy against the Papal power. I can tell you, as a matter of personal knowledge, that the Vatican is all that the Pope has left. The Quirinel and his other palaces have been taken from him. Many of their churches have been seized and converted into offices or military barracks. Monasteries and convents have been broken up, and other church buildings closed The Papal troops have been disbanded and the household guard, who are not permitted outside the Vatican in uniform, I learn will also be broken up Of seventy two Cardinals, the number has been reduced to about forty five."

Narrow Guage Railroads

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State in California, for the construction of a narrow guage railroad from Sacramento extending through the agricultural and mining districts north of that city. The call claims that the project is a grand one, and ought by all means to be carried out. The people will find it almost, as easy to construct narrow guage railroads, when once they take the matter in hand, as they would to construct ordinary turnpike roads. A similar road, running two hundred miles south of this city, extending to the southern boundary of Mono county, would shortly become immensely productive. There is no safer or more remunerative field for capital on the coast, and it is a mystery to us why the opportunity is not embraced. The building of a road, along the east base of the Sierra Nevada, into the Mono country, is but a question of time.—Carson Register Oct. 17th.

—A Methodist minister traveling in Oregon relates the following story: Seeing a dirty faced butternut urchin at the fence in front of a house, he asked, "Is your father at home?" "No; he's gone to church" "Is your mother in?" "No; she's gone too." "Then you are by yourself?" "No; Sam's in thar huggin' sister." "That's bad." "Yes, it's bad, but it's the best he can do."

"MINER" SPEAKS.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT:—The Lida correspondent of The Reese River Reveille seems to be in trouble, and is finding fault about the working of ores at Deep Spring. I can not see why he should find fault. The charges for reduction are $50 per ton, $5 more than at Columbus; freight to Deep Spring is $15 per ton less than to Columbus; the same percentage is paid on ore, and the same deductions are made. He "fondly hopes that other parties may be induced to put up a mill," etc. If any person or persons were to build a mill of the capacity of one ton per day with the expectation of getting ore from the enterprising correspondent they would find their mill hung up at least twenty-nine days out of every thirty The Lida Mill & Mining Co did not propose to build a mill until they saw that they wanted one, and if they had to wait on such men as the said correspondent to develop mines and show the necessity of a mill, none of the present owners could hope to live to see one required.

The assays as given by him are correct, I presume; as he could get the figures from the certificates of assay, but he has failed to give the amounts worked, as is always the best. Leaving out the Lida Belle and Brown's Hope I doubt if there has been ten tons worked. There is not a doubt but that the mines are good as far as prospected, and that they have the appearance of being permanent and profitable, but the amount of prospecting has been limited I think there is a shaft on the Sewana about six feet deep, perhaps a little more; the shaft or hole on the Martin & Henly is five feet six inches deep. Several other mines have a respectable amount of work done on them, which proves them to be of some value It is to be hoped that capitalists may see the necessity of building mills, and the correspondent can be assured that as soon as justifiable amounts of ore are thrown in sight there will not be a lack of mill facilities. Dreadful Railroad Accident—A Woman Run over and Killed.

[From The Gold Hill News, October 11th.]

Early this morning, as the upward bound passenger train was approaching the Virginia City depot, Mrs. A. Gilman, the wife of a miner who resides on the west side of F street, at the junction of the Savage switch, attempted to cross the track about twenty feet ahead of the engine, when, according to some accounts, she slipped and fell on the track. Others say that she appeared to be completely paralyzed with fright, and unable to move until the engine struck her, knocking her down and passing over her, terribly crushing the right leg below the knee, and the left foot in front of the ankle; also fracturing the skull and otherwise injuring her She was immediately taken into her residence, a few yards from the spot and Dr. F. J. White summoned, who found it necessary, assisted by Doctors Tobin and Heath, to amputate the right leg below the knee and the left foot at the instep, which operation was skillfully performed after placing the poor sufferer under the influence of chloroform. The woman, it appears, was returning from a visit to a neighbor on the opposite side of the street, and, strange as it may seem, must have seen and knew that the train was close upon her when she made the attempt. No blame whatever is attached to the engineer or conductor, as the bell was ringing and the train moving at a very moderate rate of speed at the time. Mrs. Gilman has three children—a boy seventeen or eighteen years old, who is confined to a bed of sickness, a girl eight or nine years old, and another son in a telegraph office in San Francisco. She came from Oakland, Cal., about three months ago. Her husband, who was absent at Vallejo, was expected home to-day. The cries of the poor woman at the time of the fearful accident are described as heart rending After being taken to her bed, she could only beg for something to relieve the dreadful pain, and expressed her wish to die. Even after the amputation she desired that death should relieve her from further suffering. The shock to her nervous system was too great for endurance, and after lying a few hours longer in agony of both body and mind, death kindly came to her relief about 1 o'clock P. M. She was about 50 years of age, a kind, noble-hearted, well beloved wife and mother, highly esteemed by all who knew her. Possessed of an excellent education, she was also quite talented as an artist in painting, and came from a good family. She was sister to J. H. Redstone, attorney, at Oakland, California.

Train of ox-teams

A long train of ox teams passed through town, yesterday, loaded with assorted merchandise for Levy & Co., Aurora. Similar trains are of daily occurrence, loaded with mixed freight for the immense territory south And, now the railroad is completed to Reno, freighting in that direction will be largely increased, and thus a lively business is opened up with our southern neighbors heretofore unknown to this section. Thus far, however, the railroad company has been unable to bring forward the freight as fast as received at Reno, greatly to the inconvenience of consignees. The trouble will be remedied shortly More locomotives are required to do the work, and as fast as possible the requisite number will be put on Before the completion of the railroad, freight for southern Nevada was transported from California by way of Los Angeles and routes across the mountains south of this place. Carson now has the benefit of this traffic, which in time will prove a feature of no small proportions to this the great central depot for Western Nevada.—Carson Register, Oct 17th

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Rich Prospect.

Jimmy Sharp, the eccentric, well-known prospector the other day exhibited at our office a gold pan containing the result of the washing of several pansful of the decomposed dirt found within the walls of a ledge-discovery which he has recently made in the old Alabama District, about midway between this place and Lone Pine. The gold was very fine, but in such quantity as to very forcibly remind one of the halcyon "days when we went prospecting, long time ago." In those times a similar exhibition would create a general break in the direction of the new find, and this one should at least induce some one to go into thorough and systematic mining in the district named. Sharp has, probably, more mines containing rich ore than any other man in the world, and is about as poor in dollars and cents—yet (and the anomaly appears remarkable) he is indomitably energetic and independent. We certainly hope that he now has something immensely rich that he can handle to his own satisfaction and advantage.

Lida Valley,

It transpires that in our report of the purchase of the Lida Belle mine by Messrs. Hiskey & Walker there occurred an error of a few thousand in the amount stated as the price paid, the sum being $16,000 instead of $12,000. This seems conclusive that there is merit in the Lida District, especially when we consider the fact that the gentlemen named have shipped, during the past Summer, $45,000 in bullion—the proceeds of a five stamp mill which was not in operation more than one fifth of the time. It is stated that they have on the dumps at the mines $30,000 worth of second class ore, and we learn that they have recently purchased the Washington Mill (an 8 stamp) on Walker river, Nevada, and that Mr. Hiskey is now tearing it down for removal to Lida—calculating to have it in place by December 1st.

To be Rebuilt.

Belshaw & Co. have a new engine and other machinery now on the way to Cerro Gordo, which is to take the place of that now in their furnace, a good portion of which is also to be rebuilt and put in the best possible condition for work. The new engine is much more powerful than that now in use. Mr. Beaudry has also ordered a new and powerful engine for his furnace, the capacity of which he intends to increase so as to reduce fifty tons of ore per day. The prospects of the camp are very flattering, generally.

Recovering.

Our printshop was one evening during the past week invaded by the Cerro Gordo lead-d patients, who have for some time been under the treatment of Dr. Blair, of this place. The party consisting of A. J. Gould, Taswell Dodd and Martin Moe, are a most convalescent-ests lot of sicks, and all talk of shortly returning to their regular diet of vaporous lead. Mr. Shepherd, assayer at the Union works, and Dr. H. W. Gould, accompanied the party.

To Tax-Payers

Tax-Collector Mulkey, by Deputy "Dad" Moore, elsewhere gives notice that he will be in the various precincts of the county on specified dates, for the purpose of receiving taxes for this fiscal year. It is a good idea to promptly pay all taxes at the outset, and thus avoid the chance of those additional costs which delays and oversights involve.

Lumber.

The Black Rock saw mill seems to be keeping up its unremitting efforts to supply the demand for building material, judging from the fact that on the 18th instant, 15,779 feet of lumber were shipped for the valley, and for the twelve preceding days 60,155 feet were forwarded.

Staging

Our old friend "Chips" Rascoe, who formerly punched mules in Washoe, is now chief-engineer and proprietor of the Benton and Columbus stage line, as we learn from an order for way bills. The route is, we believe, a semi weekly, and doing a good business—Columbus being a lively camp now a-days.

Steam Hoisting Works in Operation.

We learn that the steam hoisting works on the Union Mine, Cerro Gordo, are now in operation. The engine is located about 175 feet under ground and about 400 feet from the mouth of the tunnel. It works, in all respects, in the most satisfactory manner.

Sale of Work Cattle.

T. D. Lewis recently purchased thirty head of young, unbroke work cattle of John Broder, paying therefor at the rate of $65 per head. We presume these cattle are to be used in hauling lumber from Lewis' mill for the public buildings.

Cash.

Several thousand dollars worth of outstanding county warrants are redeemable in coin at the County Treasurer's office.

Notice to Masons.

Our Masonic readers will please take note of a call addressed to them in another column.

Personal.

Harry Isaacs, County Treasurer, returned last Sunday morning from the Bay, looking very fresh, smiling and happy. The fifteen-knot salt breezes which they regularly have down there seem to have a very invigorating effect on sage brushers generally, provided they do not fall into bad habits the which none of them from this section have yet done, so far as we have heard—but our reports are not very complete on this point. Harry and the rest of them always look happy when they get home again, mainly, we think, because they have but little confidence in the stability of the ground they stand on when they are on that side of the mountains and feel relieved when they get back where they know by experience it can stand a great deal of shaking without going entirely to pieces.—Mr. Wiegard, superintendent of the Silver Sprout Mines, started to the Bay last Saturday morning.—Messrs. Bennett and Reddy arrived yesterday and both are looking as well as usual.

Whipped.

Harry C. Wright, the popular proprietor and gentlemanly Jehu of the Aurora and Independence stage line, on Thursday last received from some unknown admirer an elegant stage whip, which possesses every adornment possible to be placed upon the representative implement of the trade. The lash and stock are of the most artistic shape and finish, and well adapted to service. The stock is strengthened by eight Washoe-bullion ferules, the butt being encased with a mounting of the same material, which is engraved with a presentation inscription—the donor being "C" simply. Brown, the Independence agent of the line, says that the concern has also received a bugle which they are going to toot till you can't rest—it being the last horn which he and Harry have taken.

Freight Shipments.

E. Olinghouse, shipping agent at Los Angeles, reports having shipped the following freight for this county October 22d: J. Schalton, Independence, 1 bbl whisky, weight 475 lbs.; J. B. Rowley, Independence, 39 pckgs, weight 2138 lbs.; O. R. Putney, Independence, 11 pckgs, weight 673 lbs.; C. D. Begole, Lone Pine, 1 bbl. whisky; J. S. Rothschild & Co., Independence, 16 pckgs, weight 1457 lbs.; A. A. Q. M. Camp Independence, 12 pckgs windows, weight 2238 lbs.; V. Hoff & Co., Lone Pine, 45 pckgs, weight 3643 lbs.; V. Hoff & Co., Cerro Gordo, 221 pckgs, weight 17,177 lbs. We shall hereafter give regular weekly reports of the freight shipment through this agency.

Shooting Affray.

Last Tuesday night some Mexicans got into a row at Lola's saloon, Cerro Gordo, which culminated in a general shooting match. One of the participants received a dangerous wound in the groin, and two others were considerably hurt. We have not been able to learn any of the names of the parties, as, so far as known here, no arrests, or legal investigation of the affair has been made. It is said the balls flew up and down the street and through some one or two of the neighboring houses very promiscuously, but fortunately no person, except those directly engaged in the affair, were injured.

Earthquakes.

About 5 o'clock on the morning of the 18th instant, Bakersfield, Havilah, and that region generally had quite a severe earthquake. It reminded them of old times. About the same date Oakland and San Francisco were similarly favored. Last Monday morning our neighbors of Bishop Creek received a similar notification to mend their evil ways, and it is quite possible that this and other portions of the county have had several such reminders in the past week or two.

A Planing Mill.

We are pleased to announce the fact that Tim Lewis will soon have a planing mill in operation at his saw mill on Bishop Creek. The machinery for the planer is now due. We think Mr. Lewis would have made a greater success in this operation if he had located his planer here, as it would have commanded all the business in that line from the other saw mills, which, of course, it cannot do now.

Political Speaking.

By reference to announcement elsewhere, it will be seen that the Hon. Thos. Laspeyre and others will address the citizens of Lone Pine on political questions, in advocacy of the Greeley or Liberal-Republican-Democratic cause, on the evening of the 30th instant, and at Cerro Gordo on the evening of the following day. We would urge a full attendance, irrespective of creed or party.

Returned.

Mr. W. Belshaw has recently returned to Cerro Gordo from Corrinne, where he in company with Mr. Senter, late of Cerro Gordo, has just successfully started a new furnace. We understand he will divide his attention between his furnace at Cerro Gordo and Corrinne.

Cigars.

Somehow knowing the weakness of overworked printers, Mr. Jeems P. Meriham, acting as a sort of Good Samaritan, last night considerately forwarded to this office a lot of cigars and other "refreshments," to the delight of the whole establishment.

On the Ground.

All the lumber for the Lone Pine bridge is now on the ground, and that structure will be completed at the earliest possible date. The lumber for the Court House and the other bridges is all cut and ready for delivery.

Porkers.

See notification of a chance to invest in a fine lot of hogs.

Tails and Tales.

The following essay on dogs was written by a small New England boy, this Summer: As this is the tale of a dog, it may be inferred that every dog has a tail, and that every tail has a dog. I have never seen a dog's tail run over two feet, but the tale of a dog can run any length, and two feet always ran under the tail. As every dog has its tail, and every tail its dog, so also has every tail its wag, and every wag his tale; a dog car wag his tail one day in two, but a wag can tell his tale eight days out of a week, making a total difference between the wag of a tail and the tale of a wag two days, seven wags and a tail. Mr. Shakespeare (late of England) says that every dog has his day, but it can also be said that every day has its dog, so that we have day-dogs and dog days—dog-days are twenty-four hours long without the tail, but day-dogs and watch-dogs run to any length if they are not chained. A watch-dog on land is the same as the dog-watch on board ship, but they are entirely different from dogging a man's watch and watching a man's dog. I have often seen star-fish, but I never heard of a star-dog, although astronomer's do say there is a dog star, and that by falling down over a dog you can see stars, but this double vision does not affect the measurement of a dog; he contains just eight feet, two fore and two hind. There are many ways in which this dog's tale could be drawn out, but a good healthy dog's tail should not be over six inches long.

Bed Bugs.

An exchange gives the following as a sure way to drive bed bugs from old beds: Take green tomato vines, put them in a basin or tray, pound them to pieces as fine as possible, then stain the bedstead which they inhabit with the juice, fill the crevices with pieces of vine and lay leaves under the ends of the slats. If this is practised twice a year not a bug will remain in the bedstead.

Hair Wash.

Take one ounce of borax and half an ounce of camphor powder—these ingredients fine—and dissolve them in one quart of boiling water. When cool, the solution will be ready for use. Damp the hair frequently. This wash is said not only to cleanse and beautify, but to strengthen the hair, preserve the color and prevent baldness.

A Needful Hint.

You can clear your room of the merciless mosquitoes by taking a piece of gum champhor, about one third the size of a hen's egg, and evaporating it by placing it in a tin vessel, and holding it over a lamp or candle, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room and expel the pests.

Remedy for Croup.

Mothers will be interested to know that turpentine is a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel with it, and place the flannnl on the throat and chest. In very severe cases from three to five drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly.

To Cool a Room.

Wet a cloth of any size, the larger the better, and suspend it in a room. Let the ventilation be good, and the temperature will sink from ten to twenty degrees in less than an hour.

—Squire—"Hobson, they tell me you've taken your boy away from the National School; what's that for?"

Villager—"'Cause the master ain't fit to teach 'im!"

Squire—"Oh, I've heard he's a very good master."

Villager—"Well, all I know is, that he wanted to teach my boy to spell 'taters' with a 'p.'" —A bridal couple, visiting some mountain wonders in West Virginia recently, approached too near the edge of a cliff, and were precipitated over it, both being instantly killed.

LIFE.

To live is not to live, if we but dwell,
Voiceless and soulless, passionless and low,
The first among mere beings. 'Tis our part
To live more nobly in this bright, free world,
Which God has built us. He has formed us so,
For pure enjoyment and for calm content,
To love his works, each other and himself.
What beauty, strength, perfection, here for man;
For man, for frail humanity, for me.
Then I must live, not linger on the earth;
Must stand erect as God has placed me here;
Must love to praise Him, worship, glorify;
And living, dying help to swell the song,
Which hails Him Monarch, God of endless love.

Figures Won't Lie.

BY REV. JAMES MILLER.

"To-morrow is the twenty-fourth, isn't it, Mary?"

"The twenty-fourth," answered the young wife, sadly.

James Carroll knocked the ashes from his cigar, held it carefully between the forefinger and thumb of his left hand, and looked thoughtfully into the fire. Mary's tired fingers showed no signs of weariness, but turned the hem of a sheet mechanically, then proceeded to baste it for sewing.

"Belle will be three years old?" he said interrogatively.

"Three, James," replied Mary, without the trace of a bright smile lighting up her pretty young face. James gave a few more whiffs at his nearly consumed cigar, but did not seem to enjoy it much. A listener would have pronounced Mary a cold, unloving wife, that the genial presence of her handsome husband, or the return of her baby's birthday failed to please.

Lookers on and listeners do not always look into the depths of the heart to see what trials and struggles are there. So in this instance. Another woman whose life is all sunshine would have pronounced Mary Carroll heartless. Poor thing! She had too much heart for this world's trial. Her wedding day was a blissful one; her husband the ideal of manly perfection. His love, unaccompanied by wealth, was more to her than all the treasures of the earth. But a cloud arose to dim the brightness of her sky. She soon made the discovery that he was human; that the love of wine, and possibly something stronger, filled his heart, as well as the love of his wife. He was not what the world called an intemperate man—one glass a day does not constitute a drunkard—why should she fear?

At the end of three years he took at least two glasses a day. What had she to hope for in the years to come?

"I wish, Mary, I was able to make Belle a present every birthday in her life, but you know it is all I can do to get along as it is."

"I know it, James," meekly replied the wife.

James was ill at ease. Something in Mary's manner disturbed him.

"What makes you so solemn and quiet, Mary? Why not sympathize with me, and say you know I have a hard time to get along, and that Belle can do without presents better than we can afford to make them? Fox gave me the wood bill this morning, and Jones wants to know when the grocery bill is to be paid. I don't like to bother you with these things, only I want you to understand that as much as I love our little girl I cannot afford to make her presents."

Mary's color came and went. Tears stole into her violet eyes, and her heart beat quick and fast. Her trembling fingers guided her needle unsteadily, and her stitches were long and irregular. These long years she had brooded alone over her husband's weakness without a reproof, and much as she dreaded to speak she knew her time had come:

"I wish, dear James, I could economise in something, and save money to buy our darling a present. It seems cruel to neglect her birth-day so soon."

"I know nothing you could be more prudent in, Mary, and you know I am as economical as possible, don't you?"

It is very hard for the lips that had uttered only loving words of praise, to say no; but a strength not her own came to her aid, and with a sweet, sad smile, the wife uttered her first rebuke.

"No, James, I am grieved to say that I feel that in some things you are too extravagant. It must be a sin of ignorance, for I know if you realized it you would never wrong your wife and child."

James started from his seat. His eyes flashed, and his cheeks paled.

"Mary, are you crazy?"

"Not crazy, James, but too clear-headed for our happiness."

After the shock had passed, and he was prepared to listen, she went on, and in a clear, concise manner, laid before him the cause of her bitter words:

"During the last year you have drank, at least, two glasses of liquor a day, haven't you?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so. What of that? Only ten cents a glass—that cannot ruin a man."

"Three hundred and sixty-five days, which, multiplied by twenty cents, amounts to seventy-three dollars. Three cigars a day, which you know is below your average of smoking will amount to as much more, which makes one hundred and forty-six dollars. Fifty dollars would pay our coal and grocery bills, now due, and leave a balance of ninety-six dollars for baby, you, and me. You know, too, the time spent in drinking and smoking is worse than wasted, for tobacco and liquor poison the system, destroy the health, soften the brain, weaken the nerves, and bring ruin to thousands of happy homes. There is a lack of tenderness for Belle and me when your nerves are excited by drink. I forgive you freely, but the sting is left in my heart."

"Mary's efforts overcame her, and she fell into a passionate fit of weeping.

The strong man trembled.

"Am I blind? Is it possible I have wronged my dearest treasures?"

They mingled their tears, and talked till a late hour, laying plans for the future; and James begged forgiveness of her he had wronged.

"It is not too late to prove my health and strength," said the penitent man, and so it proved.

In one year from that day, two beautiful silver cups were brought home by the happy father, one for Belle's fourth birth-day, the other for the wife who had saved him. Mary's bore the inscription: "An angel saw me falling, and lifted me up." Belle's was also neatly engraved: "A little child shall lead them."

Years have passed since then, and the happy couple in the vigor of life, on each recurring birthday of Belle, who is now a young lady of eighteen, relate to her the little trial of their married life, and the great happiness that has grown from self-denial and justice.

The good wife and mother has kept the silver bright, and not a meal has been eaten at home but these cups were on the table where James could be reminded of promises he had made and so faithfully kept.

Interest.

[From The New York Mercantile Journal.]

Long ago we determined that it should not be our fault if our readers did not soon better appreciate the accumulations of interest, and how impossible it is for any business to long pay current high rates. Possibly some have almost tired seeing our oft-repeated table about the accumulations of one dollar at different rates for a hundred years. But, tired or not, it is a healthful sight; and every business man ought to have that table where it will meet his eye at least once a week; and even then it is probable he will allow many dollars unnecessarily to accumulate in interest against him. This may be in dead stock, in unnecessary fixtures, or in various expenses easily dispensed with. If he would be successful, he should count the interest he might receive as well as that he has to pay.

Especially in making permanent investments let no one forget the interest account. However familiar with this subject, there are probably a few who would not be startled at the statement that the cost of the outfit of Christopher Columbus in his first voyage of discovery, put at interest at six per cent., would at this time have amounted to more than the entire money value of this continent, together with the accumulations from the industry of all who have lived upon it. If any doubt this, let them reckon the amount, estimating the entire outfit to have cost only the small sum of five thousand dollars, and remembering that money doubles at six per cent. in a little less than twelve years—or accurately, in eleven years, ten months, and twenty-one days. Allowing it to double every twelve years, this five thousand dollars at interest at six per cent. since 1492, it will be found, would have amounted to $17,895,700,000,000, which, estimating the population of the entire continent of America to be eighty-five millions, or seventeen million families (averaging five members each) would give more than a million dollars as the possession of every one of these. The interest upon a million dollars at six per cent. is sixty thousand dollars, which would be the princely annual income of each of these seventeen million families from the accumulations upon so small a sum as that named for the outfit of the discoverer.

We are glad to see the following computation going the round of the press:

"One thousand dollars loaned at six per cent. in twelve years will accumulate to $2,000; in twenty-four years to $4,000; in thirty-six years to $8,000; in forty-eight years to $16,000; in sixty years to $32,000; in seventy-two years to $64,000; eighty-four years to $128,000; in ninety-six years to $256,000; in one hundred and eight years to $512,000; in one hundred and twenty years to $1,024,000. Multiply this sum by 1,024 and it will give the accumulation for one hundred and twenty years more, or $1,048,576,000. Multiply this product by 1,024 and we shall have the accumulation for the next one hundred and twenty years, or a total period of three hundred and sixty years—$1,073,741,824,000—one trillion, seventy-three billions, seven hundred and forty-one millions, eight hundred and twenty-four thousand dollars.

"This is rather an incomprehensible amount for even a nation to manage, but perhaps we can make use of one year's interest on the sum, which amounts to $64,424,509,440, or over $20 a minute for every minute in the age of the world, allowing it to be six thousand years old. Or if this calculation is too complicated to be readily apprehended, we can take the interest of it for four months and pay off our whole national debt."

Our table of the accumulation of one dollar, alluded to above, we again subjoin for the benefit of any who may perchance never have seen it, as well as those who have not as yet fully considered the important lesson it teaches.

If one dollar be invested, and the interest added to the principal annually, at the rates named, we shall have the following result as the accumulation of one hundred years:

One dollar,	100 years,	at 1 P cent..	$	2¾

Earthquake in Scotland.

A shock of an earthquake was felt on August 10th, about ten minutes past 4 o'clock, at the Bridge of Allan and a considerable extent of adjacent country. In Dunblane and Bridge of Allan a number of houses were severely shaken, and glass was broken on sideboards. At the same time a shock was felt in Sterling at Allan Park, Gladstone Villas, and other places, and was attended with a loud rumbling noise like thunder. One person who felt the shock compared the sensation to that caused by the passing of a railway train. A lady, residing in Bridge of Allan, described the noise as resembling that caused by a carriage being taken from the adjoining coach house. No such shock of an earthquake has occurred in Scotland since 1839, when the shock passed from Lisbon, through France and Great Britain, to the northwest of Scotland.

The Tunnel.

Young America Engine Company, No. 2, took their steamer down to the American Flat railroad tunnel again this morning, and flooded the heated mass in the interior of the hill. Fire was found smouldering in the center of the tunnel, and so intense had been the heat that great masses of slag or melted rock had run down and formed huge bowlders.—Virginia Chronicle, Oct. 26th.

Johnny Bartholomew's Dash.

[From The Gold Hill News, Oct. 18th.]

The passage of the train from Reno yesterday morning through the burning tunnel the other side of the American Flat, will have to stand recorded as one of the most brilliant as well as fortunate dashes ever made under such circumstances. Johnny Bartholomew, one of the best engineers that ever mounted a locomotive, had, on this particular occasion, happened to change off with Charley McCormick, the regular engineer of the "Reno," therefore was the hero of this occasion. There was no trusty watchman or anybody else to give warning of the impending danger, and the train was around the curve and into the tunnel before the fire could be seen. The tunnel is 650 feet in length, and the fire being at the opposite end, there was little time for thinking or acting and not enough for stopping. The deep red, roaring flames and dense, black smoke were ahead, and it looked like attempting a mad rush through tophet, but there was no other way for it. The lives of the passengers and all hands were in the care of Johnny Bartholomew, and nobody knew it better than he. His first impulse was to reverse the engine and whistle down brakes, but his quick conclusion was that that wouldn't do, so with a resolute jerk of the lever he "threw her wide open." The Reno gave an angry snort and rushed madly forward like a freed racer with whirlwind speed right through the fiery mass. Johnny held fast to the lever, closed one eye, held his breath and tried to think of some prayer as he passed in his checks, for he imagined he could feel the hot rails bending like lead under the wheels, and both felt and heard the blazing timbers and other fallen obstructions on the track being dashed aside by the trusty cow-catcher. The women passengers screamed, and even the stoutest hearted men quivered with sudden fear as they dashed through the fierce, hot light, but in another instant the terrible gauntlet was passed and they safely slowed down in the cool, gray morning daylight beyond.

Dirt, stones and blazing bits of timber on the cow-catcher, and the shower of burning coals covering the train, showed how dangerous were the obstructions so safely passed, yet they had rushed through so quickly that the paint on the passenger coaches was not even scorched. Johnny cannot rush an engine through that tunnel to-day, for every timber throughout its entire length burned out as clean as a shotgun, and huge cavings of earth and rock render it impassable for many days to come. Had the train struck or been wrecked amid the fiery obstructions, the fierce flames, caving earth and suffocating smoke of that underground passage, a more horrible, more heart-sickening calamity than ever before recorded might have occurred, but thank Heaven it didn't.

"The machine and all is in my hands,"
Says brave Johnny Bartholomew.
"So here goes as the case now stands,
For I'm bound to roll 'em through.

He jerked the lever, opened wide
The hissing throttle valve,
For he couldn't afford on such a ride
To do things up by halves.

They plunged right through that burning hell,
The Reno snorted "Kuo!"
Says Johnny: "Old gal, you done it well,
And bravely too, as we know."

He wiped the cinders from his eye,
Looked back, when he could do it,
And said: "That may be good for high,
But I'm mighty glad we're through it."

State Geological Survey.

We expect to be severely censured for joining with other journals, mostly Democratic, against the State Geological Survey as conducted by Professor Whitney, who it appears has sufficient influence to secure the necessary appropriations from each successive legislature, without regard to its politics. While speaking of the Professor, we may as well say that his presence or absence is of little consequence to the State. We believe the survey, in the manner it is conducted, is almost worthless, and falls far short of being equal to the cost. Paleontology will do very well for Savans. What we want is practical, useful knowledge. This it has never occurred to the Professor to seek. If we do not know how old the world is for the next thousand years it won't hurt anybody. These curious matters are eagerly pursued by theorists of fortune, and best left in their hands. We have yet to learn that our State Survey has developed one useful practical fact: if we must promote science, let it be the tangible and useful. Let our soils be analyzed, and the farmer be instructed where he can find a rich soil and what crop he can raise to advantage. Let the best mode of applying water to growing crops, where it is necessary, be studied, experimented on, and made public. Tell him what grapes, or plants suitable to sustain cattle, will thrive in this locality, and how to cultivate them. If we must have geology, let it map out the State; show the different formations, and tell us what mineral wealth we may expect in each. This would be worth money; but merely to pick up flowers and shells, and apply to them outlandish names that only serve to disguise them from the mass of our people, is so palpably trifling and absurd that we are out of patience with it. We heartily pray that the next Legislature will stop our part of it, or give it a useful direction.—Visalia Delta.

The Reasons for not Wishing to Die.

We have heard a good many, and very strong ones, too. Indeed, they are plenty as blackberries, for the reasons for not dying are just all the reasons for not doing the most disagreeable thing in the world. But we recently met with a new one. It was objected that people in ordinary circumstances cannot afford it.

In the progress of American absurdities, funerals are more costly than weddings, and are conducted an pretty much the same æsthetic principles. A coffin used to be sufficient to inclose the remains of a man, and a decent one could be got for a few dollars. Now, the corpse must have a casket—a huge, fine piece of decorated cabinet-ware lace and satin with silver mountings. This must be stuffed and covered with hot-house flowers; kid gloves and crape must be profusely distributed; costly graves must be purchased in pleasure-gardens; and then all the ladies of the family must give away their dresses, and be newly fitted in mourning. When the bills come in to the widow and orphans, their sum is often crushing.—American Artisan.

Trade.

One man with any trade is worth a thousand without any. A return to the old plan of apprenticing boys to trades is being advocated. The hosts of young men in every large city who apply for employment and fail to get it, for the reason that they cannot truthfully affirm that they are educated or especially fitted for any particular business, constitutes a potent argument in favor of reform. Under the apprentice system we should have fewer ignorant mechanics and incompetent business men. A trade is half a man's fortune.

—Ode to a money lender—"Meet me a loan."—Zozimus.

—A prosperous merchant has for his motto: "Early to bed, and early to rise, never get tight, and advertise."

Candidates promising to appoint or to procure appointments to any office, fine or County Jail. No person must give or offer a ticket to another within one hundred feet of the polls, nor must any voter open or fold his ticket or in any way exhibit to another its contents within one hundred feet of the polls. No person must circulate or vote a ticket with a mark on it by which it can be told from others. Each ticket must be folded four times from the center, thus leaving it four inches long and three quarters of an inch wide when folded, and this must be done one hundred feet from the polls. The Governor has offered one hundred dollars reward for the conviction of any person violating any of the above provisions.

San Juan.

Since 1859 the Island of San Juan in the North Pacific, at the northwestern boundary of the United States, has been jointly occupied by English and American troops. Last year the two governments agreed to abide by the decision of the Emperor of Germany as to which of them owned the island.

The written judgment of the arbitration we now learn has received the signature of the Emperor. It decides in favor of the United States, making the De Haro Channel the boundary. The American people have cause for congratulation that this once vexed question is now definitely settled. The present Administration is deserving of great credit for its success in settling the Alabama claims and the San Juan dispute.

Legal Election Tickets

Three opinions as to the form in which legal election tickets shall be printed, and what they shall and shall not contain, have been published. Creed Haymond, one of the Code Commissioners, has given a written opinion that they must not contain anything but the name of the offices to be filled and the candidates to be voted for. In this opinion Judge Beatty sustains Haymond, while Judge Sanderson writes an elaborate opinion insisting that "Democrat," "Liberal Republican," "Greeley and Brown," "Grant and Wilson," or any such words can be legally printed on the face of the ticket. Under Haymond and Beatty's opinion the tickets will be absolutely legal, while Sanderson's if followed might cause litigation.

Death.

On Saturday morning last a man named Tom Owen, died rather suddenly from the effect of hard drinking. He arrived here some six weeks ago, and to all appearances had considerable money, which he spent in drinking whisky. On last Tuesday week he was attacked with snakes in his boots and became deranged and was removed to the jail, and a man named James Ingram was employed to take charge of him, and all that was possible was done to restore him to himself again, but without success, he dying at 4 o'clock A. M. on Saturday morning. Deceased was well-known on the Pacific Coast, Owens River in Mono county, California, being named after him, and he was once foreman of the Ida Elmore mine in Idaho. He was buried on Sunday last, a large number of people attending the funeral. Prayers were said over him by Bishop Whittaker. Deceased was a native of St. Johns, New Brunswick and aged 45 years.—Schelburn Prospect, Oct. 19th.

A correction of the geographical error in the above is unnecessary, but the facts are that the original discoverer of this valley and river was not "Tom Owen" but Bill Owens—one of Fremont's guides. Bill was six feet six, and at least 30 years older than the Tom referred to. He died, we believe, on Kern river, some years ago.

Machinery for Hualapai.

On Friday last, a large quantity of machinery left the depot for Col. H. F. Baker's new smelting works at Hualapai. This establishment will make the third of its kind in that prosperous region.—Los Angeles News, Oct. 26th.

The fare from Independence to San Francisco via the Telegraph Stage Line and railroad is $46; by stage to Los Angeles $30, to Havilah $20, to Visalia $30.—Havilah Miner, Oct. 7th.

VOTE FOR HOUGHTON.

We are thoroughly in earnest about urging upon the intelligent, thinking men of this county the great importance of casting a correct vote for S. O. Houghton for Congressman. The very fact that any man remains in a locality between the Sierra and Rocky Mountains is proof positive that his chief business and reliance for advancement in the future is identified with the place—that he stays only to make money and a home; and since such is the object, his every action, whether financial or political, should be directed by reference to the future enhancement of his county, and consequently to his individual interests and prosperity. Now, the only drawback of this region, undeniably rich in unnumbered mines and farms, is its isolation and the difficulty of attracting sufficient capital to properly open it up to the great commercial importance which is justly its due. A friend in the capacity of a Congressman, possessing the influence which can only be acquired by a smart man of long experience in legislation and public affairs, is a boon of too much value to be lost. Mr. Houghton is to-day the most conversant with the peoples' land and mining interests of any legislator representing the Pacific Coast, hardly excepting Kendall of Nevada. To Mr. Houghton is undoubtedly due the fact that Inyo county now enjoys more mails than one a week, and to him will be due, if returned to Congress and to his important position as Chairman of the House Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads—the establishment of daily service both north and south. Whatever may be said for or against the one-term principle for the Presidential office, we notice that the older or New England States never fail to secure themselves a supremacy and leadership in Congressional matters by re-electing, term after term, their Senators and Representatives; and it is in these men of experience, backed by the repeated endorsement of their constituencies, wherein lies the power and influence which only can accomplish the legislation needed for the proper support and encouragement of their respective localities.

Fundamentally differing in politics, the editors of this paper have had no object in dealing with political matters, but since what we conceive to be a move advancing the whole interests of our people involves the advocacy of a partisan for office, we have no hesitation in so doing, and believe that our motives will not be misunderstood. A great majority of the political papers of this district are urgently favoring Houghton on general principles, and we do so for our local interests, and believe all hands to be in the right.

The great election falls on the day succeeding day after to-morrow, when every American citizen is expected to exercise the right of suffrage. Vote as you will on the National candidates—in our humble opinion it matters but little which is the successful man—but consider well the local importance of electing S. O. Houghton.

HAIR SPLITTING.

By the unanimous decision of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the State, Johnny Devine, alias the "Chicken," under sentence of death for murder, has been granted a new trial—in other words is practically acquitted of a proven cold blooded murder. The fact that this "Chicken" is as vile a scoundrel as ever went unhung has nothing to do, of course, with his legal rights, but at the same time when such as he are to be snatched from the well-deserved gallows by the merest technicality the public begin to wonder if there is no limit to such legal hair splitting. In the nice discriminations made by jurists in these days the rights of society cut no figure whatever. Every point is strained in favor of the accused, and though it has no bearing whatever upon the guilt or innocence of the accused it virtually clears him of an otherwise established crime against the well-being of society, because not strictly and literally in conformity with some arbitrary rule of court. This is entirely in excess of that just requirement of the law which gives all doubtful points in favor of the accused. That has reference only to the evidence bearing upon the case. If sufficiently conclusive to justify an unqualified conviction, as in the case of Devine, the superior tribunal assume altogether too much, when in the face of such, they practically reverse the judgment and thus turn a convicted murderer loose upon the community for no better reason than that a question had been overruled which might have had some bearing in the case. There never was a murder trial, scarcely, that was conducted by able counsel in which such rulings were not made, if the judge was at all competent for his position. For the Supreme Court to grant such trials on every such pretext that can be trumped up in every trial is to defeat the ends of justice in all respects, and to make law a mockery, and justice a misnomer.

It is clearly the duty and the object of the Supreme Court to take cognizance of and pass judgment upon the acts of the inferior courts, but it is not the object nor duty of that court to make up judgments on mere abstract principles. It is the simple merits and bearings of the question itself which has been overruled, and on which, for instance, an appeal has been taken that should be taken into consideration. No judge, however learned or able, can hope to conduct an exciting and well-contested trial through without some trifling errors, or irregularities. In the limited time allowed here for deciding each and every objection that even a fair minded counsel, much less a captious one, can raise in the course of such a trial, infallibility itself would be required to render decisions exactly in conformity with the matured and full time considered opinions of those sitting above him. Common sense requires, whatever a strict, or forced, rendering of the law may do, that such apparently trifling irregularity did, in fact and effect, have an important bearing on the merits of the case itself; not merely to prove the astuteness of counsel making the appeal, nor the hair splitting abilities of the court upon which rests the great responsibility of doing justice to a whole people. The rights of society seem to be utterly ignored and overlooked in law if the decisions in reference to the Fair and "Chicken" appeals for new trials are to be considered as strictly in accord with its requirements. Our law dispensers are becoming so exceedingly wise and astute in their day and generation that vigilante committees will soon come into requisition to give force and effect to the plain intent of the laws of society.

THE GREAT REGISTER.

The Great Register of Inyo county, for the present year contains only a little over one hundred more names than the one for the preceding year—the whole number of registries for 1872 being 705 against 590 in 1871. The intent of the law is that the names of none but actual voters shall appear upon the Register when made up for publication at the beginning of October preceding an election. To this end the County Clerk is authorized to cancel the names of all previously registered, who within his knowledge have deceased or removed from the county or have been convicted of felony, and should he willfully neglect to do this, it is made the privilege of any person to bring an action against him in the District Court to compel him to purge the Register of any and all illegal registries or to cancel them, which by reason of the occurrence of subsequent events, such as have been named above, showing that such entries ought to be cancelled. But notwithstanding all this and the unquestionable desire of our worthy County Clerk to comply with the law on the subject, quite a number of names appear on the Register that should not be there. It is not to be expected that he, of his own knowledge, should know of every removal or decease of registered voters. If the Great Register is ever kept even approximately purged of the names of illegal or disqualified voters according to the intent of the law it will become necessary for citizens generally to bring facts and proofs bearing upon the decease or removal of any former voter to his attention.

Making all due allowance for deaths and removals the whole number of actual voters now in the county is very nearly seven hundred; that is to say within five of the number appearing on the printed Register. As there are sixty more names appearing on the supplemental list (not published), this will be allowing sixty-five for deficiencies from all causes. Our guess is that one hundred of these legal votes will not be polled at the pending election.

Owing to the new form adopted by the Code Commissioners for the Great Registers, which now do duty as poll lists, the work connected with their publication is more than double what it was last year. The last contained, in printer's parlance, but 45,900 ems, while the present measures 136,875 ems of rule and figure work, which costs just twice as much as ordinary matter.

The Register for 1872 shows a somewhat larger per centage of native born than that of last year; why or wherefore we can't say. The proportions between native and foreign born stand thus: United States 492, Germany or of the Teutonic races 60, Ireland 59; all other nationalities, nearly every civilized one of which in the world has one or more representatives and including those born on the sea, the remainder, 94, is made up.

In the matter of occupations the Register shows some very nice discriminations; for instance, we have numerous "ranchers," "ranchmen," "stockraisers" and farmers. Connected with agriculture, one way and another, we have 209 in all, against 149 registered names. What has become of all the saloon keepers is totally beyond our ken, as, according to this record we have but three in the whole county. Who says this ain't a moral community? or if not that at least a very large number of chaps who don't like to publish the real nature of their calling to the world. The printers outnumber the saloon keepers by one, and that one wanted to amend the Register and be put down as "chips." Of the professions, we have: one dealer in pasteboard, one speculator, one clergyman, six medical men or saw bones and seven limbs of the law, not to mention one prospector, and also quite a large number of others who don't record any occupation whatever—gentlemen of leisure, or else of not enough leisure to tell what they really do follow to obtain their grub. The requirements of the law has not been fulfilled in this way of registering, nor in the rule adopted by a large number of giving but the initials after the surname. The law says the name should be given "at length," although it is very fortunate for the printers, when such narrow columns are used, that this condition wrs not complied with in every case. In many such instances the prescribed limits would have been entirely too narrow to have conveyed to a wondering world the implied ambitious anticipations entertained by the mama's of those embryo statesman years ago. It is a pity, it is true, and a pity that it is true, that so many men whose fond parients have given those high sounding and lengthy cognomens as an indication of the future greatness of the bearers should so often disappoint those anticipations, even to the extent of curtailing the names upon which so much depended. However, we havn't the space to moralize on this point, and will leave others to cypher it out to suit themselves.

Postponed.

The great race which was to have taken place between Occident and Lucy, at Alameda, last Saturday, was postponed for a time not stated, on account of a brisk rain, which set in at 12 o'clock that day. Thousands of persons who had gone over from San Francisco and some other places, had to return wet, vexed and disappointed.

Epidemic Among Horses.

A remarkable contagion has broken out among the horses in Buffalo and other lake towns in the East, and is spreading with alarming celerity. The malady first made its appearance in Canada, soon after making its first appearance in the United States at Rochester, New York. It appears to be epidemic—a sort of a horse plague or cholera, though the exact nature seems to puzzle the veterinary surgeons, some of whom are going long distances to examine cases and seek remedies. It is feared that this disease will reach the Pacific coast, and it doubtless will, unless the railroad positively refuses to transport horses hither until it entirely subsides. A dispatch from New York under date of October 26th, says:

The horse malady spread to such an extent that almost all the horses in the city are suffering. It is estimated that in the city and immediate vicinity there are 30,000 to 40,000 sick horses. The disease has begun to exhibit now the alarming phases of inflammation of the throat, which extends to the lungs. The animal pants for breath and becomes quite cold at the extremities. This seems to be a warning of a fatal ending, and if it continues as widely prevalent as it is now for a few days longer, there can be little doubt but that hundreds of horses will die. Many down-town merchants are still working their diseased horses, and in all these cases the fatality is becoming more alarming. In the stables, where all business is suspended until the disease is mastered, very favorable reports are made. Race horses stabled here have now nearly escaped. At least six hundred cars are withdrawn from the city railroad lines. Hackmen's charges are in utter violation of the law. Managers of street railways think that unless the disease is checked their stock cannot hold out longer than Sunday. It is feared that several ocean steamers will have to postpone their sailing, owing to the impossibility of getting freight aboard.

The Work of the Coast Survey.

Professor Benjamin Pierce, Superintendent of the Coast Survey, has submitted his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury. In all the northern sections parties are yet in the field, and will so continue until the approach of winter, when transfers will be made for resuming operations in the southern sections of the coast. Surveying parties are now engaged in triangulation, topography or hydrography on the coast of Maine. Special astronomical observations have been made at Cambridge, Mass., to determine the precise relation in longitude between points in the United States and points in Europe. Special examination has been made to verify the sailing direction for the harbor charts of the coast of New England. The tides have been recorded constantly during the year at North Haven, in Penobscot Bay, and at the Charlestown Navy Yard. The Plane Table survey of the coast of Rhode Island is in progress, near Perrysville, west of Point Judith, and also the detailed survey of New Haven Harbor. Special hydrographical investigations are in progress in New York Harbor and the adjacent waters, and the tides have been steadily recorded at Governor's Island. Field parties are completing the shore line survey at the south end of Lake Champlain, and others are sounding its northern branches. Professor Pierce reviews at some length the work done along the coast, and says the magnetic elements have been determined in the vicinity of Philadelphia and at Washington, D. C.; tides have been regularly recorded at Old Point Comfort, Va.; a geodetic reconnoissance is in progress near Harper's Ferry; the detailed survey of James River, Va., has been extended upward to Warwick River; twenty new charts have been published during the year, and nine others, which show extensive additions, in comparison with their first issue, and tide tables for the ensuing year, have been prepared, and will be published as heretofore.

Punishment of Murder.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

The fixing of the punishment by the jury is in accordance with a special statute which was passed by the Legislature of Illinois for the purpose of obviating the tendency towards acquittal in murder cases, which is one of the most marked characteristics of the modern juror. It was perceived that this tendency was strengthened by the feeling that the jury had no power over the sentence, and that, though they might be inclined to take a more merciful course, if the evidence in the case justified the rendering of a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, the Court might, and probably would inflict the extreme penalty. Considerations such as this too frequently dominated the sense of duty of the jury, and rather than become responsible for the death of a fellow-creature they outraged justice and violated their oaths by finding verdicts of acquittal. We have no sympathy with this morbid and false humanitarianism, but as the same sentiment prevails to a great extent in this community, the method adopted by the Illinois Legislature to meet it possesses a local bearing of no slight importance. It was found in that State that under the old system convictions in murder cases could not be relied upon, and that the more heinous the crime the stronger was the probability of acquittal. There was no difficulty in securing righteous verdicts when the offense was simple manslaughter, but brutal and deliberate murder went unpunished because juries feared to take the responsibility of finding a verdict which secured the infliction of the death penalty. In this dilemma it was suggested that if the jury were permitted to fix the punishment the main difficulty would be removed. Recent events have shown us that there is at present no possibility of securing the conviction of murderers in this State. We are passing through precisely the same condition which compelled the Legislature of Illinois to adopt the law referred to, and there seems no reason to believe that we can do better than our neighbors have done. Perhaps a time may come when the public mind will regain a healthier tone, and when jurors will no longer hesitate to accept the responsibilities and perform the duties of their position. But the indications are that an adherence to the existing system will but intensify the morbid sentiment now prevalent, and there can be no question that such a prospect is alarming and threatening to the safety of the citizen. By following the example of Illinois we should remove the strongest argument which the recreant jurors of the day possess in favor of their unmanly and contemptible cowardice, and should compel them to bear the responsibility which they now shirk. By allowing them to fix the punishment in murder cases they would be deprived of every excuse for acquitting notoriously guilty persons, and as they would be unable to shift the responsibility of the sentence on to the shoulders of the court, we might reasonably anticipate something like rational and righteous penalties. There will be ample time for the discussion of this question before the next Legislature meets, but it will be necessary to make it one of the principal measures of the session; and if the failure of the present system does not lead to the formation of half a dozen vigilance committees before the Fall of 1873, it is possible that the best course to be taken will be to pass a law modeled after that of Illinois, giving the jury the right to fix the penalty in murder cases. It is to be hoped at the same time that steps will be taken to amend that custom of the criminal courts which excludes all but idiots from the jury-box in cases where the issue is life or death to the defendant.

Beautify the Country.

[From The Sacramento Union.]

Some months since we called attention to the law of March 30th, 1868, authorizing Boards of Supervisors in the counties to encourage the planting and cultivation of shade and fruit trees along the public highways. The law has, we believe, remained a dead letter four years. We are not aware that a single county has seen its operations. The State Board of Agriculture has at last taken the matter in hand and directed its corresponding Secretary, L. N. Hoag, to issue a circular to the Boards of Supervisors of the counties, setting forth the law, and making recommendations. As the season is approaching when trees may be set to the best advantage, the early attention of Supervisors should be directed to the subject, and intelligent and public spirited men in the counties cannot better employ themselves for the public than to give an hour or two to urging action on the part of Supervisors. Nothing so beautifies a country, making it inhabitable and attractive and homelike, than trees along the roads and streets.

Such beauties invite population and fasten those already here to a spot that is attractive. Our population is too unsettled, and consequently too unthrifty—for "a rolling stone gathers no moss." More than any other country our great valleys need shade by roadsides, and man must furnish what nature has not been able to do. The Legislature has provided that one dollar shall be paid out of the county treasury for every tree standing four years after planting. This is a pecuniary engagement, but the effect of trees, æsthetic, climatic and on the productive capacity of soils, should be sufficient to urge men to plant as a matter of necessity. This subject of tree planting is one of the great ones of the age and absolutely demands attention, and it demands attention in a climate like ours more than almost anywhere else. The Board of Agriculture recommend the following varieties as hardy of rapid growth, and some of them valuable for wood or timber:

Black and honey locust, black, white and fruiting mulberry, osage orange, native and Eastern black walnut, American chestnut, European, American and cork bark elm, the different kinds of maple, the tulip tree, Carolina, Lombardy and silver leaf poplar, different kinds of ash, the apple, pear, plum, cherry, almond and fig, eucalyptus or Australian blue and red gum, Monterey pine, sugar pine, yellow pine, spruce pine, Norway spruce, balsam fir, Scotch pine, European larch, Monterey cypress, California redwood, California laurel.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Improving.

Lone Pine keeps apace with her sister towns of the county in the matter of improvements and general building operations. The new school house is under fair headway and begins to make quite a showing. A large, two-story hotel is being erected by Louis Munzinger and F. P. Ball, on the corner aojoining Daneri's new store. Charles Meysan's storeroom, which will be one of the largest in town, is nearly completed; while Mrs. Barry, of the Lone Pine Hotel, is about building a two-story addition to that popular establishment. Sher Stevens is chief engineer and proprietor of the store of A. M. Loomis & Bro., having purchased the business, stock and buildings.

The Bessie Brady.

The Owens Lake Steam Navigation Co. officially announce that the Bessie Brady will hereafter make regular trips between Cartago (such seems to be the name of the new town at the foot of the lake) and Swansea, carrying freight and passengers at low rates. The fact of the steamer running at all will of course "corral" the freight business, and while plying regular trips the traveler, weary of stages, sand and deserts, can scarcely forego the pleasure of a few hours' steaming on our inland sea—so that the passenger transportation is equally assured. Containing, as it does, an important commercial announcement, the advertisement will be read with interest.

New Store.

One of the best of signs and indications of the prosperous times is the fact that every merchant and business man in the county is engaged in either building or making extensive additions to their stock in trade, or both. The latter is the case with the enterprising firm of Wood & Cohen, whose new advertisement appears to-day. Snugly located in their new, centrally situated storeroom, they have on hand one of the best assorted stocks of goods ever brought to town. It consists of about everything, and should be examined by everybody.

Presentation.

We were last week favored with a view of an elegant silver pitcher, presented to P. Reddy, by Messrs. Harris & Rhine. The pitcher, given in acknowledgment of the services rendered the people by the recipient in the case of the petition for the removal of the county seat, is superbly ornamented, and has the English plate-mark as guarantee of genuineness; and on the face of the bowl is elaborately engraved in German text the initials "P. R."

Send 'Em On.

The industrious prints of this establishment have, we are glad to announce, about cleaned up the orders on the "job hook" for printing, and are now, like Oliver Twist or regular printer's imps, crying for more. So send in your orders; and in this connection we would suggest to those intending to issue ornamental calendars for 1873 for their patrons that it is best to give orders as early as possible, to the end that they may be prepared "on time."

The Blaney House.

We are glad to chronicle the fact that the Blaney House, formerly well-known as the Exchange Hotel, will be re-opened for business on Monday next, by the new lessee and landlord, Mr. V. G. Thompson. The concern, with the extensive addition made by John Broder, Esq., is of the completest description, and doubtless the house will soon secure from the public a full enjoyment of the patronage which was formerly accorded it.

Forwarding.

The important business of forwarding freight from Cartago from any of the southern shipping points to the various places in this county will be efficiently attended to by John B. Daneri, as will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere. Mr. Daneri is one of Lone Pine's oldest settlers, and favorably known as one of the promptest business men in the county.

Drunks.

A night or two since the town was made lively by the hilariousness of several jolly drunks, who continued their seranading long past "the dead hour of midnight, when graveyards yawn." Jack Horton, of Bishop Creek, was here and in the mess, but disclaims any responsibility in the matter.

The Post.

The new barracks, or privates' qnarters, about completed at Camp Independence, now cut quite a figure in the view northward from this place. The construction of the buildings is under charge of a Government architect, who has a half dozen carpenters steadily at work.

County Court.

A special Grand Jury will probably be called by the County Court, which meets in regular session next Monday, for action in the case of Nyles Nelson, charged with robbery, now held in the County Jail.

About Completed.

May's new saloon is now receiving the finishing touches, and will be opened upon the arrival of the new billiard table, pictures, chandeliers, mirrors and bar fixtures from San Francisco.

District Court.

A regular term of the District Court, Hon. Theron Reed presiding, will convene on Monday next. We understand that there are but two or three important cases to come up.

Mining Cave.

A miner, whose name we did not obtain, was injured by a small cave in the Union mine, Cerro Gordo, on Sunday night last. He will be around all right, however, in a few days.

Bound Over.

One of the Mexicans engaged in the late shooting melee at Cerro Gordo has given bonds in the sum of $2,000 for his appearance before the next Grand Jury.

Notice.

The attention of a great many parties is invited to an advertisement headed "business notice." "A word to the wise," etc.

Preaching.

There will be preaching to-morrow at half past 10, at the school house in this place.

Eclipse.

Mr. Lowndes, a stockholder of the Eclipse Company, has been out from London examing into that property.

Supervisors.

The regular term of the Board of Supervisors meets Monday next, the 4th inst.

That Writ of Certiorari.

In the matter of the people of the State of California on the relation of C. D. Begole for the writ of certiorari to review the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors, of Inyo County, in allowing Nathan Rhine's claim for $2,050 for services rendered to said county, came up for hearing before Hon. J. A. Hannah, County Judge, on Wednesday last, R. B. Snelling appearing for applicant and P. Reddy for the Supervisors. After hearing the full and elaborate arguments of counsel the Court denied the writ, and so of course this ends Begole's other effort to tear up the foundations of our county administration.

Physician.

We were yesterday favored with a call from Dr. Ward, from Visalia, who proposes locating here for the practice of medicine. See card.

Earthquake and Skunk

Last Friday night the shock of an earthquake was felt in Yosemite Valley. A party of four young gentlemen tourists were at Hutchings' at the time; one of them was a green Scotchman just from Edinburg, who was minus earthquake experience. When the shock came in the night the Scotchman jumped from his bed and rushed out doors in haste, with the others who were sleeping in the same house. While they were standing in their night uniforms, the Scotchman agitatedly enquired what it was. He was informed it was an earthquake. "Can you see him," he eagerly enquired. Being answered he could not, he said, "well, I can smell it, as I am sure there is a very strong smell of brimstone." At this Hutchings yelled, it was too good. The Scotchman was much annoyed the next day to learn that the strong smell of brimstone was caused by a skunk that had just prospected Hutchings' meat house.—Tuolumne Union.

Diamonds in Lassen County

Alex. Stewart and others, locators of the great gravel diggings near Susanville, Lassen county, California, have washed out a number of very small stones which are pronounced genuine diamonds by experts in this city who have examined them. They vary in size from that of a head of a pin up to that of an ordinary grain of wheat, and will cut glass, rubies and other hard crystals. One of these stones, large as a pea, was found and subsequently lost by Billy Naileigh, before he was aware of its value. He took it for a quartz crystal and was engaged in cutting and slashing a thick porter bottle with it when it flew out of his hand and he paid no more attention to it. From the resemblance of these stones to diamonds, and the fact that they are found in abundance in the gold-bearing gravel of the new mines, Naileigh and Stewart, called the ridge upon which the gravel beds are found Diamond Mountain, and it would seem that the name is not an inappropriate one.—Virginia Chronicle.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....November 2, 1872.

Letter from one of the Explorers in New Mexico.

Capt. T. B., the leader of one of the exploring parties to the diamond range, writes an interesting account of what he saw:

SANTE FE, N. M., September 24, 1872.—In eight days from San Francisco we arrived at Santa Fe, and in nine days we were treading on precious stones. We experienced no trouble from Indians, and the road, though rough sometimes and over-sandy, is by no means difficult. The diamond range is hilly and broken by ravines; and there are wooded ranges of mountains, with springs of good water at every resting point. The soil is gravelly and of ferruginous color. The prevailing rock is itacolumite, similar to the diamond-bearing rocks in Brazil. It is the Rocky Mountain Range.

We have ten native Indians at work, who promise to be good prospectors, judging by their intelligent movements. We send home lots of rubies and other stones which we suppose to be valuable. With regard to diamonds, our green hands will have to learn to distinguish them. Since my return to Sante Fe, I have been convinced that our Indians have not picked up the diamonds. I send you some picked out of our gatherings, and not valued by the workmen. If they are really diamonds, I am satisfied that we have them in quantity on our claim. [Note—they prove to be pure diamonds, and the dingiest looking are the best.]

Till we have water arrangements and sluices completed we can't do much—only surface scratching. It is a known rule that diamonds sink into the soil, while other stones abound at and near the surface; and the best diamonds are coated with an epidermis of greenish and also of dark brownish color, that requires skill and sharp sight to see through. The reason why those sent forward are very small is that they are brought to the surface by ants that cover the ground with hilled-up nests, and usually only the bright fragments of broken diamonds arrest attention. When we get to regular sluice-washing, we expect to turn out diamonds of proportions greater than elsewhere, because our country is inclined to big productions.

I hope you will excuse the omission of names that would indicate our location. Our claim is regularly surveyed and recorded; but if a rush comes, we are not secure from intrusion. But this may suffice—there is room for all that come: for this diamond formation is clearly traceable for 150 miles, and it has a breadth of at least 30 miles on an average. Adventurers can be directed from Santa Fe.

I have written to our Secretary that we can sell out our claim at a handsome figure, if desired; and I can prospect for more. In Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Missouri the people are ahead of California, for a wonder, in diamond faith. In the Spring there will be a rush. Meantime we are sending precious stones to California, which cannot fail to impress confidence in time to secure to our friends a share of the first fruits of this great discovery.

You will please to understand that the Range is not all diamonds; any more than quartz is all pay gold. We have to prospect, as in the gold ranges. Good pay, small pay and no pay will alternate. But proving for diamonds entails no such cost and risk as opening a quartz mine. It is more like shallow gravel mining. Very little capital goes a great way. It is a question of water. If that is handy and free, diamond mining is a cheap industry. But every man should first learn to distinguish a rough diamond. It needs a good eye, for it is very unlike a brilliant. Black diamonds are still more difficult. They have a very rough look, not unlike splinters of basaltic rock. They are worth seven dollars per carat, for mechanical purposes; and from appearances it is likely that they are abundant enough to defray current expenses of working a claim.

—The St. Paul and Sioux City Railroad has been completed, total length 272 miles, so that there is now an unbroken line from St. Paul and Lake Superior to San Francisco. There are two companies owning this line, the St. Paul and Sioux City owning from St. James to Sioux City, 150 miles. For the present the road terminates at Le Mars, where it joins the Dubuque and Sioux City road, 24 miles east of Sioux City.

—One of our young married men has just made the discovery that he married a left-handed woman. All his buttons are sewed on the wrong side. He manages to get along as far as the rest of the garments are concerned, but when he dons a clean shirt he has to lay down on his back and lash his right hand to the bed post. He is afraid he will have to use shoestrings.

—The remote Western States have a new holiday. It is called Arbor Day. Every man is expected on that day to do some service to future generations by planting trees. The idea is an excellent one, and should be adopted in all the great, growing Territories of the Northwest, where pasture is plenty and wood scarce.

—In a recent trial of a vender of obscene books in New York, it came out that a young man who has been prominent in instigating such trials has seized no less than thirteen tons of immoral books and pictures, and that ten tons of them are now in the cellars of the Tract Society awaiting judgment.

—A jury was brought into court in order that one of their number might be instructed upon the following point of law: "If I believe that the evidence is one way, and the other eleven believe different, does that justify any other juryman in knocking me down with a chair?" The judge reserved his decision.

—A fleet of five German men-of-war is now fitting out for a cruise around the world. They will sail directly from the West Indies, and thence proceed to New Orleans and other United States ports.

—An effort is being made by the city of Houston, Texas, to get the State Capital removed from Austin to this place. A bitter war of words rage between the two cities.

—The tireless master of The Boston Commercial Bulletin continues in business at the old stand, announces the following fresh additions to his stock:

NEW BOOKS—"Ebenezer Divorced," a sequel to "Ebb-Tide."

—"Castile and Arragon," said Spicer, repeating the words of the guide who had pointed out to him the armor of the great Prince of that name in the arsenal at Naples: "Yes, I see the cast-steel, but not ary gun."

—A pair of lovers living together in Switzerland, one a Polish priest and the other a young English woman, were discovered to be dangerous and extensive counterfeiters.

—Board of Education—The black-board.

"KING BABY."

[From The Aldine for November.]

His sceptre is a rattle,
His throne is mother's arms;
He reigns a tiny tyrant,
In all his dimpled charms!
Yet round his royal presence
Our loving hearts entwine:
Dictator of the cradle,
And king by right divine!

Whatever be his mandates,
No courtiers dare rebel;
His mother's chief of the household,
Prime minister as well!
In yon perambulator,
His downy car of state,
Exacting, rosy monarch,
What triumphs on him wait!

In purple ease and splender,
Long, long he seeks to reign;
All hints of nose disjointed
He smiles at with disdain!
Alas! that royal greatness
Should ever be disowned;
Here comes a tiny stranger—
King baby is dethroned.

How to Cut and Polish Diamonds.

[From The New York Tribune.]

This country is rapidly advancing in all that tends to promote its general prosperity, and promises soon to surpass foreign nations in the prosecution of those arts which they have always deemed their specialities. Until a very recent date, Amsterdam has held the monopoly of the business of cutting and polishing diamonds, and by an experience of hundreds of years, during which period generation after generation has been born to and educated in the art, that city has attained an almost world-wide renown. Some years ago, however, a firm in Boston became engaged in the pursuit, and has met with well-deserved success; but their attention was chiefly directed toward the repairing of diamonds, involving the re-forming of the stones, and, of course, the re-polishing. It was reserved for New York to go into the business thoroughly, and, much to the satisfaction of the leading jewelers of the county, the venture has proved more than successful.

Not long since several gentlemen of this city determined to organize a company having for its object the formation of a diamond market here. This was no small task. It required a large outlay of capital. It was necessary that the most experienced workmen in Amsterdam should be induced to come to this country, to give us the benefit of their experience. Machinery had to be invented which should, if possible, surpass in efficiency that used in Amsterdam. These difficulties were overcome; the capital was obtained. Hollanders of long practice signified their willingness to embark in an enterprise which commended itself to their common sense. Machinery was invented which fulfills the requirements of the business, and just a year ago the "New York Diamond Company" began operations, having for President Isaac Hermann. The process of preparing the diamonds for use is of singular interest. The business is divided into three distinct branches, and such is the proficiency necessary in each branch that it is extremely seldom that a workman can be found who is master of all three.

The rough diamond is first handed to the "cleaver." He is expected to see in an instant where any flaw in the stone is situated; he must be able to tell what parts must be split off in order to get rid of any flaw, and at the same time retain as much weight as possible, with the greatest brilliancy. He calculates how much the clippings will be worth, whether they will make small brilliants or rose diamonds, and having reached his decision he fastens the stone in the end of a wooden stick, securing it by a cement made of resin and brick-dust. Another diamond, already split and having a very sharp edge, is served in like manner, and with this he cuts a notch in the diamond which he is about to split. This operation is performed over a small box containing a seive which catches the diamond dust. The notch being made, the cleaver takes a small steel rule, which he places on the line in the direction of which the cleavage should be made. Having, apparently, taken his aim, he places the ruler in the notch, and with one or two quick taps with a steel rod the stone is split. Heating the cement, the workman removes the diamond; it has been so split that the flaw has been entirely removed. The diamond may be worth hundreds, perhaps thousands of dollars, and any ignorance or error on the part of the cleaver might destroy for his employer more than they could recover in weeks.

From the cleaver the stone is handed to the "cutter," and secured in exactly the same way. The diamond to be shaped is held in the left hand, which is protected by a heavy leathern glove. In the right hand is the stone which is to be used in grinding down the facets of the diamond which is under treatment. The process is very slow, and when the stone leaves the hands of the cutter it has lost whatever brilliancy it may have had, and looks more like a common pebble. But now comes a great transformation.

Visiting the polishing room the attention is first attracted by what seem to be round steel tables. Upon a closer examination these are seen to be the disks which are used in polishing the diamonds. They are making 2,000 revolutions per minute, and are covered with a compound of oil and diamond dust. The first process is to solder the stone into a sort of brass cup, leaving visible only that portion of the diamond which is to be polished. Taking into consideration the fact that every stone has sixty-four different surfaces to be polished it will be immediately seen how difficult the work of this operator is, and how exact he must be. Taking the stone he places it in the solder, now in almost a liquid state, and with his fingers shapes the metal around the diamond. This is then plunged into water, and as the steam arises from the molten mass, one naturally turns to see if the workman is provided with hands of iron. But no—practice has made him invulnerable.

The polisher now takes the diamond, touches the point with the oil and diamond dust, clamps the cup containing the precious stone in a wooden rest so that the diamond shall just touch the polishing disk. By weights he regulates the pressure. Experts will have three diamonds undergoing this process at the same time, and yet they seem to pay but little attention to their work—so little, in fact, that one might well wonder whether they are taking any interest at all in what they are doing. But little does the observer realize the years of patient toil that has enabled the operator to attain his great proficiency. At times a stone may be so hard that months are required to give it the proper brilliancy; but, sooner or later, the luster appears, and what has been the object of so much solicitude and labor finally comes forth a perfect gem.

A Sagacious Dog.

Steamboat men are always partial to dogs; and sometimes, when a favorable opportunity offers, do not hesitate to appropriate any especially smart canine that may attract their covetous admiration. Yesterday afternoon a Chronicle reporter witnessed a scene aboard the Washoe that convinced him dogs sometimes reason. While he was gazing blankly at every passenger who came aboard, and studying human nature from the features of the pretty girls who tripped down the drop, he observed a remarkably sagacious looking white pointer come aboard unaccompanied by any one. She walked near the center of the boat and laid down, but a deck hand who had watched her movements came up and attempted to drive her from the boat. Unmindful of his harsh epithets, cross voice, and even blows, she frisked playfully round the deck for a time, and then, running to him, licked his hand, fondled awhile at his feet, and finally sprung right into his face and took a kiss.

This raised a laugh on the deck hand, and he attempted again to drive her from the boat, but she would not go, repeating again her playful antics. "Oh, let her stay," said one of the hands; "she seems to have no owner, and we will take care of her." Accordingly the dog was caressed and permitted to remain on board. She crossed the bay all right, but the moment the Washoe touched the gate at the end of the slip she sprang off and ran to the train near by, where she repeated the same maneuvers and succeeded in getting into the good graces of the occupants of the smoking car. When the train reached Mastick's Station, in Alameda, she sprang from the car and ran toward Schuetzer Park. The reporter, his curiosity excited by her conduct, followed her and saw her enter the Park, when he soon after found her with her owner, who informed him he left her locked up that morning in a room in this city, from which he had no doubt she had made her way and managed to reach him.—S. F. Chronicle.

The Chief Brewery.

The largest brewery in the world is that of Barclay, Perkins & Co., London. They use annually 18,000 bales of hops, and make over 1,000,000 barrels of ale and porter. Their place covers over 12 acres in the heart of London, for which they recently refused the sum of $20,000,000, or $1,750,000 per acre. Barclay, Perkins & Co. use 9,000 pounds of hops and 12,500 bushels of malt daily. They make 1,750 barrels of beer at a brewing. Their porter is stored in 172 large tubs, each holding from 1,500 to 3,000 barrels. Talk about big barrels! Why, they have seven casks, called the "seven sisters," which hold 3,600 barrels each. They are fifty feet high and thirty feet in diameter. Their draught horses are the marvel of all London. They have 162 of the splendid 19-hand horses worth $700 apiece. They are so heavy as to wear out an inch thick horse shoe in one or two weeks.

Another suggested "Blackstone." "Good, too," said the questioner. Than a little hard faced man in the corner piped out "Littleton," whereupon the coal dealer sat down without saying a word.

THE ELECTION.

Before the arrival of to-morrow's northern mail there can be little or nothing learned of the result of the election save that given below, which affords no indication as to the result of the vote for Congressman, upon which centers about all the interest manifested. Following is the vote in this county:

	For President		For Congress
	Grant	Greeley	Houghton	Rowen
Independence	57	40	57	39
Lone Pine	38	42	40	42
Swansea	11	7	11	7
Cerro Gordo	32	42	31	43
Fish springs	9	10	9	10
Big Pine	4	8	4	8
Bishop Creek	40	14	38	27
Round Valley	15	0	15	8
Totals	206	176	205	182
Majorities	30		23

So far as we have heard, our returns include the towns of Anaheim, San Juan, Los Angeles, Castroville, San Diego, San Buena Ventura, Bakersfield, Havilah, Walker's Basin, South Fork, Kernville, Greenhorn, and Inyo county, which give a total vote as follows: Grant 1,359; Greeley, 1,201; Houghton, 1,328; Rowen, 1,182.

A Raid from Texas.

Telegraphic advices were received in New York, on the 28th ultimo, to the effect that a few days previous a gang of American marauders, living along the Rio Grande, had made a raid into Mexico, just across the border. The sole object of the raid seemed to be plunder, and when the military officers attempted to impede their progress the ruffians murdered the Alcalde of a town and several Mexicans and set fire to the town, making a complete destruction. During the fight which ensued two Americans were killed. Steps have been taken by the military authorities along the Texas borders to arrest the marauders in order that their lawlessness may not go unpunished.

San Juan Island.

The island of San Juan, just awarded to the United States by the decision of the German Emperor, is fifteen miles in extreme length and seven in extreme width. It has an area of above 40,000 acres, and a population of about 400; of whom one-half are soldiers. The northern part of the island is well wooded. The southern part has a number of open prairies. The soil is rich and the climate not cold. It is an excellent farming country, and the best of all the islands between Vancouver and the mainland. There is an excellent codfishery on the San Juan shore, from which the Hudson Bay Company in past years used to take thousands of fish.

The Wheeler Expedition.

The Wheeler party, at the latest accounts, had rendezvoused at Poqueville, Utah Territory. From that point Lieutenant Wheeler, Messrs. Klett and Severance, and suitable escort go to the Colorado river and Northern Arizona; the other parties work toward Buckskin mountains, Southeastern Nevada, and toward Salt Lake City. The party will unite in Washington, and perform office work in January. The expedition is in good health.

Destructive Fire in Los Angeles.

A fire took place in Los Angeles on the 30th ultimo, entailing a loss of about $50,000. Packard's distillery, malt-house and warehouses, with their contents, including barley, rye, grapes and several thousands gallons of spirits, were totally consumed, without a dollar's insurance. The engine, piping, stills, machinery, etc., were badly damaged. The boiler was but little injured. The cause of the fire was the explosion of a railroad safety lantern.

A Bilk—Pass Him Around.

One Dr. M. A. Schlosser the "renowned Surgeon-chiropodist," having bilked the people of Carson and Virginia city out of sundry board bills, and The Carson Register out of a printing bill, that paper warns everybody and the rest of mankind to look out for the said bilk.

Lincoln.

When Lincoln was questioned in regard to some of the witticisms attributed to him, such as "Grant and the Whisky," etc., he laughed and said: "The papers make me smarter than I am; I have said none of these things, with one exception. I did say when I had the small pox, 'Now let the office-seekers come, for at last I have something I can give to all of them.'"

VARIOUS MATTERS.

One might think, to judge from the manner in which the election passed off here, that the election of a President of the United States was an every day occurrence or, at the most, a matter of very small consequence indeed. As in duty bound, of course, a large number stepped up to the polls and deposited their votes according to the prescribed form, but as a general thing this duty was performed with a most surprising degree of listlessness and indifference. There was no loitering around the polls, no buttonholing, no hurrahing for anybody, no "come up, boys, and have su'thin," and as a matter of course, no quarrelling or knockdowns, and as a further matter of course, the total number of votes polled throughout the country was considerably less than one-half the registries, taking the supplement list into the count.

The reason for indifference, so far as the candidates for the Presidency are concerned, are too obvious to need explanation, but why the feeling should have extended to the Congressional candidates is somewhat surprising. If there was ever a time when the proper selection of a Representative in Congress was a matter of importance to this section this was the time. But if there was any desire shown to do the best we could for our own section in that respect, it was manifested in a way exactly contrary to what might reasonably have been expected. The man who has abundantly proved his friendship for us, whose official relations, to say nothing of his acknowledged abilities, should unquestionably give him the preference, barring mere partisan considerations, in the eyes of Inyo county voters—towards this man our gratitude is shown by giving him a decreased vote! In right and justice, and in accordance with a reasonable anticipation S. O. Houghton should have received at least fifty more votes in this county than any other candidate on either ticket, but instead of that he is four or five behind his own ticket. Well, this result is exactly in keeping with the short-sighted votes and acts of certain of our citizens and possibly due to the same cause. We refer now, first, to the almost unanimous vote of the people of both parties in Cerro Gordo in favor of M. W. Belshaw as the Supervisor for that district, and second, to the equally as unanimous desire of the people of Round Valley to have the county seat removed 18 or 20 miles further away from them. We are force to confess that in the different results we have alluded to we feel somewhat beaten, and can account for them in no other way except, in part at least, as manifestations in opposition to the positions assumed on all these points by this paper. If such should be the case all we have to say is this: If from any such cause the people of Cerro Gordo think they can forward their own interests and welfare by selecting a wolf to take care of their fold we hope the said wolf may be soon and properly installed. Considered now as in the past, in the light of individual interests only, to us it is a matter of the most perfect indifference possible whom the people of this county or any part of it may select to preside over its destinies. Except the ordinary courtesies of life we never did nor never shall ask anything whatever from any official that we have not a right to demand and receive—a fact that we see proper to mention here in order to show that in all we have had to say in this regard and connection self-interest has in no case, except in the most general manner, been the consideration. And in conclusion on this point for the present, we say here, that taking his antecedents, position and disposition in the count, a more unfitting and unwise choice for a Supervisor than M. W. Belshaw could not have been made. The fact that no such election was ordered or legal, in no sense modifies the manifest desire.

In regard to the county seat matter we do not deny having a slight personal interest involved, for the removal, if effected, "busts" out this paper, so far as its present proprietors are concerned, to all intents and purposes. This will not be due to any especial unfitness of the new county seat for the continued publication of the paper nor for personal considerations connected therewith in any manner, but for the simple reason, that one removal made (as this would be without a single good and substantial reason) is only the precursor of a second, and may be of a third, and we would consider ourselves lacking ordinary mule sense in spending another two or three years in anxious trills and endeavors to build up a business in a new place, only to find as now, that when even partially effected it must all go to the "demnition bow wows" at the back and nod of such men as John Alexander, P. K. Miller and J. L. Garrettson. Whenever such as they can control enough of the responsible voters of this county so as to practically involve it in almost hopeless financial embarrassments, and that, too, for no good end whatever, we begin to feel as though it was time something should be done.

But, let not these parties or any others flatter themselves that we are going to give up the fight on this or any point, wherein the general welfare of the people, according to our conviction of right is involved; not by any means.

We propose to "fight it out on this line if it takes all Summer," and, if in doing so some one should find his feelings touched we take the occasion to apologise in advance, for there is not the least probability we shall do so afterwards.

In regard to the county seat election the fact has been well understood for some time past that some of the least responsible and, financially considered, the least interested parties in the county, have been industriously and secretly at work circulating their petition and obtaining signatures, calling the matter to an issue. In Round Valley, we are reliably informed, all except three or four have signed it. This fact is truly surprising when we take into consideration the character, object, interests and false pretenses of the solicitors, and still more so when it is understood that those signers, living in one extreme of the county, work in this manner in positive and absolute opposition to their own interests and rights, merely to benefit the other extreme. They appear to have accepted as a fact the statement that no legal location of the county seat has ever yet been made. They ignore the fact that this point is susceptible of positive proof, both oral and written. The result of all this will be that, sooner or later, either on the basis of the vote of last year, or that of the present, that an election will have to be ordered to settle this matter, and if favorable to the implied wishes of the signers to this petition, this county must be involved in thousands of dollars of useless expense in holding the election and in buying off contractors or in raising the funds wherewith to erect public buildings in Lone Pine, for which purpose there is not now one single dollar available. And then when this is all done; when the county is nearly or quite bankrupted to benefit some half a dozen individuals then comes the grand climax, which is to be nothing more nor less than its dismemberment a which contingency only have these signers in the extreme northern end any hope of recompense for their present act. We can account for their suicidal course on no other hypothesis, and yet a mere chimerical or foolish one, in our opinion, never actuated men in their determination not to let well enough alone.

The Next Session of Congress.

The Treasury Department is doing all that is possible to realize General Garfield's wish to have the regular appropriation bills ready to report to the House in the first week of the session. The ensuing session will not be over ten working weeks in length, and there are eighty special orders on the House docket. The appropriation bills will take up less than their usual time if they are passed in five weeks. The Election Committee will require two weeks at least, but the Ways and Means are not likely to have much business of importance. The fact that both in customs and internal revenue the receipts for the current fiscal year will exceed (in the latter by twenty millions at least) the anticipated amount expected when the last revenue bill was passed, may induce Congress to make a still further reduction, in which case there will be some discussion. A strong effort will then be made to apply such reduction to woolen and other textiles.

To Make a Town.

Somebody says that the best way to make a town grow and become a place of importance is to encourage every one, especially new men, to come and settle among you, particularly those who are active, whether they have capital or not. Their labor alone is worth money. Go to work, and stimulate every legitimate enterprise by giving it every encouragement. Cultivate a public spirit, help your neighbors, encourage your local authorities, when right, in public improvements, for the benefit of the town you live in, and in fact everything likely to advance the public good. It is such little things that make a town grow. Their cost is insignificant when divided up among your citizens, but when converted into a general effort they do their work thoroughly.

Another Disaster at Sea.

The steamer Missouri was burned at sea while on her regular trip from New York to Havana, October 28th. There were about one hundred persons on board the ill-fated steamer, all of whom, with the exception of twelve, lost their lives; among the lost was George S. Evans, a well known and popular journalist of this State.

GENERAL NEWS RECORD.

Nathan Meeks, a well-known citizen of San Bernardino, was crushed to death in the water-wheel of his flouring mill, November 3d.

An accident occurred at Salinas City, November 4th, by which a locomotive and several cars were crushed, three horses killed and an engineer badly hurt.

The track around American Flat Tunnel was completed November 2d, and a locomotive was sent over it. It is thought the tunnel will not be finished until the 15th of the present month.

Several individuals in Truckee are making efforts to get up a company to prospect for diamonds in Arizona and New Mexico. They propose to raise a fund sufficient to send out and maintain two prospectors for the period of one year.

At Sonora, November 2d, while some of the citizens were taking down the Democratic flagstaff which stood near the City Hotel, to protect their lives and property, it fell, killing instantly Nicholas Blatchovich, an Italian, who was on the cross-bars taking down the topmast. The pole was about 150 feet high.

The severest storm ever known in that section took place in Los Angeles, last Sunday, November 3d. It caused a great amount of damage to orchards.

A little son of Mr. Burkhardt, of San Diego, was stung by a stingaree on the 24th instant, and at last accounts his condition was critical.

There is a marked increase of travel for Arizona, by the way of Los Angeles, from San Francisco and the northern part of California.

The Jews of Europe are organizing a company to send a colony of Romanian and continental Jews to the United States, the colony to comprise 40,000 persons.

The citizens of Virginia city are making an effort to raise sufficient money to induce the owners of Goldsmith Maid and Lucy to bring the animals over the Sierras to trot at that city.

Forty thousand people are driven from their homes in the old duchy of Ferrara, by the overflow of the river Po. The flood is still unabated.

Horse disease has taken a good hold in Chicago, and is spreading over the surrounding country.

Twenty-five to thirty horses are dying daily of horse disease in Boston, and one hundred in New York and Brooklyn.

Four women in New York are reported as sick with horse disease.

In the case of Mayor Hall of New York the jury disagreed and were discharged. They stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal.

Five million dollars represents the reduction of the national debt for October.

A fire broke out at the tenth station of the shaft of the Yellow Jacket mine, Gold Hill, on the morning of the 27th ultimo, which caused a great excitement among the miners in that and the Kentuck, Crown Point and Belcher, all of which mines are connected. When first seen by the miners on the level below it, the fire was blazing fiercely, but fortunately the direction of the draft was up the shaft and the fire was extinguished before any material damage was done.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company, October 30th, paid into the Elko county, Nevada, treasury, $20,000 taxes for the current year.

The stage from San Diego to Fort Yuma was wrecked a few days since. Moses Williams, the driver, was fatally, and Chief Justice Titus of Arizona and Mrs. C. Blannings slightly injured.

Cotton picking is progressing lively in Kern county, and over 50,000 pounds are ready for the gin.

A doctor at Vallejo has been purchasing a supply of medicines for the horse disease. He states that there are several cases of the malady among the horses of Suisol.

Advices from various parts of Oregon represent that, as a general thing, the dry weather has prevented the sowing of much Fall wheat, and in some neighborhoods very little has been sown.

Can "Lucy" Beat 2:16 3-4?

We are informed that O. A. Hickok, the driver and manager of the trotting mare "Lucy," offers to submit her to a trial of speed on the Oakland course for a purse of $5,000—wagering $2,500 against that amount that he will make the fastest trotting time ever recorded in the world. This requires a mile to be made in 2:16½. We hope this challenge may be accepted and the moneyed inducement be provided for the contest. The proprietor of the Oakland course could well afford the risk. If not, enough gentlemen could be found to indemnify him against loss. After the mortification of "Occident's" failure, it would be some satisfaction for us to be able to say that in California has been made the fastest trotting time in America. If possible, let the "Maid" and "Occident" show their paces once again. It would afford a fine day's sport and be acceptable to all who are not too straight-laced to treat themselves to a day of innocent recreation.—San Francisco Chronicle, Nov. 1st.

The Shadow of the Gallows.

In the case of Wm. A. Hart, appealed to the Supreme Court, the judgment of the District Court was affirmed, and the Court below directed to fix a day for the execution of the sentence. Hart takes this news very sadly. He weeps a good portion of the time, regarding his fate as finally sealed, the obstinate firmness which he displayed at the trial has completely disappeared, and he appears entirely broken down in spirit. Kelsey thinks he will share the same fortune, although his case has not yet been disposed of, but does not appear to care so much—takes the matter very coolly. He informed us on Monday that they might as well hang him along with Hart as to commute his sentence to life imprisonment, as has been suggested might be done. The official papers in the case have not yet arrived, hence the day of Hart's execution has not yet been fixed.—Tulare Times, Oct. 24th.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE PUSHING WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a selection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although every succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present more ambitious and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a success of effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the really confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have been familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1873, will reproduce four of John Gilbert's inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable volume of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscription of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractiveness of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparalleled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 22 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its contributors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly superior to any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those most acquainted with the achievements of Decorative genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS,

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduction to club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or to their local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

Freight Shipments.

E. Olinghouse shipped for this region from Los Angeles during the week ending November 2d, the following lots of freight: By Wm. Caldwell, teamster: John Shepherd, Georges' Creek, 2,620 feet red wood lumber, 3,500 lbs; J. S. Rothschild & Co. Independence, 8 pkgs mdse, 1,735 lbs; S. G. Sneden, Bishop Creek, 5 pkgs mdse, 333 lbs; Jo. Harris, Independence, 1 pkge, 107 lbs; Tom May, Independence, 4 pkgs, 659 lbs; O.R.Putney, Independence, 8 pkgs, 1,275 lbs; J. Scobie, Little Owens Lake, 17 pkgs, 2,394 lbs. By Mr. Osborn's teams: M. W. Belshaw, Cerro Gordo, blower, engine and machinery, 35 pieces, 8,763 lbs; O. L. S.-L. Co., Swansea, 9 pkgs, 1,738 lbs; R. Diaz, Cerro Gordo, 5 casks, 1,763. Several larger lots were loaded during the week by other shippers, of which we have no report. The foregoing freight was delayed at the anchorage by a heavy wind storm, preventing the lighters from getting over the bar.

"Raised" Orders.

Just now the business of "raising" Belshaw and Beaudry orders seems to be particularly lively—one firm having occasion to handle $150 within a few days. The form and style of these papers are undoubtedly in violation of the United States currency laws, and since they are forged or counterfeited the issuing parties should be compelled to make them good. A glance is sufficient to distinguish the difference between them and the commercial paper issued by the Owens Lake Silver-Lead Co. which cannot be made to represent any amount except that for which they were drawn. A Mexican is now, we understand, under arrest in Cerro Gordo, on the charge of passing "raised" orders.

Distinguished Departures.

An elegant crowd of innocents started abroad from this place yesterday, consisting of the senior of this paper, Lieut. Haskell, Capt. Jones, James Brady and I. S. Freeborn—off for the wilds of Waucoba. A well loaded pack train accompanied the party with supplies and forage—one animal being loaded with a quart of whisky, another with a pound of cheese and a gallon of whisky, while a third was weighted with two pounds of crackers and five gallons of whisky. P. S.—The party will probably get as far as the Eclipse mill, from whence we anticipate a full account of the wealth and extent of Waucoba.

Quarterly Meeting.

The first quarterly meeting of the Methodist church will be held at Independence, on Saturday, Nov. 16th, Rev. J. D. Hammond, presiding Elder. Conference on Saturday, at 2 o'clock P. M.; Love Feast, on Sabbath at 10 o'clock A. M. The Elder will preach at 11 o'clock A. M., after which he will administer the Sacrament and attend to the ordinance of Baptisms. Parents wishing their children christened can avail themselves of this favorable opportunity. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and hear the Elder preach.

Recovering.

Two of the men wounded in the melee at Lola Trevis' house, in Cerro Gordo, as reported by us a week or two since, are now under treatment by Dr. Gelcich, of Lone Pine, and from reports are rapidly recovering. One is Jose Lago, a Californian, and the other Rosario Preciado, a Mexican. The first received a shot in the thigh, the ball lodging against the patella of the knee; the other was shot under the tarsus of the right foot, near the ankle—both balls being successfully extracted.

New School.

The Big Piners are moving in the matter of educating the rising generation, and a suitable school house is now being erected. J. W. McMurry has purchased one of the best farms in that neighborhood, and will soon remove his store from Fish Springs to that point. It requires but half an eye to see that Big Pine is destined to become one of the most important settlements in the valley.

Fox & Kays.

This well-known Cerro Gorro firm have removed their goods to the new storeroom, just above the old location, and added thereto an extensive and varied stock of new goods. The Swansea branch store is consolidated into the main establishment on the hill. Both members of the firm are rustlers, and will doubtless meet with the success they deserve.

That Petition.

We hear that Miller has secured the signatures of some 206 of our citizens to a petition praying for an election to "locate the county seat." About 80 of these have signed simply to get the matter to an issue and then beat it—thus forever settling the question and putting a quietus upon the paid, irresponsible advocates of the measure.

Did Not Meet.

The Board of Supervisors, which was to meet in regular session on Monday last, did not convene, owing to illness in the family of Supervisor Hutchison. A regular adjourned meeting will probably be held next week.

Chance for Business.

As will be seen by notice, J. W. McMurry will dispose of his house and ranch at Fish Springs on favorable terms. To an energetic business man this opportunity presents an excellent opening for a good, permanent business.

Grand Ball.

We understand that the men of Co. "B," 12th Infantry, stationed at Camp Independence, propose giving a ball to their friends upon the completion of their new quarters, about the close of the present month.

Another Change.

S. A. Densmore has bought the livery and feed stable business of W. B. Hutchings, in this place. See new advertisement.

Miners' Meeting.

The miners of Cerro Gordo were to hold an important meeting on Thursday last. Do we get any report of the proceedings?

Preaching.

There will be preaching to-morrow at half past 10, at the school house in this place.

Masonic Directory.

Elsewhere is given the Masonic Directory, announcing the time of holding the monthly meetings.

Grand Jury.

The County Court has ordered a venire of thirty Grand Jurors, to report on Monday next.

School Money.

INDEPENDENCE, Nov. 1st, 1872.

In answer to the inquiry as to the probable amount of public school money that each school district will receive during the present school year I will state, from the best information I can obtain, that the percentage to be received from the county taxes together with the poll tax and the money to be received from the State will amount to twenty dollars to each (census) child, which will give the following amounts:

Dist.	No. Child'n	Am't per Dist.
Bishop Creek	64	$1280 00
Independence	27	540 00
Lone Pine	67	1340 00
Milton	38	760 00
Round Valley	22	440 00
Union	41	820 00
	259	$5180 00

School officers will please bear in mind that the above estimate is made without making any allowance for delinquent taxes that may never be collected, yet I have reserved the deg tax to make good the deficiency that may arise from that source.

J. W. SYMMES,
County Sup't Public Schools.

Masonic.

Following are the elected and appointed officers of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., of this place: Master, Henry M. Isaacs; Senior Warden, Andrew N. Bell; Junior Warden, Henry Clay Egbert; Treasurer, Isaac Harris; Secretary, Charles B. White; Senior Deacon, John B. White; Junior Deacon, Benjamin F. Welch; Tyler, S. B. Upton; Marshal, James Brady.

A Scene in Court.

[From The Los Angeles News, October 25th]

On Wednesday evening and yesterday morning a scene occurred in the District Court in connection with the Lehman tragedy, which is now being tried before Judge Widney. The Rev. Father Coll was on the witness stand on Wednesday evening, undergoing an examination by the District Attorney. Father Coll had attended Charles Lehman on his deathbed, and had performed the marriage ceremony between the dying man and the mother of his children, with whom he had cohabited for years. The deceased has made a dying declaration, and the prosecuting attorney was desirous of proving through the witness that he was cognizant of the fact at the time of making the declaration that his case was hopeless. The following question was asked: "Did you administer to Charles F. Lehman the Sacrament of Extreme Unction?" Father Coll positively refused to answer the question. The District Attorney then modified the question, and put it in the following form: "Did you, or did you not administer to Charles F. Lehman such religious consolation as they usually administer to persons who, in their mental and moral condition, believe that they were approaching dissolution?" Again the Rev. Father refused to answer. Judge Widney gave him until the following morning to answer the question, as he admitted there was nothing binding him, as a priest, to withhold an answer. When again placed upon the stand, and the questions propounded to him, he handed a written protest to the Judge, of which the following is a copy:

D. O. M.

I defy all the Judges and lawyers in the world to produce an equitable law by which a Roman Catholic priest can be forced to explain in a public Court, or otherwise, why, or how, and the moral circumstances by which the priest was or was not justified to administer this or that sacrament to a sick person, especially when the priest has reasons to believe that such an explanation would more or less disclose to the Court and the public the moral character of his penitent, which he knows simply and only by means of spiritual capacity.

REV. KILIAN COLL, C. C.

Los Angeles, Cal., October 24, 1872.

The Court then ordered that the said Kilian Coll be confined in the County Jail of Los Angeles county until he shall state that he is willing to so answer said question, he having the ability so to answer said question, the question being material as to the admissibility or rejection of the dying declaration of the party, C. F. Lehman.

When leaving the Court-room, Father Mora, the Vicar-General of this diocese, and Father Flannigan informed him that he had done wrong in not answering the question, upon which he immediately returned and answered the question in the affirmative. Judge Widney then immediately revoked the order of commitment to the county jail.

Mrs. Greeley's Death-Bed.

[From The New York Sun, October 23d.]

All day yesterday Mrs. Horace Greeley remained in the same condition as during the preceding night. She was attended and watched by her husband, daughters and friends with the utmost care. At 9 o'clock last night a sudden change for the worse set in. The family were immediately summoned to Mrs Greeley's bedside and her demise was momentarily expected. Then ensued a scene of woe and leave taking, but after hovering on the portals of death for nearly two hours the sufferer returned to consciousness and it seemed as though the crisis had been averted, at least for the night.

Some time later a Sun reporter called at the residence of Mr. Johnson, 333 West Fifty--seventh street, and saw Mr. Greeley. He was suffering intense mental agony at the probable loss of his wife and spoke in the most despondent tones of her illness.

Mr. Greeley has given up all hopes of her recovery, and with his daughters, who are the constant attendants of their mother is prepared for the worst. Not the slightest hope of even Mrs. Greeley's partial recovery is held out by the medical gentlemen, or indulged in by the family. Her death may be expected at any moment.

All day long and during the evening many of Mr. Greeley's personal friends called at Mr. Johnson's and extended to the bereaved husband and family every degree of condolence and sympathy. But the invariable answer, in saddened tones, was: "I never expect to see her well again. Her case is too critical to justify us in hoping."

--A new article of feminine adornment is a solid metal ring opening on hinges, to be worn as a girdle.

"Fair is Foul"

Under the above caption The New York World makes some comments on the "not guilty" verdict rendered by the jury in the Fair case, which will hardly be appreciated by either the jury or the escaped criminal. To allow both parties to see how they are thought of "at home" we copy The World's comments: The dozen of blundering boobies who disgraced the name of jurymen in San Francisco the other day by liberating that maudlin and murderous hag, Mrs. Fair, are likely, if they be not absolutely lost to all sense of shame and of remorse, ere long to go and hang themselves in her stead. Their outrage upon law and decency is already breeding the counter outrages it could not fail to breed. A son of the man whom this creature killed, because he refused to divert to her profit the whole subsistence of the family he had for her sake dishonored, attempted to slay the slayer of his father, first in a public Court-room and then in the public streets. The attempt was openly made; and though it was foiled by the watchfulness of the woman's legal employee and attendant it would seem that it is likely to be at any moment renewed. It is hardly surprising that little indignation should be manifested at such an attempt on the part of a son who has seen his father murdered, his mother insulted, and the laws of the land he lives in made a mockery by a woman whose gross and cowardly selfishness would disgrace the lowest of mankind. The frightful responsibility of this scandalous sequel of one of the most disgraceful incidents of contemporaneous American history rests directly on the worthless and witless persons who mistook the jury-box for the pit of a cheap theater, when they were summoned into it to hear the story of this vile woman's atrocious deed, and indirectly upon the torpid or perverse public opinion of Californian society. The best thing, we repeat, that the jurymen can do is to go out and hang themselves promptly. As for Californian society, we are bound to suppose that it looks back with rapture upon the story of the Vigilance Committee of 1856, since it is supinely inviting the return of all the excesses and lawlessness which made that story possible.

Cotton in Kern County.

P. A. Stine, an old resident of this vicinity, who is from one of the extreme Southern States, determined, the present season, on what he believed to be a fair experiment in the culture of cotton. He planted three acres, and left it in great part to take care of itself. About half of it was choked out with grass, but the balance grew finely and the plants most of them broke down with the weight of the bolls. His stand amounted to about an acre and a half, and he informs us that he will have about six hundred pounds of lint cotton, although the variety (Golden Prolific), is a very poor one, producing the shortest and most inferior staple. He believes he could not have made a severer test than he has done of the adaptability of this climate and soil to the growth of cotton, and next year he will engage in its culture to the extent of his ability. He has sent to Louisiana for the seed of a kind he has been accustomed to cultivate, which he thinks, is superior to any grown by the Cotton Grower's Association; also for a quantity of cuttings of the sugar cane, with the view of starting a sugar plantation. He says he has long entertained the belief that the cane will grow here and may be cultivated to advantage. His opinion in this matter is certainly entitled to great weight, as he is accustomed to the cultivation of the cane, and well acquainted with the climate of this valley and that of Louisiana.—Bakersfield Courier Oct. 27th.

Perpetual Motion.

The perpetual efforts to invent a perpetual motion seem at last to have been successful. The editor of the Petaluma Argus has become a convert to the "true theory of perpetual motion has been discovered." He says: "The ignorant may scoff and the unthoughtful may deride, but we do candidly admit that we think the invention has introduced the ideas and arranged the application of known forces that will accomplish all the inventor claims for his invention, namely, perpetual motion." The inventor lives in Petaluma, and a citizen of that place has offered to pay all the expense and attend to all the legal business necessary to the perfecting and procuring of patents from the different Governments for one-twentieth interest in the patent. The Argus adds: "If this invention be a success (and on scientific principles we do not see how it can be denied) it will revolutionize the world and do away with the steam engine altogether. Our overland trains, ocean and inland steamers, will be driven by this power, the cost of which will not amount to mills where it now costs thousands of dollars."

A Sybarite Suicide.

The latest novelty in suicides comes from Cleveland, Ohio, where an individual who had drawn a blank in a lottery, went to his death after the following unique and elaborate preparations: He first procured a loaded revolver and connected it with clock work so that it should be fired off at a certain time. He then got into bed, and, after placing the pistol behind his ear, took a dose of chloroform. Under the influence of the narcotic he then went to sleep. At the given time the clock work pressed the trigger, discharging the pistol and launched the slumberer into eternity.

--A Newfoundland dog belonging to A. B. Newman, assistant light keeper at Mount Desert, saw Mr. Newman's little child carried off into the waves by the undertow, the other day, and not only rescued him, but tried to resuscitate him after bringing him ashore. Failing in this the intelligent animal took the boy's hat and ran to the house with it, and laid it beside the lad's mother. He then ran to the father, and taking hold of him pulled him to the shore.

Cattle Disease in California.

We are informed that the new cattle disease, recently mentioned in the papers as prevailing in the East, has appeared in Sacramento county, W. R. Grimshaw's cattle, at Daylor's ranch, on the Cosumnes, having been attacked by it two or three days ago, since then it has extended among his stock quite rapidly. The animals are afflicted with a running at the nose and mouth and itching about the head, which renders them crazy and causes them to rub their heads furiously against fences, etc., until their eyes are rubbed out and their ears off.

Death of a Carson Racer.

Coal oil Tommy, a fast horse, formerly owned by Jack Connery of Genoa, and frequently run over the Carson course, was killed in a race at Kingston, near Visalia, California, yesterday, by running into the winning horse after the latter had passed the judge's stand.—Virginia Chronicle, Nov. 2d.

--"Look here, squire, where was yeou born?" said a persistent Yankee to a five minutes' acquaintance. "I was born," said the victim, "in Boston, Tremont street, No. 44, left hand side, on the 1st day of August, 1810, at five o'clock in the afternoon; physician, Dr. Warren; nurse, Sally Benjamin." Yankee was answered completely. For a moment he was stuck. Soon, however, his face brightened, and he quickly said: "Yaas; wa'al, I calculate you don't recollect whether it was a frame or a brick house, dew ye?"

--In a speech at Nashville, the other night, Andrew Johnson, while speaking of Governor Harris, said: "These two eyes of mine, though a little dimmed with age and time, have never yet looked upon that animal called man, or anything in his shape, that this heart has feared."

--A Baptist clergyman, living way up in the hills, in the State of New York, had such a meager salary that he took to making horse-shoe nails, and invented a peculiar kind of point for the nails, which took so well that he has made a large fortune. The envious now say that he makes better points in this way than he ever did in his sermons.

AN EASTERN HAREM.

[From Tent Life in the Holy Land.]

A small piece of dark night slipped into the room and around among the chibons and nargiles to my feet, where, pressing his forehead to my hand, he contrived to whisper to me that the "Sitt Miriam" wanted to see me. Supposing thereby that she was ready to depart, I went out into the large reception, but no one was there. My sable guide led on while I followed, strongly suspicious that the imp might commit an error, and guide me into forbidden rooms. I was not far wrong. Crossing a court, down into which the stairs shone, I followed him into a dark entry, when he threw open a door, and I found myself in the holy of holies of an Eastern house, that spot forbidden to the foot of man in all known ages of Moslem rule.

The scene that burst upon my astonished vision was worth a journey up the Orient to see. One swift glance around the room convinced me that it was all right, for I caught the eyes of Miriam, who was curled up on a crimson divan, and smoking a nargile as if she had been brought up to it all her life, and in a moment I understood that she had managed the introduction by some ingenuity that I could not have believed possible. In Greece the seclusion of the harem is unknown. But in Greek families living in Egypt or Syria, it is more strictly enforced than by Mohammedans themselves; for the contempt which is poured out on a Mohammed woman who has shown her face to men is visited tenfold on Christians, who have difficulty in keeping their positions in the country.

The footsteps of a man had never crossed this threshold before, except a father and a brother, and the inhabitants of this retreat shrank at first in terror from having their faces seen by a stranger. It was by adroit management, by proposing it as a frolic, working up their curiosity, and pledging eternal secrecy and instant departure from the country, that Miriam had persuaded them to send for me, and they secured the old man's permission on the ground of the universal love of Greeks for Americans, and so I was sent for and so I came. The scene in the room when I entered, was worthy of a painter's presence.

The mother of the family seated on a pile of cushions, was a woman of splendid beauty, and her daughters were like their mother. Her young sister, a girl of 22 or 23, and her neice, a girl of 17, was standing near her; while their Nubian slaves, slender and graceful women, black as night, but not thick-lipped, having rather the features of the Shellalee of Egypt, and in form and face models of grace and beauty, waited on their beautiful mistresses. A troop of children, with large black eyes, dressed like fairies, greeted my entrance with a shout of welcome, and for a moment I hesitated to enter a place sacred not only by oriental custom against such a visit, but sacred especially by the presence of so much magnificent beauty, not before exposed to the eye of a stranger.

But the unsurprised look of Miriam and Mrs. and Miss Saunders reassured me, and I advanced with as much courage as could be expected of a somewhat diffident American in an Eastern harem. Often since then, in still and quiet evenings, when I remember the incidents of my Eastern travel, the face of that radiant Greek girl comes before me like a vision of the unreal beauties of paradise. I never saw a woman half so beautiful. She was the first and last one that I saw abroad whom I thought equal to the American standard of beauty—and she was a star. She was reclining on a divan, half buried in its cushions, with her arm around Miriam's neck, telling her, in the rich Oriental phrases she could invent, of all her love for her newly-found sister. I will endeavor for the sake of my lady readers, and with Miriam's assistance, to describe her dress, which was almost the facsimile of four other ladies in the room, whose interior beauty must excuse my leaving them to sketch their splendid companion:

Firstly, she wore that part of the Turkish lady's dress which we should call the trousers, known by them as the shintiyan, and a very different affair from the pantaloons which the American ladies'-rights ladies argue so much in favor of. They are necessarily more cumbersome than the ordinary European style of dress, being enormously heavy folds of silk stuff, embroidered with heavy gold thread, gathered at the ankles with gold and jeweled bands. Those of which I now speak were of rose-colored silk, and the little feet that were hidden in the folds as they fell around it when she walked were covered with velvet slippers, embroidered with seed pearls. The yellack, a sort of open dress that falls in a long train behind, and is fastened only at the waist, falling away so as to leave the shintiyan visible, is, I believe, not worn by unmarried ladies, but she had a similar dress of the same rose-colored silk, richly embroidered. A low chemisette, with embroidered front and sleeves, left almost the entire bust exposed; and a velvet jacket, heavy with gold thread and jewels, completed the rich and gorgeous costume. But the dress, although of the most costly fabrics of the Damascus looms, was as nothing compared with the jewels that flashed from her wrists, neck and hair. Over her left shoulder, hanging like a sash down to the right side of her waist, was a golden girdle or band made of broad pieces of gold, shaped like willow leaves, and fastened together at the sides. The belt of the yellak and shintiyan, which is ordinarily a cashmere shawl (known vulgarly in America as camel's hair) was silk, gathered at the side with a star of brilliants. On her arms were jeweled serpents; and the only covering of her bosom, which was uncovered, consisted of strings of pearls that lay across it, and whose whiteness was rivalled by the neck they adorned. Her hair was bound together under a small cap of crimson velvet, that rested only on the back of her head, and of which the velvet was but the material on which were clustered as many pearls and diamonds as, I remarked to Miriam, would purchase all the jewelry that the most gorgeous New York saloon could exhibit in a crowded evening assembly. I have described the lady's costume as literally as I can, for the benefit of my lady readers; but I thought little of her costume then, when I was looking at her splendid beauty.

Miriam was in ecstacy herself, and would interrupt her caresses constantly by turning to me with the demand, "Isn't she beautiful?" Her hair was as black as the clouds of a December night, and swept away from a fine forehead in heavy tresses. Her face was no cold Greek countenance. It was full of life and passion; her eyes black and flashing with fun; the red blood tingling close under the skin through her cheeks, and sometimes flushing her forehead with an exquisite glow; her lips were red and laughing; her chin the smallest imaginable: and her form slender, yet full and graceful as the forms of dreamland.

When we rose to go, and I am bound to admit the hour would have been thought late even in America, they would scarcely permit Miriam to leave them, but again embraced her and kissed her on each cheek, and on her lips, while the Nubians would seize her at the same instant from behind, and give her an affectionate squeeze in accordance with each kiss from their mistress.

The Biter Bit.

Ben Butler was a down-east lawyer before he got to be a major-general and representative of his district in Congress. Like all lawyers, Ben had a hard pull of it at the start, and perhaps the sharpness and acumen for which he is so universally celebrated, were acquired at this early period of his life, when he was starving for a practice, and the odds were brains or starvation.

One day, while sitting in his office, there entered a long-legged, guant, hatchet-faced specimen of the genus Yankee, who looked sharp enough to make his meals off pins and needles, and who thus accosted the future Congressman:

"Mr. Lawyer, I am going into a little bit of law business, and as you seem like a right smart, plucky sort of chap, I thought I might as well give the job to you."

"All right," says the lawyer, "you can't trust your case in better hands."

"Well, then, I had a ham hanging in an outshed, and a neighbor's dog came along and ate it. What would you do?"

"Why, prosecute the owner of the dog, of course. Make the fellow pay for damages."

"That's the talk, Mr. Lawyer," said the Yankee, with a sly smile beginning to work around the corners of his eyes and mouth. "But you see—I don't know as it makes any difference—the dog was yourn."

Butler opened his eyes a little at this onslaught, but he wasn't going to be taken aback in that manner, even by a brother Yankee.

"What do you value your ham at?" asked Butler, drawing out his wallet.

"Well, I guess five dollars will be letting you off cheap," said the Yankee, "for it was an all fired good ham."

Without entering a word of protest, Butler paid the money, and then said: "There is your damage for the ham. Now fork over ten dollars."

"What for?" inquired the Yankee, in his turn astonished.

"For my legal advice," said Butler. "You don't suppose I can work without a fee, do you?"

Mr. Yankee was bit; so drawing a face as long as his legs, he slowly counted out the money, and inwardly avowed that he would bring no more law business before the youthful but razor-like dispenser of Coke and Blackstone.

PATENT YOUR CLAIMS.

The Congressional mining law approved last May, and now in full force in every mining district in the United States, requires that all claims located prior to the passage of the Act, ten dollars worth of labor shall be performed, or improvements made each year for each one hundred feet in length along the vein until a patent has been issued therefor. The intention and purpose of this law cannot be mistaken. It is designed to make it an object for the owners of such claims as are non productive, and on which work is not carried on steadily, to patent the same as a matter of economy. But there are other considerations which should induce the owners of claims, supposed to be valuable, to obtain a government patent. It enhances the value of the property, and secures the title forever, thereby preventing expensive law suits, which, under the possessory title acquired by the local laws, frequently follow the development of a good mine. Many of the old locations are two or three thousand feet in length, and to maintain a possessory title only requires an annual expenditure of two or three hundred dollars on each claim, but by obtaining a patent, the probable cost of which does not exceed $300, the title is secured forever. Under the present law, the amount of labor necessary to be expended on a claim before a patent can be obtained, has been reduced from $1,000 to $500, and the publication of notice of application from ninety to sixty days.

THE ELECTION.

As the exact vote by States has not yet been made known we shall only say that Grant has carried almost everything from one end of the Union to the other. At the most not over seven States have returned Greeley electors, and in view of the expected large majorities Grant has received many of the Democratic papers think the proper thing for them to do is to make the vote "unanimous."

In this State Grant's majority will approximate 10,000. The First, Second and Fourth Districts elect Republican Congressman, respectively, as follows: Clayton, Page and Houghton; the Third District elects Luttrell, a Democrat.

Grant carries Nevada by 2,000, but Kendall, Democrat, opposed to the railroad monopolies, is elected by 200 majority over Goodwin, Republican. The Legislature on joint ballot stand 52 Republicans to 20 Democrats, which sends Jones to the United States Senate.

Report of the Secretary of War.

The annual report of the Secretary of War has been received at New York. It recommends the establishment of military prisons instead of the present system, and also the enactment of a code of specific punishment for army offenses. Desertions are reported as having greatly fallen off. He recommends that the extra to each regiment be dispensed with as vacancies occur, thus saving $160,000 annually. He advises the raising of the intellectual standard of admission to West Point, also the sale of a large number of now useless arsenals in the South and elsewhere, the establishment of a general arsenal of construction on the Atlantic slope and another on the Pacific. He recommends the storage of torpedoes for the defense of New York and other harbors, and says military expenditures are on a descending scale.

A Generous Deed.

When Mr. Bancroft, after the announcement of the settlement of the San Juan question, inquired at the Foreign Office for an account of the expenses incurred, he was answered that the German Government had no bill against the United States. This was a kingly—nay, an imperial act, worthy of a great monarch, a great country. We rejoice at this, not because the Emperor did not see fit that his arbitration was not a clerical or menial service, to be paid for by so much gold, but because it is such an indication of friendly feeling toward our country and its Government. May that friendly feeling be reciprocated and long endure.

Occident.

Mr. Eoff, whose recent star engagement with "Occident," proved so disastrous to California pride, has been relieved by Governor Stanford of the care of that extraordinary equine. The Governor has now placed "Occident" in the hands of Thomas Barton, a celebrated jockey who recently came here from Australia.

HOW IT WORKS.

Notwithstanding the many new requirements imposed upon voters when depositing their ballots, the new election law appears to have given almost universal satisfaction, and has proven itself worthy of all respect. It was feared that the precision of detail necessary to deposit a legal vote would materially retard operations at the crowded voting places, in the cities especially, and would perhaps deter many from making the attempt altogether, but actual trial has proven that voting can be carried on much more rapidly and with much less trouble and disorder than ever before. It effectually shuts out the rowdies, bummers and strikers from the immediate vicinity of the polls, and consequently, and for the first time in the history of our California cities, there was not the slightest restraint upon the most timid voter. Under it every citizen can vote according the dictates of his own desire and judgment without fear of being knocked down by the bullies, who have so often hitherto made it their business to compel all they dared molest to vote to suit them or not vote at all.

Nowhere in this State was seen, or under this law can ever be seen, such disgraceful scenes as were openly enacted in our neighboring State of Nevada. In the city of Virginia, in that State, votes were bought and sold by the score, not to say by the hundreds, and this too, without even a pretense at concealment. The prices paid ranged from $2 50 to $100 each, and negotiated for by clubs of twenties and hundreds. One gang of these unprincipled ruffians, numbering 160, remained in session all day awaiting bids. For a time they asked $500 each for their votes, but as hour after hour passed away without satisfactory bids, they finally proffered them, the lot together, at $2 50 each. But, we are gratified to know that this gang, at least, held on too long, and not only failed to get their price but failed to get to vote at all.

Our new election law offers an effectual remedy for such theiving election operations as that, and the sooner Nevada adopts such a law the better for all concerned, unprincipled electioneers and bummers excepted.

HOUGHTON AND KENDALL.

We are gratified in being able to announce that our choice of Representatives in Congress, though one is from a neighboring State, have both been elected or re-elected rather. We feel satisfied that the legitimate wants of this sage brush region, so far as the same may be contingent upon Congressional action, since that duty will again devolve upon Mr. Houghton, will now be fully and properly attended to, and, as there is an exact identity of interests between many of Mr. Kendall's constituents and ourselves we may be snre that his labors to a considerable extent will also tend to our advantage. We have nothing to say against their defeated opponents, but this we do say: the men who now directly and indirectly represent us in Congress are both men of ability, of unquestioned honesty, and from their previous position and experience are far more likely to accomplish something of good to their constituents than either of their opponents, and especially Mr. Kewen, had the fortunes of the ballot favored them instead. Houghton and Kendall are both elected and we are very glad of it.

Death of Gen. Meade.

This distinguished officer died of pneumonia at his home in Philadelphia November 6. Gen. George C. Meade was born in Spain in 1816, his father being the American Minister there at that time. He was a cadet at West Point in September, 1831; a Brevet Second Lieutenant of the Third Artillery July 1, 1835, resigned October 26, 1836; Second Lieutenant Topographical Engineers May 19, 1842; distinguished himself in the Mexican war; was appointed First Lieutenant by brevet for gallant conduct in several conflicts at Monterey; First Lieutenant in August, 1851, and afterwards Brigadier General. Public attention was particularly drawn to him in 1863, when he, as Major-General, was in command of the Fifth Corps, and appointed by the Secretary of War Commander of the Army of the Potomac, to succeed Major General Hooker.

The New Local Mining Law.

THE BULLION CONTRACTS.

Following is a synopsis of a letter addressed to Messrs. Belshaw, Beaudry and Van Arsdale, the "furnace" men of our county, in reference to bullion shipping contracts. The letter is signed by E. Olinghouse, forwarder, and agent of the Los Angeles Teamster's Association.

He says the teamsters now hauling bullion want a change. They wish to take bullion at first hands and declare they will not load for contractors under any circumstances without extra pay, and consequently that the furnace men will find it to their own interests to give them loads without regard to the contractors; that if they will do this they (the teamsters) will keep a register containing a complete list of their names and signatures to an agreement to take loads of up freight in regular turn, or go up empty to load bullion down, where, as is frequently the case, there are not up-freights for all. By this plan they will be enabled to keep the furnaces clear of bullion with a much smaller number of teams than is now required under the contract system. They will thus keep their teams on the road all the time and save the expense of lying idle in Los Angeles waiting for loads of up-freights; say they do not want nor expect a high price on either class of freight, but only want at fair rates an equal share of both, which, under the contract system, they cannot get, the contractors putting all the up-freights on their own teams, and only giving bullion to the outsiders. The latter can make nothing nor can the contractors move the bullion within themselves. He says: "No contractor shall have the contracts of the up-freight if the merchants and ranchmen will stick to us. We can haul freight up if the contractor can haul bullion down, but we do not want to look to the merchants and ranchmen for all our freights. So, if your furnace men will set a living price on your bullion you need not fear but we will get it down. If you will do this (give us loads down) we will organize and keep our teams on the move; otherwise, we will turn out all except enough to clear the warehouses of the merchants' freight."

It is evident that these teamsters mean business; they will not haul for contractors, and the latter cannot move but a small portion of the bullion without their help. It certainly seems to us that the furnace men would find it to their advantage to give Mr. Olinghouse and his associates a trial on their proposition, for, even in the possible but not probable contingency of their failure to make their agreements good the condition of affairs cannot be worsted. All they ask is a uniform rate for both classes of freights and down loads of bullion without having to look to contractors for it. They say they will keep the furnaces clear, and we believe they will do it, and that too without any material, or perhaps any advance on present rates.

Boston on Fire.

A fearful fire broke out in the city of Boston on the 9th instant, and despite every effort of the fire department and the citizens generally, continued to rage with increasing fury up to 2:30 the following morning, the date of the latest report. The loss will amount to many millions, and the excitement prevailing throughout the city is said to be indescrbable. The fire commenced on Arch and Summer streets, from which point it extended in all directions, every block between Chauncey and Franklin streets, and many others, being destroyed. The Department was greatly retarded in its operations for the lack of horses to handle their engines, nearly all the horses being disabled by the prevailing disorder among them.

Help from all the neighboring cities was telegraphed for, and received quick response. One train, carrying 100,000 feet of extra hose, made the run from Worcester, a distance of 45 miles, in forty four minutes! The only hope of staying the flames was in blowing up houses, which was being done as rapidly as possible. This great calamity, in addition to the great and extensive distress among the direct sufferers, will probably utterly ruin many insurance companies, scarcely any of which have recovered from the Chicago loss.

A Colored Attorney General.

Washington specials say, in speaking of speculation with regard to Cabinet changes, that representative colored men, headed by Fred Douglas and John M. Langston, the colored lawyer, are bringing pressure to bear to secure a Cabinet appointment for one of their race, and The Washington Star says a movement is already on foot to have Langston appointed Attorney General.

Off for Inyo.

Mr. John O'Brien, for a long time connected with the mining interests of this section, has gone to Cerro Gordo, where he contemplates going into business.—Havilah Miner, Nov. 9.

ESCAPE AND RE-CAPTURE OF TWO NOTED FORGERS.

The city of San Francisco was thrown into a state of great excitement by the escape from the city jail, a few days since, of the noted ruffians and forgers, the Brotherton brothers. They had been remanded to jail just after receiving a sentence of little over twelve years each in the penitentiary. This was on Saturday evening, November 2d, too late, it was said, to send them over to San Quentin that day, where they were to have gone on the following Monday. In the meantime, by the assistance of outside friends, but chiefly through the aid of a "trusty" named Reilly, they were enabled to leave their cell in the jail, well armed and prepared for emergencies, and reaching the jailer's room tied and gagged Robert Penn Franklin, the only jailer present, and then covering him with a lounge, scaled the walls of the jail and, for the time being got safely away; the "trusty" going with them. About half an hour later Franklin partially freed himself and gave the alarm. The ensuing excitement and indignation was general and intense, and a thorough search was made for the fugitives but to no purpose.

An investigation as to the manner of the escape was held by the authorities and the fact clearly established that the chief jailer, Kelley, had connived at the escape. He has since been dismissed. He had admitted a number of outside parties contrary to explicit orders, and rendered other assistance to the scoundrels, and in justice to an outraged law we should think this Mr. Kelley should receive some other punishment than mere dismissal. Among others who visited and apparently condoled with the forgers was Budd Doble, the racing man, and though he is not charged with the crime he will have to take his share of the suspicion attaching some of these visitors with having furnished the Brothertons with pistols and things Their counsel, Robert M. Lee, has since been put under arrest for complicity in aiding their escape.

Chief Crowley offered a reward of $4,000, which was increased to $7,000 by other parties, for the capture of the escapes. Numerous arrests of innocent parties were made by individuals anxious to earn this $7,000. Anybody in the least resembling the Brothertons was sure to be gobbled up, but nothing was seen or heard of the real individuals until five days after, when they were corralled by a large force on 22d street, near which they had been concealed in the house of a friend until concealment was no longer possible, and they, with the "trusty" Reilly, were forced to take the street in one more bold strike for liberty. The "trusty" was captured with them. The forgers were double guarded until safely landed at San Quentin, where, barring accidents and technicalities of the law they will sojourn for twelve years and two months from date.

According to The San Francisco, Chronicle "they now possess a secret in the art of erasing writing without leaving a trace of their work that is said to be known to them alone; but should it ever become the property of the community at large, it is safe to say that it would necessitate a revolution in our modes of conducting business. No legal instruments could be made binding were it possible to erase any part of them and substitute whatever might be convenient. Contracts, wills, deeds would lose their efficacy. And in financial and business transactions the letter of credit, the bank check, the bill of exchange, and the promissory note would be merely so much waste paper. Inventive minds might have to labor for generations in search of some fitting substitute for the written instrument or some check against the art of altering it."

New Paper.

Jo. Wasson, well known in Arizona, and a brother of John Wasson, editor of The Tucson Citizen, has started a paper in Pioche, called The Review. We wish him success.—Arizona Miner.

We knew Joseph when he was a tolerable honest man. He is an incorrigible newspaper starter, and we hope he will start an X this way.

Epizootic.

The Enterprise mentions the appearance of the now famous horse disease among Breed & Crosby's horses in that city. One horse has already died, and one or two others are affected.—Gold Hill News, Nov. 8th.

In the Balance.

After a four days' trial the fate of Henry M. M'Causland, charged with the murder of Noah Mullendore, was placed in the jury's hands last Saturday. After remaining out some hours they came in and reported it impossible for them to agree on a verdict, but Judge McKinstry declined to discharge them, and they again retired, remaining out all night, and up to last accounts without agreeing on a verdict. The verdict must be acquittal or murder in the first degree, which fact gives additional interest to the case. A Miss Barrett, the affianced of the prisoner, sat by his side during the whole trial, and burst into a flood of tears when the jury made their report and were sent back. She is to be married to the prisoner in case of his acquittal.

Horace Greeley.

The "Sage of Chappaqua" acknowledges his great Waterloo in the proper spirit, and again assumes the management of The Tribune. Though he might not have proved a good President, he is undoubtedly a great editor, and Horace Greeley is not the man to "give up the ship" and neglect his great calling in token of respect to the high position so many of his friends had seen proper to tender, but could not secure to him. As an editor, he has been, and will probably continue to be, a power in the land; as President, he could have been no more, if so much. He makes no descent from the aspired position in again assuming the editorial management of The New York Tribune.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Governor Booth has issued the following proclamation:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Sacramento, November 7, 1872.

Whereas, the President of the United States, by public proclamation, has appointed the twenty-eighth day of November instant, as a day of thanksgiving to the Supreme Ruler for the blessings vouchsafed to the people of the nation:

Now, therefore, in obedience to said proclamation and in conformity to a custom sanctioned alike by usage and propriety, I, Newton Booth, Governor of California, recommend to the people of he State that they abstain, as far as practicable, from ordinary secular labors and pursuits on that day, and devote it to grateful acknowledgment of blessings received, to religious exercises in their respective places of worship, to dispensing kindly charities to the unfortunate and general hospitalities to strangers, and to innocent recreations.

By virtue of the provisions of law, I do hereby set apart said twenty-eighth day of November instant as Thanksgiving Day, and declare it to be a legal holiday.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of State to be affixed, at the city of Sacramento, California, this seventh day of November, A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy-two.

NEWTON BOOTH, Governor.

New Mail Routes.

"We are pleased to announce the fact that a weekly mail has been established from Big Pine to Lida Valley; also one direct from Bakersfield to Cerro Gordo and another from Indian Wells to Wallapai, Arizona. These were obtained on Mr. Houghton's representations."

The foregoing is from THE INDEPENDENT, of Inyo county, California.

With service between Prescott and Wallapai, we would be pretty well fixed, but will we not be swindled out of said service, as we have been out of that promised us between New Mexico and Prescott?—Arizona Miner.

Not much; Houghton is re-elected.

GENERAL NEWS RECORD.

Prof. Gilman was installed as President of the University of California, November 7.

A Chicago dispatch of the 8th instant says: The epizootic disease continues unabated. There is a less number of horses on the streets to-day than yesterday, though the weather continues fine. It is quite evident that working horses, before they are entirely recovered from the disease, is dangerous, and not unfrequently fatal. It is estimated that over 100 horses have died in the last two days.

The Oregon Legislature is now preparing to abolish the Grand Jury system in that State.

Another attempt at an insurrection in Spain is reported to have been squelched at Cadiz.

Subscriptions are being raised in London for the relief of sufferers by the Italian floods.

President Grant has received a formal congratulatory visit from the diplomatic corps, and is in constant reception of congratulatory telegrams from different parts of the country.

Alabama has gone for Grant five or six thousand majority, and the entire State Republican ticket is elected. Four and probably five Republicans are elected to Congress.

Iowa gives Grant about 57,000 majority.

The returns from sixty-eight counties in Virginia indicate that Grant has carried that State by about 3,000. The Republicans probably elect four Congressmen and possibly another.

Greeley's majority has been reduced in Maryland to about 1,500.

Oregon, so far as heard from, gives Grant 3,425 majority. The balance of the counties to be heard from will probably give a Democratic majority.

Gen. Grant in speaking of the late State elections says he considers his first election as an honor paid for his military services and his second as the nation's approval of his political administration and a popular vindication of his personal character.

President Grant, after attending the funeral of Gen. Meade at Philadelphia, will visit his parents at Covington, Ky.

The horse epidemic continues unabated in the East.

A telegram says the Ute delegation of Indians called on the President to say "Good bye," and to express their entire satisfaction with the arrangement for the maintenance by them of future friendly relations with the whites, by virtue of which a reservation of 750,000 acres is to be thrown open to the Utes of Utah and California, and some 13,000 acres stocked, so as to give them a start in civilized life.

The amendment, prohibiting an increase in the State debt, was almost unanimously ratified in the South Carolina election.

Snow fell to the depth of ten inches at Winnemucca, Nevada, on the 4th instant.

Judge McKinstry, in San Francisco, has rendered a decision, which if not reversed by the Supreme Court, sets aside Horace Hawes' deed of foundation of the Mount Eagle University.

In the mine at Maurburg, near Charteroi, Belgium, November 5th, the machinery gave way as a gang of miners were descending to work and twenty-one men were precipitated several hundred feet. All were killed.

The town of Palazzola, near Bresia, was visited by a terrible hurricane Nov. 5th. Half the buildings were thrown down and destroyed and thirty-two persons killed by falling walls and timbers. One thousand families are made homeless.

Waucoba.

It was stated in the local columns of this paper of last Saturday, that a lot of "innocents," including the senior, had started the day previous on a trip to Waucoba district. There were two or three little errors in that statement, but it was as near the truth as could reasonably be expected under the circumstances. Capt. Jones says there was hardly enough of truth in the entire thing to save it from general condemnation. Major Egbert formed one of the party and Mr. Brady did not—and consequently the designation of "innocents" was not applicable—the party didn't go to the Eclipse mill at all, but forded the river at the site of the Bend City bridge, and after several of them had thus got their boots full of water proceeded directly into the mountains where they made a "dry camp"—there being no water at all, except in boots and canteens, and barely enough whisky all told (after deducting the unfortunate and much lamented loss of the Major's canteen) to make the said camp even moderately comfortable for any of the party, much less to a person like Capt. Jones, who, though a traveler for more than forty years, had never camped out before. Except with a very complete outfit of blankets and etceteras it is not overpoweringly pleasant for even old stagers to pass a night at an altitude of 9,000 feet in freezing weather and a stiff north wind blowing, as was the case in this instance, but thanks to the foresight of the Major and the experience and administrative abilities of Lieutenant Haskell, who looked after the comfort of everybody, the discomforts, even to the Captain, were more imaginary than real. At all events, he bore them and others that followed with great good nature, even the subsequently ascertained misrepresentations, hinted at above, in regard to the "pound of crackers and five gallons of whisky." As a proof that no such cargo was taken this fact is advanced: Old "Useless," one of the most reliable pack mules, fell a victim to a severe attack of colic or something of that kind, for which whisky is supposed to be a sovereign remedy, and which would have been administered in ample quantity, but there was not a drop to be had: "Useless" had to suffer and finally was left behind, but, let us hope, to be eventually restored to his accustomed sphere of usefulness.

After traversing Waucoba from one end to the other, and passing through "Marble Canyon," one of the most remarkable and wonderful in the Inyo range, the entire party at the end of five days' travel brought up at Mr. Brady's house at Big Pine. Mr. Brady was not at home, but his estimable lady done the honors in such a gracious and hospitable manner as to dispel all recollections of previous hardships, either real or imaginary. In this connection it is proper to remark that Mr. Kersine at the same time and place contributed not a little to the spiritual comforts of the travelers.

We do not propose a detailed description at this time of the mines of Waucoba, nor express any opinion as to its future prospects, further than to say there are a number of good mines scattered throughout the district, and with capital and proper management they can be made to contribute a large amount to the wealth of the country. That is merely a question of time and energy.

Completed.

As is well known to our town readers the old saloon establishment on the corner of Main and Kearsarge streets, which dated from the "first startin'" of the town, has been torn away and replaced by a structure which reflects great credit upon the enterprising proprietor—"Tom" May. With the destruction of the land mark passes away some of the immediate reminders of those olden times, when "Owens River" was first heard from; when Kearsarge induced attacks of "quartz on the brain;" when San Carlos and Bend City fell into "the sere and yellow;" when they made "good" Indians out of the Pi-utes—in short of those days when a barrel of chain lighting was imported in a half ounce phial and before earthquakes were invented. The new concern is complete in its every appointment and makes by far the finest fitted establishment for the purpose in the county. The building is 40x60 feet, the main saloon being 24x60. The interior finish is of redwood, the natural color of the wood being preserved in the side walls, the wainscoting being finely grained and the ceiling of a brilliant whiteness. Behind the bar a mirror 5½x6½ feet apparently doubles the size of the room, and around the walls are hung beautiful chromos representing festive Bacchanalian scenes. A very latest Delaney-patent billiard table, by Strahle, of San Francisco, forms one of the principal attractions, and sixteen lamps will throw some light on the subject. The house is to receive its formal opening to-night.

Pointed.

A gentlemen reports having overheard the following conversation at a recent party given in town:

Brown—"Now, I say dear fwellow, why do they call these fwellows wunning awound heah floor managers or floor committee."

Jones—"Why, don't you see, they manage the musicians to suit themselves—and manage to get all the ladies. They are called the committee because they commit-he's, not in the ring, to the back-ground."

Brown—"Oh, yes, how appwopwiate; but, I say, ladies must be at a pwemium heah?"

Jones—"Oh, yes! I asked one lady for the honor of dancing, and she said if I had sent word the evening before I might have had the felicity, as she then had one dance unengaged."

Brown—"Positively demme, what a pwecious article a lady is heah!"

Jones—"Will you go to the dance at the Fort?"

Brown—"Oh, yes; but why do they call that the Fort?"

Jones—"It is their forte to get up good dances."

Building.

Everywhere the work of improving and reconstructing goes bravely on. Lone Pine has a dozen carpenters constantly plying their trade, now that lumber is beginning to arrive. In this place Mr. Smith, of the Black Rock lumber manufactory, one day this week had to decline orders for 60,000 feet—all that he can saw being required for Camp Independence. To the northward, J. Harris' new store, (the old Beaudry building) is about completed. Several new buildings are about going up at Big Pine, while at Fish Springs T. J. Goodale will shortly commence the erection of a $2,000 residence.

Back Again.

Billy Lake and Al Briggs, a couple of old Inyo stagers, whose departure for the land of Brighamdom was mentioned some months since, returned to their old haunts on Sunday last. Briggs says that the Union mine, at Cerro Gordo, is far ahead of the famous Emma in every respect, and we have no doubt of the correctness of the assertion. We forbear a dissertation on the effects of blowing and a railroad, illustrated by the success of that country.

An Indication.

The young lady who lost a shawl at the dance the other night will receive it upon application at this office. The presumption is that the junior was drunk when he obtained it—a condition doubtless due to some unaccountable reflection from the distant Waucoba party.

A Change.

According to notices given elsewhere the well-known Cerro Gordo firm of Barrows & Dodd have dissolved partnership, Mr. Barrows remaining in the business. The firm has been a very popular one, and both gentlemen have many friends throughout Cerro Gordo and the country.

A Big Improvement.

The culvert over the creek in town, extending entirely across Main street, now nearly completed, is really one of the greatest recent improvements we have to boast of—and goes to show that the public spirit has not entirely abated hereabouts.

Lost.

Gratifying Scientific Information

If there is anything we like in a scientific work it is clearness. When therefore, we read in a medical volume that, "the thalmioptical pticial are the essentials of the senstry tracts, as the corpora starlata are of the motor," we felt completely happy, for we perceived at once, with stereoscoptic distinctness, precisely what the author meant. What he means is, of course, that the thalmioptical are the essentials of the senstry facts, as the corpora starlata are of the motor. The information is especially gratifying because we must all be impressed with the conviction that if the thalmioptical had not been essentials of the senstry tracts, existence would at once have become a disgusting and unendurable burden, and woman's love a hollow mockery. As it is, we are filled with a holy and satisfying calm.

The Columbus Borax Springs.

The Virginia Enterprise furnishes the following information relative to the famous borax mine in the Columbus district, Esmeralda county, and the new wagon road proposed thereto which will terminate in this city, making connection with the Virginia and Truckee railroad: "We have already referred to the proposed new wagon road from Columbus district, Esmeralda county, to connect with the Aurora and Carson wagon road at the point known as the Nine mile house. A considerable sum toward the construction of the road has already been subscribed, and the amount required to complete it will soon be raised. A correspondent writing from Columbus, furnishes us with some additional information in relation to the proposed road and the industries to be benefitted by it. The length of the road will be sixty miles, without a difficult grade throughout the entire distance. The road at present traveled, if we correctly understand the writer, is something more than one hundred miles in length, and passes over deserts without water. Along the new road water will be abundant at distances of about ten miles, with the exception of a dry stretch of twenty miles from Columbus to Teele's Salt Marsh. Between these two points, however, water can be obtained, it is thought, by sinking. At present freighting to Columbus is exceedingly slow and expensive. Fifty or sixty tons of machinery for the Columbus Borax Works are now awaiting transportation at Wadsworth, and it is difficult to say when it can be delivered. Judging from present indications, the writer thinks the yield of crude and refined borax in Columbus district will amount to one hundred and fifty tons per month next Summer. It is desirable, of course, that an easy outlet should be secured for this valuable product, and the proposed new road will satisfactorily meet the want.—Carson Register.

Benicia Narrow Guage.

A party of twenty men under Engineer Watson went to work on Tuesday, commencing the survey of the Benicia, Colusa, etc., narrow gauge railroad. One-half of the party started on the Benicia end, the other half are at work on the other end of the proposed road or some of its branches. Members of the company tell the Benicia folks that they will have the road in operation in twelve or fourteen months.—Vallejo Chronicle.

Theatrical.

Sara Stevens, who made a favorable impression on the stage and then married John C. Heenan, is about to return to her first love.—Omaha Bee.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
Saturday,...November 16, 1872.

—A few weeks ago two horses were drawing each a load of coals up a rising ground in the suburbs of York. The hinder horse had the bearing rein swung loosely on his neck, and the animal was hanging his head forward, and, by throwing his weight into the collar, was dragging his load steadily and without undue strain on his muscles and joints. The foremost horse, with his ton of coals, was braced up with a tight-bearing rein, his head cramped and raised, his mouth fretted and every joint and muscle starting and strained at each step he took. The two men were talking to each other, and the carter of the hinder horse was heard by the writer to say: "Bill, go and give thy horse his head; he'll pull that load easier." Bill went and slackened the bearing-rein, "Give him more," said the other. Bill went and give him all he wanted. The horse immediately did his work in a way which conveyed the relief he felt as clearly as if he had said: "There, thank you; I'm all right now." We would commend to every one who has the charge of a draught horse, when he is at work, the advice Bill received and followed: "Bill, give thy horse his head; he'll pull that load easier."

—A New Orleans sportsman determined to emigrate to Mexico, where he hoped to find some game, made all preparations and was ready to go, but wanted a dog. He wrote a careful description of the ideal dog, instructing a friend at Louisville to forward him one. After long and weary waiting, and many repeated inquiries at freight and express offices, a box was at last delivered to him. It was opened with great ceremony. His friend, having sought in vain for the ideal in dog flesh, had inclosed him a beautiful Italian greyhound in plaster of Paris.

—It is rumored that the stockholders of The New York Tribune have resolved to reorganize the editorial corps on that journal at the beginning of next year. PROSPECTUS.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

HOW A PAPER IS MADE.

"Pray how is a newspaper made?"
The question is easy to ask,
But to answer it fully, my dear,
Were rater a difficult task;
And yet, in a bantering way,
As the whipoorwill sings in the glade,
I'll venture a bit of a lay
To tell how a paper is made.

An editor sits at his desk,
And ponders the things that appear
To be claiming the thoughts of the world—
Things solemn and comic and queer—
And when he has hit on a theme
He judges it well to parade,
He writes, and he writes, and he writes,
And that's how a paper is made.

An editor sits at his desk
And puzzles his brain to make out
"Telegraphic" so squabbled and mixed
It's hard to tell what it's about.
Exchanges are lying about—
While waiting dispatches delayed,
He clips, and he clips, and he clips,
And that's how a paper is made.

An editor out in the town,
In search of the things that are new—
The things that the people have done,
The things they're intending to do—
Goes peeping and prying about,
For items of many a grade;
He tramps, and he tramps, and he tramps
And that's how a paper is made.

And all that these workers prepare,
Of every conceivable stripe,
Is sent to the printer and he
Proceedeth to stick it in type;
His lines, all respecting his will,
In slow moving columns parade—
He sticks, and he sticks, and he sticks,
And that's how a paper is made.

In short, when the type is all set,
And errors cleared up, more or less,
'Tis "locked in a form," as we say,
And hurried away to the press.
The pressman arranges his sheet,
His ink gives the requisite shade,
Then he prints, and he prints, and he prints,
And that's how a paper is made.

THE NEW MINING LAWS OF CERRO GORDO.

Pursuant to a call issued on November 6, 1872, a special miners' meeting was held in Cerro Gordo at the saloon of John R. Hughes, on Thursday, October 7, 1872, for the purpose of defining the boundaries of the new district of Cerro Gordo, forming and adopting a set of laws for the government of said district, and electing officers for the same.

The meeting was called to order, and organized by electing H. W. Gould to the chair, W. L. Hunter, Recorder, acting as Secretary.

On motion, the following preamble and resolutions were offered, voted upon, section by section, and adopted as the By-Laws governing the District.

PREAMBLE:

WHEREAS, the Congress of the United States have in their wisdom made it incumbent on the miners of the various mining districts of the United States to provide such laws and regulations as to them may seem just, right and equitable, governing the location, manner of recording, amount of work necessary to hold possession of a claim, etc., subject to certain requirements.

Resolved, therefore, that we, the miners of Cerro Gordo Mining District do ordain and establish the following:

SECTION 1. This district shall hereafter be known as the Cerro Gordo Mining District of the county of Inyo, State of California, and its boundaries shall be as follows: Commencing where the Coso trail leaves the foot of Owens Big Lake, and running east twenty miles to the northwesterly edge of Panament Valley, thence northerly fifteen miles to the eastern edge of Salinas Valley, thence westerly to the Lone Pine bridge, on Owens River, thence following the eastern bank of Owens River and eastern shore of Owens Lake to the place of beginning.

SEC. 2. We accept as the laws of this district the Act of Congress approved May 10, 1872, with the regulations thereunder, issued from the General Land Office, and bearing dates of June 10, 1872, and September 20, 1872, with the following local regulations:

SEC. 3. Lode claims hereafter located in this district are allowed one hundred feet in lateral extent on each side of the center of the vein or lode.

SEC. 4. The notice of location of a mining claim or tunnel site must be given to the Recorder of the district for record within ten days from the posting on the claim.

SEC. 5. One foot in depth on a claim in blasting ground, or four feet in picking ground, in either shaft, drift or tunnel shall constitute twenty dollars worth of labor performed or improvements made.

SEC. 6. Claims located prior to May 10, 1872, on any lode or vein within the boundaries of this district, are required to have a monument erected, and a copy of its original notice, posted thereon.

SEC. 7. A Recorder shall be elected annually to serve for the term of one year, who must be a claimholder or legal representative of a claim in this district, whose duty it shall be to preserve the books of record and laws of the district in a proper form, to be accessible to any claim holder or legal representative of a claim at all proper times, and he shall record all notices of claims within the district, at the request of the owner, who must furnish a copy of the notice. And for each and every such record the recorder shall be entitled to a fee of Two Dollars. And it shall be his duty to issue a certificate of record to any person demanding it, on receipt of two dollars therefor.

SEC. 8. On application of a claimholder or legal representative of a claim, for a certificate showing the amount of labor performed or improvements made on a claim, the Recorder shall make a personal inspecton of the claim, and if the amount claimed appears correct, a certificate shall be issued to that effect, and for such inspection and certificate the Recorder shall be entitled to a fee of five dollars, and mileage at the rate of twenty-five cents for each mile or part of a mile that claim may be situated from the Recorder's place of residence.

SEC. 9. It shall be the duty of the Recorder of this district to call meetings of the miners whenever a petition is presented to him, signed by ten or more claimholders, requesting him to give notice of such meetings for the purpose of altering or amending the laws of the district, and he must post notices of such intended meeting—stating the object thereof and place of meeting—in three or more conspicuous places in the district; but no such meeting shall be held in less than ten, nor more than twenty days from the date of notice, and no person not a claimholder or legal representative of a claim shall have a voice or vote at such meeting.

SEC. 10. It shall be the duty of the Recorder, ten days previous to the expiration of his term of office, to post notices in three or more conspicuous places in the district, calling for the election of a Recorder, stating where the election is to be held, and appointing two claimholders or legal representatives of a claim judges of such election, who shall permit none but claimholders or legal representatives of a claim, to vote at any such election.

SEC. 11. In case of the absence or inability of the Recorder to attend to the duties of his office, any person having the necessary qualifications may be deputized by the Recorder to perform the duties of the office.

SEC. 12. A Recorder shall be elected on the first Thursday of November of each year, and it shall be the duty of the Recorder, whose term of office has expired, to deliver to his successor the books of record of the district on receiving payment of the original cost of said books.

SEC. 13. At all miners' meetings held in this district a majority of the claimholders present, and voting for or against any measure, shall constitute the adoption of, or rejection of such measure.

SEC. 14. These laws, rules and regulations, shall take effect on and after the date of their passage.

After the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, an election for Recorder was declared in order. Wm. Crapo was put in nomination, and on a vote being taken, was unanimously elected for the annual term commencing November 7, 1872.

It was unanimously resolved that W. L. Hunter compile the laws of Cerro Gordo Mining District, also that he be requested to deliver to Wm. Crapo, the newly elected Recorder of Cerro Gordo Mining District, the original books of record of Lone Pine Mining District.

W. L. HUNTER, Secretary.

—The great Boston fire originated in a basement of the large four-story granite building, at the corner of Summer and Kingston streets, occupied by Tibbets, Baldwin & Davis, wholesale dry goods dealers. It caught in the engine room and ran with great rapidity up the large elevator to the fourth story, where it was first seen climbing underneath the woodwork of the roof, and soon burst forth on all sides. There was but little wind stirring at the time, but the fire seems to have created a fierce gale, which materially aided and assisted it in its work of destruction.

—The St. Paul Press is informed by a gentleman who has just returned from a deer hunt on the frontier, of an epidemic prevailing among those animals which threatens to seriously affect the supply of venison. He says that herds were frequently seen in which there would be dozens scarcely able to travel and that large numbers of dead and dying deer were found in the woods. The disease seems to resemble in its symptoms the horse disease which is now creating so much trouble in the East.

—India-rubber weddings are now proposed, since so many useful articles are made of that material.

—"Man proposes—women opposes," says a cynical bachelor, who probably never proposed in his life.

To Be Hanged.

Thomas Woody and Wm. A. Hart, at Visalia, have both been sentenced to be hanged, Woody for the murder of Thomas Findley over a year ago, and Hart for that of Levi M. Fletcher more recently. Hart appealed for a new trial, which was denied. He is to be executed on the 20th of December next, which day will also probaby end the career of Woody. Gov. Booth will be urged to commute Hart's sentence to imprisonment for life, but the chances are that the Governor will not interfere.

A Cold-Blooded Murder.

The annals of crime in California have seldom, if ever, disclosed so cool and deliberate a murder as, by his own confession, was committed by the boy Alonzo Kirkland upon the boy McCloskey at the Rolling Mills on Thursday of last week. Kirkland is twenty years old and has served one term in the Industrial School for arson. It appears that he decoyed his victim behind the blacksmith shop to show him lewd pictures; that he assaulted him with an iron bar, and, "when he hollered' I was scared and rushed up to him and thought I would finish him. I then picked up the iron bar and struck him once or twice on the head." The murderer then took his money ($42 75) and departed. Here is no passion, no ill-feeling between the boys, but a cooley premeditated and deliberately executed murder for money. It has rarely happened in our State that a murder has been perpetrated for the sake of money; all other passions have had their victims. This crime seems the more monstrous when we contemplate the age of the criminal. We presume that an earnest effort will be made to save the boy Kirkland from the gallows, but it is a serious question to the community whether a life beginning with arson and culminating in murder at the age of twenty is worth preserving—whether there is any other security against his future career than death and the grave. —San Francisco Chronicle, Nov 17.

The Owens River Trade.

The Los Angeles papers have always scouted the idea of the trade of Owens river ever leaving that place; but we infer from the follwing item we find in The Star of the 9th instant, that the possibility of such an event is beginning to dawn upon them. The idea that the "merchants of the mining district prefer the Los Angeles route," is rich, when a single glance at a map is enough to satisfy the dullest among them that they can receive their goods via this place at least twenty days sooner and gain to that large extent in the use of their capital and in the saving of interest. The Star says:

The contract of Mr. Osborn for transporting the Cerro Gordo and Owens river bullion to the sea at this point, has or is about to expire, and a Mr. Chester of Bakersfield is to have the next contract. It is reported to us upon good authority that the merchants of the mining district prefer the Los Angeles route, while Chester, being largely interested in Bakersfield, is opposed to this route, and prefers the new road toward Visalia. If there is any influence that our citizens can bring to bear upon this affair, no time is to be lost. It is plain to us all that the loss of a large number of ten-horse teams that have traded here continually, will be seriously felt by merchants and producers.

—Bakersfield Courier

The Great Register.

We are indebted to some unknown friend in Inyo, for a copy of the Great Register of that county. It was printed in the office of THE INDEPENDENT, published at Independence, and is a neat and creditable specimen of typographical execution. We have examined it with great care and find it not only to be gotten up as the law directs and requires, but free from those disgusting and glaring errors with which our own is not only marred, but absolutely vitiated throughout. We should say, from the correct, and altogether satisfactory manner in which M. W. Hammarstrand, the County Clerk of that county, has attended to this the most important of his duties (the keeping and printing of the Great Register), that he is an honest, faithful and efficient officer, and as such we envy his possession on the part of our fortunate neighbors.—Bakersfield Courier.

—R. H. Gilman, Superintendent of the Southern Semi-Tropical Fruit Company, has gone to Los Angeles with funds of the company, with which to purchase lands. The company expect to put out next Spring 5,000 tropical fruit trees.

—Hudibras calls matrimony a perverse fever, beginning with heat and ending with frost.

CONTINGENCIES.

According to Dame Rumor certain virtuous individuals in Cerro Gordo have had their feelings much hurt, all because we found fault with their proposed selection for Supervisor, vice John Simpson, gone away. Now, we hope they won't "take on;" it isn't worth while. The fact is, it has not been many months since Mr. Simpson was elected to that same position, partly, at least, by these same parties, and chiefly by virtue of the opposing relations in certain matters towards the gentleman in question. It will also be remembered there were divers and sundry petitions, numerously if not generally signed both in Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine, all of which had a direct bearing in the same direction. It will be furthermore remembered by a few that the petitioners' counsel, Mr. Miller, elaborately set forth in his appeal to the Supervisors for protection and aid the grievances in detail of the petitioners by reason of the grasping influences of their recent candidate.

Now, if the sheep of those days needed any protection, it strikes us that those of the present do also, as precisely the same dangers which threatened then are still abroad—the same identical wolf of which they professed to be so dreadfully alarmed is still alive and kicking, but, we suppose, because he looks sleek and fat, and not gaunt and lean, they consider it would be quite safe to put him in charge of the whole corral! It may be it has been discovered that he is not half so ferocious as was supposed—we are inclined to that belief ourselves, but at the same time would rather keep our lambs a little ways off—but whether such is the case or not we feel pretty safe in the belief that if he should take a notion to devour anybody he would naturally pitch on to those nearest at hand first, which would be all right and proper enough, since they don't thank us for a word of caution.

Seriously, we do not wish or intend to do injustice to anyone; would much sooner say a good than a bad word for or help to sustain than to pull down almost any man; but our duty as journalists, working in the interests of the many and not of the few, frequently impels the first named course when, if considered in the light of our own immediate personal advantage, the opposite would have been the rule. So in the present instance, but we withhold any further remarks in that direction, because our motives are certain to receive a wrong construction in certain quarters, and for this reason: The parties referred to at the beginnipg of this say that if we do not let Mr. Belshaw, who has virtually made Cerro Gordo, alone, the vote of that camp on the county seat question will be thrown adversely to the interests of this place. Now, in the first place, it is not the interests of this place simply that are to be injuriously affected in the threatened result, but those of the whole county, as we shall take occasion to demonstrate in due time. Secondly, the people of this place are no more responsible or answerable for what appears in these columns than those of Cerro Gordo, and thirdly, there is no connection between the two matters in question anyhow. As for us, we propose to go right along and do what we conceive to be right, whether it meets with general approbation or the reverse. When we fail to do that we propose to quit the business, merely to retain our own self respect.

The New Boundary Line.

The impression has gone abroad that, by the new survey now being made, a large strip of territory will be taken from Nevada and added to this State. In point of fact this strip will not exceed two miles in width, but extends the entire length of the State. In the aggregate this makes quite an important and valuable addition to our State, but it does not include or give us Columbus or Lida Valley as many suppose. To do that the new line must diverge several degrees from its true direction as fixed by act of Congress. The initial point was fixed at the point of intersection of the 38th degree of latitude and 42d of longitude west of Washington; thence, due north to the Oregon line, and from the same point, due southeast to the Colorado river. This line was never run further in the direction given than to a point about 100 miles southeasterly of Benton, but this was sufficient to show that the districts mentioned are altogether too far eastward to be brought within the new line. The whole of the present season will be consumed in running the line north from the initial point at Lake Bigler, so the chances are the one south will not be run through for two years yet.

It.

The latest thing out, should your name happen to be Brown, is to spell it "Browghne."

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

The Prescott (Arizona) Miner, which, by the way, is the most energetic paper on the coast, tells the people of that country that it is useless for them to continue to sit still any longer awaiting San Francisco capital to come and help them out of their troubles—it is only a hopeless waste of time and and substance. Though their mines are both rich and numerous the surrounding dangers and difficulties are too great to longer entertain any such hope, at least, until time and railroads have rendered that blood-stained country safer and easier of access. The miners must pitch in on their own account, and in conclusion The Miner makes the following suggestions, which are just as applicable in some respects to this and other similarly situated mining regions, as to those of Arizona:

We must pitch into our mines and win. Picks, drills, powder, fuse, quicksilver and willing hands will do the business for us. We have plenty of quartz rock that will pay from $15 to $100 per ton; yes, more, and if one or two men have not the means to start work and arastras upon such mines, other men should join them; other means should be put up and used. We must, in fact, pattern after the ants, the bees and other co-operative creatures who unite their efforts and accomplish herculean tasks, for the general welfare.

Enough money is squandered in the Territory, every day of the year, for things and amusements which its citizens might do without, to set a company of five or more miners at work upon some good mine, and we, for one, favor some plan for raising funds for this purpose. We are poor, but, bless us, we are willing to give a goodly portion of all we have to any man or set of men who will go to work in good earnest, upon some good mine. Merchants, farmers, stockmen, every man in every section of the Territory should do this, if they wish to see more life, more money, more trade, more white people and fewer Indians in this Territory.

THE BOSTON CONFLAGRATION.

After raging for more than two days the Boston conflagration was finally subdued by means of one hundred and eighty engines. It is claimed that it would have been extinguished at the starting point but for an order from the Chief of the fire department forbidding companies to use their horses or take out their steamers until after they had failed to stop the fire with hook and ladder and fire plug hose. They were then to sound a second alarm and take out their steamers by hand. The second alarm was not sounded until 36 minutes had elapsed, when the fire had got beyond the control of even the steamers. The latest and lowest estimate of the insurance loss gives the total as $48,572,300, of which amount Massachusetts companies lose $29,710,000; Connecticut, $2,952,800; New York, $6,850,000; Maine, $400,000; Rhode Island, $900,000; California $150,000; Pennsylvania, $2,776,500; Foreign, $4,510,000. The balance is distributed in small amounts over several States. The wool dealers, it is said, are fully covered by insurance. A large number of bales are being recovered from the ruins outside the burnt blocks. It is believed that the direct and indirect losses will not exceed $40,000,000 after the insurance is paid.

A Fortune Made By a Hat.

[From The American Artisian.]

We have all heard of the boy who stooped to pick up a pin as he was sadly leaving the presence of a rich banker of whom he had asked for employment in vain, and was thereupon recalled, given a stool in the office, afterwards taken into partnership, and died immensely rich. It may well have been true, as many fortunes have turned upon as slight points as that. The other day Herr Muhl died at Colmar—late of France, but now of Germany—twice over a millionaire, who owed all his fortune to his hat. He had been apprenticed to a turner, and, in the coorse of his Wanderjahr, or traveling-year of the German journeyman, he found himself in Colmar, and applied to Messrs. Well & Boutron—who had a great machine shop—for work. The ragged and barefoot boy, with his knapsack on his back, did not commend himself to his masters, and he was told to go about his business. As he was going, the master machinist called after him, "I say, man, what kind of a hat is that you have on?" "A wooden one, sir." "A wooden one! And where did you get it?" "I made it, sir." "How?" "With my lathe. I had a long way to go and needed a hat to keep out the rain, and, as I had no money to buy one, I made this out of wood." "But this is oval, and an oval form cannot be made with a lathe." "That is true, sir; but, nevertheless, I did it. I took my central point, and worked away till I made my hat." The keen-sighted turner at once engaged him, and found him to be a mechanical genius as well as a good workman. He became a partner and afterward sole proprietor, under the Gallicized name of M. Moulin, and died the richest man of the whole countryside.

Pistols vs. Pencils.

A gentleman who was in Pioche on election day says no pencils were used for scratching tickets. Whenever a sovereign found an obnoxious name on his ballot he merely held it up and shot it out.—Eureka Sentinel

A London dispatch of the 16th says:

A dispatch from Stralsund to-day reports that eighty vessels were totally wrecked by the late gale. Towns were considerably damaged by the inundation. The fishermen on the islands of Clengst, Daro and Hildensol lost all their fishing smacks and apparatus and their houses and contents were greatly damaged by water. Nearly all the cattle on the islands were drowned. Wells were flooded from the sea, and the inhabitants are suffering for want of fresh water, food and shelter. The Government has dispatched a steamer laden with supplies to their relief. The island of Rugen also felt the disaster heavily; many of its fishing boats were destroyed. The fields near the coast line were flooded. The loss of life both on the islands and mainland is very great. The ship Sesostris was wrecked in the North Sea during the terrible gale on Wednesday last, and fourteen of the crew perished.

A letter from Cuba, dated on the 11th instant, has the following:

The insurgents, between 600 and 700 in number, entered San Antonia, about thirty miles from De Avilla, and sacked and burned the place. From there they went to the entrenched Spanish camp and village of Elcarelia which they completely destroyed. On the following day, when the Cubans were at Alma, they were attacked by Barran's guerrillas, who returned here next day defeated and leaving their dead on the field. The Cuban General who commanded the force learned that a convoy of five escorts, guided by fifty regulars and fifty guerillas, were coming up the road, and he set out and captured the whole convoy. All the Spaniards on foot were killed but twenty-two mounted men fled.

The great storm above mentioned did great damage, also in the north of Europe, Denmark particularly; the wind blew a hurricane and inundated the country for miles. Great damage was done to seaport towns and numerous marine disasters occurred. Reports of the loss of twenty four ships are already received. Half the town of Prasto, on the island of Zeeland, on the Baltic, was laid waste. The small town of Botoy was laid waste and all the inhabitants drowned.

Harvard College suffered a loss of $500,000 by the Boston fire. This includes the value of rents accruing to the institution. Towards the total loss the college has good insurance to the amount of $100,000, and $116,000 in irresponsible companies.

IMPORTANT LETTER.

The Los Angeles Star translates and publishes under the above caption, the following letter from Mr, Beaudry to a friend in Los Angeles. The letter explains itself and will be read with interest, both as a proof of the great value of our mines, and an evidence of the success of Mr. Beaudry himself but more, especially as an indication of his due appreciation of what our country needs, and of the manner in which it is to be secured. He certainly has our very best wishes for the most complete success of his plans:

CERRO GORDO, October 29, 1872.

I should have written to you several days since, but between the demands of business and an attack of sickness, I failed to find time.

On my arrival I visited "the mine," which I found as rich as Mr J. L. Porter had said in his letters; that is, that there is enough ore in sight to last twelve months.

Our hoisting works are in place and have been operating for four days, and everything goes along well. We can take out 70 tons every ten hours, or 140 per day of 24 hours. I am also at present preparing to double the capacity of my furnace, and I hope from the 1st of January, 1873, to produce ten tons of bullion per day, or 300 tons a month, which will give me at least $200,000 of available money a year, and even perhaps a quarter of a million.

I am about maturing a plan by which we may incorporate the mine with a capital of from five to seven million dollars, of which two million will be applied to the building of a railroad from Los Angeles here; and I think that in four or five months we will be deep enough in the mine to determine whether the plan is feasible or not—that is, whether the mine will justify the calculation or not.

In case Stanford & Co. continue their road to Los Angeles, then we will build a railway from Tehechepi to this place, which can be done for one million dollars. By this time we would reduce the cost of freight to $20 per ton, instead of $55 50, and this would give an economy of $106,500 on my part alone at ten tons per day; on Belshaw's the same amount, and to the Swansea company and transients an equal amount—making a total of $319,600. Now, the return freight, grain and passengers, will reach $106,500—so that there would be a total of $426,000 of revenue for a capital of $2,000,000. You see, therefore, the thing is not exaggerated, if the mine will guarantee the outlay, as it has now every appearance that it will do.

We have introduced lately a number of improvements by which we shall save a great deal of lead and silver that has been heretofore lost, and I am convinced that in one year we shall be enabled to reduce the ores with a loss only of 3 per cent. of lead and 1 per cent of silver.

Belshaw has returned, and during his trip he visited all the places where they are working ores containing lead and silver, and he tells me that we work them more economical than anywhere else by at least 25 per cent. I hope to consummate my arrangement about lead with Belshaw in eight days at an advance of— per ton on last year.

VICTOR BEAUDRY.

Caricature as a Power in the Canvass—Nast and Morgan.

[From The Cincinnati Commercial.]

In one of the offices of Newspaper Row, in this city, there arose a discussion in regard to the merits of Nast and Morgan as caricaturists. Several newspaper men were present, representing different politics, and two or three politicians. The palm was of course given to Nast, whose caricatures have done more to defeat Greeley than all the speeches that have been delivered, and they have been circulated broadcast from one end of the country to the other. The Grant Committee have spent a great deal of money with the Harper Brothers this Summer.

In the discussion that ensued regarding this artist, one of the Liberals present said that, while he admired Nast's genius, he could have no respect for the man, on account of his most disgusting and unlicensed abuse of Mr. Greeley. He said the illustration wherein Greeley is represented as shaking hands with Wilkes Booth over Lincoln's grave, was the work of a hyena and not a man, and that the picture which represents Greeley whipping slaves and another in which he gloats over the rebel prison pen at Andersonville, were little better.

To this a Radical replied that those pictures were not as bad as Morgan's, in which Grant is always represented as drunk. The answer to this was that in the Greeley case it was all imagination, while there was substantial truth as foundation for the other. It was conceded that Matt Morgan had been very successful in his caricatures of Conklin and Morton, and that he failed in choosing subjects for his pictures, while Nast was generally very successful. All this, it was admitted, resulted from the ability of the two men. Nast's ability seems almost an inspiration, while Morgan, it would seem, has no ability outside of his capacity to use the pencil.

Morgan is a very small man, about thirty or thirty-five years old, short, and extremely thin. The largest thing about him is his nose, and the next largest is his moustache, which is a brilliant red. His hair is of the same warm color, and curls tight to his head, growing low on the forehead, and is parted in the middle. He is extremely neat and stylish in his dress, and has the bearing of a pleasant gentleman.

One of the gentleman taking part in the conversation took up a copy of Harper's Weekly and called attention to the caricature of Greeley. "See," said he, "how Greeley looks, a great, big, fat, lazy booby. Look at him." And he laughed heartily. Washington, of The Courier-Journal, who frequently shoots of a good thing, made answer:

"Yes, Nast's power is wonderful. He is, probably, the greatest caricaturist living, and I doubt if there was ever an abler one. He is, beside, an artist of great brilliancy and fancy. He would succeed, in all probability, outside of caricature. It is true he can make Greeley look like a booby, he can make Schurz look like the devil, he can make Tipton look like a lunatic, he can make Sumner look like a bloated Englishman, and he can even make Jack Logan look like an honest man. But there is one thing he can't do."

"What is that?" asked all in one voice.

"He can't make Grant look like a gentleman," was the reply.

Returned

Sheriff Mulkey reached home yesterday, after a search of nearly three weeks for some horse thieves. The stolen stock consisted of nine head, four of which belonged to Col. Stevens, of Cottonwood, and the remainder to unknown owners. One of them, a black mare, followed by a mule colt, is now at Fish Lake Valley; another, a bay mare mule, is at the "Butler Ranch," in Monitor Valley, 30 miles from Eureka; and two others, a brown horse and gray mare, are near the same place. Parties having lost such "critters" will do well to make a note on't. Two of Col. Stevens' animals were recovered at a ranch not far distant from Belmont. The thieves had sold these nine head to different parties, and immediately thereafter stole some sixty head more. One was a large and well known mule belonging to Greenley & Hubbard, several head from Hodges & Hooper, some 36 from J. G. Butler of Monitor Valley, and the remainder from different owners. Mr. Mulkey followed this band for many miles, but they having three weeks the start of him, and finally going towards the Humboldt river, he returned home. There are three of these thieves, and as a number of citizens are after them their capture is almost certain, in which case neither judge or jury will be necessary to determine the extent of their crimes or their punishment. Mr. Mulkey had a laborious, tedious trip, and finally gave up the chase after all his expenses and hardships because the latest offenses were committed in Nevada, and the officers there would have held on to the prisoners—otherwise he is confident that he would have corralled them.

From Lida.

We were last evening favored with a call from Mr. Walker, of Deep Spring, and Mr. Conklin, of the widely known firm of Parker, Wattson & Co., San Francisco. Mr. Conklin occasionally comes up to look after the extensive mining interests of his firm in Lida and Deep Spring, and just now likes the prospects generally, but is satisfied that Hiskey & Walker don't fully appreciate his likings in every respect, since for a night or two they put him to work in the mill, vice somebody that had the influwendways or something. Mr. Walker informs us that they hope to have their new Lida mill in operation by the middle of December next. All the machinery for the mill (an 8 stamper) was expected on the ground yesterday. Big yields and profits to match may be looked for, when they get these works fairly under way—a reasonable supposition, since they have several hundred tons of second class ore on the dumps, and an abundance of all kinds in sight in the mines. From first-class ores packed on mules 35 miles to the mill at Deep Spring, they have since last March taken out the neat, though not net, sum of $60,000—a most surprising yield for the small amount of ore worked. It requires time, patience and money to carry on milling operations in such distant and isolated localities, but with such ores as those of Lida and such men as Hiskey & Walker to manage things, it can and has been profitably done, and as soon as some of the principal difficulties have passed away their success will be still more marked.

Pastoral Visit.

Presiding Elder J. D. Hammond, of the Methodist Church, arrived here from Carson, Nevada, his place of residence, early on Sunday morning last. This was his first pastoral visit to this section, and though fatigued from his long stage ride, he preached two very interesting and well delivered sermons here the day of his arrival. Also, a third time here on Wednesday evening, in the meantime having held forth one night each in Lone Pine and Cerro Gordo. His appointments in the upper end of the valley will occupy every evening during his contemplated stay, and we are sure he will be listened to with pleasure on every occasion. Our local minister and indefatigable worker in the cause, the Rev. Mr. Orne, accompanied him in this extensive round of duty through the county. We shall be pleased to see the Elder back here again when his duties permit.

A Terpsichorean Treat.

From the elaborate preparations going on we can not doubt but that the ball to be given by the "boys in blue" at Camp Independence on Thanksgiving evening, is to be the most recherche affair of the coming season. The happy chaps in possession of the little golden invitation billet-doux are in ecstacies—provided their feminities haven't "chopped" on 'em.

The Blaney House.

Elsewhere will be seen the advertisement of the Blaney House, under the able management of Mr. Thompson and lady. The concern is fast becoming one of the most popular institutions in town.

Three Years.

Judge Hannah gives Niles Nelson three years at San Quentin for his little grand larceny operations. Sheriff Mulkey will escort him down soon.

Assaying.

Mine owners and prospectors will find something of interest in the advertisement of Mr. James Polkinghorne, assayer, at the Eclipse works.

Keys Lost.

The finder of a certain bunch of keys will be paid $5 upon delivering them to Harris & Rhine.

Freights via. Bakersfield.

Our county was, during the past week, favored with a general business visit from Mr. J. Chester, of Kern county, the present contractor for the transportation of base bullion. Mr. Chester is well known in the southern counties as the gentleman whose far-sighted enterprise and untiring energy has placed Kern county at the very head of the rising communities of the State. Without doubt he will be successful in transferring the bulk of our freights from the Los Angeles route to the one leading through Bakersfield to the Southern Pacific Railroad, a triumph fairly illustrating what can be accomplished by a determined, public-spirited man. At the head of the Kern and Inyo Forwarding Company, now engaged in supplying Tulare and Kern counties with freights from San Francisco, in connection with the Southern Pacific Railroad, he has effected communication with this county, and proposes to advance the system of transportation throughout our entire country, by means of shortening and building roads and by conducting the business on correct, systematic principles. The railroad is now moving material to Tipton, the present end of the line, preparatory to an advance as soon as the Winter rains put the ground in condition for working. Within ninety days the completion of the road to Bakersfield will bring us seventy miles nearer to San Francisco than by the Los Angeles route, and we understand that a fast freight line is one of the probabilities of the near future. As all freight will be forwarded immediately upon its arrival at Tipton, the day of delivery at its destination is made certain, no team being allowed to wait for additional freight. The system admits of all teams taking part in the transportation, but under the direction of the company. With the shipment of freight for this section, a telegram from San Francisco announces the fact to the agent at Tipton, enabling him to provide for its immediate transmission and to advise the consignees of its departure. We have detailed the outlines of the arrangement, and would call attention to the advertisement elsewhere.

County Court.

A writ of certiorari was issued by Judge Hannah of the County Court, to Justice Peter Peerson, on Thursday last, involving this question of law: At a recent trial in his court of a case of grand larceny wherein the people of the State of California were plaintiffs, the charge was sustained in part only, and the costs of suit were charged against the claimant of the property, T. W. Hunt, instead of the State. Hunt don't think this was exactly the right thing, and it is likely quite an interesting suit will grow out of it. The County Court will meet next Monday week, and will probably remain in session several days if this and the Murandi trial are carried through. It is altogether likely, however, that the latter case won't occupy any more time than is required to quash a very weak indictment.

The Eclipse Company, Etc.

Mr. A. S. Lowndes, of San Francisco, arrived here on Thursday. He comes in the interest of the Eclipse Company, whose outstanding liabilities will all be paid off in a few days. In company with Capt. Jones, Superintendent, he is now on a visit to the mine, upon which work, in the way of sinking shafts, will soon be resumed if the result of the present examination is favorable. These gentlemen had a desire to take hold in Waucoba, but certain obstacles have arisen which are likely to prevent this hoped for consummation. The mines of that district are altogether too promising to be allowed to remain idle any great length of time.

A Muss.

A lively skirmish is reported from Fish Slough, a stage station on the road above Bishop Creek. A one-sided fight occurred between a couple of gents, after which the vanquished takes a shot at his victor just for luck—but without damaging him, however. No cards.

A Smash Up.

Day before yesterday a big bullion team coming down the grade from Cerro Gordo got "bunched" from the giving way of the brake bar, and went off the grade and smashed up things generally. Other similar accidents are reported as having occurred recently.

A Change.

Johnny Ullrick has purchased the interest of Harry Wright in the Northern Stage Line, and will hereafter run that institution as sole proprietor and manager. We believe that Mr. Wright proposes to go into business at this point.

Up Freight.

Mr. Olinghouse shipped from Los Angeles, on the 16th instant, 4,000 feet of red-wood lumber for J. Alexander, Lone Pine—weight, 5,000 lbs.; F. Goblin, Swansea, 37 pkgs mdse, weighing 1,900 lbs.

On Bail.

Frank Murandi, indicted for "raising" a money order, gave bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance for trial next Monday week, and was released from custody.

—Mons. Buislay went up in his balloon at San Francisco, and when up one thousand feet he sent a goat down by a parachute. The æronaut himself landed in safety, being up over twenty minutes.

—A man who bought a thousand Havana cigars, on being asked what he had, replied they were tickets to a course of a lectures to be given by his wife.

Local Pride vs. Common Sense.

[From The Sacramento Record, Nov. 16.]

The refusal of the Boston local authorities to accept the aid proffered by other cities would be commendable if it were certain that this concession to local pride did not involve some injustice to the suffering poor. Despite the protestations of the Boston press and the Relief Committee, there seems reason to fear that a large number of persons are actually in urgent need of relief, and that they are not obtaining it from their neighbors. A dispatch to The Record yesterday stated that "nearly 20,000 shop girls have been thrown out of employment, many of whom lost every article of clothing, and are in danger of starving." It is further reported that "the people of Boston have not yet taken any steps for efficiently aiding the poor working women." The Boston Advertiser, arguing against the receipt of relief from outside sources, said yesterday that there was no way of employing money so sent; that "we ought not to use it to give food and clothing to persons who are simply out of employment, and who will very likely get some." This appears to us a very extraordinary line of argument. The situation which The Advertiser slurs over contemptuously as being "simply out of employment" is the most serious calamity that could befall the poor, short of disease or death. These people who are thrown out of employment have no resources to fall back upon. Living from hand to mouth, the cessation of employment means nothing less than starvation. It is impossible that Boston can at once find work for so large a surplus of labor in view of the blow her business has sustained, and one week of enforced idleness will be sufficient to reduce thousands to apsolute destitution. No question can be had of the ability of the wealthy citizens to meet the emergency, but in these cases promptness is a more important requisite than anything else, since the adage holds good that "while the grass grows the steed starves." It would perhaps be a proud fact for Boston that she had won through her trouble unaided, but inasmuch as the effort seems likely to occasion the keenest suffering to those who are the least concerned in the sequel, we are disposed to think that the refusal of assistance is not altogether consistent with justice and common sense.

More Trouble.

No sooner have England and the United States settled their differences, through the medium of the Geneva tribunal, than a fresh conficit arises, which threatens to undo the great work of pacification. Mr. Billy Edwards, American, and Mr. Tom Kenney, Englishman, are about to meet in "the ring," to contend for the championship of light-weights; and the two countries will doubtless be at loggerheads over the result.

VARIETIES.

—A lady in Halifax, N. S., desired the removal of a dead cat, and was informed that she must go to the senior Alderman of the ward; he would then tell the Mayor; the Mayor would then tell the Health Inspector; the Health Inspector would tell the police; the police would tell the dead cat men, and the dead cat men would remove the nuisance. It would seem that the circumlocution office is to be found in the British colonies, as well as in the mother country.

—The fleshy owner of a crow-bait span was complaining to some bystanders that he did not know what was the matter with his horses. He had tried everything he could think of—condition powders and all other specifics—but to no purpose. They would not improve the flesh. A stable-boy, of Irish persuasion, whose sympathies were aroused by the story, comprehended the situation, and modestly asked, "Did yees iver try corn?"

—"I shall never forgive you, Henry," exclaimed an incensed wife. "Could not help it, my love," meekly responded the guilty and humiliated Boffin, "I've been to Chicago." "Been to Chicago!" scornfully reiterated Mrs. B., as an expression of contempt swept across her Grecian profile, "You've been drunk." "Yes, my love; I got into the grain corner."

—A Detroit family undertook to marry their daughter of fourteen to a man of sixty. The ceremony was about to take place when the girl's big brother appeared on the scene, hoisted the ancient lover out of doors and over the gate, and gave him as a parting attention, some very different 'booty' from what he came for.

—A story is told of a father in a church who, when the marriage services came to the point where the clergyman asks, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" replied: "Well, sir, I am called to do it, although it goes agin the grain. I wanted her to marry Bill Blowser, who is worth twice the money o' that 'ere man."

PROSPECTUS.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

An action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, and the complaint filed in the County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Court. The People of the State of California send Greeting to E. H. Gales and John Doe. To each of the above named defendants, and all owners and claimants of the property above described: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiffs, in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein (a copy of which accompanies this summons) within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service of this summons, if served within this County; if served out of this County, but within this Judicial District, within twenty days, or if served out of said District, then within forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you. The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this Court for the foreclosure of the right, title and interest of defendant in and to certain State School lands, described in the complaint and purchased by the said A. H. Gales on the 4th day of August, A. D. 1863, and described as follows, to-wit: In location No. 205, of the Inyo County School lands, Surveyed Lands, Visalia Land District, West ½ of S. E. ¼, Section 16, Range 36 E., Township 9 south, Mount Diablo Base and Meridian, containing Eighty acres. That the certificate of purchase and other evidence of title held by defendant may be declared null and void, and for the costs of suit herein expended, and also that the said defendant and all persons claiming by, through or under him may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, lien, claim, equity of redemption and interest in and to said premises, and for other and further relief. And if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, as above required, the plaintiffs will take default against you, and apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District this Tenth day of September, A. D. 1872.

AN ADDRESS BY THE UNITED STATES CENTENNIAL COMMISSION.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES: The Congress of the United States has enacted that the completion of the one hundreth year of American Independence shall be celebrated by an International Exhibition of the Arts, Manufactures, and products of the soil and mine, to be held at Philadelphia, in 1876, and has appointed a Commission, consisting of representatives from each State and Territory, to conduct the celebration.

Originating under the auspices of the National Legislature, controlled by a National Commission, and designed as it is to "Commemorate the first century of our existence, by an exhibition of the natural resources of our country and their development, and of our progress in those arts which benefit mankind, in comparison with those of older nations," it is to the people at large that the Commission look for the aid which is necessary to make the Centennial Celebration the grandest anniversary the world has ever seen.

That the completion of the first century of our existence should be marked by some imposing demonstration is, we believe, the patriotic wish of the people of the whole country. The Congress of the United States has wisely decided that the birth day of the Great Republic can be most fittingly celebrated by the universal collection and display of all the trophies of its progress. It is designed to bring together, within a building covering fifty acres, not only the varied productions of our mines and of the soil, but types of all the intellectual triumphs of our citizens, specimens of everything that America can furnish, whether from the brains or the hands of her children, and thus make evident to the world the advancement of which a self governed people is capable.

In this "Celebration" all nations will be invited to participate; its character being international. Europe will display her arts and manufactures, India her curious fabrics, while newly opened China and Japan will lay bare the treasures which for centuries their ingenious people have been perfecting. Each land will compete in generous rivalry for the palm of superior excellence

To this grand gathering every zone will contribute its fruits and cereals. No minerals shall be wanting; for what the East lacks the West will supply. Under one roof will the South display in rich luxuriance her growing cotton, and the North in miniature, the ceaseless machinery of her mills converting that cotton into cloth. Each section of the globe will send its best offerings to this exhibition, and each State of the Union, as the member of one united body politic, will show to her sister States and to the world, how much she can add to the greatness of the nation of which she is a harmonious part.

To make the Centennial Celebration such a success as the patriotism and the pride of every American demands will require the co-operation of the people of the whole country. The United States Centennial Commission has received no Government aid, such as England extended to her World's Fair, and France to her Universal Exposition, yet the labor and responsibility imposed upon the Commission is as great as in either of those undertakings. It is estimated that ten millions of dollars will be required, and this sum Congress has provided shall be raised by stock subscription, and that the people shall have the opportunity of subscribing in proportion to the population of their respective States and Territories.

The Committee look to the unfailing patriotism of the people of every section, to see that each contributes its share to the expenses, and receives its share of the benefits of an enterprise in which all are so deeply interested. It would further earnestly urge the formation in each State and Territory of a centennial organization, which shall in time see that county associations are formed, so that when the nations are gathered together in 1876 each commonwealth can view with pride the contributions she has made to the national glory.

Confidently relying on the zeal and patriotism ever displayed by our people in every national undertaking, we pledge and prophecy, that the Centennial Celebration will worthily show how greatness, wealth and intelligence can be fostered with such institutions as those which have for one hundred years blessed the people of the United States.

JOSEPH R HAWLEY, President.
LEWIS WALN SMITH, Temporary Secretary.

—A number of New York capitalists have ordered vessels built in Nova Scotia.

—The High Toned Guards is the name of a military company at Albany, N. Y.

—It took twenty men, armed with Whitney rifles, to kill a mad bull, near East Rock, Conn.

—Giving seventeen hundred pounds of coal for a ton is among the "weighs that are dark."

—"Apothecarelessness" is a new word the present generation has found it necessary to invent.

—The largest dairy in California contains 1,200 cows, the milk of which is churned into butter by steam.

—In Kansas and Nebraska alone over fifteen thousand entries were made within a year under the homestead law.

—A floating elevator is being constructed in New Orleans double the capacity of any floating elevator in the country.

—Young married people who have their house built should have it built round, so that discontent can find no corner in it.

—The old notion that odorous flowers are injurious to the health, seems to have been quite overturned by some recent experiments.

—Six hundred barrels of whisky and 200 cases of brandy, that have lain in the bed of the Mississippi, near Memphis, since 1861, were fished up recently.

—An Indianapolis clergyman, who discovered a clear case of kissing during the evening worship, recently, stopped his sermon and offered prayer for the osculators.

—A husband whose wife has applied for a divorce writes a protest to the Judge, in which he says: "This plagued thing called a divorce has, in my opinion, parted many a man and his wife."

—The Marquis of Bute is preparing for the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition of 1873, a complete assortment of metals and ores from Wales, the county of Durham, and the entire basin of South Wales, including Monmouthshire.

—An Auburn (N. Y.) convict having been released after a three years' service, sought out the widow of a former acquaintance, known before his sentence, and paid her a small sum of money he had borrowed of her husband while the latter and himself were at work together in Elmira.

—An American marble cutter has a tombstone in his marble-yard, made from the common limestone taken from the hills north of Topeka, that is good enough for any one. He has reduced it to as fine a finish as any of his marble, and cut an oak twig and acorn above the inscription that fully equals the best marble cutting.

—Mrs. Ella C. Granger, the wife of a Cincinnati inebriate, has brought six different actions for damages against as many saloon keepers for selling intoxicating drinks to her husband between the years 1870 and 1872, thereby leading him to his ruin. She modestly asks of each the small sum of $10,000, or $60,000 from the six.

—"Deer tongue" is a little plant which is now attracting considerable attention as an article for scenting tobacco and wrappers for cigars, the leaves having a strong vanilla odor. It grows abundantly in the lower Southern States, and a Southern paper is confident that it will become an important commercial product of that section of the country.

—The St. Louis Democrat has a queer way of dressing up a news item For example: "Daniel Thatcher of Paoli, Kansas, loved Miss Ellen Pine, and so did I. M. Purcell. Daniel collided with Purcell and gave him a tremendous thrashing. Somebody 'laid' for Thatcher and blew off the top of his head. When the fair Ellen was taken to the house where the gory remains of her dead lover were laid out, her first remark was affecting. She said, "Mrs. Shipman, have you put up any apple butter yet?"

—Sir Toby has been spending a few days in South Jersey, and philosophically observes of one of his experiences of his visit: "I never did have that animosity toward the mosquito that most people feel, but when I saw him in his glory down here, deliberately leaning against my bedpost, his legs crossed, and his right flipper resting carelessly on his hip, watching for me to go to bed, it struck me that, for a vampire, his behavior was impertinent and exasperating in the extreme."

The Road to Ruin.

The Union School of Westfield, N. Y., has a naughty professor. He recently got a divorce from his wife and eloped with a pupil. Her he deserted, hired a livery horse and buggy and sold them, and wound up by stealing a jeweler's watch.

—Louisville husbands are well trained. One of them lately submitted to a cowhiding from his wife at his place of business, and when she had finished, meekly picked up the baby and walked home with her.

Laura as a Poisoner.

Mrs. Fair appears in a new rôle, according to late San Francisco advices. It is alleged that she had plotted with a restaurant waiter named "Frank" to give Judge Dwinelle his quietus by means of a cup of cold poison. This was before her second trial. The publication of this alleged plot has created a profound sensation in the city. It appears that counsel investigated the matter at the time, and so did the Chief of Police, but it was kept quiet. Friends of Judge Dwinelle say that part of the alleged plot was to poison the wine or liquor on his sideboard, or the milk left in a can at the door. They also state that, at that time, a woman went to his house in disguise one day and told Mrs. Dwinelle not to leave the can at the door any more. Judge Campbell says that he was to have been the last one put out of the way, but he never had the pleasure of knowing precisely how his exit was to be made. Chief Crowley says he became satisfied that the waiter Frank was crazy. His physicians say he was not. Mrs. Fair remains in the city, but no more is said about a lecture on wolves.

The Jubilee

Of The New York Observer is to be celebrated by the issue of a valuable illustrated Jubilee Year-Book, which the publishers propose to send free to every subscriber. The Observer has completed its 50th year, and bids fair, judging from the great success that attends its publication, to lead the religious press for another fifty years. We can safely say a good word for The New York Observer as a famlly paper of the first class, and one that, while in it will be found entertainment and instructien for every member of the household, will always tend to promote those principles that make valuable neighbors and good citizens. We advise our friends to subscribe for it, and secure the Jubilee Year-Book, gratis: $3 a year; Sidney E. Morse & Co., 37 Park Row, New York.

The Difference.

Horse theives are very active over in Tulare county, having recently run off a large number of very valuable animals. The Sheriff and his deputies there decline to follow them outside of their own county limits, because the law allows them no recompense for so doing, and consequently the thieves have no one to molest or make them afraid after they get a fair start. Here it is a little different. Our Sheriff, Mr. Mulkey, goes after such gentry and follows them for hundreds of miles through a neighboring State, and with no hope of reward other than a sense of doing his whole duty and a desire to restore stolen property to losers, who can ill afford to lose it or pay for its recovery, and what is more, it is not often that he makes a waterhaul on such voluntary expeditions. He gets either the thieves or property or both.

Great Indian War Imminent.

We understand that a great Indian war, between the Inyo and Kaweah tribes, is imminent in the mountains east of here. The Inyos have been invading the lands of the Kaweahs and infringing upon their pinyon range. The Kaweahs in return swear vengeance, and our information shows that they are respectively collecting large bodies of warriors to begin the contest. It may, however, culminate in nothing more that a grand pow-wow, a great dance, and a big drunk, after all.—Tulare Times, Nov. 23.

That's all—a dance and a big drunk, if they can "heap ketchum" the requisite fire-water. We feel authorized to state that all our Indians want is their regular hogadie and to be "let alone."

Earthquakes in New Hampshire.

It will be seen from the following, dated Concord, November 18, that the people of the old Granite State begin to have an idea how the old thing works themselves:

A severe shock of earthquake was felt here at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It began with a sort of explosion, followed by a trembling shaking, and lasted about ten seconds. Buildings were rocked violently. The shock was plainly felt by people walking in the streets. Its apparent course was from west to east. The telegraph operators at Contookook and Warner report the same shock there.

Annexation.

British Colonists in New York are favoring annexation. They had a meeting November 21, and decided to communicate with the colonists of Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, with reference to choosing influential men to co-operate with annexa-

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

From present indications it is quite probable there will be some change in the freighting interests of this county, that will conduce very materially to the general prosperity and especially the farming interests.

Mr. Nadeau is about to transfer all his large teams to the road between Columbus and Wadsworth, on the Central Pacific. The result will be that much, if not all, the incoming freights of the valley from this point northward wil come via that route, in which case our farmers will have ready market for all their provender necessary to supply these teams, and also for other kinds of produce that will be required to supply the demands that will be created or receive a new impulse from this change, at Columbus and other contiguous mining camps.

Hitherto, as is well known, the farmers of this county have derived but an infinitesimal portion of the benefits pertaining to the immense freighting interests of thier own section. It has fallen almost entirely into the hands of those of neighboring counties and in amount has been sufficient to very materially aid in building up a large and prosperous city of 10,000 inhabitants, though located nearly three hundred miles away. And what have we here, right at the fountain head of all this wealth, to show in proof of its existence? Two or three little villages, which have not derived benefits enough from the business of their own county to make their combined growth equal one-tenth that of this distant city! Various circumstances have tended to produce this disadvantageous result, but if our people had taken time by the forelock and shown a true enterprising spirit, the whole condition of affairs would have been changed for the better a thousand fold. The whole thing may be explained in one sentence. Our line of freight transportation should have been through the whole length of the inhabited portion of the county to the northward, and not south from its southern extremity. It is useless for the farmers and business men generally of this valley to lay back on their reserved rights and growl at certain individuals because the latter do not go out of their way to pitch money ready coined into their open pockets. It is true these men—the bullion producers—might have more clearly identified themselves with the general welfare of the country which, though it was through their own enterprise, has done so fairly by them, and at the same time not have been losers themselves. We have given form to complaints of this lack of true public spirit on the part of one of these gentlemen particularly, who, from his position, is considered chiefly amenable for the present comparatively unfavorable state of affairs. These complaints were based upon or directed at the management of a particular thing—a small toll road—which of itself was of no material consequence, except as exemplyfing the management of far more important interests, upon which, though strictly individual, the general welfare of the county depends to a greater extent than any other one thing within its limits. This is the real base and groundwork of all we have ever had to say in that connection, and while we believe our position was perfectly correct on general principles yet we take this occasion to say, that the blame (for the ninth or tenth rate position which Inyo county occupies to-day) must not all be saddled upon any one or two individuals. Circumsiances have apparently forced certain unfavorable results, but aside from those who are generally made to bear the responsibility—and rightly enough to a great extent—the fault lies at the doors of the business men (so called), and farmers generally of this valley. We have here in our midst mines which we verily believe are second to none west of the Rocky mountains. From the chief of them, according to present developments, millions of dollars, we might say, have been extracted, the mere profits of hauling of which if divided up, as it might have been, among our own people would have made this one of the most prosperous little counties in the State. But from all this vast wealth within our own limits we have received but the merest offals. The bullion men have managed thier own affairs, upon which those of the public are so especially contingent, according to the plan most conducive to their own present interests, and for so doing are not to be blamed, except that they are open to the accusation of having no abiding interest in the general welfare of the country. They are not the only ones whose management of their individual affairs lay themselves open to this charge, by any means. As a rule it must be conceded that mine owners have less interest in inducing a large population around them than any other class of men. The farm produce or merchandise makes little difference to them, but every such additional consumer does make a difference of hundreds of dollars in the aggregate to the classes mentioned, and when they adopt a course in the management of their own affairs calculated to prevent this addition, as a good many we could name are doing, mainly for the sake of a small present gain, they are acting upon a very unwise and short-sighted policy. Suppose this rule, by which many are governed, should be adopted by all, viz.: To send to San Francisco, for instance, for every little article needed that can be obtained there a few cents cheaper than here. The merchant or manufacturer of such would have to quit business, and the demand for beef, merchandise and farm products generally be lessened in the same proportion, and vice versa, entailing an indirect but positive loss of dollars for a present gain of cents. People who do this ought not to complain of taxation and hard times, for the principle they have adopted is the very one to produce these results. It is the very principle or selfish policy that is charged against our mine owners, the only defense being that in one case but a few are affected, while in the other it is everybody, very nearly. It is to the ultimate advantage of the miner to encourage the establishment of certain manufactures, because they are extremely convenient and a great saving at times, and it is sufficiently manifest that it is clearly to the advantage of the other classes named to encourage every pursuit that will increase the number of customers and at the same time lessen the burdens of taxation by increasing its base. These are all self-evident facts, and are all covered in half a dozen words. "Patronize home industries and and home people first."

All this has a bearing on the question under consideration, but we have given these remarks a little wider range than was at first intended and will now come back to the main question, which is this: The indirect profits of our great mining interests ought to be and can be made, to accrue to our own advantage instead of to others.

Kern county is now, and for a year or two to come, perhaps, to keep all these advantages, and why? Simply because she has one or two men, and possibly no more, who have enterprise enough to take our bullion contracts, not for the direct but for the indirect gains contingent thereon. The freight monies received will probably not equal actual expenses, but this is more than compensated in another way not necessary to specify here. The only reason obvious to our understanding why Owens River Valley has never enjoyed this great advantage—why we have little villages instead of fair and flourishing towns—is because the men of enterprise, and not the opportunities, were lacking. A combination of a few farmers and merchants, with little or no risk of loss to themselves, could have secured all this long ago. The proof of this rests in the fact stated at the outset, and the additional fact that the total distance to San Francisco via Wadsworth, is much less, and the road equally as good, if not better, than that of Los Angeles. The only thing to militate against the success of this northern route for the whole freighting business of this county may be summed up in this word of advice to all interested: Don't kill the goose that lays the golden egg by high charges for provender. That was what sent the bullion to Los Angeles in the first place. Just fancy the difference the transportation of 600 tons of freight per month through this valley would make in the business of every portion of it from the lake northward, and see if this "plum," as the Los Angeles papers call it, is not worth contending for.

SPIRITS IN VIRGINIA CITY.

Virginia City, Nevada, has always been noted for the spirits she possessed—as vile as those of any known locality. Heretofore they have maintained a liquid form but now they come in a more ethereal, though no less exciting shape. The papers of that city during the past two weeks have devoted several columns in detailing recent events of this character, which, it is claimed, are substantiated by many unimpeachable witnesses. It may all be perfectly correct, but we would rather take stock in the Comstock than in this ghost story, which in substance is as follows: A young lady of 14, named Agnes McDonough, living on North C street, has had the spirit of her father, who died six years ago, appear to her on several occasions recently, so that she could see him and hear him speak. The spirit was not seen by any others than herself, yet he could be heard talking to her. The young lady and her parents being Catholics, the resident priests of Virginia and Gold Hill have investigated the matter pretty thoroughly. They have conversed freely with the spirit, and express both conviction and astonishment. Other gentlemen of reliability also attest to the facts as stated. The spirit came back for the prayers of the faithful. He had been in purgatory six years, but was to go to heaven in six days. At the time set the daughter saw the spirit depart, a pair of shining wings being unfolded as he took his leave.

Within the past few days, Dr. S. A McMeans, a well known physician of Virginia, has also been visited by a ghost or two, who, or which, have promised to reveal to him some immense silver deposits; conditions not named. If this promise is realized, spiritual stock will go up like a rocket.

France.

Thiers, the President of the French Republic, has resigned, and in his place the Duke of Magenta, Marshall McMahon, has been appointed. There is great excitement in France, as might have been expected.

Kern County.

We find the following in The Havilah Miner of the 23d instant:

P. W. Bennett, Esq, was admitted to the roll of attorneys to practice in our Courts, last Thursday. Mr. B. is a lawyer of considerable experience, and stands high in his profession.

From a private letter received from Col. H. F. Baker, of Mineral Park, Wallapai mining district, Arizona, we learn that the mines of that section are beginning to develop splendidly. The smelting works are now in operation, and smelt from fifteen to twenty tons per day. All of the ore is exceedingly rich.

Yesterday morning, a few hours before Old Sol, that old cuss whom poets call the King of Day, had arisen from his morning devotions on the other side of the world, and before we had thought of ours, we were very suddenly rocked in our cot like a cradle not in the deep, by a shivering, lively earthquake. We wanted to get up and ask what time it was, but didn't—the thermometer was too low—and we hadn't been electrified quite enough, so we remained where we were, resolving to brave it out, and if the worst came to the worst, we would die a natural death, in bed. We didn't die.

The Gentle Laura.

[From The Gold Hill News, Nov. 22.]

A San Francisco telegram states that Mrs. Fair did not give her lecture last evening in San Francisco about what she knew about being a she wolf. The people wouldn't let her, or at any rate she did not like to take chances on a row, as one of good dimensions was apparantly breeding. A big, noisy crowd of men and boys were in front of Platt's Hall, and a similar one in front of her residence. She called on Chief Crowley for an escort of officers, but he declined, telling her she had better stay at home or she might get hurt. He was willing to disperse the crowd, but not to escort her to the Hall, so Laura, not liking to fight her way through with only her little Crittenden gun, concluded not to lecture that evening. Yet why should those clam scented San Franciscans interfere when a resolute, enterprising American woman like Laura wants to give an interesting lecture? It is true that in an unfortunate moment of insanity she did shoot her poor, dear Crittenden; but has not a jury of San Franciscans found that she was guileless of any wrong in the matter, pronouncing her not guilty; and has not her precious little pistol, so unjustly withheld from her, been at last returned? Bah! Laura will get even on some of those intolerant barbarians yet.

Climax of Hifalutin.

This is the way in which Mme. Rudersdorff struck an O-wego (N. Y) youth: "To tell you how she sung would be impossible, but if one may compare an object of sight to one of sound, would say that her voice is like a rocket, which from the first bursts upon the sight with a magnificence that claims undivided attention, and in an instant carries your attention from earth to heaven, where it bursts into ten thousand orbs of glory that scintillate, each a separate gem upon the blue empyrean, but burn each with a varied hue of beauty that at once distracts and commands attention, until they burst into a fleecy trail of stars that float down the vaultured sky, softly and slowly, until the sky seems overarched by a lacework of fire that droops earthward as it falls, growing thinner, finer, until the last expiring breath of a sigh is lost in the evening air."

Sweet Infant.

Jennie is five years old. Her uncle gave her a four-bit doll the other day. Jennie cherished her doll with all a mother's affection. The other day she was nursing it on her knees; she started suddenly, the doll fell and the head was broken off. Jennie was overcome with grief at this misfortune, and looked aghast at her poor, headless doll; then raising her eyes, she said with a sigh of resignation: "Another little angel in heaven!"

The other found the east coast of Spitzerbergen to be remarkably free from ice, an encouraging circumstance on account of the many vessels now seeking to penetrate the high latitudes. He also re-discovered and landed upon King Carl's land, and reports that it consist of three large and many small islands, lying in the throat of the Polar stream that pours

About Marying, Etc.

Occasionally there are people who become afflicted with a desire to commit matrimony, and when "Barkis is willin'," and there are no insurmountable obstacles to prevent—which is rarely or never the case where both victims have the desire strongly developed—the thing is done. In these Western wilds, especially, there is no period of life between the ages of ten and ninety years that can claim perfect immunity from this trouble. But what we want to get at is this: Whenever one of these melancholy events does take place, if it be desirable to let the world know it know it through the medium of a newspaper, the main facts should be furnished to said paper and it will appear in due form, free of cost. This is supposed to be the duty of the officiating knot tyer, but he frequently neglects it, and the happy couple being too much overcome with bliss to attend to it, and it being a violation of rules to publish such things without proper authorization, the matter frequently goes by default and no such item of news appears in print. And in the matter of births and deaths the same rule which requires written notification applies with equal force.

Captured

Deputy Sheriff Carpenter, Nye county, Nevada, writes to Sheriff Mulkey here, under date of November 22, that he had captuered two of the Mexican horse thieves that Mr. Mulkey had chased up into that country, some account of which we gave last week. In making the arrest it was found necessary to administer a pistol ball to one of the thieves, which was done and in such a way as to lead to strong hopes that it will effectually break him from "sucking eggs" henceforth. Of the stolen animals, 20 were re-captured, 16 of them belonging to T. G. Butler who had lost 36 head. Some more would be soon, recovered Mr. Carpenter says, and also gives the present whereabouts of a brown horse and a mule (Col. Stevens'.) This is the mule that Mr. Mulkey had tried so ineffectually to catch, but which run as though he had never seen a white man before and never wanted to see another. Both prisoners, notwithstanding the severe wound of one of them, were taken to Beamont. Their names are not given nor any mention made of the third supposed to have been engaged

First Mail to Lida and Gold Mountain.

We are pleased to announce the fact that a regular weekly mail is to be put on next week from this place to Gold Mountain, by way of Big Pine, Deep Spring and Lida Valley. A four-horse stage wagon will be run regularly over the route, carrying mail, passengers and express matter. Mr. Earl has the contract, we understand, and when once fairly established, we will guarantee that he'll put it through on time. He will start over the route next week, and if successful in his proposed plans, the mining interests east of the range will receive a very important send ahead.

Special Meeting.

We infer there is to be a special meeting of the Board of Supervisors soon. At least, School Superintendent J. W. Symmes gives notice of intention to bring a certain matter before them at a meeting to take place on the 12th proximo, but as yet no public notice has been given of such a meeting, nor its especial object, as should be done. As none of the usual business of the Board was transacted at the last regular meeting there are a number of things that, in justice, ought to be acted upon at once. Matters pertaining to certain schools, and bills for services rendered, are among these.

Benton.

The starting up, a few weeks ago, o Leete's new mill at Benton, was an event of no small importance to the residents of that district, and, we are glad to add, its operations have proved eminently satisfactory to all hands, mine owners and proprietors. Five thousand dollars' worth of bullion is shipped per week, of the average fineness of 986.

Accident.

While cleaning the engine at the Swansea works, one day recently, Thomas Allen got his right hand badly smashed. Dr. Blair was called upon to attend the case, he finding it necessary to amputate the middle finger. The wound is now favorably progressing.

The Ball.

About all the dancers and party-going people in "the country round" were in attendance at the ball given on Thankgiving Night, by Co. "B," 12th Regiment U. S. A., in inauguration of their new quarters, at Camp Independence. The great numbers of invited guests who assembled during the evening were ushered into the very large hall partitioned off for dancing, the decorations of which presented the most elaborate ornamentation ever attempted in the county, hitherto. Around the hall were arranged in graceful festoons a profusion of "garrison" and "storm" flags, relieved by pictures, ornaments, settings of arms and insignia of war. From the ceiling were suspended three chandeliers—the center being composed of a pyramid of inverted bayonets, the lights occupying the position of the muskets. At the upper end stands of brightly polished arms were stacked in soldier fashion, while overhead hung sixteen different colored flags, of the same general form, belonging to the U. S. Signal Corps. On either side of the hall, on white ground, were placed twenty-four shields, bearing the names of the different battles and engagements participated in by the regiment, as follows: Gaines' Mill, June 27, 1862; Cedar Mountain, August 9, 1862; Antietam, September 17, 1862; Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862; Chancellorsville, May 1, 2 and 3, 1863; Gettysburg, July 1, 2 and 3, 1863; Wilderness, May 4, 5, 6 and 7, 1864; Laurel Hill, May 8 and 10, 1864; North Anna River, May 24, 1864; Bethesda Church, June 1 and 3, 1864; Petersburg, June 18, 19, 20 and 21, 1864; Weldon Railroad, August 19 and 21, 1864; Chapel House, October 1, 1864; Bristow Station, October 14, 1863; Brandy Station, October 12, 1863; Auburn, October 14, 1863; Malvern Hill, July 1, 1862; Cool Arbor, June, 4, 1864; Spottsylvania Court House, May 12, 13 and 14 1864; Culpepper, September 13, 1863; Morton's Ford, February 21, 1863; Five Forks, April 1, 1865, Appomattox Court House, April 8 and 9, 1865; Mine Run, November 28, 1863. Large, well-fitted dressing rooms accommodated all, nothing being omitted which could in any degree tend to the comfort and convenience of guests. A bar was placed in one compartment, where lemonade, beer and wine were lavishly dispensed free. The conduct of the floor and music was unexceptionable, but the crowning event of the occasion was the supper—which, though it had justice done it by the hungry dancers, we are unable to serve it as well by a description. Suffice it to say that the praises of the cusine department were universal, the repast comprising, as it did, a profusion of regular and rare edibles, game, fruits, bon mots and wine. The most perfect good order and system prevailed throughout, not the slightest untoward event, so far as we could observe, occuring to mar the thorough enjoyment; and the breaking up, in the "dark hour just before the dawn," took place finding all hands unanimous in their expressions of high esteem for the excellent officers and splendid men of Co. "B." P. S.—We must not forget to work up one note which we have—not on paper, however—connected with our experience of the ride to the affair. A party of huskeys, whose names we considerately omit, were "gwine right down to de ball" in a four-horse vehicle. The time made was only equalled by the Placerville stage in its palmiest days, but the accident that followed was never equalled by anything—worse, to those immediately concerned, than even a first-class earthquake. Off a bank—four revolutions in the air—institution smashed up—horses non est instanter—an extraordinary lucky crowd unhurt, but our junior to-day packs around, in a sling, the worst looking snout of any d—d galoot in the State.

School Matters.

An arrangement has been perfected between Milton and Independence school districts by which a union school is to be maintained in the Independence school house for a period of six months from the present date. This school is, of course, equally free to the pupils of both districts, and no less so to those of any other portion of the county who may wish to attend it. The charges for tuition are merely nominal, not exceeding in any case the amount of public money due each census child. The school will remain in charge of Mr G. H. Hardy, who holds a first grade certificate, and has proved himself an excellent teacher. The school building has been thoroughly overhauled during the present week and rendered quite comfortable. As the amount of public money to which this (Independence) district is entitled is not sufficient to maintain its school much over half the term required by law a small tax will have to be levied to make up the deficiency. This sum might be raised by contributions in some places but not in this; anyhow, it would require the full amount to be raised to hire anyone who has ever tried it to undertake the job again. True, we have a very few who will respond quite liberally to such things, but still more that won't, even with the blessed privilege of attaching written conditions.

New Local Express Line.

Mr. J. Earl is making very thorough preparations for the establishment of a regular daily express from this place to Cerro Gordo, via. Lone Pine and Swansea. We presume that it will go into operation during the coming week, as the necessary books and stationery—now preparing at this office—will be ready for delivery on Monday. It is likely that Mr. Earl will extend his express over the new mail route mentioned elsewhere, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be perfected.

Preaching.

There will be preaching to-morrow in the school house in this place, at the usual hour; sunday school at 2 P. M.

Another Pastoral Visit.

We were to-day favored with a call by the Rev. Father Scannell, priest in charge of the church at Visalia. Father Scannell is very nearly if not quite the pioneer priest in this section, but, we think, he will find this a far more advanced field than the above fact would seem to indicate. He purposes remaining in the county but a few days, this time, but will visit the principal points, and hopes to arrange necessary preliminaires looking to the construction of a church somewhere in the valley in the course of the ensuing year. In this we certainly hope Father Scannell may be wholly and entirely successful, not only in building one, but several churches. There is not only music in the sound of the church bell, but progress and a home-like and a humanizing influence, no matter what the form of worship beneath the tower whence it peals forth. Father Scannell is but a young man, but no doubt knows his duties and possesses the ability and energy to execute them. He proposes to visit our section quite frequently, whether successful at once in the main object mentioned above or not.

The "Epizootic."

This, or some other unknown disease, has broken out among the horses on Bishop Creek. Several have died from it, among the rest, one belonging to Mr. Yaney. During the course of the attack the animal discharged from the mouth and nose great quantities of an oily liquid, which some say is the blood thus transmuted. Should this disease become as prevalent here as it is in the Eastern States it would be more disastrious to our general welfare than the epizootic has been in the East, where steam is so extensively used instead of horseflesh.

In Chambers.

The writ of certiorari directing Justice Peerson to review his proceedings in the case of I. W. Hunt vs. some other parties whose names we don't know, was considered in Chambers by Judge Hannah yesterday. The question was very elaborately argued by counsel on both sides, sometimes smoothly and bland-like, at others not so much so, but notwithstanding all this, the judgment of the Justice was affirmed. We understand the question will at once be submitted to the Supreme Court.

"Spuds."

Mr. O. Glover planted this season five pounds of potatoes on his farm at Big Pine, which produced six hundred and thirteen pounds of the largest and best "spuds" we have seen in the country. In point of size they very nearly equal the famous Bodegas, while in other respects they are much superior. The total from an acre of the same seed amounted to something over 300 bushels.

County Court.

An adjourned term of the County Court begins on Monday next, when Frank Mirandi's alleged peculiar method of raising money, when times are "corky" with him, will be duly considered—if nothing gives way to prevent.

Chaged Hands.

Mr. McMurry has sold his Fish Springs property to Mr. J. G. Bonds, who proposes to continue the business of the stand in all particulars as heretofore.

—The Belgian industrial journals are jubilant over the astonishing demands in their country for coal, which in consequence of the great rise in the British prices is now shipped in large quantities to England. They state that the prices given are so great that it is impossible to trace the course of the market. The proprietors of the mines not only sell the coal as fast as it is extracted, but are actually obliged to refuse large numbers of foreign orders on account of being unable to fill them.

PROSPECTUS.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

The Agassiz Institute.

We give the following circular from the above named Institute in full, hoping and believing that a great many of our readers will take sufficient interest in this highly commendable undertaking to make compliance in some manner with the request therein contained:

CIRCULAR:

The Institute issues this circular with the hope of gaining the attention and assistance of every intelligent person on the Pacific Coast.

Individuals have obtained much information concerning the States and Territories of this coast; but this knowledge exists in a perishable form, and is beyond the reach of many who are capable of putting it to profitable uses.

The Institute proposes to gather, preserve, increase and disseminate this knowledge.

This will be a labor of love, without any hope or desire of any remunerative result other than that which will accrue to all alike.

We submit the following general statement of the wants of the museum:

First—We desire specimens of every object that may assist the mind in forming an estimate of the nature of the Pacific coast.

To understand the country we need specimens of soil, sand, gravel, boulders, rocks, minerals and fossil remains, including that which is common and fairly representative of a particular locality, as well as that which is unusual and peculiar.

The sand, soil and gravel should be put in separate bottles.

Accompanying the specimens should be an account of the locality from whence taken, a description of the locality and surroundings—whether valley, plain, gorge, mountain, hills, rivers or lakes.

If the specimens are from stratified rocks, then the observer should state not only the locality, but the character and direction of the dip, the attitude or depth of the spot from which taken.

We also desire specimens of plants, grasses, flowers, shrubs, wood and petrifactions, with an account of the nature and surroundings in which they be found.

Plants, flowers and grasses may be pressed and dried or placed in alcohol. The season in which they are grown and gathered should also be stated.

Also fish, serpents, insects, birds, animals, etc., with or without observations upon their habits. These should be put in alcohol. A statement of the precise locality from which the object has been obtained is a matter of great importance.

Also specimens of articles manufactured on the Pacific coast, with the name of maker and date of manufacture.

NOTE.—Each article must have, firmly attached, a label containing the name of the locality, the name and address of the finder or sender, and also a statement that the article is either common or fairly representative, or peculiar and exceptional. All articles without labels will be rejected.

Second—We wish to place upon record all facts whatever relating to the history and general character of the Pacific coast; everything that will give an idea of the country and people and their development.

We will be glad to receive accurate descriptions of soils, general and exceptional formations, mountains, valleys, rivers and lakes, springs, climate, temperature, storms, water-spouts, cloudbursts, the fall of snow and rain, etc.

Competent persons desiring to keep metereological data, will be furnished with instructions, if desired. We desire exact accounts of fisheries, mines, vineyards, orchards, etc., including the results of various practical experiments; also accounts of the industries of each section.

Miners will do the cause of science a service by giving us accurate accounts of their mines, depths, dip, and direction of strata, ventilation, etc.

We also ask for some account of the indications of glaciers, volcanoes and earthquakes.

We will receive and place upon record any well authenticated statement bearing upon the history of California, the settlement and improvement of localities, the formation of institutes of learning, agricultural, medical or educational societies.

Each paper must contain the name of the author, and cite clearly the authority upon which statements may be founded.

Having a limited income, which must be expended upon the preservation of specimens and the dissemination of the knowledge obtained, we must be relieved of all expense incurred in the preparation and transfer of articles. Wells, Fargo & Co. will pass over railroad lines all articles for the museum of the Institute free of cost, and over all stage lines at the actual cost of transportation.

All articles sent over stage lines must, therefore, be prepaid.

As the railroads and express company have agreed to pass all articles free, the stage lines may be induced to imitate their example.

Send all articles carefully packed, and distinctly marked: "The Agassiz Institute, Sacramento, Cal."

All communications must be addressed: Rev. J. H. C. BONTE, Cor. Sec'y, Sacramento, Cal.

"Nadeau's Teams."

[From The Los Angeles Express, Nov. 28.]

The following precious bit of satire upon a "popular theme" was picked up on the street yesterday in front of the postoffice, and handed to us by a friend for our opinion. We consider it a pretty good hit and think our readers will agree with us:

"NADEAU'S TEAMS."

I never experienced a moment of keener, more unalloyed happiness than when I read the item: "Nadeau's teams are about to leave Los Angeles to fill contracts in Nevada, and will probably never return here." I am aware that such an expression will raise a howl of indignation in this city, but I cannot help it. There is no man, woman or child in Los Angeles willing to make greater personal sacrifices for the prosperity of the city than I am; in fact, I am willing to run for a municipal office, when there is pay attached thereto, but "Nadeau's teams" I can stand no longer, even if the city should sink. For years past I have not taken up a paper but the first item I see is "Nadeau's teams," as follows:

NADEAU'S TEAMS.—Five of Nadeau's teams arrived yesterday from Cerro Gordo with one hundred bars of bullion.

Next day we see:

NADEAU'S TEAMS.—It is rumored that Nadeau's teams will haul bullion to San Buenventura, instead of Los Angeles. If this be true, it will be a terrible blow to our city.

NADEAU'S TEAMS.—Ten of Nadeau's teams arrived yesterday from Cerro Gordo with two hundred bars of bullion.

You observe there is only a change of two words in this item from the first one. The fact is, it is always "set up" in the "form" of each of the papers in this city, and when the "devil" rushes into the sanctum for copy, the "local" tells the foreman to freshen up Nadeau's teams. So he says:

NADEAU'S TEAMS.—Several of Nadeau's teams arrived day before yesterday, all heavily loaded with bullion.

Now, I cannot and will not stand this thing any longer. I am nearly crazy over "Nadeau's teams." When a person is delirious with fever the head feels sometimes as if it was as large as the dome of St. Peters, and an idea gets into it which grinds and grinds around, fairly pulverizing his brains and driving the patient to distraction. Such has Nadeau's teams done for me. My head feels like an immense arena, with ten of Nadeau's teams, all heavily laden with bullion, and with their great swing chains sloshing about my brains, and Nadeau himself on each saddle mule leering at me with devilish satisfaction and driving around and around in my head till I am on the verge of madness.

When they told me they were gone the fever broke and I am gradually getting sane. God go with them, though I understand they are in charge of Don George Alexander. Now mark that. It is generally believed that Nadeau had trouble with Don George some years ago, and has nursed his wrath ever since, and now the wily Gaul is taking his revenge by trying to kill his old enemy by inches, by placing him in charge of his teams. It is safe to predict that there will not be a cubic inch of Don George alive in six months.

Just think, imagine if you can, a gentleman of Don George's refinement and cultivation living, eating, sleeping, drinking day and night with Nadeau's teams! I used to like Nadeau, I thought him an agreeable, energetic little French gentleman, but my love for him has gradually turned to bitterness, and now I cordially hate him. He came to my shop once to buy some files (he keeps a machine shop to keep those "teams" in order); of course he didn't pay for them. A man who would own Nadeau's teams couldn't be expected to pay for anything. A short time afterwards one of my numerous clerks called my attention to the charge I had made: "R. Nadeau, to one-half dozen Bastard Nadeau's teams." I had intended to charge "Bastard files." I walked away gloomily, feeling that I was drifting rapidly towards lunacy.

Now I am glad they are gone, but I am told Nadeau will remain, and will—horrible thought—possibly keep one team here to run short daily trips in and out of town, to make two items daily for each of the papers. Now I am frantic over that thought, and if Nadeau dares to keep that team here, I warn him fairly he must take the consequences. I will not be responsible for my acts to him or that team.

MANIAC.

—A boy got fooling around his father's horses, until finally one of them put his foot in his face. He was carried in and the doctor sewed up his lips, and bandaged his eyes, and poulticed his cheeks, but he puffed up and laid abed for days; when he began to get a little better he called for a looking-glass, and casting his eyes upon it, his countenance fell. "Father," said he, "do you think I shall ever be as pretty again?" "No, my son," the old man replied, "you'll never be so pretty again, but you'll know a d—n sight more."

—A clever old lady, just arrived from the country, entered the refreshment room of an eastern railway station the other day, and said she had left her parasol on the settee. A general search commenced and lasted for some time. Finally one of the waiters asked the old dame when she left it, to which she answered, on counting up with her fingers, "Well, it was three years ago last Fourth of July." There was a general roar, much to the astonishment of the old lady, who went away with a very puzzled look upon her countenance.

—A young lady who is studying French, lately wrote to her parents that she was "invited out to a dejuner the day before," and was going to a fete champetre the next day. The professor of the college was surprised to receive a dispatch from the "old man" a day or two after, saying, "If you can't keep my daughter away from these blasted menageries and sideshows, I will come down and see what ails her."

—It is said that the soil of Ireland is fatal to snakes. A son of Erin, who visited the Green Isle this Summer, and returned to Augusta, Ga., with a memento in the shape of a shamrock growing in Irish soil, tested the matter by placing a snake within the box containing the plant. The creature died almost immediately.

—"Ain't it wick'd to rob dis here roost, Jim?" "Dat's a great moral question, Gumbo; we ain't got time to argue it now—hand down anodder pullet."

THE DEATH OF HORACE GREELEY.

It is with a feeling of deep sadness that we announce the death of Horace Greeley—the man whose name has been so often pronounced by every man, woman and child throughout the length and breadth of the North American continent. The first intimation received here of his illness, and the last previous to the announcement of his death, came in these words: "Horace Greeley is insane, and has been taken to an asylum." But little credence was placed in this report, but it now appears there was truth in it, though not exactly in the sense then conveyed. For weeks he had scarcely closed his eyes in sleep; this caused inflammation of the brain, which closed his earthly career, calmly and peacefully, on the evening of the 29th of November. As a journalist, the brilliant achievements of Horace Greeley are too well known to need recapitulation here. His was a life of busy, active, incessant work. Few men have been more useful to mankind than he, and none, in this century, have accomplished more. Though the object of strong political antagonisms through the whole of his eventful life, there are but few, indeed, but will concede that America has lost in the untimely death of Horace Greeley one of her very best and greatest men. Peace to his ashes!

The Diamond Swindle.

The Arizona diamond fraud outranks as a swindle anything of the kind we have yet had. But unlike its many predecessors, there are but few or none of the gudgeons affected by it but are financially able to stand it, but only for the reason that the smaller fry, such as are usually the first to nibble at such alluring baits, couldn't get a bite or even a respectable nibble this time. The big fish took hook, bob, line and sinker the first pull. But it didn't agree with them though, so they sent Clarence King and some other scientific gentlemen out to Colorado to see what the trouble was. He reports every diamond there, used in the bait, as "salted" in the worst possible way, hence the trouble. It will cost the big fish about $350,000 in the aggregate to get their capacious maws into their normal condition again. Arnold, the chief angler, gets away with the greater part of the above sum. In his particular line, this man and his accomplices, are much more of a success in baiting gudgeons than ever old Izaak Walton was in his.

The Vacancy Filled.

The President has appointed Gen. Irwin McDowell to the Major Generalship made vacant by the death of Gen. Meade. We believe Gen. McDowell to be, as a man and as an officer, one of the best and ablest in the service, and entirely worthy of his new honors. But we were much in hopes the President would have proved his magnanimity by forgetting former personal disagreements between himself and Gen. Hancock and give that distinguished and deserving officer this appointment. He has been similarly passed over once before.

The Los Angeles Mayoralty.

Until quite recently there has been no less than five candidates seeking the honors and emoluments pertaining to the Los Angeles Mayoralty on the expiration of the term of the present incumbent, Aguiliar, who is one of the five. In order to prevent his re-election which otherwise would follow, a meeting was held at which it was agreed to concentrate the entire opposition upon one candidate, Toberman, between whom and Aguiliar the fight now stands, the others having withdrawn.

The Epizootic.

It is reported that the epidemic among the horses which has proved so embarrassing to business in the East has at last reached this coast. At Reeve's ranch, near Benicia, in Solano county there are said to be five cases, one of which has already proved fatal. At a livery stable in Napa city there are three horses down with the disease.

San Diego

Large improvements are in progress at San Diego. A dispatch says that a large block has been purchased for the erection of a large female seminary; also, a large lot by a Chinese importing house for the erection of a large branch establishment, and a large livery stable is approaching completion on the large plaza. All things are large in San Diego.

THE TULE RIVER ROAD.

Under Sheriff Moore has shown us a copy of a letter from S. G. George, President of the Tule River Road Company, dated at Portersville, Tulare county, November 22, by which we learn that that company are actively engaged in pushing a wagon road into the pineries on Tule river, and are anxious to inaugurate some plan by which the same may be extended through to this county. Mr. George rightfully enough says: "This is a matter which greatly interests every man in your county."

The greatest drawback to the full and speedy development of the vast resources of this county is in its lack of easy and quick communication with the commercial center of the coast. This is one of the first conditions of success, and it strikes us that this wagon road will do more in that direction than any other plan which has yet been, or will be, advanced. To reach us a railroad must necessarily pursue a very roundabout course, describe, in effect, a complete half circle, while this proposed wagon road cuts straight through from one point to the other. As the road bed is good throughout, and lined with an abundance of feed and water the entire distance, there is scarcely a doubt but that ox-teams could successfully compete with a railroad, were both in operation, during the whole of the Summer months, and possibly during those of the Winter, in point of cheapness, at least. It would run the whole distance through heavy timber, in which the snow falls with the proper degree of dampness, no matter what its depth, to easily pack into a good road; and we are told by those well acquainted with both routes, that this can be kept open in all weathers much easier and cheaper than the old Placerville route, which, in its day, was never closed scarcely a moment.

The question may be asked, "Will the road pay?" It undoubtedly would, and largely, too. It would command all of the present freight and passenger travel of the county, which would munificently repay the necessary outlay. But in addition to this we would have the immense lumber interest which it would create, not only in one but in both directions. The company referred to are now building the most difficult or expensive portion of the road—a distance of 27 miles—solely, if we leave out the possible extension to this county, for the timber and lumber it will tap for the benefit of that country. The demand on this side for the same material would be more than sufficient to supply loads for every incoming team.

Such a road would open up for mountain tourists and pleasure seekers a region second to none on the coast, contiguous to it being found the grandest and most picturesque scenery in the world, if the opinions of such noted men as Bierstadt and King are to be accepted as correct. Besides other objects of interest and attraction that would be placed at hand by this road, we have, near one of the famous fishing resorts of Kern river, what is said to be the finest mineral spring in the known world.

Is it practicable? From a personal examination of the portion supposed to present the greatest obstacles on this slope, and taking hearsay for the remainder, we are satisfied that the proposed route is perfectly practicable, and that the road can be very cheaply built. A road up Cottonwood Creek can be constructed on an almost uniform grade of less than one foot in twelve for a distance of about 10 miles, which reaches to the open timber and level region near the summit, which is passable for many miles westward without other work than the removal of fallen timber. About five miles, only, of heavy work is required in the canyon, and that is nothing but the removal of boulders or the filling in with earth for the road bed; some bridging, with the necessary timber immediately at hand, might be necessary. In fact it is, comparatively speaking, but a small job to make a good wagon road to the summit, which covers all the ground generally supposed to be impracticable.

Mr. George writes that a narrow gauge railroad will certainly be completed to Portersville within two years, and with this wagon road (the total length of which is less than 100 miles), the passenger and freight time between this county and San Francisco would be many hours less and much cheaper than by any other route or means yet proposed. We hope that our business men will give this matter the consideration it seems to deserve.

Congress.

This body was to assemble last Monday in regular, and the last, session of the forty-second Congress, at which time, if a quorum was present, of which, for some reason to us unknown, there was some doubt, the President would communicate his fourth annual message.

Another Pioneer Gone.

Col. Thomas Baker died at his home in Bakersfield, Kern county, November 24, at the advanced age of 63. In the death of Col. Baker Kern county has sustained a great loss, as he was one of its leading, most enterprising and popular citizens. He came to this State in 1850 from the State of Iowa, of which, while it was yet a Territory, he was the first United States District Attorney, which office he held at the adoption of the State Constitution. He was then elected Senator, and became, ex-officio, the first Lieutenant-Governor of the new State. He has held various offices of trust in this State, but his chief recommendation to general regard has always been his kindly heart and generous hand. Though not rich in wordly goods, and often times in straightened circumstances in his eventful life, he was ever ready to assist the needy. In short, his whole life has been one of self-abnegation, and in his demise the people of his county have lost a true friend.

German Emigrants.

The German government has issued instructions to all steamship companies carrying passengers from German ports to raise the rates of passage. This is done to prevent emigration from the empire, as the German Cabinet looks upon the political situation with France and all Europe as very threatening, and desires to be prepared for any emergency. It fears that a revolution in France, or some other event, may be made the pretext for the alliance of several great powers against Germany, including France, Austria and Russia, and possibly England, which does not feel so friendly towards the German Empire as before the San Juan boundary decision. In view of the possibility of such an alliance Germany proposes to keep her people at home, so that she will not lack men. It is understood that this was explained to the President and Cabinet some time ago.

Languishing.

McCausland, who killed Mullendore, The Call reporter, still languishes in the San Francisco jail. This is too bad; he should be turned into the lecturing field at once. It is true the gentle Laura was not permitted, or was afraid, to tell what she knew about "wolves," but she still has her precious little pistol, and things will come around all right in due time, and she will prove a success as a lecturer. She and McCausland and anybody almost can murder with impunity, but if they ever steal anything the jig's up with them. That spoils them for lecturers.

Floral Guide.

We are in receipt of the first number for 1873 of Vick's Floral Guide, a beautiful quarterly devoted to garden, horticulture and floral subjects. It contains 132 pages, is replete with engravings of flowers, fruits and vegetables, and invaluable information to to all owners of land, whether it be a garden only or a thousand acres. The address is James Vick, Rochester, N. Y., and the price $1 per year in currency—which can not be more than one-third the actual cost of the paper and ink.

The New Mexican President.

All accounts from Mexico are confirmatory of the fact that the present President of that Republic, Sebastian Ledro de Tejada, is in all respects a worthy successor of his illustrious predecessor. He is comparatively a young man, his age being about forty-five years. He is learned, eloquent and imbrued with activity, energy, perseverance and courage, and is believed to be fitted, in all respects, to carry out the work of good government so well begun by Juarez.

The Totals.

The total vote in this State at the late election foots up to 95,780; Grant's majority over Greeley, 13,294; over all, 12,244, O'Connor received 1,050. For Congressman the majorities stand Clayton over Piper, First District, 1,055; Page over Coggins, Second District, 984; Luttrell over Coghlan, Third District, 928: Houghton over Kewen, Fourth District, 1,379.

The Scientific American.

We take pleasure in commending this sterling paper to our mechanical friends. There is no working man of intelligence or man of science, but what in the course of the year will derive benefit from some suggestion conveyed in its columns. We would like to get up a club for The Scientific American at this office. Price $3, currency, per annum.

The Result.

Grant carries 30 States, with 296 electoral votes. Greeley has 7 States, and a total of 70 votes. Greeley's 7 States are all south of Mason and Dixon's line. Of Grant's 30, 9 are Southern States, exclusive of New Jersey. Missouri is the banner opposition State.

The Owens River Trade.

[From The Kern Co. Courier, Nov. 30.]

We mentioned, two weeks since, the departure of Mr. J. Chester for Owens river and the mining regions of Inyo county. He returned on Monday last, having been entirely successful in the object of his journey, which was to secure contracts for moving the bullion and up and down freights of that country through Kern county, instead of the circuitous and expensive route this trade has been hitherto compelled to take through Los Angeles. He appears to be highly gratified at the result of his mission, as he has reason to be. He found the business men there keenly alive to the advantages of this route, and heartily tired of the delays and difficulties that have hitherto impeded and annoyed them in their business with San Francisco, and hence he experienced no difficulty whatever in making such arrangements with them as are entirely satisfactory to himself. He contracted to move all the base bullion, from and after the 1st of December next for one year, and secured all the up freight from the moment he is roady to deliver it. The headquarters of this extensive business will be at Bakersfield, conducted under the name of the "Kern and Inyo Forwarding Company." Here all the teamsters and sub-freight contractors will be paid, the most of the supplies and part of the up freight furnished, and the repair shops located. The company will fit out thirty-one heavy mule teams of their own, but these will hardly be the fourth of what will be needed, and accordingly teams will be engaged wherever they can be found, and constantly furnished with up and down freight. For this purpose an agent has been specially despatched to Stockton and another to Los Angeles. The company have no desire in particular to bring all this trade through Bakersfield. They are indifferent to the course any part of it may take so that it passes through Kern county. The object the company has in view is too large to be at once accomplished. Two months, or more, will probably elapse before they can collect and place on the road all the teams they require, and in the meantime many wagons will continue to ply on the old route in the completion of unfinished engagements and contracts. The company proposes to make such arrangements that no up freights for Inyo will meet with the least delay at the railroad terminus. The wagons will be so placed on the road that a certain number will arrive and depart from Tipton each day. No wagon will be allowed to remain there longer than over night or to wait a moment for freight. If there is nothing for them when the time for departure arrives they must return empty to Bakersfield and there be freighted for the balance of the trip. Sub-freight contractors will be paid higher rates than have hitherto been given via Los Angeles. It will be seen at once, from the method of doing business proposed by the company, the great advantage the merchants of Inyo will enjoy under the new over their old arrangement. Whatever goods they order from San Francisco, let the quantity be large or small, can meet with none of those fearful delays in transitu that have hitherto occasioned them so much vexation and pecuniary loss. This great trade centering here, as it is likely to do, for a considerable period, among other causes that are about to be felt, will soon bring to the delta of Kern river a greater degree of prosperity than is enjoyed by any other agricultural section in the State. Our farmers will hereafter have the undoubted assurance of success that a ready market offers.

Mining Specimens for the Vienna Exposition.

No doubt there are mine owners in this section who will be glad to exhibit their ores at the World's Fair, which is to take place at Vienna. Those wishing to do so, we call their attention to the following from The Mining and Scientific Press:

As many mine-owners and others will doubtless find it to their interest to make exhibitions of their ores at the approaching World's Fair at Vienna, the subscriber would respectfully request all such to forward specimens and descriptions of the same with brief account of the mines, when they may desire to do so, to the office of The Mining and Scientific Press, San Francisco. The expenses on such specimens, etc., to this city must be paid by the parties interested, but the expenses hence to Vienna, as well as re-shipment, if required, will be borne by other parties. Proper care will be paid to all specimens of value, and such will be offered for sale at the Exposition if desired. Any confidential communication with reference to mining property may be directed to G. Kustel, Commissioner to the World's Fair at Vienna, care of Mining and Scientific Press.

Election of Congressman.

Under the provisions of Mr. Haymond's Code, another election for Congressmen must take place next September, at the time of the elections in the different counties. This we imagine will complete matters, as the successors to Messrs. Clayton, Page, Luttrell and Houghton, must be elected before those gentlemen take their seats. The following is the section bearing upon the matter:

SECTION 1343—At the General Election in the year 1873, and at the General Election every two years thereafter, there must be elected, for each Congressional District, one Representative to the Congress of the United States.

Dunderburg Mine.

Accounts from the famous Dunderburg mine, in Mono county, are of a very encouraging character. A gentleman directly from the mine, a few days since, informs us that ore is now being extracted that will yield high up in the hundreds of dollars per ton, and the vein shows evidence of permanency, with well defined walls. There are several men constantly employed taking out ore. Work on the mine will be continued without intermission.—Carson Register.

County Court.

Judge Hannah, a number of our best lawyers, a full jury and several spectators spent four days this week trying to find out how a Beaudry order got changed from $4 to $40. Francisco Mirandi was supposed to know something about it, but after all it appears that he was as innocent as a sheep. At least, so far as he was concerned, as appears by the verdict of "not guilty," this order was just like Topsy—"wa'n't raised at all, jist grow'd." The evidence was quite voluminous, but not sufficiently positive to warrant a conviction, although at the first vote seven of the jury stood for conviction to five for acquittal. On receiving new instructions from the Court, and after considering the matter for several hours, a verdict of not guilty was finally agreed upon, to which the District Attorney has filed exceptions. For some reason the general sympathy was with Mirandi, not so much on personal grounds as from the estimation in which is held the class of money to which the forged specimen belonged. To drink success to the accused before his acquittal and cheer him afterwards, both of which was done, was in very questionable taste, to say the least of it, if the only object was to make manifest the prejudice against the money system alluded to. These orders are, to most intents and purposes, just as good as coin, and though the system is objectionable on general principles, it can be shown that these tend to make money more plentiful than if coin was used instead, and therefore has something to recommend it. As is shown in this and many similar instances, proper precautions have not been taken to prevent counterfeiting, but when that is done the loss does not fall upon the issuing parties but upon innocent holders, and is a crime beyond the pale of sympathy in either case. We do not wish to intimate that the verdict was in any sense due to this false sympathy. On the contrary, we have good reasons for believing that the jury did their whole duty according to the lights before them. We only mean to say that the crime of which the prisoner was accused placed him, in the face of probabilities, beyond the range of proper sympathy. It only encourages this species of crime; after acquittal the accused was entitled to all the personal congratulations his friends saw fit to award him, not because he had successfully perpetrated a swindle and escaped scot free, but because they believed him unjustly accused. After disposing of this case the Court adjourned for the term.

Brown's Troubles.

B. L. Brown, agent for the Northern Stage Line, is not a married man; still he has his troubles occasionally as well as other people. All of his previously conceived ideas as to the minimum of time that can exist between the birthdays of two children of the same parentage are upset from this literal fact: A man applied at the office the other day for a stage passage to the northward for himself, wife and two children. The latter being very young, the man insisted that they should be taken at a mere nominal figure. "How old are your children?" inquired Brown. "The oldest is three and a half and the other is just three years old," was the reply of the father. "Oh, yes; come quick, didn't they?" said Brown with an expression of astonishment. "They did, indeed, sir, but it's the livin' truth I'm tellin' ye," continued the man. "Well, that being the case," said Brown, "and as I want to be as liberal as possible in such a remarkable case, I'll take 'em exactly at the usual rate of discount." In due time the parents with the two children with only six months difference in their ages were loaded on the stage; by this time there was three instead of two children. Brown knows, through his general knowledge of science, that things could be considerably hurried up in regard to the first born to a new married couple, but, until now, had no idea they could be so accelerated in regard to succeeding ones, so the appearance of a third at this particular crisis excited no astonishment—but the other thing troubles him yet.

Fire.

Last Monday morning, Mr. J. N. Rose's boy, some four or five years of age, just for the fun of the thing started a little fire in a field near some haystacks belonging to his father. His little fire soon got to be quite a big one, one of the hay stacks helping to swell it. Loss about $300. A moral might be deduced from this little fire, since the boy did it with his little match.

Our Flouring Mills.

During the year ending on the 15th of August last, the Bishop Creek Flouring Mills have ground 373 tons and 1,800 pounds of wheat, and in the same time 274 tons of corn. The principal market for these staples is found at Columbus, Lida Valley and other adjacent mining camps to the eastward. The yield of corn this season, we will remark, in Round Valley and Bishop Creek equals 400 tons. The exact yield of wheat we have not ascertained, but it is no doubt somewhat in excess of the corn. The work done at Bell's Mills, near this place, is but little if any less than at the Bishop Creek Mills, so that in the aggregate something over 1,200 tons of grain have been manufactured into flour and meal the present season at these two mills. Both have recently adopted a new system of dressing burrs, involving some chemical process of French invention that we do not understand, but by means of it, the flour turned out is in no sense inferior to that produced elsewhere on the coast. To judge from the amount of stationery ordered by both the above firms, they are preparing for a still more enlarged business and in a ship-shape manner.

The Special Meeting.

As will be seen by the authorized notice, the Board of Supervisors meet in special session on the 12th instant to consider various matters therein set forth. It appears that there is no law requiring that public notice of such meetings should be given, but there is a law that limits the action of the Board at such meetings to previously specified objects. Certain of them require at least ten days previous notice, which cannot be legally given without the concurrence of a majority of the members of the Board. The responsibility in these matters does not rest with the Clerk in any sense, of course, unless he neglects to attend to an order, which we certainly do not think the present Clerk would do under any circumstances. The fault rests with the law itself, which neither specially orders or forbids such notices. In the present case the Board fully intended to have given ample notice of this meeting, but by reason of an unlooked for circumstance failed to a partial extent, and some matters of more or less importance will have to be deferred until the next regular term.

Bad-Tempered People.

[From The Liberal Review.]

A good many of these 'gentle creatures" will, in intervals of comparative good humor, tell you to your face that they are bad tempered, that they always have been, and always will be. They may support the information by declaring that their fathers and great-grandfathers were similarly affected, though not perhaps to the same extent. They apparently glory in the admission of their own weakness, evidently considering that an out-and-out bad-temper is a possession of which a man has some reason to be extremely proud. They do not appear to recognize the fact that a bad temper is a positive vice, and that they have, or ought to have any control over it. These bad tempered people are ever on the lookout for insult. When they are servants, their proud spirits chafe at being told to do their duty by their employers. They kick at authority and cannot brook reproof. They are constantly on the lookout for things at which to take offense. If they hold subordinate positions, they come to loggerheads with the manager, head clerk or foreman, as the case may be. When they occupy positions of authority themselves, they play the part of tyrants. They get into a furious rage at trifles, and decline to allow a hapless culprit to exonerate himself by rendering explanations, and inflict Draconian punishments. Naturally, they are pretty generally detested, but while they are detested they are feared, which, it may be said, is not the case with another class of bad tempered people. This class is more sulky than passionate. There seems to lie within them a smouldering mine of irritation, which is bubbling forth night and day—that is, of course when they are awake. If they are asked an ordinary question, much asperity is evident in the tones of their reply. As a rule they are angry at nothing in particular, and with no one in particular—they are, simply, in a continual confoundedly bad temper; they do not know why, and no one else can account for it except upon the supposition that it is natural to the animal. They snarl at breakfast, dinner and tea, there being always something which is distaseful to them. They growl at you, and do what you will, you are quite unable to please them. They terrify the servants, who, in despair, give warning. They scold their children, who betake themselves off whenever they imagine they can do so with safety. They testily lecture their wives, and unfavorably criticise the domestic arrangement. In short, they make themselves universally disagreeable, completely destroying their own peace of mind, and do a great deal towards making other people miserable.

Probably a certain kind of morbid pleasure is derived from indulgence in ill-temper. People, by acting as we have indicated, secure a certain amount of outward show and deference; for, somehow or other, most persons would almost as soon be struck as snarled at, and so they do all they can to avoid such treatment. Really, however, we fail to see why bad-tempered men and women should receive such tender consideration. Their bad temper is nothing more or less than an abominable vice, and those who indulge in it are supremely selfish. Their troubles are no more to them than are troubles to other people, so their is no reason why they should be so spleenetic. Right and anger is justifiable, but chronic ill-humor is a failing for which there can be nothing but the bitterest condemnation.

PROSPECTUS.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound upon the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a successful effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

AGENTS WANTED.

THE OLD COUPLE.

They sat in the sun together,
Till the day was almost done,
And then, at its close, an angel
Stepped over the threshold stone.

He folded their hands together,
He touched their eyelids with balm,
And their last breath floated upward
Like the close of a solemn psalm.

Like a bridal party they traversed
The unseen, mystical road,
That leads to the Beautiful City,
Whose Builder and Maker is God.

Perhaps in that miracle country,
They will give her lost youth back,
And the flowers of a vanished springtime
Shall bloom in the spirit's track.

One draught of the living waters
Shall restore his manhood's prime,
And eternal years shall measure
The love that outlives time.

But the shapes they left behind them—
The wrinkles and silver hair—
Made sacred to us by the kisses
The angel imprinted there—

We'll hide away in the meadow
When the sun is low in the west,
Where the moonbeams cannot find them,
Nor the wind disturb their rest.

But will let no tell-tale tombstone,
With its age and date arise
O'er the two who are old no longer
In their Father's House in the skies.

A ROYAL RACE

Among the fine, old kings that reign
Upon a simple wooden throne,
There's one with but a small domain
But, mark you, it is all his own.

And though upon his rustic towers
No ancient standard waves its wings,
Thick, leafy banners flushed with flowers
From all the fragrant casements swing.

And here, in royal homespun, bow
His nut brown court at night and morn,
The bronzed Field Marshal of the Plough,
The Chancellor of Wheat and Corn.

The Keeper of the Golden Stacks,
The Mistress of the Milking-pail,
The bold Knights of the Ringing Ax,
The Heralds of the Sounding Flail.

The Ladies of the New-mown Hay,
The Master of the Spade and hoe,
The Minstrels of the Glorious Lay
That all the sons of Freedom know.

And thus, while on the seasons roll,
He wins from the inspiring sod
The brawny arm and noble soul
That serve his country and his God.

"The Boy's Nest."

[From The Christian Union.]

Several years ago a farmer in the State of New York sent his boy Rollin to drag a newly ploughed field. He was to drive young ox-team, and the father in quite a pompous manner said, "Now, boy, to drive this team you must be a man to day, and keep out of all boyish scrapes, then you'll get along well enough. Now, remember no boy's play with this team." Rollin said he would do as well as he could, and started for his work. After the farmer had looked into other matters on the farm and assured himself that all was moving along properly, he started for the field to look for his team. Now Rollin had done well, and everything had gone along nicely until just as the farmer had reached the corner of the field, when the drag caught in an old stump, tearing a part of it off and bringing out an active nest of yellow-jackets. When the farmer came in sight, what was his astonishment, and vexation, to see the oxen kicking and jumping and plunging ahead, and Rollin apparently imitating their movements. "Here, boy, what are you doing there?" screamed the farmer in no very gentle manner. "I guess we're in a hornets nest," answered the frantic Rollin. "In a boy's nest I guess! Here, give me that whip," said the enraged father, "and I'll see what this hornet's nest amounts to." So away he started after the frightened team, intent upon bringing order out of confusion. He had gone but a few steps, however, when the hornets met him, and he evidently forgot the team and all former intentions, threw away his whip, and to all appearance became absorbed in the one idea of dancing a jig, at the same time slapping his unoffending trowsers, and now and then his ears in a most frantic and shocking manner. Rollin, who had found peaceful quarters over the fence, now shouted back, "How do you like a 'boy's nest,' father?" Rollin is now a man, and the farmer is now bowed down with the weight of over four score years, yet he laughs in a very quiet, but amused way, whenever, Rollin refers him to "the boy's nest."

—Two high-stepping colored boys supply the place of a Baltimore doctor's horse.

A Contrast.

Horace Greeley landed in New York from Erie (Penn.) on the 17th of August, 1831, with $10 in his pocket and a few clothes tied up in a handkerchief. He at that time knew no one within 200 miles of the city. He spent two days in vain in searching for work, having visited nearly all the printing offices in the place. At one office he was charged with being a runaway apprentice. He returned to his lodgings in the evening, as he says, thoroughly weary, disheartened and disgusted with New York, and resolved to shake the dust from his feet on Monday morning. Before that time, however, he was informed of an office in which a printer was needed, and secured employment. At that period the population of New York numbered 200,000. Yesterday the remains of Greeley were conveyed from New York to Greenwood Cemetery, and 100,000 people thronged the streets to pay to his memory their last tribute of respect. Among those who were there were, on the one hand, the President, Senators, Generals, Governors, Judges, and the most wealthy and prominent in the land, and on the other hand, the most poor and humble in the country. In the language of the telegram: "It was the most imposing funeral procession, both in point of numbers and representative bodies, ever witnessed in the city." This tribute was paid by the people to one who had died not in the glory of military or civic triumph, but in the hour of overwhelming political defeat—one who is believed to have sunk broken-hearted into the grave. This is the tribute mankind pays in all ages to honesty and public virtue.—Sacramento Union.

Too True.

A few friends will go and bury us; affection will rear a stone and plant a few flowers over our grave; in a brief period the little hillock will be smoothed down, and the stone will fall, and neither friend nor stranger will be concerned to ask which one of the forgotten millions of the earth was buried there. Every vestige that we ever loved upon the earth will be vanished away. All the little memorials of the remembrance—the lock of hair encased in gold, or the portrait that hung in our dwelling, will cease to have the slightest interest to any living being.

An Opinion of the Attorney General "per B"

It will be remembered that at the time for the regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors, one of the two remaining members, Mr. Hutchinson, did not attend on account of sickness in his family. Mr Bell, the other member, "met" however, but not considering himself a quorum adjourned; which fact was duly placed on record. Twelve days later the Board met pursuant to law to canvass the election returns. At this special meeting the regular Lone Pine-county-seat removal-petition was called from the file of the regular term by Mr. Miller, counsel for petitioners, but this being a special meeting, no action was taken upon it. Now, as the aforesaid counsel, Mr. Miller, felt that he, as an extensive tax-payer, was certain to be largely damaged by reason of this action, or want of action rather, and being in an unsettled state of mind as to whether to mandamus the Hon. Board, or to use a damus of the other sex, he decided to submit the question to the Attorney General. Accordingly he sent up a transcript of proceedings and a note of explanation to that high and mighty official. He, however, being absent on an eastern pasear, his young man in charge, who is said to be the abler lawyer of the two, advises Mr. Miller as follows: "I think if the statutes have otherwise been filled you can compel the Board to take action on the petition," and signed at the end of a line or two more having no bearing in the case, with the name of the Attorney General "per B." It will be seen at a glance that this opinion clearly defines the whole thing. Either Mr. Bell, as Supervisor, after meeting himself alone at the regular term, must continue to "set an' set until he tuk root," or else he must resolve himself into plain Mr. Bell until the next meeting; he had a right to adjourn the regular term or else he didn't. The reception of this lucid opinion greatly relieved the anguish of mind Mr. Miller, for reasons already given, had suffered in regard to this petition. His only remaning worry was that his second fiddle and co-adjutor Mr. Garrettson, could not be here to help him enjoy his triumph when he hauled this smasher on the Hon. Board. But his distress on this point was partially relieved by the presence of some half dozen lawyers and others who were present when he presented it yesterday. His aforesaid fellow worker himself could not have helped him to enjoy things much more than they did. Its lucidness was what they admired. However, as this was also a special meeting Mr. Miller did not present it for definite action, but only as an intimation that another special meeting must be held to lighten the misery of the petitioners in as far as the same may be done by ordering the election; otherwise he must mandam 'em.

An Indian War.

Some days since a party of soldiers commanded by Lieutenant Boutelle, were sent out to compel a band of Modoc Indians to return to their Reservation. The Modocs were camped at the mouth of Lost river, near Klamath Lake, Oregon. The Indians peremptorily refused to comply, and in the excitement attending the parley the chief, "Scar-faced Charley," fired at the Lieuenant, who fired in return and killed the chief. The fight then became general and continued through the greater portion of the day, the Indians finally retiring after a dozen or more of them were killed. Of the whites, one soldier and two citzens were killed and several wounded. The Indians began on the settlers along Lost and Link rivers and murdered some eighteen, burning and destroying everything in their path. The names of eleven of the murdered are given. Mrs. Brotherton and sons defended themselves in their house for several hours until they were rescued by a party of soldiers. The settlers are all safe or prepared to defend themselves. Forty friendly Modocs started for the Reservation in charge of three white men. They met another party of white men who were determined to kill these Indians who, naturally enough, became alarmed and ran away. Detachments of troops are gathering in from different points, but it is likely the war will involve all the tribes of eastern Oregon, and last for several months.

—A lady wished to have her husband's life insured in a Boston office, giving as a reason that she wanted either a husband or some money, she didn't care which. She never expected both at the same time.

COUNTY FINANCES.

The Board of Supervisors have had a long string of bills to consider, several of them representing considerable sums on their face. But the amounts as shown are very near double the sums actually due in coin, for the reason that scrip-buyers are extremely scarce, while sellers, from force of circumstances, are quite numerous. These accounts have been accumulating for nearly half a year, there having been none allowed since the July session of the Board, since which time several heavy and exceptionable expenses have been incurred—notably, those of the election, and keeping up the Lone Pine bridge.

But the depreciation in the market value of scrip since July, equivalent to nearly 12 per cent., is in no sense due to the above unfavorable showing, but simply to the fact that our home buyers are scarce, for want of the coin to invest. Scrip is like any other merchantable commodity, and within certain limits its price is wholly governed by the amount of competition among buyers and sellers. It may, and does now, sell far below its real and intrinsic value. It can be demonstrated that at its present price the actual return will be full three per cent. per month on the investment. But the principal buyers heretofore, Harris & Rhine, the firm who raised the price to the highest figure it has ever reached, have retired from the field, and there seems to be no others to take their place. Mr. Rhine has shown more public spirit and has manifestly accomplished more in the way of enhancing our securities, as we shall some day show, than Inyo's combined pack of growlers ever did or, most likely, ever will. For none of the more conspicuous of the gang that have been yelping at his heels have any money of their own, even if otherwise willing, with which to step in and maintain the credit or standing of our county, nor any influence with monied friends elsewhere to the same end. The only influence these men are capable of exerting in public affairs is one of evil. They work assiduously to misrepresent and pervert facts, and to traduce others for well doing—to pull down, but it is not in their nature to build up, or do anything for the public good. To these gentlemen, whom we can specifically name, belongs the "credit" of the direct loss this county has sustained in the depreciation of its promises to pay. Otherwise there would have been some inducement for the only man who has ever exerted himself to any tangible degree in giving the securities of Inyo county their true and legitimate standing abroad to continue in so doing. We all know, or ought to know, that there is not a sufficiency of home capital to be spared from the usual business of its owners to take up and maintain these securities at their real value. We all know, or ought to know, that in such a condition of affairs these securities must and will depreciate; but as a slight offset the parties to whom warrants are issued should never sell them if it can possibly be avoided. We know, also, or ought to, that there is an abundance of outside capital anxious for such investments, if the real facts and inducements were properly appreciated. We also know that for years past certain individuals in various portions of this county have done and are now doing all in their power to discourage the influx of such outside capital, and we know that to a certain extent they have been successful. In that and that only are they, or ever were or ever can be, leaders. We leave much to be inferred in the above connection, but only for the present. Before we have done with them we shall do our level best to show up these men, their motives and objects, in their true light. We also hope to publish their obituaries, to the end that their places be occupied by new people.

Nearly Burned Out.

The junior editor of The Reese River Reveille was sitting in his office on the morning of the 4th instant, worrying and suffering after the manner of all newspaper men at times, all because no fire, murder, rape or dog fight had occurred out of which to make an item to stop the devil's devil of a noise for "copy." His worry was brought to an agreeable close, however, by being gently informed that his own house was on fire. But his hopes of a sensational item were dissipated by the active interferance of friends and the Austin fire companies, for they put the fire out before it had done any damage worth speaking of. This editor man still has a place to lay his old bald head, but he mourns the loss of a first class item and a bottle of No. 1 whisky, and a depreciation of faith in the judgment of his better half, who threw all the mirrors out of the window, for fear they would otherwise be destroyed.

—The true maid of honor is the girl that does not jilt her suitor.

—Hairy rattlesnakes are reported from the valley of the Yellowstone.

THE HARBOR QUESTION.

The Angeles Star, as well as other interested journals, has much to say about the Inyo trade. The Star thinks the people of this county will have cause to regret the present change, and that, sooner or later, our trade will again revert to Los Angeles. It says, and with very good reason, that so soon as the thing can be decently or safely compassed the railroad will "sock it to us" at a fearful rate on the freights. We are much inclined to that belief ourselves, but there will be a year's run first, by which time something else will turn up to prevent that institution from "hogging" everything in sight.

The Star, in its comments, places an entirely wrong construction upon our remarks when it says "THE INDEPENDENT is wholly unwarranted in its conclusions that the trade of its county has built up a city (Los Angeles) of 10,000 inhabitants." We said nothing of the sort—only that it materially aided in so doing. The Star can whistle to keep up its courage, but the loss of this trade has evidently already had a disastrous effect upon that city and county. But of this none can deplore it more than we, for we would that the place had sufficient money and enterprise to build a railroad thitherward. Their loss is not likely to prove our gain to any very alarming extent; certainly none at all, unless the Kern and Inyo Forwarding Company do better hereafter than they are now doing in the outset. On Thursday last a prominent merchant of Lone Pine received a small invoice of goods via. Bakersfield, thirty days out, which cost him, delivered at his store, no less than seven and one-half cents per pound—three cents more than formerly. It is hardly necessary to state that this will not answer. It is true that the charge to Cartago was only four and one-half cents, but Cartago is situate at the foot of the lake, and there are a number of miles of steam and wagon transportation between it and points of consignment for goods. It is also true that the Forwarding Company have not yet got fairly in operation, and hence the length of time in transitu. Once under way we think that the company will do their part fairly and equitably, though the present inaugurating instance does not augur so favorably as it should.

We have held and still maintain that the freights of this county ought, and could be made, to traverse its whole length, and thereby divide the profits contingent among its own people instead of its neighbors. The latter, for obvious reasons, must always be the case—that is, the principal benefits of the freight business must be lost to us—so long as either or any southern route commands it, which some one of them is certain to do unless a sustained effort among our own people is made to place it in its proper channel. But no matter how feasible or generally advantageous this plan might be, we have no expectation that it will be soon realized. Our bullion and a large portion of the incoming freights will remain in its present channel or again revert to Los Angeles, when, as The Star says, possible and probable future railroad exactions force it to do so. We have that route possibly, and will have pretty surely the proposed narrow gauge railroad to Visalia as colaterals against impositions, which as yet exist only in anticipation. But this is only a negative advantage at the best. The adoption of the northern route would be something positive and absolute in advantages, in which all to some extent might share. It is true we would have the same railroad company to deal with then as now, but under very different conditions, which we shall not stop to consider now.

We have men among us able, willing, capable and anxious to do something of this kind for the general as well as their own individual good, were they to receive the least material encouragment in such endeavors. But we have others again—but few though, let us hope—whose sole delight and power is as dead weights. They are never seen or heard of except in that capacity, and from their very nature could have no higher ambition than to hang back and retard—to ruin if they cannot rule. Having nothing of their own to lose they from natural pique and malice use their best endeavors to similarly reduce frends and foes alike, it matters not which nor how, so they can gratify their narrow souled prejudices and petty ambitions. They are in full accord and sympathy with, or part and parcel, the same class who awhile ago were so feverishly anxious to sign a petition for the removal of Camp Independence—not but what it would injure themselves or their friends rather to a greater or lesser extent, but would hurt assumed rivals more. This is the style of men who are now prominently striving from precisely similar motives to direct the destinies of this county and, until they are forced into their own muddy lairs, as will soon be the natural and inevitable result, no movement or enterprise for the general good need be undertaken.

Four Murders in One Week.

A San Diego dispatch of the 7th instant says: The Arizona Sentinel records four murders during the week. John Rodger killed Col. Kennedy at Sanford December 1st. At the same place Bob Swoop was killed by Jerry Willis on December 3d. A man whose name is not given was killed at Algoonez, a station just over the line in Mexico. He was driving cattle, and was supposed to have been killed by Mexicans in revenge for justice let out by Arizona officials two years ago at Arizona City. Michael McCartney, a peaceable and wealthy citizen, but of eccentric habits, living entirely alone and occupying his well-stocked store as a dwelling house was murdered while asleep on his counter by a party of Mexicans, who literally split his head open with an axe. The object of the murder was plunder, but the safe lock baffled all their attempts to open it, so that all they got was a few dollars which they found in the till and some goods. All of the guilty parties have been arrested, four men and one woman. The leader's name is Aguirre. One of the gang confessed the crime and implicated the rest. Much excitement exists in Arizona City. A Vigilant organization will be formed, and the proverbially slow justice of the Courts of that Territory set aside. The murderers are probably hanged ere this.

The Cerro Gordo Mines.

There is on exhibition at the office of Case & Rogers, 306 Montgomery street, a 310-pound lump of ore of the Wittekind mine, of Inyo county, which is most beautifully enamelled with crystalized silver ore of a resplendent deep indigo color. The mine is situated about two miles east of the town of Cerro Gordo, in Cerro Gordo mining district, Inyo county, 150 miles from the Bakersfield railroad terminus. The mine is 800 feet in length; vein is from two to three feet in width; shaft, 150 feet; vein three feet at bottom. The ore has been sold to smelters for from $400 to $500 per ton. They also have specimens from the Boushey mine, situated about a mile from the town of Cerro Gordo, in a southerly direction The mine is 1,500 feet in length; vein is 20 feet in width. The ore from this mine is principally argentiferous galena, of a high value.—S. F. Alta.

Grumbling at Newspapers.

It is strange how closely men read the papers. We never say anything that anybody don't like but we soon hear of it, and everybody tells us of it. If, however, once in awhile, we happen to say a good thing, we never hear the least of it; nobody seems to notice that. We pay some man a hundred compliments and give him a dozen puffs, and he takes it as a tribute to his greatness, and he never thinks of it; never thinks it does him any good. But if we happen to say things this man don't like, or something he imagines is a reflection on him for his character, see how quick he flares up and gets mad about it. All our evils are duly charged to us, but we never, apparently, get any credit of what good we do.—Exchange.

A Good Proposition.

A Washington special says: The appointment of Charles Francis Adams to be Secretary of State to succeed Mr. Fish, who retires on the 4th of March next, is being urged on the President, who is understood to receive the proposition in the most favorable manner. The appointment is urged by the most influential members of Congress, including Mr. Wilson, who has had two interviews with the President on the subject, and who seems to be confident that the position will be tendered to Mr. Adams.

Sargent opposed this amendment as dilatory, and Coghlan opposed the amendment for building half the ships in private yards.

Wheeler introduced a bill in the House to incorporate a bank with a capital of $100,000,000.

Edmunds is to succeed Trumball as Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Casserly will be put on the Committee on Pacific Railroads.

It has been decided to exclude Liberal Republican Senators from prominent positions on committees, but to place them with the Democrats in the minorities.

It is said that the three daughters of Horace Greeley will have a combined inheritance of $100,000 or more.

Gen. Maxwell, one of the most distinguished generals Ohio sent to the late war, commited suicide at Dayton on the 5th instant.

In Arkansas, notwithstanding the official canvass of the vote shows that Grant ticket was elected, the Greeley electors, under pretense of fraud, on the 5th instant cast the vote of the State for B. Gratz Brown and N. P. Banks.

The late storms on the northern lakes have resulted in the destruction of many vessels, and it is feared in the loss of many lives.

Gen. Leslie Coombs, at Williamstown, Ky., on the 5th instant killed a desperado, who had shot him in the thigh. Coombs must be nearly eighty years old. He was the captain of a company of spies in the war of 1812.

The Dunderburg Mine.

[From The Virginia Chronicle, Dec. 5]

Dr. Munckton, the original proprietor of the above named mine, accompanied by Mr. Desmond, the present Superintendent, arrived in Carson yesterday from Dunderburg, on their way to San Francisco, where they expect to make arrangements for the full development of the mine. Mr. Desmond is well known on the Comstock, having been Superintendent of the Occidental and other mines in Storey county. He says there is not a better mine on the coast than the Dunderburg. The work hitherto done has not been of a nature to develop the riches of the ledge. A tunnel has been run several hundred feet, but too high to strike the main body of ore believed to exist. The mine is situated in Mono county, California, one hundred miles from Carson City, and eleven from Bridgeport, the county seat of Mono county. The country around is heavily wooded with pine, fir and other valuable timber, and there exists a never-failing supply of water for driving machinery and for all mining purposes. The mine has been worked to a certain extent, and a mill was erected about a year ago and some 200 tons of ore worked, but although the assays had on the ore averaged $200 to the ton, the ore was found to be of too refractory a nature to pay by mill process. The tailings from the mill taken from twenty different places assayed $356 to the ton. The company are now about making arrangements for erecting desulphurizing works for treating the ore, and expect a rich return Extensive hoisting works will be erected and a shaft sunk so as to test the ledge thoroughly. In the neighborhood of the mines, gold surface diggings have been worked for years. Much gold is found in the rock, although silver predominates. Both Mr Desmond and the Doctor are very sanguine of the nature of the Dunderburg, as, in fact, are all experts who have paid the mine a visit. J. P. Jones and other prominent mining operators are taking an active part in the development of the Dunderburg, and no doubt it will shortly make a stir among the bulls and bears of Virginia City and California street.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

An Important Enterprise.

The people of this county may begin to congratulate themselves on its brightening prospects, there being a number of important schemes in course of development that will tend greatly to the general advantage. Among these is one that we have at different times alluded to, in the hope of aiding in its inauguration, but whether to any effect or not is of no consequence, since it is now actually assuming a tangible shape. We refer to Col. Stevens' fluming operation on Cottonwood Creek. By his energy and perseverance he has managed to effect all necessary preliminaries to insure its completion as fast as ample means and circumstances will possibly permit, and we are satisfied that the Colonel will reap a rich reward for his enterprise. He commences the preliminary work immediately, and expects to have the flume in full operation in less than a year from the present time. The result will be that all the smelting works of the lower end of the county will be concentrated upon the shores of Owens Lake, principally at the mouth of Cottonwood Creek—at which point will eventually (and at no distant day, either) grow one of the largest and most important business towns of the county. At this place ores can be reduced, including the expense of transportation down the mountain and across the lake, of nearly or quite fifty per cent. less than at Cerro Gordo. This is due to the cheap fuel furnished by the flume, the existence right at hand of an abundance of good water for all purposes, the reduced cost of living, freights and other advantageous contingencies, to some of which we shall allude more in detail hereafter. Messrs. Belshaw and Beaudry are so well satisfied of the immense advantages of this location that they will remove their furnaces just as soon as the flume is in successful operation, and from our personal knowledge of similar operations elsewhere we have not the slightest doubt of the perfect feasibility of the entire scheme. As before stated, this is only one of several very important enterprises, which together will insure a greater degree of general prosperity in this section than it has ever before enjoyed. In two years hence from date more surprising results will be shown in that direction. We shall give our reasons for this belief in due time.

Water Works.

Judge Gunnison and J. B. White are now engineering a plan to furnish the town with an ample supply of water for domestic and anti-fire purposes. For a certain sum of money, to be subscribed by the citizens of the place, these gentlemen propose to put down a 5 inch main some 3,000 feet in length, through which the water will be run through the center of the town. Fire plugs, some seven or eight in number, are to be fitted at convenient points, and as there will be a pressure of not less than 100 feet, by the aid of a well-drilled and properly supplied hose company, the works can be made to afford at all times an efficient protection against fire, as well as a means of watering the streets and supplying domestic wants. This is the only method of fighting fire that the place is ever likely to have, and, as everybody in it must know, it is otherwise at any moment liable to be swept into ashes from one end to the other, this enterprise is one of great local importance, and one that should meet with the most substantial support. In comparison to the probable result of a fire at any time, and particularly during a gale of wind, the expenditure required is the merest bagatelle. Under present circumstances the only possible insurance against total loss that this or any other similarly constructed town can have rests with the citizens themselves; and the plan proposed is a cheap, practicable and perfectly feasible method of effecting it. The project is meeting encouragement on every hand, and will, no doubt, be carried through, as it most certainly should be. We will give entire the amounts subscribed when the lists are completed.

Shooting in Cerro Gordo.

In Cerro Gordo, last Monday night, a rough named Curtis commenced to amuse himself in shooting out the lights in "Lola's" saloon. After emptying one round from his revolver he retired for a time, but soon came back and began flourishing his pistol in a manner that "Mountain Jack" thought was dangerous. In order to stop the foolishness "Jack" drew his own six-shooter and began to blaze away at the ruffian, who returned shot for shot until both pistols were empty. Both parties received slight wounds. Curtis soon after made himself scarce—gone, it is to be hoped, where he will find better marksmen than Mountain Jack the next time he sees fit to indulge in such pastimes.

A Dirty Brute.

Our usually quiet burg was the scene of a great excitement last Sunday evening. That afternoon it came to be known that a man, or rather a brute of the meanest stamp in the form of a man, named Bill Joclyn, had at divers and sundry times been tampering with several little girls, the eldest not over seven years of age, with intent to commit rape. When this fact became known, a crowd "went for" this man, whom it would honor to call a beast, and for a time it really appeared that he would be lynched on the spot. He abjectly confessed the allegations against him as being true, so far as "tampering" was concerned, but denied it was done with the intent or to the extent alleged. By virtue of this denial he got off with a sound mauling administered by a near relative of one of the little girls, taking his licking like a miserable cur as he is. He was notified to leave the town at once and forever, but was given a few moments to collect his traps before starting. With a large bundle of these on his back, about 9 o'clock at night, he struck out northward, but not alone, for some thirty or forty men escorted him for nearly a mile. While marching in this order, they came to a tree that was both suggestive and enticing, and then once again the miserable wretch thought his last hours had come. Had subsequent developments been known at the time, it is morally certain that his fears on that head would have been fully realized. We refrain from giving the names of the little victims of this monster. In years they are but babies, and it is wholly inconceivable how any person possessing the smallest moral attribute of a man could for a moment have thought of selecting such as they for the victims of his brutish lust under any considerations or conditions, and still more astounding when, as with this man, he has passed fully a half century of passion cooling years. He claims to have children of his own nearly grown. He is a man of fair intelligence and education, and rates as a first rate machinist, in which capacity he was for a number of months employed by the Kearsarge Company here, and for years previously about Virginia, Nevada, to which place he will probably bend his steps. In consideration of his long continued efforts to perpetrate such a crime, and his own personal condition, he may consider himself a very fortunate man that he got off as easy as he did, that is, if he places any value whatever upon his worthless existence.

Off for England.

Capt. Samuel Jones, of the Eclipse Company, started Sunday evening last for his home in England. He intends, however, to return here early in the Spring, expecting to carry on some extensive mining operations, not for the original Eclipse Company, but for a portion of the stockholders of the same. With this object in view he has secured some valuable mining ground near the old Kearsarge mine, and also, if we are not misinformed, in the Waucoba district, which we verily believe will develop superior to any other in Inyo county. The Captain has had a continued experience as a Mining Engineer for a period of nearly forty years, all but five of which was in the employ of the same firm, Taylor & Sons of London, and with this fact in view, we feel quite sure his undertakings will prove a success, and tend greatly to the advantage of this section. Work on the Eclipse mine has been suspended for the present. We hope to see the Captain back again in due time, and prepared to go ahead in full force.

One Indian Murdered by Another.

On Wednesday last an Indian near Lone Pine was sent to the happy hunting grounds by means of a butcher knife, in the hands of another Lo. The murderer was taken in charge by an officer, but as there was no legal grounds for holding him we believe he was handed over to his brethren, to be dealt with according to their code. As they say he is the same bad Indian that killed their medicine man on Georges' Creek last year, and at various other times has proved himself altogether too handy with his little knife, the chances are extremely favorable for his taking a sudden departure from this vale of tears.

About Ready.

The contractors will be ready in a very few days to offer the new bridge at the Lone Pine crossing for acceptance. This will be a matter of rejoicing, for the make-shift, which has been in use since last Spring, besides being dangerous to cross at all times, has cost the county nearly $3,000. It was a bad egg, and has caused our Honorable Board to scratch their heads dismally divers and sundry times.

Changed Quarters.

Under-Sheriff "Dadual" Moore and County Clerk Hammarstrand got a little afraid of their reputations, we suppose, if they staid longer in their old quarters, so they have removed their offices, bag and baggage, into the Masonic building, where they think they are very comfortably fixed.

Crowded Out.

A synopsis of the President's message, an interesting letter from Gold Mountain and several other matters of more or less import, prepared for this issue, have been necessarily crowded out.

Completed.

The work of filling in the street about the new culvert is finished, and shows as a very decided improvement, both in use and appearance, upon that portion of the burg.

Severe Accident.

We are sorry to have it to state that Dr. White, surgeon at Camp Independence, yesterday met with quite a severe accident. It happened in this wise: He had just finished fastening his buggy team to the horse rail near May's saloon, and was in the act of stepping back, when a wild mustang, hitched to the same rail, kicked at and struck him on the elbow, knocking him prostrate under his own horses' feet. These become frightened in turn and trampled him under foot in such a manner that he was fortunate to escape even with life. Some bystanders extricated him as soon as possible from his perilous position, and supported him into Harris & Rhine's store, where he received every available attention. He is injured in the face and body quite severely, but we have no reason to think his hurts at all dangerous or lasting. He was soon enabled to return home.

Home Again.

We are pleased to announce the return of P. W. Bennett, Esq., and lady. Mrs. Bennett has been absent the most of the time in San Francisco, for several months, and her return is heartily welcomed by her numerous friends. During his absence Mr. Bennett has been admitted to practice his profession in the Supreme and United States District Courts, and has become part owner of a very valuable mine over at Havilah, and "feels good accordin'." But notwithstanding this, he considers Inyo his permanent place of abode, and as he has brought into it several head of the purest blooded colts in the State, thinks he will make a reputation for it as a producer of such after awhile, and, whether he does or not, is worthy of credit for the effort.

To Celebrate.

We are informed that the Lone Piners contemplate a big dance at the new school house on Christmas night. If definite information is given, doubtless there will be several couple, as well as numerous less fortunate chaps, of this place happy to join in the festivities. We have heard of no proposition to celebrate the holidays at this place so far. Our Bishop Creek friends will doubtless enjoy the ball usually given on such occasions.

For San Quentin.

Sheriff Mulkey started below, last Tuesday, with Niles Nelson, who proposes to lead a retired life at San Quentin for two or three years, or until society in and about Lola's mansion, disturbed by his stealings, recovers its normal staid and respectable equilibrium.

Cheap.

We are happy to chronicle a reduction in the price of a favorite commodity—lager beer, at the new Lone Pine brewery of George Horn. In his advertisement elsewhere George invites the public to come and sample his beverage.

A Chance to Buy Stock.

Parties having a little loose cash will learn of an excellent opportunity to become possessed of some good property, by consulting the advertisement of A. M. Loomis, in this issue.

Bonded.

It is understood hereabouts that the Silver Sprout mines have been bonded to a San Francisco company for a large sum.

Wit and Humor of the Bible.

"Shocking!" many a good old saint will cry at the very thought of it. "The Bible a jest book? What godless folly shall we have up next?" No, the Bible is not a jest book. But there is wit in it of the first quality; and a good reason why it should be there. Take a few specimens: Job, in his thirtieth chapter, is telling how he scorned the low-lived fellows who pretend to look down upon him in his adversities. They are fools, they belong to the long-eared fraternity. Anybody with less wit might come out bluntly and call them asses. But Job puts it more deftly (xxx, 7): "Among the bushes they brayed; under the nettles they were gathered together." If that is not wit there is no such thing as wit. And yet the commentators don't see it, or won't see it. They are perfectly wooden when they come to any such gleams of humor. Take another instance—Elijah's ridicule of the prophets of Baal. They are clamoring to their god, to help them out of a very awkward predicament. And, while they are at it, the prophet showed them up in a way that made the people roar with laughter. The stiff antiquated style of our English Bible tames down his sallies. Take them in modern phrase. These quack prophets have worked themselves into a perfect desperation, and are capering about on the altar as if they had the St. Vitus dance. The scene (1 Kings, xviii, 26, 27) wakes up all Elijah's sense of the ridiculous. "Shout louder! He is a god, you know. Make him hear! Perhaps he is chatting with somebody, or he is off on a hunt, or gone traveling. Or may be he is taking a nap. Shout away! Wake him up!" Imagine the priests going through their antics on the altar, while Elijah bombards them in this style at his leisure. If Mr. Beecher ever said anything that convulsed his audience more thoroughly than the prophet must have done the Jews around him, I should like to hear it. Paul shows a dry humor more than once, as in 2d Cor., xii, 13: "Why haven't you fared as the other churches? Ah! there is one grievance—that you haven't had me to support. Pray, do not lay it up against me!" These instances might be multiplied from the Old and New Testament both. What do they show? That the Bible is on the whole a humorous book? Far from it. That religion is a humorous subject—that we are to throw all the wit we can into the treatment of it? No. But they show that the sense of the ludicrous is put into a man by his Maker; that it has its uses; and that we are not to be ashamed of it, or to roll up our eyes at holy horror of it.

Horse Disease.

The Alpine Miner says that the horse disease has made its appearance in that vicinity and in Carson Valley. Ben Palmer, that paper states, has lost twenty-five head within the past few days.

The Average Weight.

It would appear that the average weight of a human being is 130 pounds; 16,500 persons were weighed at the Cincinnati Exposition this Summer with that result.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year
THE ALDINE,
An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—and printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see Novemver issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

The Right Course.

[From The Sacramento Union, Dec. 6.]

The sneaking course suggested by The Washington Chronicle, and approved by the newspaper creatures of the monopoly here, to smother investigation of the charges made by Oakes Ames and H. S. McComb, against a number of members of the Congress of 1864, we are glad to see has been repudiated by the action of Speaker Blaine, the House almost unanimously sustaining him. The Speaker calls for a full and fair investigation, and as a proof of his own innocence and earnestness, causes the majority of the committee to be composed of Democrats. We regret that it was not possible for Beck, of Kentucky, to hold a place on this committee. He is an honest man, and shrewd, and would have left no effort untried to bring out the guilt of the offenders, if guilt exists. This action was taken on the first day of the session. The resolutions set forth the charges and affidavits sustaining them. The main charge is that members of the Congress of 1864 received bribes from Oakes Ames, President of the Union Pacific Railway Company, which bribes were for the purpose of securing legislation favorable for said company, namely: The exchange of the Government's first mortgage on the road for a second mortgage, and an enlargement of the subsidy voted by the Congress of July, 1862. It will be remembered by those who carefully read the proceedings of the House on the final passage of the amendments to the charters of the Pacific railroads in July, 1864, that after a turbulent debate they were carried by acclamation vote, and that the ayes and noes were not taken. It was the most remarkable legislation that had ever taken place, and was so spoken of at the time, notwithstanding the then almost universal demand for the quick construction of the road. Without knowing who voted, and without the possibility of ever finding out, the House was declared to have passed a law surrendering over $150,000,000 of its rights to two corporations! The circumstances were such as to excite a suspicion of foul play. The Union, in the past four or five years, has often alluded to this vote as a disgrace to American legislation. And now comes the resolution, after a delay of eight years, and after some of the parties interested in the vote of 1864 have other motives than friendship for the company they then represented, which is to test the suspicions of venality and villainy and lay the matter bare to the bone. We can only hope the committee will do its whole duty without fear or favor and give the result to the world, testimony and all.

Registry of Births, Marriages and Deaths.

The Political Code that goes into effect at noon January 1, 1873, contains a law requiring a registration of births marriages and deaths, to which we call the attention of clergymen, physicians and others who may become liable for neglecting to meet its provisions. The law is as follows:

SECTION 3074. All persons who perform the marriage ceremony must keep a registry of the time of each marriage so celebrated, the place of residence, the names in full, the age and condition of each party, and whether either party has ever been before married; if so, to whom, and whether the person with whom such former marriage was contracted is living or dead.

SEC. 3075. All physicians and professional midwives must keep a registry at the time of each birth at which they assist professionally, the sex, race and color of the child, and the names and residence of the parents.

SEC. 3076. Physicians who have attended deceased persons in their last sickness, clergymen who have officiated at a funeral, coroners who hold inquests, and sextons who have buried deceased persons, must each keep a registry of the name, age, residence and time of death of such person.

SEC. 3077. All persons registering births or deaths must quarterly file with the County Recorder a certified copy of their registry. All such certificates must specify as near as may be ascertained the name in full, age, occupation, term of residence in the city or county, birth place, condition, whether single or married, widow or widower, race, color, last place of residence, and cause of death of all descendants.

SEC. 3078 If at any birth no physician or mid-wife attends, the parents must make the report.

SECS. 3079 and 80. Requires Recorder to keep Register and transmit certified abstracts to the State Board of Health.

SEC. 3081. Provides a fee of twenty-five cents to be paid the Recorder for registration of each name.

SEC 3082. Any person on whom a duty is imposed by this chapter who fails, neglects or refuses to perform the same as herein required, is liable to a penalty of fifty dollars, to be recovered by the District Attorney of the proper county for the use of the General Fund of such county.

How to Detect Spurious Greenbacks.

An exchange gives the following: "To discover spurious greenbacks or national bank-notes, divide the last two figures of the number of the bill by four, and if one remains the letter of the genuine will be A; if two remain it will be B; if three, C; and should there be no remainder, the letter will be D. For example, a note is registered 1,461; divide sixty-one by four and you will have one remaining. According to the rule the letter on the note will be A. In case the rule fails be certain that the bill is counterfeit.

Explanation.

A bottle of whisky found floating on the surface of the ocean saved the life of one of the sufferers in a boat from the lost steamer Missouri. This would make a good text for a temperance lecturer to explain away.—Oakland News.

The explanation is very easy. If the bottle of whisky had not been found ten men, instead of one, would have been saved. The boat would likewise have been safely landed and would have sold for forty dollars.—Grass Valley Union.

—A girl in Indianapolis, who has two hundred thousand dollars, advertises for sealed proposals for marriage. The postmaster has decided to charge her double price for her box, as it keeps one clerk half his time filling it up with pink-tinted envelopes, and the whole office is scented with musk and bergamot, like a perfumer's shop.

Take Courage.

J. Alexander, Garrettson & Co. can take courage now. At an election on the 13th instant the people of Merced county voted by a majority of three hundred to move their county seat from the old, decayed town of Snelling to the flourishing burg of Merced. There is one or two things discouraging in this to the above crew, however. The advocates of removal in that county didn't start out with the false statements that the original location had never been legally fixed, or attempt to make capital out of personal spite, as was the case here, and further, unlike these gentry, they had some reasons for the removal of a substantial nature that they were not afraid to publicly proclaim. A sneaking, under-handed, wire-pulling process wasn't necessary to carry that election.

Ceased Publication.

The Los Angeles News, daily and weekly, and The Daily (Nevada) State Register, have both ceased to exist. The former, though one of the ablest and most enterprising in the southern portion of the State, for want of support, and the latter, we suppose, owing to the result of the State election, which entails a change of the State printing, hitherto enjoyed by The Register. "Uncle Johnny Booth" made a first-rate local paper of The Register, and we shall miss both it and The News from our list of exchanges.

Heavy Losses.

The Pacific Steamship Company seem to be in a very bad streak of luck lately. First, their steamer America was burned up in a Japanese port, causing a loss of a full million of dollars, and now, in the past few days, the Sacramento was totally lost on a Lower California reef, and two others, the Arizona and Orizaba, became disabled at sea, involving a heavy loss, which is beginning to be manifest in the depreciation of the stock, though to a less extent than might have been anticipated.

The Southern War Claims.

The report of the Southern Claims Commission covers some 2,200 cases, of which about 500 are from Virginia. The amount claimed in the 2,200 cases is about $4,500,000, of which some $900,000 is allowed, and the rest—about $3,600,000—is rejected. They have about fifteen thousand claims yet to decide and report, in which the disproportion between the amount claimed and allowed is expected to be as great and probably greater.

His Reasons.

Garrettson has some charity after all. He says he wants to give "the Lone Piners the county-seat because it may stop their d—d outside begging in case another shake should smash up a few of Begole's whisky bottles and set 'em all to going again." He should remember, Mam G. should, that the champion superintendent of earthquakes and begging expeditions has abandoned them. The wrangle over the spoils was too much even for him.

Opposition Steamers.

It is stated as a positive fact that a line of opposition steamers on the San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego line are to be put on at once. One of these steamers, the William Taber, was put on as an opposition boat about a year ago, but almost immediately accepted a bonus from the old company and hauled off, and we presume are now aiming at a repetition of that scurvy operation.

Snakes.

At Elko, Nevada, on the night of the 11th instant, one Chase, during an attack of delirium tremens, burned both his hands off! He done this at the command of an imaginary monstrous devil in the shape of a man with two heads, who threatened to mash him into eternity if he didn't obey orders. Chase was alone in his cabin at the time. Sots will take warning.

Gen. Hancock.

It appears that this distinguished officer has not been "passed over" after all, as we were led to believe by some of our exchanges. He has been assigned by the President to the military division of the Atlantic, which is the most important command in the country, except the one held by Lieut. Gen. Sheridan.

The Vice-President.

It is believed in Washington that Colfax will resign the Vice-Presidency shortly and accept the editorship of The New York Tribune at a salary of $20,000 a year.

A CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE.

Mr. Miller, attorney for petitioners, has been urging the Board of Supervisors to appoint a special meeting for the purpose of ordering an election to remove the county seat. Up to the present no action has been taken on the motion as the constitutionality of a precisely similar issue is now pending, subject to an early decision, before the Supreme Court of the State. If decided adversely to the hopes of the removal advocates, the immediate action desired of the Board would be premature, and must necessarily entail a considerable expense upon us to no purpose.

In regard to the constitutional issue submitted from Alameda county, we will say that, to be in keeping with the spirit of democratic government, all questions of this character ought to be left to the decision of the people of the county in which they arise, and who are alone interested. For instance, it is a matter of no consequence to the people at large of a State what particular locality any given county may select for its seat of justice; but it is a matter of general importance that such a selection should have a greater degree of permanency than is possible when subject to the caprice of a bare majority. This principle, newly instituted by the Code, is manifestly subversive to general, as well local interests and welfare, and is clearly not in harmony with the State Constitution which makes it the imperative duty of the Legislature to provide and maintain a uniform system of county governments. No "system" is possible in any government or institution of any public nature that subjects a fundamental condition of its organization to a mere majority vote. The opposite is an acknowledged absolute rule in all systematic governments, from that of the whole Republic down to a school-boys' lyceum. In none of these is it possible to effect a radical change of such relative importance to its government, as the present issue is to ours, without at least a two-thirds vote favorable thereto. Whether the new law on this point is constitutional or otherwise (and otherwise we believe it to be) there can never be any permanent or systematic government in a large number of the counties of this State so long as arbitrary changes can be effected with less than a two-thirds vote. The case of our own county illustrates that of the many. Our chief resource is in mining; we have mines to the north and the south, to the east and the west, literally above and below us and in every nook and corner within our county limits; nearly all are undeveloped. A city may spring up in one extreme this year, decay the next, and ere the lapse of the next half decade the same thing be witnessed in the opposite. Similar things have come under the observation of almost every old Pacific Coaster in the State. This county has not been, and probably will not be any exception to the rule, and such being the fact we ask in all seriousness, Is any permanent or advantageous system of local government possible when subject to the barely predominating temporary interests of an ever fluctuating population? Yet that is the precise issue before us now, except that nothing approaching a "predominating" interest is presented in support.

To show what is possible in adopting this rule we will remark that, supposing our population to remain relatively and locally the same, it will be fully in the power of any mining Superintendent or any other person or locality who or which can control one hundred votes to force this issue upon us every three years, and to change the county seat just that often, if so willed, when the opposing interests otherwise remain so nearly equally divided as they now are.

Taking the law as it is, however, and giving due weight to the above facts and consequent probabilities, it is perfectly obvious that no issue like this now pending should receive the slightest countenance without good and sufficient reasons far in excess of anything yet presented in this case. When considered in their true light, and in the face of actual realities, all the so called "arguments" advanced so far in favor of the proposed change must, to any disinterested looker-on, seem most grotesquely absurd. Yet, nevertheless, this movement has attained a sufficient degree of vitality to entitle it to serious consideration, and this we design to accord it in all its bearings as occasions serve. Next week we intend to take in review some of these "arguments," and motives, to which it is wholly indebted for any substantial existence at all. When these are fully understood the weakness of the present law governing these things, whether in conformity to the requirements of the Constitution or otherwise, can be fairly appreciated.

Dead.

Edwin Forrest, the great actor, died a few days since. His funeral was to take place in Philadelphia last Monday.

Wagon Road to Owens River.

A Porterville correspondent of The Visalia Delta expresses himself as follows on the proposed wagon-road across the mountains. A portion of the road referred to is already completed, and if this correspondent is correct in his statements about the cost of the road to Kern river, the entire road can be completed to Owens Lake for a very trifling sum comparatively. We hope our people will give this matter the attention it deserves. There is something in it:

EDITOR DELTA: Let me through your paper present to the people of this part of the State, a few facts and figures for them to examine, and, should they act as wise men, we will soon see the narrow-gauge railroad completed to this place.

In the first place I would call attention to the propriety of building a wagon-road from this place to a point near the foot of Owens Great Lake. You will see by drawing a line on the map from Tulare Lake to the foot of Owens Lake that it is less than eighty miles from lake to lake. And taking a line from this place, running directly east, it will strike the foot of Owens lake. A wagon road from this place, leading directly towards the foot of Owens Lake, is now under contract, and will be completed by the 1st of January next, a distance of twenty-seven miles. The cost of constructing this road will be less than $500 per mile; nine miles of which is as heavy as any part of the contemplated road from the terminus of this road to the foot of Owens Lake. The distance between the terminus and Owens Lake cannot be more than 40 or 45 miles. This road will pass through one of the most extensive forests of timber on the Sierras. Now let us see what advantage the people of Tulare county would reap from this road. There are now it is said, one hundred and sixteen mule teams constantly employed in hauling bullion from the foot of Owens Lake to Los Angeles. To feed these teams it will take, per annum, no less than 8,740 tons of barley and 5,760 tons of hay, and with this road completed to this place, would shorten the distance to the railroad at least two-thirds. Then there will be four times the amount of bullion produced; consequently increasing the use of teams to haul in proportion. These teams must be fed, and where else than in Tulare would or could it be had as cheap, for barley and hay can be raised here as cheap as in any other part of the State.

The farmers would in one year make up profits from their farms sufficient to build this road. Let the people of this and Inyo county join and build this road, and in less than one year millions of dollars can be had to build either a wide or narrow-gauge railroad from here to tide-water. Create the necessity for it and capital can be found to build the road.

The mines of Owens River can produce bullion and rich ore enough to keep one thousand teams constantly employed in transporting it to market and reduction works; and the day is not far distant when a railroad will become a necessity to carry this bullion and ore to market.

Farmers of Tulare do you want a home market for your grain, hogs, pigs, chickens, and everything you can raise? If so, then lend a helping hand to build these roads. Roads will not only bring you a good home market, but it will enhance the value of your lands fourfold. It will bring imigration, it will build your school houses and your churches. Capital will flow into your valley. Foundrys and woolen factories and all needed improvements will be the natural result. Then will we be a happy and prosperous people. Very Respectfully. NARROW GAUGE.

The Soldiers' New Bounty Bill.

A bounty bill for the benefit of soldiers has passed the Lower House of Congress, and will doubtless become a law. The bill allows bounty lands to be entered in the name of the soldier or his heirs in person or by agent, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe; but the patent shall issue only to such soldier, or his widow or orphan children, but no sale of such lands or interest therein, or power or authority for using such sale, or other contract or agreement in any wise affecting or concerning any such land made, executed or entered into prior to the issuing of patent therefor and the actual delivery of the same to the person to whom issued, shall be of any effect whatever, but shall be null and void.

Fire and Loss of Life.

A portion of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, was burned up recently, and some twenty waiter girls lost their lives by being permitted to remain in their rooms untill too late to escape. The act entailing such a lamentable and unnecessary loss of life occasions a great deal of feeling against certain individuals, who are considered responsible.

—They have quit making fun of St. Louisians in Detroit. The Free Press says: A stranger dropped into a Gratiot street saloon yesterday to get a glass of beer, and four young men in there commenced joking him about his nose. One said that he never saw such a nose; another declared that the stranger ought to sell it for a railroad snow-plow; another said he would never go out except at midnight if he had that nose on him; and the stranger finally got his dander up. He knocked right and left, mopped the floor with them, put a dove-cote on the saloon keeper's eye, and when he got through with the crowd not a man was able to tell whether he had been through a free fight or shaken up by an earthquake.

Congressional.

Our latest Washington news date to the 13th instant:

Senator Chandler introduced a bill to encourage immigration by establishing a bureau to provide for the comfort of immigrants on ship-board and after their arrival.

The House refused to concur in the Senate amendment to the internal revenue bill for the appointment of twenty-five additional treasury agents.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has reported a bill authorizing the Attorney General to examine and pay the claims of certain insurance companies for the loss of the bark Calderan from the Chinese indemnity fund.

The Judiciary Committee of the House has decided to report a bill to increase the salary of the President from $25,000 to $50,000.

Delegate Chaffee of Colorado is making another effort for the admission of the Territory as a State of the Union. The Committee on Territories does not seem favorable to the admission.

The House considered the bill to reimburse William and Mary College of Virginia for the destruction of property during the war. An amendment was adopted requiring the admission of students irrespective of race or color, whereupon the bill was rejected.

Senator Pomeroy has introduced a bill to organize the territory of Oklahoma, to consolidate the Indian tribes and to carry out the provisions of Indian treaties.

The returns of the Board of Canvassers of Florida show that Hart (Rep.) received a majority of 596 for Governor. The Republicans have also elected both members of Congress and the Lieutenant Governor.

The representatives in New Orleans of forty-eight business houses in the principal Northern, Western and Eastern cities have signed an appeal to the people of the North to unite in protesting to Congress and the President against the usurpation of power and place by political adventurers in Louisiana. A portion of the militia of New Orleans have refused to obey Gen. Longstreet. One hundred of the Metropolitan Police attempted to disarm them, but were compelled to withdraw. They say they will surrender to any Federal officer. The Attorney General telegraphed to New Orleans that the contemplated visit of the committee of citizens appointed to confer with the President on political affairs would avail nothing.

THE EASTERN SIDE.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

GOLD MOUNTAIN, NEVADA, December 6, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS. First in order is the road by which to reach this camp: Leaving Independence you travel 27 miles to Big Pine; thence eastward, across Owens river and the Inyo range, 25 miles to Deep Spring; thence, 10 miles, to Piper's Ranch; thence, 30 miles, to where I found Hiskey & Walker's new 8-stamp mill last approaching completion, and will very soon be in running order. There are numerous fine springs here; enough to supply a city, and also plenty of wood; two important considerations in view of prospective contingencies. There are many rich mines here. Their equal in that respect are hard to find. Of these I will mention: Brown's Hope, with shaft down 130 feet; Lida Belle, shaft 78 feet, and Lida Hill, shaft 30 feet. Besides these I must mention the Blue Dick and the Martin & Henley. On the dumps of these mines there are hundreds of tons of splendid ore. Until the present, ores from these mines were packed to Deep Spring for reduction at Hiskey & Walker's old mill, and yielded $700 per ton.

LIDA VALLEY,

From its central position their new mill must become a most desirable property either with or without connection with the two mines belonging to the same parties, as they will run it on custom work when required. These gentlemen deserve a rich reward for the energy and judgment they have displayed, and will undoubtedly obtain it.

GOLD MOUNTAIN,

is about 20 miles south of Lida. The town is but small, and is located in a canyon. The mines are scattered over an area of say ten miles square. Of these I can only make mention of a few. The Oriental has a shaft down 114 feet, the ore at the bottom being very rich in both gold and silver, the latter predominating. The Austin, Ann Harber and State Line are all very fine ledges, the last named having three shafts, two down 50 feet each, and the other 65. Besides these we have here many other mines located and being worked. Every indication goes to prove this a country extremely rich in gold and silver quartz. With depth the silver becomes more plentiful. Altogether it is the finest mineral country I have seen, and I would not be in the least surprised to see it in a few months prove

A SECOND PIOCHE!

Until better facilities are afforded the ores will have to be taken to the Lida mill for reduction, and water is rather scarce but, from appearances, an abundance of that indispensible can be obtained quite near the surface. Some very good are being worked within a few miles of this place, but, as there is not enough water for sluicing, rockers have to be used.

Owens River Valley should do everything possible to aid in opening roads into this country, as it will afford a fine market for its products. Mr. Greenley has displayed great energy in opening his road across the Inyo range, and is entitled to all credit for so doing, but something more remains to be done. I shall probably refer to this more in detail soon. J. DANFORTH.

Sitting With Closed Doors.

[From The Sacramento Union.]

The Congressional Committee appointed to investigate the charges of the bribery of the members of Congress in 1864 by the Union and Central Pacific Railroad Companies, through their organization known as the "Credit Mobilier," has commenced the examination of witnesses, but it is sitting with closed doors. The investigation is one of vast importance, but can only be of use to the country by bringing to light the facts in the case which up to this time have been carefully concealed. There is no good reason why such an investigation should be conducted in secret. The public, and especially the reporters of the press, should be admitted, that the facts might be given to the world. The testimony in detail would, no doubt, give to the people of the country an insight into our modern mode of legislation, which might startle them to a healthy realization of the degree of corruption and degeneracy which exists in high places in the Government. It is extremely doubtful whether the public will ever learn the true character of the testimony in the case by any other means than through the press as the investigation progresses. The publication of the testimony when the report is made will, of course, be opposed in Congress, on the ground that it is very voluminous and that its publication will cost too much and will be unnecessary. The same influence, however, which will object to having it printed on the score of economy to the Government will prevent the newspapers from publishing it at their own expense by the exclusion of their reporters. Concealment of the facts and not economy is, of course, the object aimed at in both cases.

Good News.

Johnny Ullrick, just in from Aurora, Esmeralda county, informs us that the borate of soda and salt beds of that county are receiving the attention of capitalists, and that preparations are being made to work them on an extensive scale. As soon as the road from Columbus to the Nine-mile House, this side of Aurora, is completed, a Mr. Nadeau expects to have freight enough from the working of these beds to keep thirty-two ten-mule teams constantly employed in hauling to this place. Thirty-two ten-mule teams employed in hauling freight on the road from the Columbus salt beds to this place will give increased activity to business here, besides attracting other industries of no mean consideration.—Carson Register, Dec. 11.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

, All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

The Lone Pine Bridge.

The Board of Supervisors have inspected this structure, which is offered for acceptance, and find that the contractors, Chaquette & Co., have done a first-class job—worth at least $500 more than the specifications demanded. The plan permitted the use of solid timber main stringers which, sooner or later, are certain to warp out of line. For these, stringers four inches deeper, composed of planks bolted together, have been substituted. A number of additional bolts and other improvements in excess of contract requirements give it great strength and steadiness, to test which the four-horse stage was sent across at full speed without giving it scarcely a tremor. Chaquette & Co. have done well; now, let us reciprocate by "busting" up the contract and stealing the bridge. If the District Attorney, who fixed up the contract, and F. K. Miller, Esq., who didn't, can file the necessary $80,000 bond and do this thing and involve the county in one or two thousand in costs, they would die happy—which, if done at once, would be a cheap and happy consummation to all survivors.

On the Ground.

A number of wagon loads of the material for the new Court House are now on the ground, and more en route. We make the announcement with diffidence, knowing how greviously it will affect certain individuals both north and south of us, but they can console themselves with the reflection that it will make little or no difference on contingent questions. If found necessary it can be moved on to the center of population, as well as earthquakes, just about as cheaply after the the building, of which it is to form a part, is completed as now; say $15,000 or $20,000 in either case, which sum the said center will of course contribute in cash or its equivalent. Land, let it be understood, is no equivalent, for that can be obtained anywhere within the county limits for nothing, in such cases.

Crazy Chinaman.

At about 6 o'clock one night last week, R. D. Parker's China cook at his wood ranch, suddenly jumped up from where he had been quietly sitting by the stove, and ran off down the mountain through brush and over rocks, as if possessed of many devils. No effective pursuit or search could be made that night, but on the following morning he was traced into the valley, and has since been heard of at Big Lake. It appears from what other Chinamen say about this "heathen Chinee" that he is subject to attacks of temporary insanity, but not of the Laura Fair order; he don't try to kill anybody, but quite the reverse. He wants to run away, and does it the best he can.

School Monies.

School Superintendent Symmes gives the following as the amount of county school money now on hand, subject to apportionment as follows:

DISTRICTS.	NO. CHILD'N.	APP'TS.
Bishop Creek	64	$162 21
Independence	27	68 43
Lone Pine	67	169 82
Milton	39	96 33
Round Valley	22	55 76
Union	41	103 92
Amounts	259	$656 47

Another Departure.

Thursday evening last Capt. Scoones, late Secretary of the Eclipse Company, and lady departed for England. They both leave many friends to sincerely regret their departure, and to wish that the Captain may be successful in his hopes of returning here in the interest of another mining company. He has great faith in our undoubted mineral resources, notwithstanding the disastrous failure of the Eclipse Mine.

The "Aldine."

May's new saloon this week assumes "posish" in our advertising columns under its pretty name, which, in the meaning latterly attributed to it, signifies something rich and elegant. The new billiard-table—a mate to which is shortly to be put up—is of the "Grecian curve" style, one of a pair of the finest ever constructed in the State.

Writ of Mandamus.

Judge Hannah of the County Court has issued a peremptory writ of mandamus, ordering Justice Peerson to send up the papers in the case of Galliardo vs. V. Hoff & Co., and to stay execution until the case can be heard on appeal.

Board of Supervisors.

Owing to a term in chambers of Judge Hannah's court, the Board of Supervisors adjourned from Saturday last until yesterday. They will probably get through all the business of the special session to-day.

Administrator's Sale.

On the 9th day of January, J. L. Greeley, Esq., Administrator of the estate of R. J. Morrison, will sell, at Benton, an interest in the Elm City ledge, together with a lot of personal property.

New Toll Road.

Articles of incorporation have been filed by Mr. Brady and others for a new toll road, to be built from the Big Pine bridge across the Inyo mountains to Waucoba.

A New Lock-up.

Cerro Gordoans are making a sensible movement to secure a jail or calaboose, of sufficient strength to securely hold an arrested criminal or offender of the peace. A number of times the want of such an institution has been severely felt, and judging from the following list of subscriptions, the citizens have concluded to supply the necessity. The structure is to be of heavy timber, 10 feet by 12, fitted with an iron door and window. The committee in charge of the matter are J. R. Hughes, John Beveridge and W. L. Hunter. As the entire amount necessary for the purpose has not been raised, we consider that it would be perfectly in order for law supporting citizens hereabouts to enhance the funds by subscriptions in aid of the work, which will be thankfully received by the Building Committee. The list now stands:

C. Mulkey	$40,00	W. A. Fox	$20,00
W. L. Hunter	10,00	J. R. Hughes	20,00
W.C. Snodgrass	20,00	F. K. Miller	20,00
C. F. Duval	5,00	K. C. Johnson	10,00
Antonio Moreno	5,00	J. Allen	20,00
V. Hoff & Co.	10,00	Lolo Travis	10,00
Friedman & Co.	10.00	John Briscoe	10,00
Niebas Morroles	5,00	C. B. McCarthy	5,00
Petra Romero	5,00	V. Beaudry	50,00
M. W. Belshaw	50,00	Abe Lydea	5,00
R. Diaz	5,00	J. Beveridge	10,00
Jas. Kays	10,00

Christmas at Bishop Creek.

Bishop Creek evinces more life of the right sort than any place in the county. Every week they are having shindigs, balls, and other rightful amusements, not forgetting the popular, though very questionable one of frequent weddings. However, if the victims in the latter case think that's fun, its their's to enjoy and nobody's business, so we say "go it while you're young." Next Wednesday (Christmas) night the popular landlord, Mr. Burland, of the Bishop Creek Hotel, gives a magnificent ball, and we'll bet it will be a very enjoyable affair. During the day some noted horses are to be run for a considerable sum in cash, and again in the evening, Santa Claus, from a well loaded Christmas tree, designs to make the heart glad of every younkers in all that region; and it is altogether likely he will not entirely overlook some who are pretty old and tough, especially those who have managed to conceal a fair proportion of their shabby tricks in times past. There are some, however, who have made a miserable failure in this respect, and them Old Santa wouldn't touch with a forty-foot pole; and small blame to him, either.

Lone Pine.

At Lone Pine Christmas Evening will be celebrated with a ball at the new school house, just completed. A correspondent writing under date of the 20th, says: "Thinking that perhaps the population of your thriving town would like to hear what her sister Lone Pine intends to do as to the celebration of the coming anniversary, and seeing in your columns a brief notice that your town had not made any preparations to celebrate the same, in behalf of the citizens of this place I would announce that there will be a grand ball given at the new school house on Christmas Eve, Dec. 24. The best of music is engaged for the occasion, and all that can be done for the accommodation and pleasure of our guests will will be freely done. A balloon will be sent up from the Orleans Hotel at 6:30. Hoping to see a large delegation from your place, we await the coming event. CITIZEN."

East of the Range.

In another column will be found quite an interesting letter from Gold Mountain. The high opinion there expressed of that and adjoining districts is more than sustained in the opinions of Mr. Earl, who returned from that section a few days since. Taking it all in all, Mr. Earl thinks it the richest and most promising mineral country he has ever seen, and feels confident that if its real merits were generally understood and appreciated, it would create an excitement equal to the original White Pine, and sustain it enough better than that ever did. For various reasons independent of those here mentioned, we confidently look forward to the day when the bullion shipments from the various mining districts of this section will more than equal those of any other similar area in the Great Basin.

Assessment.

The Virginia Consolidated Mining Company have levied a preliminary assessment of two cents per share, delinquent January 6, as will be seen by the notice elsewhere. The company owns a number of valuable mines in the Kearsarge District, mostly already well developed, and we doubt not but that it will, during the coming Summer, make a stir in mining circles. The articles of incoporation were filed with the Secretary of State on the 11th instant, capital; $3,000,000, in shares of $100 each. Trustees, Tyler Curtis, George Hearst, T. B. Wingard, J. P. Wingard and John Mallon.

I. O. G. T.

A Lodge of this worthy order is to be organized at the Post this evening but will afterwards have its headquarters in this place. We hope it may be a grand success in every particular. If supported as it should be there is no question but it will partially shorten our prospective crop of sots, and may rescue a few, apparently hopeless, brands from the burning.

Skating.

In contrast to the warm, magnificent weather of this country may be mentioned the fact the belles and beaux of Aurora are enjoying themselves skating on the frozen lake on Table Mountain, some six miles from town. The girls state that it (the skating, we suppose) "is just nice, really splendid."

Changes.

The talk of the people to the northward, in Esmeralda county in particular, is to the effect that when the new boundary line is run, Columbus will be made the county seat of Esmeralda and Aurora will assume the same office for Mono, it being understood that Aurora will then be in that county. The successful operations of the Juniata Consolidated Company make the prospects of Aurora far more favorable than for years past, while the great future importance of Columbus is now considered absolutely certain. But we opine that the thriving town of Benton will have a say in the Mono county seat question.

Eastern News.

The Alabama Legislature has decided to accept a plan suggested by the President for the adjustment of existing difficulties.

The Surrogate of Westchester, N. Y., has appointed J. F. Cleveland administrator of the Greeley estate. Ida has deeded to Gabrielle one half the property left, reserving the right to superintend her property and education till of age.

The appointment of James L. Orr of South Carolina, as Minister to Russia, and that of Julius White of Illinois, as Minister Resident to the Argentine Republic, have been confirmed.

The light-house at Anticoste Island, near Quebec, was destroyed by the late hurricane, and the keeper, Baxter, wife and six children were all killed. In the same gale some ten vessels and crews went down on the Lakes.

Another Ghost Exposed.

We have the following facts from a reliable source: For several days past the dwelling house of Watty Hall, on North B street (and, we believe, adjoining the residence of Mr. Masel, where the McDonough ghost is said to have appeared some time since to his daughter Agnes), has been troubled with rocks falling upon the roof. At first it was thought to be the work of mischevious boys, and a watch was kept to detect them; but the rocks continued to fall upon the roof occasionally, and no boys were to be seen. At length a man was employed to find out the author of the mystery, and, concealing himself in an outhouse, where he could watch the premises of both Hall and Masel through the cracks, he was not long in unraveling the mystery. He is willing to make affidavit that the stones were thrown by Agnes McDonough, as he saw her plainly and knows her well. The supposition is that she was trying to manufacture another ghost, for some purpose or other, and had not the trick been discovered in time she would probably have succeeded in getting up another sensation. On the 22d of April last a lady died in the house now occupied by Hall, and the fact doubtless being well known to the girl, she would probably have called up the ghost and had it explain the mysterious stone throwing had not her plans been frustrated by the watchman placed there to detect. Of course she stoutly denies the soft impeachment, but the man who detected her is thoroughly reliable and could not be mistaken. So fades the McDonough ghost story from a matter of fact to a stupendous fraud practised upon the credulous by an artful and ingenious girl.—Virginia Chronicle, Dec. 7.

The Seat of War.

A Yreka dispatch of the 13th instant gives the following interesting description of the locality into which the Modocs will retreat when hard pressed;

Two gentlemen arrived this evening from Hot Spring Valley, in eastern Siskiyou, via Fort Crook, Shasta county, as it was considered dangerous to cross Siskiyou by the Tackner road, which passes through the Modoc country. There was some little excitement in eastern Siskiyou on hearing of the Modoc outbreak, lest the Pitt River tribe in eastern and central Siskiyou, which numbers nearly as many as the Modocs, might take part, but the Indians there are between two fires. The Modocs have threatened to kill them if they don't help, and they are afraid of the white settlers. If the Modocs had any show of success, the Pitt River Indians would certainly join, but they say that in less than two moons the Modocs will be all killed off.

The following is a description of the lava-bed country by C. Y. Dolen, who has been there, and which is likely to be the scene of the Modoc operations:

It is located on the southen shore of Tule Lake and is situate wholly in California, just south of the Oregon boundary line, containing an area of ten miles square, all cut up with fissures, deep gulches, and abounding with large caves. The largest cave is that known as Ben Wright's cave, said to contain fifteen acres of open space under ground, in which there is a good spring and many openings a man can crawl through, the main entrance being about the size of a common window. The gulches and crevices range from a few feet to a hundred feet in width, and many of them a hundred feet deep. The Indians can travel all through this lava country by trails known only to themselves, and stand on bluffs over persons one hundred feet beneath, where it would require a long journey to go to them. In this lava bed are also small flats, luxuriant with bunch grass, where cattle find great trouble in reaching by long, circuitous trails over the rough lava rocks, while on the outskirts of the lava-bed may be continually found a large amount of stock, the cattle range being unsurpassed. The Indians can see men coming at a distance of five miles without their being seen. They can also let their pursuers come within a few feet of the bluff and then shoot down, and then retiring, if necessary, to other similar bluffs. As to food, the Indians can find all they want of cattle in and around the lava-bed, and can also go out in the lake in canoes to fish, or shoot game. The only thing the Indians lack for a long siege will be ammunition for their guns, but they will make arrows instead. Those pursuing them will have to follow the Indians on foot, and in journeying through these gulches and crevices to hunt them must expect to find the Modocs on the high bluffs above them on every point, or making their way through concealed passages to their secure hiding places. It will require the greatest cunning and strategy to capture the Modocs in this lava region, notwithstanding their insignificant numbers. The snow never falls deep in this region, and melts off in twenty-four hours. Jim's band is undoubtedly near the lava-bed, and if not with Capt. Jack, soon will be, as it is evident from Jack's man burning Monroe's house that his men had as much to do with committing depredations on settlers as Black Jim's band. All the families in the vicinity of Hot Creek have arrived in town or in Shasta Valley.

Narrow Gauge Railroad.

There is now no doubt of the success of the narrow-gauge railroad project. We understand that Mr. R. E. Hyde has just returned from Stockton, and says the situation there is most encouraging. Leading men of the city are subscribing liberally and work will be commenced as soon as a permanent organization can be effected. There is no question of the requisite amount of stock being taken. The great desideratum now is that the company shall be so organized that Stanford will find it impossible to get the road in his clutches. We may have the cars in Visalia inside of eighteen months. The thing can and must be done.—Tulare Times, Dec. 7.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Reflections.

Honesty—An excellent joke.

Money—The god of the country.

Wealth—The most respectable quality of a man.

Water—A clear fluid, once used as a drink.

Esquire—Everybody, yet nobody—equal to Colonel.

Tongue—A little horse that is continually running away.

Modesty—A beautiful flower that flourishes in secret places.

Jury—Twelve prisoners in a box, to try one more at the bar.

Editor—A poor wretch who empties his brains to fill his stomach, generally making a failure in the latter particular.

Doctor—A man who kills you to-day to save you from dying to-morrow.

State's Evidence—A wretch who is pardoned for being baser than his comrades.

Bargain—A ludicrous transaction, in which each party imagines he cheated the other.

Lawyer—A learned gentleman who rescues your estate from your enemy and keeps it himself.

The Grave—An ugly hole in the ground which lovers and poets wish they were in, but take uncommon means to keep out of.

My Dear—An expression used by man and wife at the commencement of a quarrel.

Elephant in a Quicksand.

On the banks of the river Ganges, says a military journalist, there are many quicksands, and during our expedition a somewhat distressing scene happened. An elephant incautiously came within the vortex of one. First one foot sank, then another, and in endeavoring to extricate himself matters became worse; at last no portion of his legs was visible, and the bystanders had given up the poor animal as lost. Being, fortunately, unusually powerful, he three several times, with what appeared almost supernatural strength, drew a foot from the closely clinging earth, placing it where, by sounding with his trunk, he found the most solidity. Not until after three attempts did the ground bear his pressure, when he gradually released himself. During the whole period of his troubles his cries were exceedingly dolorous, and might have been heard for two miles. His grunt, when they were at end, was equally indicative of satisfaction. The internal application of a bottle of strong spirits soon dissipated trembling and restored his equanimity. Many unfortunate elephants are lost in these treacherous sands, when large quantities of grass or branches of trees are not an hand to form an available support for them. After a certain time the poor beast becomes powerless, and the owner can look with sorrow at the gradual disappearance of his noble animal, and lament the pecuniary loss he thereby suffers, for human aid is futile. They have been known to be twelve hours in sinking.

—Some few years ago a gentleman in England who had been dining "not wisely but too well," in the course of the evening drew a check for a large amount, and having signed it poked it, by means of a stick, into a box placed at the gates of a charitable institution to receive the donations of passers by. When he regained his sobriety the next morning he remembered with horror his liberality of the previous night, and addressed a moving appeal to the managers of the institution in question to restore him the amount of the check, which he found had been cashed before he had time to dress and drink one bottle of soda water. As it was found that the unfortunate man had absolutely left himself penniless, the managers, it is believed, kindly allowed him a small sum to carry him on until the next quarter, but the shock was too much for him, and after a few days of intense mental agony he fell into a state of total abstinence, from which he never ralied.

—Kitty, aged three years, was trying to think of a pleasant surprise for her father on his birthday. At last she cried, "I know, mamma, I know!" "What, my dear?" "Buy me a little sister without saying anything to papa."

IS IT CONSTITUTIONAL?

A correspondent of The Kern County Courier furnishes that paper with the following decision of the Supreme Court of Iowa, which he finds in The Prairie Farmer:

"The General Assembly can not legally submit to the people whether an Act shall become a law or not, the people having no power in their primary or individual capacity to make laws. They must do this through their representatives.

In accordance with this decision Judge Benson of Scott county (Iowa) decides their present stock law as unconstitutional, and the correspondent referred to is inclined to the opinion that the stock law of this State, in all those counties where it was left to a vote of the people, is also unconstitutional.

It occurs to us that this decision fully sustains Judge Heydenfeld's opinion respecting county seat locations where determined solely by a vote of the people.

The S. F. Chronicle.

This enterprising journal has received and has now in full operation the finest and costliest printing press on the coast. It consists of 60,000 different pieces, weighs 14 tons, cost $40,000 and is capable, when working to its full capacity, of turning off 24,000 impressions per hour—a trifle more than the machine in use in this office. The Chronicle has donned an entire new typographical "dress," and looks first-rate. It has improved in various ways, and is certainly first class in every respect. Sorry we could not witness, as per invitation extended, the starting of this monster press.

Monument to Greeley.

A movement for a Greeley National Monument Association has been initiated in Boston. It is proposed to raise by a national subscription $500,000 to erect a monument to the memory of Mr. Greeley. Of this amount $175,000 has already been subscribed.

The New York Tribune.

Dr. Hassard, one of the editorial corps on The Tribune, takes charge of the paper as managing editor in place of Whitelaw Reid. The position had been tendered to Speaker Blaine who, it appears, declined to accept it.

Quit the Business.

Brother Lewis, editor and proprietor of The Reno Crescent, has very sensibly drawn out of the publishing business, having come to the wise conclusion that it is easier to "make the fight for bread" in other walks of life.

Freights.

The Kern County Courier counsels the people of this section not to be impatient, but to give the "Kern & Inyo Forwarding Company" reasonable time and they will so manage things that we will have nothing to complain of.

Another Explosion.

The Hercules Powder Works, located near San Francisco, exploded again on Saturday last, blowing two Chinamen to shreds and severely injuring the foreman, Wm. Cook, whose drunken carelessness causad the accident.

Six Years.

An amendment to the Federal Constitution has been proposed, extending the terms of the President and Vice President to six years, and limiting the former to one term.

Stokes.

A full jury has been empanneled for the second trial of this man, who so inexcusably stood by and let Fisk shoot himself.

The Merchant Navy.

The Merchant Navy of the world in 1872, according to figures published by the Statistical Bureau of Brussels, consists of 61,062 vessels, measuring 18,214,535 tons. The sailing vessels number 56,727, measuring 14,563,875 tons, and the steamers number 4,335, measuring 3,680,670 tons. Of the respective nations making up the list, Great Britain has 21,720 vessels, measuring 7,850,492 tons, and the United States has 7,512 vessels, measuring 2,680,163 tons. Of sailing vessels, Great Britain has 19,182, measuring 5,468,327 tons, and the United States has 7,092, measuring 2,279,120 tons. Of steamers, Great Britain has 2,538, measuring 1,382,145 tons, and the United States has 420, measuring 401,043 tons. In 1870 the merchant navy of the world consisted of 63,650 vessels, measuring 18,835,930 tons, divided into 59,518 sailing vessels, measuring 16,042,498 tons, and 4,132 steamers, measuring 2,793,434 tons.

—When a cat is seen to catch chickens, tie one round her neck and make her wear it for two or three days. Fasten it securely, for she will make incredible efforts to get rid of it. Be firm, and the cat is cured; she will never again desire to touch a bird.

GEOGRAPHICALY AND OTHERWISE.

As we intimated last week, we shall now devote a little space to the grounds upon which our neighboring burg bases its assumed rights to the county seat.

First, in regard to its claim as the geographical center: By reference to any of the latest maps of the State it will be seen that this claim has no real foundation in fact. In shape the county is almost a perfect right angle triangle; an east and west line cutting the western boundary line or perpendicular of the triangle midway between its northert and southern extremes would throw very nearly full two-thirds of the entire area of the county north of Lone Pine, or to be more exact, north of this east and west line, which would fall almost directly upon the head of Owens Lake. Save and except a station here and there no portion of the territory south of this dividing line is inhabited now or ever can be except by a mining population. It includes many valuable mines without doubt, which will, some day, induce a heavy population, but that time is not yet, and cuts no figure whatever in the present issue, any more than the equally favorable and similar prospects of other desert portions of the county in the opposite direction. In fact, if we decide this question with reference to prospective developments only, the northern and eastern districts greatly overshadow those of the comparatively small triangle south of this dividing line, and that, too, without regard to the great disparity in respective areas. But we are to only consider things as they actually are and not as they may be in years to come, and in this view the showing is even worse than in the other for this ambitious but misguided aspirant for the questionable honors and limited emoluments pertaining to the county capital.

That portion of the county lying north of this line contains, in round numbers, 5,000 square miles. In shape it approaches a parallellogram, its base and perpendicular being respectively 50 and 100 miles. Save Cerro Gordo, which stands almost upon the line, it is safe to say that ninety-nine one-hundreths of the business and population of the county are included within this section, and almost all of it north of Lone Pine, which, however, is included within the same, as the central line runs a few miles south of that place. To offset this showing we have on the other side a perfect desert, triangular in shape, and containing about 1,300 square miles of sand and acrid waters. To this must be added the strip referred to so as to take in Lone Pine, Swansea and Cerro Gordo, and the total foots up about 1,600 miles for that side. The new boundaries established last Winter will change the relative order of these figures materially, but the real merits of the case not in the least. That change cuts off some twenty miles from the lower end of the present boundary on the west, upon the center of which, longitudinally, Lone Pine prides herself as being located, and, by running due east instead of due northeast, as at present, to the State line, the eastern boundary is greatly elongated, and the real geographical center is thrown still many miles further, and about eqi-distant from both the present and the would-be county seat.

The whole argument on this point as advanced by Lone Pine, is perfectly fallacious and the merest bosh. It can be imposed on no man in his right senses who will take the least trouble to learn the facts. It is a shallow effort to offset the entire fertile portion of the county with perfectly desert wastes, the inhabited by the uninhabited and uninhabitable, and, acre for acre, making a most miserable showing even on that sorry proposition.

Respecting its claim as the center of population there need be but little said. Of the 700 registered voters in the county full 400 belong north of the extremely central town of Lone Pine. Passing that center south ten miles there is not a single voting precinct in the county. In a total of nine but two occupy a position geograpically favorable to this excessively modest claim. Of these two one is within nine and the other less than twenty miles of this grand center of population, of gravity and of learning, while on the adverse side in this respect, of the four most distant, the nearest is 48 miles, and the other three from 65 to 75 miles! The modesty of this claim will be better appreciated by stating that to reach this beautifully situated center the 175 voting residents of the four (or say three) precincts named will have to travel on an average more than three miles to each one traveled by the most distant of the 125 on the opposite side. We make no account in the first part of this proposition of fully an equal number intermediately located, whose average travel will be considerably more than double the extreme in the latter. We might, from th[illegible]ntrovertible facts, easily cyphe[illegible] probable additional expens[illegible] proposed change will en- [illegible] a shadow of justice or ci[illegible] a large majority of the [illegible] county; we might base the[illegible]ons on these grounds, the corre[illegible]s of which in the main, no one ca[illegible] deny: That each of these citizens will, in the aggregate, average not less than four trips a year to the county seat; that each of these trips will require from one-third to one half more time and cash outlay in going and returning, than at at present; that this sum will amount to a grand total of many thousands of useless expense upon those who now complain of a much lesser burden of the same kind, all in the short period of three years, at the end of which we may confidently look for another change; we might truthfully state from actual estimates that the first outlay involved in this proposed change mulcts this county of not less $10,000—which, with the above amount to be added to it, will make a nice little problem for Mr. Garretson to figure out when en route to the new county seat and while encamped the first night out on the then grass-grown streets of Independence. For fear, however, that this problem will be beyond his caliber, and that we may not be here to lend him that aid which he would value so highly, we give this solution in advance, to wit: The extra expense entaled upon the three northern precincts alone, to say nothing about others proportionately affected, cannot be les in time money than $5,000 each year or a total of $15,000 extra cost to be paid by these three precincts during the three years that must elapse before another move can take place; this does not include the increased rate of taxation which falls upon all alike, and which in the aggregate, will certainly more than double this sum. The gentleman referred to, we are told, will have a chance to pay his portion of this with his mileage fees as Supervisor, or something of the kind, no matter what. That he is eminently fit for the responsible duties of that office is evident from his general broad views, as especially shown in his recent advice to his neighbors and backed as it was by such statesmanlike and manly reasons! He has either earned free rides to the county capital he hopes to establish (at the expense of his neighbors, as we have shown) when attending to expected official duties, or else he will have earned their profound contempt. As for his prominent confreres, the matter of cost or public convenience don't interest them; there may be something gained, certainly nothing lost. We hope to reach the foundation of this intended swindle upon the rights of the public in due time.

How Indian Troubles Are Fomented.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

Accounts from the scene of the Modoc difficulty contain a statement concerning the barbarity of a white man engaged in fighting the Indians, which recalls the so-called Indian war of 1856. The brute referred to came upon a Modoc squaw with two children, and though the woman at once surrendered herself and sued for mercy and protection, this cowardly beast shot and killed both her children, one of them a baby at the breast, and would have added the murder of the mother to his crimes had not more humane hands prevented him. In the light of such atrocities it is easy enough to understand the bitterness with which the Indians wage the war. They cannot regard the hostilities against them in any other light than as a scheme for their extermination, and they consider themselves justified in the most barbarous reprisals. It is of course difficult to make them understand that all white men should not be held responsible for the cruelty and brutality of a few. They recognize no distinction of grades, and if they proceed to massacre women and children belonging to the settlers, what can be said, seeing that the example has been set them by a white man? The Indians are themselves degraded, cruel, treacherous; but that is no reason why the white men who are at odds with them should lower themselves to the same level. There is always a possibility that by fair and honorable conduct the Indians may be elevated to a higher condition, but nothing can be gained by adopting their most abominable vices, and resorting to the brute fashion of fighting them. It is reported that much indignation has been created by the slaughter of the two children referred to, and that the settlers generally condemn the deed. They should do more than condemn the atrocity in words. By continuing to consort with this baby-murderer they condone the crime, and will of course be regarded by the Indians as indorsing the infamous act. They should drive him out from among them, and make it known that they will give no countenance to such diabolical ruffianism. So may they secure the safety of their own wives and little ones, the lives of all of whom were imperiled when the miscreant referred to leveled his gun against Maternity in its most sacred form. The recital of such deeds makes us wish the perpetrator had been a Modoc or an Apache.

Earthquakes.

A dispatch from Portland, December 16th says: At Walilula the earthquake on Saturday evening is reported as heavy, lasting fifty seconds, followed by lighter shocks at intervals of fifteen minutes, after which a heavy rumbling sound was heard as distinctly as a heavy peal of thunder. The thermometer fell from 30 to 26 degrees. Shocks continued at irregular intervals until 4 A. M. The first shock was violent enough to make buildings and their contents up pretty lively. At Walla Walla two heavy shocks were felt, at Umatilla three, and at the Dalles four or five shocks. Another shock at the latter place was felt at 9 A. M. to-day.

A Seattle, W. T., dispatch of the 16th says: Last night at about 11:40 the citizens of this place were suddenly startled by the heaviest earthquake felt so far north on the coast. No damage was done, but our frame building swayed to and fro like a small craft at sea. There were three series of shocks. The first was of about two minutes duration, and the other two soon after, but of few seconds each. They seemed to proceed from the northeast to the southeast.

A Victoria dispatch of December 16th says: Last night at 9:37 o'clock this city was shaken by a sharp shock of earthquake, which rocked houses violently and drove several families into the streets for safety. The movement was from the east to west. In some instances door bells were rung and crockery knocked from the shelves. The shock lasted about ten seconds.

A dispatch from Olympia, W. T., says: A sharp shock of earthquake was felt here December 15, at 23 minuter to 10 P. M. No damage was done further than cracking ceilings and breaking a few window panes. The motion was from southeast to northwest.

Jail Break at Belmont.

The Spanish horse-thief who was wounded by the Deputy Sheriff of Nye county, and who had been left at a house a couple of miles from Belmont to have his wounds attended to, escaped from the man who had him in charge last Saturday afternoon, and left for parts unknown. On the next day, while the officers were out searching for the missing Spaniard, four prisoners in the county jail—three Spaniards and an American—succeeded in escaping from their quarters by means of a key which the American had manufactured in his cell. The latter was captured the next day in a valley about eighteen miles from Belmont. He was camped at the time of his arrest, and had been traveling afoot. He states that the Spaniards agreed to meet him a short distance from town with horses, guns, etc., and that they were all to leave together, but they failed to keep their word. A portion of the pursuing party returned to Belmont yesterday morning and reported that they had been unable to obtain any trace of the prisoners. Deputy Sheriff Carpenter and several other persons are still continuing the pursuit. The Spaniards were doubtless furnished with horses, guns, etc., by outside friends as soon as they effected their escape from the jail. It is supposed that they have gone south, and will endeavor to make their way to Arizona or Lower California.—Austin Reveille, Dec. 13.

A letter from Belmont to Sheriff Mulkey contains the information that the escapers would undoubtedly travel this way, and would steal a fresh supply of horses in this valley.

The Sunday Law.

The Code which goes into effect on the 1st proximo contains a Sunday law exceedinlgy stringent in its provisions. In order that those whom the law concerns may know its purposes, we quote the passages relating to Sunday observances:

SECTION 207. Every person who, on the Christian Sabbath, gets up, exhibits, opens or maintains, or aids in getting up, exhibiting, opening or maintaining, any bull, bear, cock or prize fight, horse race, circus, gambling house or saloon, or any other barbarous or noisy amusements, or who keeps, conducts or exhibits any theater, melodeon, dance cellar or other place of musical, theatrical or operatic performance, spectacle or representation, where any wines, liquors or intoxicating drinks are bought, sold, used, drank or given away, or who purchases any ticket of admission fee to or for the purpose of witnessing or attending any such place, amusement, spectacle, performance or representation, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 208. Every person who keeps on Sunday any store, workshop, bar, saloon, banking house or other place of business, for the purpose of transacting business, is punishable by fine not less than five nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 209. The provisions of the preceding section do not apply to persons who on Sunday keep open hotels, boarding houses, restaurants, livery stables, retail drug stores, for the legitimate business of each, or such manufacturing establishments as are usually kept in continued operation, or places for the sale of milk, fresh meats, fresh fish or vegetables.

Freighting.

We observe that the Kern & Inyo Forwarding Company are putting up extensive sheds for the use of the teams engaged in freighting to and from Owens River. As this place is to be the headquarters of the trade, the point where nearly all the repairing will be done and teamsters stop to recruit their animals when necessary, the company are very properly making arrangements for their convenience.—Bakersfield Courier.

—A ruralist writes to the Detroit Chief of Police as follows: "I wallupped my boy last Thursday, and he jumped the house. I think he's in Detroit; if so, wallup him again and charge it to me."

Large portions of the country in Derby, Leicester and Nottingham, England, are submerged. In some localities the tops of trees and houses only were visible above water. The roughs at Salt Lake have threatened to burn the town.

Nothing further of importance has transpired at the seat of the Modoc war. Additional troops have arrived. A reconnoisance was made by one of the companies, who approached within a mile of the enemy. An early attack on Captain Jack is contemplated.

More Shooting in Cerro Gordo.

On Christmas two men, named Williams and Jackson respectively, got into an altercation in a saloon, in the course of which the latter drew an old razor and subsequently a butcher knife in a threatening manner. As he was drunk at the time, Williams got out of his way, but the matter was taken up by one McChristian, who soon commenced shooting at Jackson, the second shot going through his arm and into his side, inflicting a rather dangerous wound. The bold shooter was arrested, but after an examination was acquitted on some grounds to us unknown. A few days previous to this occurrence a drunken rowdy named Curtis was under arrest for shooting some one through the leg, but before the examination closed he managed to clear out and has not since been heard of. A good calaboose or a little judicious hanging is much needed upon Cerro Gordo hill.

Shut Down.

A story reaches us from Benton which, if true in all particulars, illustrates the fact that sheer, unmitigated villiany often prevails in the most unexpected places. A mining operator well known throughout the coast built and run a 10-stamp quartz mill, doing the most successful work, reducing numerous lots of very rich ore belonging to nearly every miner in the district. Notwithstanding the steady shipments of bullion, these mine-owners and the employees of the concern are yet whistling for their "returns," and the inexplicable conduct and continued absence of the proprietor strongly tinctures the concern with an oder of rascality. The works have been shut down for some two weeks, and are now probably in the hands of the Sheriff.

Cerro Gordo Affairs.

Belshaw's furnace is stopped for repairs; Beaudry's and the Swansea are both in full blast. Working men have become quite scarce about Cerro Gordo, many having left recently for other localities, while but few come in to take their places. Though so much rain has fallen in this section in the past few days, the weather there has remained perfectly dry, and this circumstance has a tendency to make times rather duller than if there was an abundance of snow, which would make up the deficient water supply.

For the Los Angeles Route.

Mr. E. Olinghouse, the well known Los Angeles teamster, is now in our county making arrangements for the transportation of freights. We understand that he proposes to keep teams on the Los Angeles road to work, and not for the purpose of dividing the profits with contractors or to make a country rich. He proposes to run light for bullion when there is no up freight, and thinks the furnace men will be compelled to give him down freight, as the bullion is constantly increasing on the teams.

Failed to Organize.

The meeting to organize a Lodge of Good Templars did not take place last Saturday night as was anticipated, by reason of the fact that the proper books did not arrive in time. They are now, however, in the hands of District Deputy M. S. Clark, and the next meeting is set for Saturday night, January 4th next, when it is hoped all who desire to help in the work will be on hand. It is a slight saving in expense of becoming a full degree, in the case of a charter member.

The Weather.

Unlike most places even on this coast, when a marked change of weather occurs here it is worthy of note. Until the present week it has been uniformly bright and fine, but during the past three or four days an immense amount of rain has fallen in the valley with snow in proportion upon the mountains on both sides, although on the Inyo range it appears it did not extend as far south as Cerro Gordo, where it is particularly needed.

The First Across.

It may be of interest to some to know that a young lady was the first person to cross the new Lone Pine bridge after its completion, or just before the last few planks were put in place. The young lady was Miss Hoff, a daughter of the well-known senior of the firm of V. Hoff & Co. Johnny Lucas was the first to take a team across.

Relocated.

Having got fairly under way in the original store building at Camp Independence, which has been rebuilt, Mr. Joseph Harris calls the attention of the public to his store and stock. See advertisement.

Compl[illegible] Filed.

District Atto[illegible] Decar has filed a complaint in [illegible] Clerk's office, in which he gives vent [illegible] sundry specifications that have troubled his mind ever since F. K. Miller brought them to his notice. Between the two they have fixed up a case without the knowledge or consent of either the plaintiff or defendant. The parties are "Inyo County vs. the Board of Supervisors." The nominal point at issue is to prevent the defendant from paying or keeping faith with the contractor for county structures. The real point is to effect something in the interest of the county seat advocates, the District Attorney being the cats' paw with which the chestnuts are to be snatched out of the fire. He now thinks he was altogether in error when, as the legal adviser of the Board, he endorsed the contracts as being all right. An efficient, wide awake District Attorney, who can see fatal errors in time to correct them after it is too late, is something to be proud of, but mainly because they are scarce and very costly. One sawed out of a fair article of fir timber, however, even if it does twist and warp, would be much cheaper and of quite as much practical use to those who foot his bills.

The case referred to comes up for a hearing Jan. 6th, until which time we pass the subject, except to briefly give the points of the complaint, which are as follows, to wit:

A failure of the Board to advertise for plans and specifications in detail; (for Court House and bridges); to name the amount they had on hand for the purpose of constructing any or all of them; failure to advertise the premium they would allow the successful bidder presenting plans; failure to advertise for a period of thirty days at the proper time for plans and specifications; refusing to award the contract to the lowest bidder; for awarding it to the lowest bidder, J. Alexander, on the 13 of September and giving it to other parties on the 19th of the same month, to parties whose bids had been previously rejected, this bid (Chaquette's) being also much higher than the other; for permitting the withdrawal of the lowest bid on the Court House presented in the name of J. Earl. The complainant further alleges that the said Board threaten to pay to the said contractor, E. Chaquette, the sum of $10,000, and as soon as the work is all completed the full sum of $35,000, and that the said Board are unable to make this sum good out of which the said defendant is going to be swindled.

If not the exact words this is the exact substance of this sorrowful and miserable complaint. Notwithstanding the fate of the District Attorney who unnecessarily exposed himself we feel assured this complaint ain't infectious, and is in no danger of spreading. People having hogs out had better call 'em home, however.

His Ideas About It.

A gentleman who recently visited this country gives us his views in general of this section, in a letter from Visalia However, we can only find room for a synopsis of it, passing his descriptions of the country and incidents of the way while en route to that place. He was much struck with the piles of bullion at Cartago, to which point it is brought from Swansea by the steamer Bessie Brady, and states there are 400 tons now awaiting the teams. Accepting as true—and no doubt they are—the statements of a fellow passenger (whom we suspect to be Mr. Earl), concerning the Lida Valley and Gold Mountain district, taken in connection with what he saw in other places himself, he thinks that this section is bound to soon lead almost every other on the coast. He speaks in high terms of the way staging is done on the southern route, the climate, etc. On Greenhorn Mountain he was informed by a saw mill man that quantities of pine lumber would be shipped from thence to this county by the up-bound bullion teams. This correspondent is so impressed with the rich mines of Lida and Gold Mountain that he purposes going there shortly, with a view to develop some of them.

Cerro Gordo.

It is reported that a gentleman named Boushey is incorporating in San Francisco a couple of mining companies, to operate in Cerro Gordo. One very sensible feature of the movement is the securing of the valuable water rights some ten or twelve miles to the northward of the town, to which we have frequently made reference. However, we have seen no definite notice of the filing of incorporation papers; and, in any event, past experience should dictate to the people of Cerro Gordo the propriety of allowing these new concerns no opportunity to repeat the swindling operations of two or three former San Francisco and Virginia city companies. If they desire riches from the enormous wealth of Cerro Gordo mines, let them come armed with sufficient cash to pave their way.

Christmas.

It was very rainy that day, but that did'nt spoil the fun of those who had deliberately resolved to have fun. Except in special instances elsewhere reported, the day passed off satisfactorily to everybody and in every place so far as we have heard. Turkeys, chickens and fiddles innumerable had their necks twisted and screwed, and people ate and danced and got tipsy, as inclination and opportunities prompted, and as opportunities for one or all of these were quite numerous, what with old Santa Claus' attentions to the little ones, this Christmas was quite a success.

Notary.

Elsewhere will be seen the card of Mr. James Kays, Cerro Gordo, Notary Public and Conveyancer. Mr. Kays will attend to the writing of all transfers and legal instruments, both in English and Spanish.

The sum of $7,175 was ordered paid to E. Chaquette, contractor of the Lone Pine bridge.

From Gold Mountain.

Lieut. Dove is just in from a trip to Gold Mountain, and is quite enthusiastic in his praises of its extraordinary value and promise as a mining country. As an indication of how this apparent fact is beginning to be appreciated, he states that twenty-five new mineral locations were recorded between the 7th and 17th of the present month. He thinks the people of this valley ought by all means to take some decided steps toward securing the trade of that entire region. This is its natural and best base of supplies, but some effort on the part of our own people seems to be absolutely necessary to effect a change in our favor in this respect. At present everything for that section comes by way of Austin, passing en route over a sixty-mile desert and a much worse and more expensive road in every particular than that from this valley. Lieut. Dove's judgment and opinion in matters of this kind are well worthy of confidence and consideration, and certainly none the less so when taken as a simple confirmation of the statements of many others who have visited that country. Let some of our farmers and merchants try a venture in that direction, no matter how limited the scale, and if the prospects are near as favorable as supposed but little other effort or expense will be necessary to secure their rapidly increasing trade, and a good market for all our surplus products. There are many who believe that even now the discoveries fully justify the opinion that before many months Gold Mountain will produce an excitement and sustain it equal to any that has taken place in the past two or three years. Whether this be the case or not the matter referred to should be attended to at once. In returning from there the Lieutenant left his command and came straight across to Waucoba, accompanied by no one save an Indian guide, who proved as being perfectly true his assertion that he "sabe'd a heap" about the country. The distance was much shorter than by the usually traveled route, and the road generally good, except from the scarcity of water, which necessitated one dry camp during the two days' trip to Waucoba.

Old Frank.

This well known and highly esteemed old Newfoundland is no more. Some heartless wretch administered poison to the unsuspecting old pioneer. This was in the darkness, as became the deed, of last night. If anathemas were deadly that wretch would now be with his fathers, or where blankets are superfluous. Old Frank's virtues, though he leaves numerous descendants, were many, his evil traits but few. There was no treachery in heart nor double dealing in the pleasant and graceful wag of his tail. He was a reliable friend to little dogs when hard pressed by superior weight or numbers. He has helped many of them out of trouble and, since the days of his puppyhood, disdained to steal a bone from any smaller than himself. He was a cotemporary with Molly, the cat whose melancholly taking off some months since we duly chronicled at the time, and, to that date, was her friend and chummy. They, with John Hughes, both witnessed the rise and fall of the city across the river, and was ever since closely identified with the progress of the country. Of later years he has boarded around with a few select friends, with whom his presence was ever welcome, and at whose hands he ceived burial rites befitting a dog of such high repute.

Time Changed.

The time of departure on the Northern route has been changed from 5 P. M. to 1 P. M., the mail closing at 12:30, the days remaining the same—Sunday and Thursday. This change is made for the purpose of securing day light for the drive from Benton to Aurora. We are pleased to state that the stages are now running full both ways; and, what is of greater interest to the general public, will soon be run tri-weekly, commencing during the early part of next month.

Returned.

Sheriff Mulkey got back from his trip to San Quintin the present week, having deposited his prisoner, Nelson, at that institution in good order. From Mr Mulkey's report, Nelson has a good many friends in San Francisco, having lived there in good repute for many years, who will endeavor to effect his release before the expiration of his term of sentence.

Lone Pine.

The party from this place who attended the Christmas ball at Lone Pine managed to get back some two or three days afterward. They report the affair as having been an immense success, some forty couple being in attendance, and assert that Lone Piners can double grand discount Independence in the conduct of such affairs.

Any information concerning him will be thankfully received by his afflicted sister at Visalia. Address S. G. Creighton, Visalia, Dr. White, Camp Independence, or this office.

Taxes.

As a matter of duty and not of pleasure, we announce the painful fact that Saturday next, January 4, 1873, is the last day of grace for the reception of taxes without a frightful addition being made thereto. Walk up to the Captain's office, ye delinquents, and his amiable clerk will condole with you.

At Big Pine.

By reference to his advertisement, it will be observed that our old friend J. W. McMurry, Esq.—him of the infantile stature, six feet seven miles high—has removed his store from Fish Springs to Big Pine, at which point he will doubtless build up one of the most extensive mercantile establishments of the county.

Earthquake.

We had a slight temblor about 10 o'clock last night. The shake itself wasn't much but the accompanying report was quite startling, and could not have been distinguished from the roll of thunder except for the aforementioned slight movement. It was raining hard at the time.

On the Hill.

Up in the metaliferous regions of Cerro Gordo, the holiday just passed was celebrated by a grand bal masque, given by the "social evils" and professional heel-slingers, their numbers being augmented by those of Lone Pine.

Peter Peerson, J. P.

This dispenser of the law was fined $50 and ordered into custody, where he now remains, for contemptuously refusing to obey a mandate from the County Court.

Around Again.

Dr. White, we are pleased to announce, has almost entirely recovered from the effects of his injuries, an account of which we gave two weeks ago.

Came Back.

After trying Alameda county to their satisfaction S. W. Blaisdel and lady have returned to their former place of residence on George's Creek.

Our Sermon.

A Happy New Year to Everybody—when it comes. Amen.

Emotional Insanity.

An important bill has been introduced in the Indiana Legislature to protect society against the danger ensuing from setting at liberty persons who may have been acquitted of murder, manslaughter, robbery, arson, rape, larceny, assault or assault and battery with intent to commit any felony, and the plea of insanity shall be set up in defense, it shall be the duty of the court or jury trying the defendant to find specifically whether such defendant was or was not insane when the alleged offense was committed, and whether such insanity was impulsive, homicide or moral, or not, and in case the court or jury shall find the defendant to have been insane when the offense was committed, he or she shall be found not guilty thereof. Any person acquitted in any of the cases heretofore mentioned shall be committed to some secure and strong ward of the hospital for the insane for the term of two years, and as much longer as may be necessary to complete the cure of such defendant, but such defendant shall be kept wholly separate and apart from all other patients in such hospital When any person shall be acquitted of any charge of murder, manslaughter, robbery or rape by reason of the impulsive, homicidal or moral insanity of such person, then such person, upon his or her acquittal, shall be securely confined in such strong ward in said hospital for the insane during his or her natural life.—Eureka Sentinel.

Visalia.

A Visalia dispatch of the 17th gives the following items: A sharp shock of an earthquake was felt here about 8 o'clock last evening. Last night was the coldest of the season. Thermometer stood at 28 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. Farmers are getting anxious for rain.

Jury—Twelve prisoners in a box, to try one more at the bar.

VARIETIES.

—Here is the way a practical Wisconsin man seeks to mend his ways: He posted up the following notice: "Having by a long course of dissipation and debauchery so weakened my will as to be utterly powerless to resist the appetite for alchoholic liquors, and not being particularly anxious to 'die and be d—d' as yet, I hereby solemnly swear that I will prosecute to the Ultima Thule of the law any saloon keeper, druggist or other person who shall give or sell me any spirituous or malt liquors of any kind whatever."

—There possibly may be a few of our readers who will believe this grasshopper story: They have became so ravenous out in Montana that they eat the iron work on wagons. That's pretty tough work, perhaps, but Jersey musquitoes can discount them and give them large odds. They have been known to tickle a mule on the back until he kicked up and then to devour his shoes while they were in the air. Why not tell a good story while you are about it?

—A Rochester boy teased his girl for an hour to go out and take a lunch with him, and she at last consented. Though not feeling hungry in the least, she managed to get away with a stew, a plate of raw, a white fish, an Irondequoit trout, two quail on toast, a glass of sherry, and half a pound of caramels. Her escort left for Denver next day.

—Port Jervis boasts a wonderful colored family. The father is without any ribs, and so runs no risk of Adam's fate. One of the sons, though six feet high, can reduce his stature to three feet three inches, and another can stop the beating of his heart for a minute at a time. Other members have revolving hips and other novelties of construction.

—The one-dollar gold pieces, it is announced, are to be withdrawn from circulation. In the time when gold and silver were the common currency of the country a very large number of them were in circulation, but these have been gradually absorbed until now not much more than twenty millions of them are out. These will be called in at once, re-melted and coined into larger denominations.

—The Boston Globe notes several instances of sales of land in the burnt district of that city where the advance in price since the fire has amounted to twenty per cent. and upward; and it asserts that the straightening and widening of the streets and other proposed improvements will greatly enhance the value of property throughout the entire section swept over by the conflagration.

—The was an old nigger and his name was Uncle Ned, and he died at Savanah the other day at the age of 112. The deep botheration of his taking off was due to the excessive use of tobacco during the entire period of his last century.

—A baby having given too long and too loud vent to her emotions at one of John Owens' recent performances, the actor stepped to the foot-lights and informed the audience that "unless the play was stopped the baby could not go on."

—A gentleman at Fremont, Ohio, had a reception at his house the other evening, and when the guests went away it took him all night to wash the tar and pick the feathers off his person.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
